Remember I Invite YOU

To come on any day but Sunday, and inspect my stock. I have a magnificent collection, including nearly all varieties of Canaries or Mules.

If you cannot come, and are in want of any variety of Canary or Mule, or any requisite for the bird room or aviary, send a post card for my free Illustrated Catalogue, and remember I guarantee to give full and complete satisfaction.

I guarantee safe delivery, and send every bird on 7 days' approval, at my risk.

For VALUE in Stock or Exhibition birds I defy all Competition.

During the season I have supplied Yorkshires and Norwich that have won for my customers in keenest competition in various parts of the country. My own birds are consistently to the fore at all leading shows (see reports week by week). Many of this season's winners have been bred from stock birds supplied by me. Letters proving this can be seen any time.

I am now in a position to supply stock or exhibition birds in Yorkshires or Norwich that cannot be equalled for price and quality. This is a bold statement, but can be easily tested by sending for one or more birds on approval, and comparing with all others. I offer 7 or 10 days' approval; if not satisfied I guarantee to return cash in full and pay carriage back. I guarantee pairs to be unrelated, and bred from pure winning strains. Every bird sent at my risk absolutely, and safe delivery guaranteed. I have been established at the same address over 32 years. The following are specimens of letters I receive by every post. Hundreds are filed, and every visitor has the opportunity of examining same.

"Crescent House, Louth, January 25, 1911.—I received bird all right. You could not have suited me better.—S. Hunter, to Joe Thomas."

"18, Devonshire Place, Chester, January 25, 1911.—I received Norwich hen in good condition, and no effects of the journey, which speaks well for the condition of your birds when turned out. The pair of Norwich are doing well.—Wm. Bleasdale, to Joe Thomas."

"121, Weedon Street, Sheffield, January 23, 1911.—Bird arrived safe on Thursday last, and gives the utmost satisfaction. I shall know where to send further orders.—J. Hill, to Joe Thomas."

The following are a few prices, but I invite you to send a P.C. for my free illustrated catalogue, containing full particulars and advice to breeders, etc., etc., before placing your orders.

Yorkshire cocks, grand birds, good length, and full of quality, and on full song, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- each, upwards. Smart, racy, upstanding hens, full of "breed," 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- upwards.

Properly matched pairs, guaranteed unrelated, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- upwards. In Clears, Ticked, Greens, or Variegated.

Norwich, some grand cobby birds, with good substance and short tails and flights, bred from the best. Cocks, same price as Yorkshires. Hens, Buffs, from 3/- each; yellows from 5/- each upwards. A few grand stock birds, from my own "John Bull" strain. Write particulars.

The following are now in stock, and ready for immediate disposal:—

Yorkshires, Norwich, Greens, Cinnamons, Crests, Crest-breds, Scotch Fancies, Border Fancies, Mules, St. Andreasberg, or pure Selfert Rollers (in full, Rolling song), Siberian Goldfinches (including a few that can win), grand Sib hens, for Muling, etc., etc.

If you want a winner, or good stock birds, likely to breed winners, all I ask is that you will send me particulars, and let me send you birds on approval, and compare all others.

Easy Payments.—I have decided to assist any bona-fide fancier who is desirous of obtaining really good stock birds, and is not in a position to pay cash down, by sending birds on very easy terms, and send on receipt of first payment.

Don't forget to send a P.C. for my catalogue.

Special Note.—I hope to attend the Crystal Palace Show, with a wide range of stock, breeding and show cages, also stock birds. I invite you to inspect my stall, and shall be pleased to book your orders.

Prize-Winning YORKSHIRES.

Read following testimonials, which prove without doubt that the reliable strain is absolutely the best in the Fancy, and for years past has bred and supplied winners at all the leading shows:—"8, Colenward St., Belfast, Jan. 29, 1911.—I have much pleasure in letting you know I have won 3 firsts, 7 seconds, 7 thirds, etc., and several specials, including special best Cinn. Marked at Belfast Show, and special for best Yorks, cock at Bangor Show, with birds bought from you, also with birds bred from stock birds from you. This should prove to fanciers requiring winners or stock birds that yours is a reliable strain for producing winners, and that fanciers can rely on being honestly treated by an honest breeder.—C. Tansey to L. Dykes." Another from Breakspear Road, Abbotts Langley, January 28, 1911:—"Received hen quite safe, and very well pleased with her; also thanks for the prompt attention paid to order, and I shall not forget you if I want any more.—W. Willis to L. Dykes." "George Street, South Hindley, near Barnsley, January 28.—I received the pair of Yorkshires in splendid condition, and am highly satisfied with them.—Thomas Holmes to L. Dykes." Champion long Yellow Yorkshire cocks at 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each; Buff cocks at 5/6, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each, all on full song and seven inches long. Pairs carefully matched to breed winners at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair, in clears, ticked, marked, cinnamon marked, and clear pink-eyed, colour-fed to perfection or natural colour, and all guaranteed cold-room bred and kept, and in perfect health. Extra long racy Yellow or Buff hens, at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each; also some grand chubby Norwich at same price as Yorkshires, and a few choice Crests and Crest-breds, reasonable. Travelling Cages 3d. extra. All sent on seven days' approval at my risk, and safe delivery guaranteed at any distance. Easy payments arranged with genuine fanciers, and birds sent off at once. State wants. Illustrated price list free. Inspection invited at any time. If you want to win or stock birds to breed winners, I can supply you with the best blood in Fancy. Also a few recent winners, cheap.

Place your orders with the old reliable Breeder, Exhibitor, and Judge, who breeds his own winners, and has won over 300 cash prizes, cups, medals, etc., during the present season, at most leading shows, and remember I am the only one exhibiting of the name of Dykes, so am not claiming credit that is due to someone else.

:: AMATEURS ::

WILL FIND ANY OF THE FOLLOWING A GOOD INVESTMENT:—
Special Matched Pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-. Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-. Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Border Fancies, 10/6, 12/6. These are the best value ever offered. Cages, 3d.

NOVICES

WILL FIND ANY OF THE FOLLOWING JUST WHAT THEY REQUIRE:—
A Pair of Norwich Plainheads, Yorkshires, or Hartz Mountain Rollers, properly matched, and the cock on song, at 8/6 and 10/6. Cages 3d.

Remember that I personally match these up myself, and exercise the same care as if they cost pounds, and just as I would do if I were pairing for myself. In fact, I always make it a rule to thoroughly satisfy in selection—then I am sure I shall satisfy my customer, i.e., if satisfaction is possible. Now, this may not sound like anything very particular, at the same time it is of the utmost importance to the purchaser, as everything depends upon this matching as to what results are likely to be; hence, you want it done by someone who not only knows what is right and what is wrong, but also someone who takes an interest in doing so, to get the only best results possible from the class of birds purchased.

I also offer, suitable for all above pairs, a good, serviceable breeding cage, fitted complete, price 3/6; ditto, fitted with sand trays, and sanitary utensils, 5s/-.

For every other variety send for the largest, completest, and the First Illustrated Canary price list ever published, and do not be gulled with imitations, which will bring only disappointment and delay, for I Have the Birds I offer; that means a good deal more than some people recognise.

W. RUDD. THE Bird Specialist. NORWICH.

HEALTHY aviary-bred 1910 Canaries, Yorkshire and Norwich cross, cocks full song, 5/-, hens 2/6; approval; 1 green cock, 1 green hen: Morley, Baker, Linton, Cambs.

NOTICE! Few good secondhand two-room Canary breeding cages, less than half cost, splendid singing Canary, bargain: Ralfs, 44, High Mill-rd, Southtown, Gt. Yarmouth.

THREE cock Canaries, 5/- each; 1 hen, 2/-; cock Goldfinch, hybrid breeder, 6/6; also 6 cages, 16 x 12 x 7, almost new, 2/- each: Coward, 22, Fenton-st., Barrow-in-Furness.

"THE Stock Book," our invaluable "Breeding Room Register," by G. E. Weston. A well-known fancier has said of it:—"It makes bird breeding easy." It simplifies the operations in the bird-room, and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred; it contains both pedigree, breeding, young bird and show registers of simple and unique character, post free, 7d from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

ST. HELEN'S AVIARIES I have a large stock of Norwich and Yorkshire Canaries, the right sort, guaranteed to suit at the price. Norwich cocks, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Yorkshires, cocks, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6; hens, 3/6, 5/-, 7/6 each; all birds on approval; money returned if you are not satisfied; no offence taken: Sherlock, Liverpool-rd., St. Helens.

GENUINE OFFER Due to unforeseen circumstances we are compelled to dispose of all our stock of Yorkshires and Norwich Plainheads, including all exhibition birds; none reserved; all birds will be on view for inspection on Sunday from 10 to 4 o'clock; letters stating requirements will receive immediate attention; 40 show cages, nearly new, 1/- each; travelling cases from 2/-; our birds have won over 200 prizes, at nearly all the leading shows, including Palace; 7 days' approval; deposit: Smith and Sellars, 3, Trafford-st., Littleborough, near Manchester.

OUR BIRTHDAY NUMBER.

Some Expressions of Opinion.

I think CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number, and its coloured plates, a treat.—C. Moore (Lincoln).

I'm telling lots of people about the Birthday Number; it was a treat to see.—W. Williams (Carnarvon)

Allow me to compliment you upon CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number, which was a grand threepennyworth.—W. Brown (Whitchurch).

The coloured plates in CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number are simply grand, especially the one depicting the different seeds for British birds.—Messrs. Lovegrove and Lovegrove (Henley).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is a marvel! I think the plates are wonderful, and that of plants and seeds is one of the finest guides the Fancy could have; it is so real. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—J. Alfred (Pontlatlyn).

I am a reader of your CAGE BIRDS Your Birthday Number was very good, and the plate on wild seeds is a splendid help for bird fanciers, who may know them by name but not by the plant.—D. Robinson (Todcaster).

I think CAGE BIRDS the best for fanciers; I would not miss it for anything. It is a grand paper. The Birthday Number is excellent; the coloured pictures being splendid.—W. Johnson (Exeter).

Many thanks for including my unflighted Yorkshire among the season's winners in your Birthday number, which is grand. It came as a real surprise to me, as I had no idea you intended doing so.—H. Knight (Cambridge).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number eclipses every other number you have yet produced. It is well worth a shilling. It reminds one of the old saying: The older you are growing, the better you are.—L. J. Penaluna (Blackwood, Mon.).

I am highly pleased with the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS. The one plate alone, of Wild Seeds, is a treat to British bird keepers, as it will enable them to find the different plants and seeds so essential to us British bird keepers. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—W. Meyrick (Knighton, Radnorshire).

I send a few lines to show my appreciation of CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number. I have been a reader of your paper for the last eight years, but I honestly think that the 9th Birthday Number is the best ever issued. The plates are grand, especially that of "Wild Plants and Seeds." I wish your journal every success.—David Robertson (Forfar).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is a treat indeed. The plates are something grand.—Dr. Evans (Pontardulais).

I am delighted with the coloured plates (especially the "Three Graces" and "Plants and Seeds for Birds") in the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS.—Frank Litchfield (Newport Pagnell).

I am well pleased with CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number. It is a work of art, and full of valuable instruction. I have passed on a copy to a youth who has taken to the Fancy, and who, I have no doubt, will become a regular reader of your weekly publication.—Thos. Smith (Glasgow).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is even better than I expected. It is all interesting—from beginning to end. And your coloured plates are simply beautiful, and a credit to your artists. Again, I wish you and your valuable paper a Prosperous New Year, and all readers of CAGE BIRDS.—L. Walters (Featherstone).

I must congratulate you upon your splendid Birthday Number threepennyworth. It far exceeds my expectations, and the rapid strides it has made in the past will, I trust, be exceeded in the near future. I wish very many happy returns of the day to the "King of Papers," CAGE BIRDS.—A. J. Notley, secretary of the Hetton-le-Hole and Dis. C.B.S.

Allow me to say that CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is really superb. You could not have produced a plate of more general interest than that of the wild plants. The supplement altogether is quite a work of art in every way. Thanking you for what is worth far and beyond what you charge for this unique production, and wishing you the continued success you so richly merit.—W. E. Sturley (Newport, Mon.).

You have given the Fancy many excellent productions during your long career, but, in my opinion, nothing has been so well done as is your Birthday Number. It is simply superb, teeming with good things for the Fancy. I beg to tender you my heartiest congratulations upon the same. I hope your splendid enterprise will be fittingly rewarded.—John B. Waterman (Dulwich, S.E.).

I feel I must wish my old friend and counsellor, CAGE BIRDS, very many Happy Returns of the Day, and must also congratulate you on your wonderful and well-merited success during the past nine years. I often wonder what we birdy men would do without CAGE BIRDS. I consider it the birdy man's "Enquire Within." The Birthday issue is a gem, and ought to be in the hands of all lovers of birds. The plates I consider fit to hang on the walls of mansion or cottage. I wish you still further success.—C. E. Miller (Uttoxeter).

What a grand Birthday Number CAGE BIRDS has given us this year! It is doubly interesting to me, for, although I have kept and bred birds for thirty-five years, it is only since taking your paper (just over nine years ago) that I have taken to exhibiting. It is just over nine years since I bought my old Goldie-Bullie. A good many have been bred, and have gone during this period, including a few which I have bred myself, but I am very pleased to tell you that my old bird is going almost as well as your paper, and he returned from Spalding Show recently with a 1st prize card on his cage. Although I cannot expect my old bird to last much longer, I hope to see CAGE BIRDS always to the front.—W. Andrews (Olney, Bucks).

I must congratulate CAGE BIRDS and its staff on the production of such a superb Birthday Number. It is the best (to my mind) that you have produced during the four years I have been in the Fancy. By your plates you have shown me two birds I have only known by name, viz., the white-winged Lark, and the Masked Shrike. The Bee-eater I have seen depicted before, but not so well re-produced; the colouring of the plate is simply grand. The plate of "Wild Seed Plants" is a credit to Mr. Norman, and with Mr. Prior's notes fills (and I am sure every British bird fancier will agree with me) a long-felt want, leaving nothing to be desired. Your Crest plate is also first-class, and is well got up. I close wishing CAGE BIRDS every success; may it see many more birthdays.—John Young (Glasgow).

Many Happy Returns of the Day. The three beautiful plates with CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number are indeed grand. "The Three Graces" are just what the Crest breeders would like to produce. "Strangers Within the Gates" are indeed grand looking specimens; and last, but by no means least, "Wild Seeds and Plants for Bird Keepers" is the finest plate ever produced by any paper. I have this one framed already. If British bird fanciers would only take a tip from me, they, too, would have it framed. Three grand plates (all published by CAGE BIRDS) which every British bird fancier should have framed are: "A Family Party of Goldfinches," "A Trio of Popular Finches," and that beautiful plate of "Wild Seeds" in the Birthday Number, which will make a grand trio, with "Wild Seeds" plate in the centre. I wish CAGE BIRDS a Prosperous New Year.—A. H. C. Legg (Perth).

OUR JIG-SAW PUZZLE.

Result of the "Jumbled Canary" Competition.

On the front page of our recent Birthday Number we printed a very jumbled-up illustration (a silhouette of a Norwich Plainhead), and offered a prize of one guinea for the reader who succeeded in cutting it up and pasting the parts on paper or cardboard so as to represent as closely as possible our artist's original of this jumbled up Black Canary. The competition, as we had hoped, proved a very popular one.

Quite a large number of the competitors solved the puzzle correctly, and the prize, therefore, as stated in the conditions governing the competition, goes to the one who sent in the most neatly arranged attempt. This proves to be to whom a cheque for one guinea will be sent in due course. The effort of this competitor not only tallies with our artist's key-drawing, but it is also the neatest in appearance and general make-up.

Mr. William Oliver,
6, Murieston Terrace, Edinburgh,

Following hard after comes Mr. W. Bailey (Lowestoft), whose solution also is very neatly arranged. Other competitors whose attempts do them great credit: Mrs. Giddins (Potters Bar), Mrs. G. Bowden (Ardwick), the Misses B. Francis (Coventry), T. Hawes (London, N.W.), D. Hawkes (Leytonstone), A. Ogden (Crewe), E. G. Watts (Hendon), and F. Wood (Bourne End), and Messrs. W. A. Butler (Southampton), T. Coonoy (Elgin), W. Cumming (Dundee), C. Dunn (Stockton-on-Tees), G. Gilan (Edinburgh), Fred Hammond (Bradford), T. H. V. Hayter (Beeston), Chas. Hollis (Nottingham), E. J. Lamb (New Malden), Alex. W. Mantach (Dalkeith), W. Mitchell (Long Buckby), A. Moorman (Carishrook Castle, Isle-of-Wight), Walter Pawley (London, S.E.), G. Pridham (Plymouth), and H. Sculthorp (Kettering).

THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

Routes for Visitors.

For convenience of visitors, we again append the best routes to the Palace from the various railway termini:—

PADDINGTON (G.W.R.).—Take the Underground from Praed Street to Victoria or Aldersgate Street; then the Chatham Railway to the Crystal Palace High Level Station. Or take the Bakerloo tube (see from Marylebone).

MARYLEBONE (G.C.R.)—"Bakerloo tube to Elephant and Castle; then transfer to Chatham Railway to High Level Station. Or go to Baker Street Station and take the train to Victoria.

EUSTON (L.N.W.R.).—Passengers stopping at Willesden at or about 2 o'clock should enquire if there is a train due for the Palace, as it is possible to save an hour or more this way.

ST. PANCRAS (M.R.), and KING'S CROSS (G.N.R.) Underground to Aldersgate Street; or 'bus to Ludgate Hill or Holborn Viaduct, and then Chatham Railway to Palace. Or take the City and South London (tube) Railway to London Bridge.

LIVERPOOL STREET (G.E.R.).—Rail direct, via New Cross; or 'bus to London Bridge, Holborn Viaduct, or Ludgate Hill, and then by L.B. and S.C. or Chatham Railway.

WATERLOO (L. and S.W.R.).—Take halfpenny car to Elephant and Castle (or the "Bakerloo" tube), then transfer to Chatham Railway.

Victoria, Ludgate Hill, St. Paul's, Snow Hill, Holborn Viaduct, Moorgate Street, and London Bridge.—Rail direct to the Palace from these stations.

Direct trains to the Palace also run from Willesden and Clapham Junctions.

NOTE.—We cannot undertake to deal with any results of the judging other than by postcard or telegram.

Visitors to the show should not omit to pay "Cage Birds" stall (at the entrance to the show) a visit, and leave their signatures in our "Visitors' Book." Ask the attendant in charge of the stall for whatever publication you want. It will be a pleasure to supply you.

DERBY SHOW Dec. 2 & 4, Secretaries please note!

The January issue of "Bird Notes"—the journal of the Foreign Bird Club—is graced by a charming picture of Mr. H. Goodchild's, of the renowned Sky-blue Budgerigar, which is accompanied by notes on the species by Mr. O. Millsum. Mr. Wesley T. Page writes on "The Cutthroat," and Miss L. Peacock contributes an article on "My Aviary and its Inmates." Everett's Parrot forms the subject of some notes by the Rev. G. H. Raynor, while Mr. Maurice Amsler, M.B., gives readers some "Nesting notes for 1910." Other articles, notes, etc., and illustrations complete a capital issue which forms the first instalment of a new volume.

I have resigned my position as secretary of the Northern Yorkshire C.C., writes Mr. T. C. Crawhall (Newcastle-on-Tyne). Mr. Coomber has taken over the position. He is a near neighbour, and a keen Yorkshire enthusiast, so that under his control the club should flourish. We are holding a smoking concert at the Lockhart's Roma Cafe, on Feb. 16, when the medals won by members will be presented; fanciers are invited to attend (price 1s. 3d. each). As already announced, I am resigning the secretaryship of the Newcastle-on-Tyne C.B.S. through lack of time. We have had a very pleasant and successful year. Our show still holds its own as the largest out of London and Edinburgh, and we are hoping next year to eclipse Scotland's capital.

Will secretaries kindly note that our show date is changed from Nov. 3 and 4 to Dec. 2 and 4? writes Mr. W. Stevens, secretary of the Derby C.B.C.

Will secretaries please note that the Sutton-in-Ashfield Amalgamated Society hold their next annual show on Nov. 17th and 18th? writes Mr. R. Nuttall, Sec.

Our show is fixed for Nov. 2nd and 3rd, open to Kent, writes Mr. H. Wray, secretary of the Chatham and Dist. F.A. Will secretaries please note and arrange to avoid clashing?

I have taken CAGE BIRDS since the 85th number and always look for it on Friday nights when I get home. I am sure it gets better as it gets older.—G. Arrowsmith (Chesterfield).

All prize money and cash for sold birds was paid out in six days after show, writes Mr. F. Bowman, show secretary of the Glasgow and Dist. C.B.A. Will anyone omitted please write me?

Kindly note that I have taken over the secretaryship of the Huddersfield O.S., and that all communications should be sent to me at 40, Imperial-road, Egerton, Huddersfield, writes Mr. F. J. Sykes.

The pair show of the Highgate, Hampstead and Dist. C.B.S. will be held on Feb. 25, and not Feb. 23, as previously announced, writes Mr. C. W. Law, the hon. sec. The social evening in connection with the distribution of prizes will be held March 2nd, and I hope to make this more attractive than any yet promoted by the society.

I sold my entire stock of Yorkshire Greens to Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, writes Mr. Geoff. Benson, and since I sold them I have purchased the whole stock of Yorkshire Greens of Mr. C. Pickup (Bradford), including his Palace winners of 1910. I have entered two at the forthcoming Palace show, which may lead the majority of fanciers to think that Mr. Metcalfe did not buy the whole of my stock.

Messrs. Bishop and Colton, the hon. secretaries of the newly-formed Sheffield O.S., write: We have been successful in getting The Right Hon. The Earl Fitzwilliam, D.S.O., to stand as president, with the following vice-presidents: Right Hon. Charles B. Stuart Wortley, K.C., M.P., Alderman Geo. Senior, J.P., Samuel Roberts, Esq., M.P., Rev. James Smith, M.A., J. C. Barnes, Esq., Dr. J. G. Mylan, B.A., M.B., L.R.C.P., L.R.C.S., and Dan Mullins, Esq.

The annual dinner of the L.C.B.A. takes place on Monday evening next, Feb. 6, at the Holborn Restaurant, and Mr. John Tyson (169, Sloane Street, S.W.) writes: We shall be pleased to arrange for the comfortable seating of parties if they will notify us not later than midday Monday next as to the number required. We are hoping the entertainment will exceed any previously presented, and to provide for extra pleasure there will be a curtailment of toasts.

NEXT WEEK.

Great Crystal Palace Show Number.

Full Report by Experts. An Exquisite Coloured Plate.

A CRITICAL Report, thorough and complete in every detail, will be given in our next issue of the Great Show being held at the Crystal Palace this week-end. This number will also contain many special and topical articles appealing to every bird-lover, no matter what branch of the Cage Bird hobby he may be interested in. And, above all, accompanying it will be one of the most beautiful and life-like Coloured Plates it has ever been our good fortune to put before our readers. Order your copy of next week's "CAGE BIRDS" at once.

Advertisers will need no reminding of the special advantages attaching to advertising in this issue, with its remarkable circulation. We would impress upon them, however, the necessity of sending their announcements to reach us not later than first post Tuesday next, February 7th, and earlier if possible. Advertisements may be handed in at "CAGE BIRDS" Stall, which will be situated at the entrance to the showroom. Be in time, Advertisers!

I have been compelled to part with all my stock, writes Mr. Faulkner (Redruth), on account of which I shall not be exhibiting for a time.

Will Mr. Law, of Wolverhampton, kindly send me his address? I shall then be pleased to answer his enquiry, writes Mr. H. Lewis (Handsworth).

I have been compelled to remove from 76, Hartington-terrace, and my address in future will be 50, Armstrong-terrace, South Shields, writes Mr. James Barrass, secretary of the South Shields C.B.S.

The Great Horton O.S. will hold a special meeting on Saturday, February 11th, at the Butcher's Arms. New members wishing to show at our first show must be accepted at this meeting. All members requested to attend.—J. Holroyd, Hon. Sec.

The 1910 balance sheet of the Glasgow West End C.B.C. shows a balance on hand of £11 4s. 10d., which, considering the society is a new one, is highly satisfactory, reflecting credit on the sec. (Mr. Wm. Proudfoot) and the other officers of the club.

I am sorry to have to inform you of the death of Mrs. Neshit, wife of Mr. Thos. Nesbit, one of our esteemed members, writes Mr. William Knowles, secretary of the Beamish and District C.B.S. The sympathy of all our members goes out to him in his sad bereavement.

I have now been a subscriber to your fine paper, CAGE BIRDS, for four years, and am sure no paper is better for fanciers. I have also had the last three numbers of the Annual, and have ordered this year's through my local stationer. Wm. F. McIntosh (Glasgow).

Would the gentlemen that claimed birds at Scottish National, Edinburgh, in class 22, belonging to Messrs. Miller and Alcorn, kindly communicate with them stating their number, also colour of bird, and much oblige Miller and Alcorn, 13, Hope Terrace, Leith.

Mr. J. W. Norris, the hon. sec. of the British Roller C.C., and his fellow officials are to be congratulated on having a credit balance to record for 1910 of £7 0s. 7d., which, with £5 6s. 6d. standing to the credit of the New Cup fund, shows the club to be in a good financial position.

The area of the East Ham and Dist. F.A. has been extended to include 6 miles from the "Earl of Wakefield," Wakefield Street, East Ham, and I hope fanciers in the districts of Bow, Mile End, Hackney, Dalston, etc., will speedily become members, writes Mr. H. Rutter, the Hon. Sec.

Kindly note I have changed my address from The Bee Hive, Pentonville Hill, to The Brewery Tap, Trundley-road, Lower Road, Deptford, where I have built a spacious club room specially adapted for singing contests, writes Mr. Frank Rab.

The Attercliffe and Dist. C.B.S. is having a show of pairs of Yorkshires, Norwich and Hybrids at the monthly meeting at headquarters, where we hope to see a good muster of birds and fanciers, writes Mr. W. Richinson, the Secretary. Mr. J. Perry will be critic. Three shillings will be added to each class. Three of our members—Messrs. Walker, Havenhand and Justice—have promised 10s. each for a series of tablo shows, and not two, as mentioned in our report.

Will fanciers and secretaries please note that I have been appointed secretary of the Kirkcaldy C.B.S., so that all communications regarding this society should be addressed to me at 18, St. Clair-place, Kirkcaldy, Mr. T. Arnott having resigned the secretaryship owing to the lack of time, writes Mr. E. McAnally. But he will act as assistant. Also we are having a two-days' show and hope by having a good classification to receive their support as in former years.

In sending us a copy of his society's balance sheet for the quarter ended Dec., 1910, showing a balance of £5 12s. 8½d., Mr. J. C. Birch, the secretary of the Queen's Park and Dist. C.B.A., writes: The society purchased new staging (costing £5 5s. and the season's exhibitions show a loss of £3 15s.; and £3 was spent on specials, which reduces the balance at bank, having commenced the season with £11 5s. in hand. We hope to gradually increase our balance in the present year.

Mr. C. W. Law, Hon. Sec. of the Highgate, Hampstead and Dist. C.B.S., sends us a copy of that society's 1910 balance sheet, which shows a balance in hand of £5 0s. 3½d. This, although a few shillings less than the amount brought into the accounts from the previous year, is a very creditable result in view of the fact that the expenses during the past year were heavier than formerly. The society is to be congratulated on its financial standing.

PORTRAITS OF WINNERS.

Exhibitors desiring their birds (winners or otherwise) at the Palace Show to be sketched by one of our artists (Mr. Norman or Mr. Goodchild) should notify the attendant at CAGE BIRDS' stall, who will give terms and all particulars.

SHOW DATES FIXED.

To secure insertion in this column, a guarantee that the show will be advertised in "C.B." to the extent of at least 25/- must be sent to our manager. * Under the rules of the C.B. Union.

Catalogues at the Crystal Palace.

Owing to the Printers' Strike, the printers of the Crystal Palace Show Catalogue have returned the proofs, being unable to execute the work. Every effort is being made to have the work done, and the indulgence of exhibitors is desired should there be any delay in the dispatch of catalogues on Friday.—J. W. Ramsden, Show Manager of the Crystal Palace Show.

New C.B.S. for Edinburgh.

May I remind fanciers and friends of the meeting to be held Feb. 4th, in the Cairns Memorial Church Hall (next Hearts Foothall Park), Gorgie-road? Any who find it impossible to be present and are desirous of becoming members, will oblige by forwarding their names. It is hoped there will be a large meeting. Attendance does not necessarily commit one to membership.—J. I. Mackie, Secretary (pro tem), Gorgie P.O., Edinburgh.

A Piping Canary.

We this week had the opportunity of listening to a Canary which can pipe in the manner of a trained Bullfinch. This novelty is in the possession of Mr. Albert Brown, the well-known bird-dealer, of Sclater Street, E. It is an ordinary Roller Canary, and came over from Germany. This bird mingles snatches of some tune or other with its ordinary tours, and the effect is decidedly quaint and laughable. The notes are exactly the same in tone and volume as those uttered by the trained piping Bullfinch. This "piping Canary" would be a worthy companion, we should think, to the "talking Canary" we are to hear this week-end at the Palace Show.

OUR BIRTHDAY NUMBER.

We have now for sale a few copies of the recent Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS, complete with art Supplement and Coloured Plates, so that

Any reader can obtain this immensely successful Birthday Number, with its three lovely coloured plates, and art supplement, for 3½d. post free, or 6d. packed flat in boards by sending stamps or postal order to the Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Early application should be made, as the supply is very limited.

Help Distribute Our Calendars.

To Secretaries of societies and others willing to distribute copies of CAGE BIRDS' Coloured Calendar for 1911, or place same where they will be seen by the general public, we shall be pleased to forward a supply if they will kindly make application to our Publisher, at the above address; a postcard will do.

Face Value versus Pedigree.

A paper on the mating of birds, read by Frank Cole before the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. on October 8th.

What thoughtful man would think of mating two closely-related weaklings, or two birds related possessing the same fault? Without the slightest doubt one must by so doing concentrate that weakness. On the other hand, what disease or weakness can be inbred or concentrated from the mating of healthy relations? Our friends tell us that we lose stamina thus. But do we? And if so, is it the use or abuse of inbreeding? We are pointed to the Crested variety of Canary, and are told that the cause of its present condition was inbreeding. Is this so? Crests, like all other varieties, have been inbred. But look further afield. The first thing that strikes one as he looks at this variety is that it is a "bundle of feathers." It has very little action compared with birds of the other varieties, and it sits on the perch for quite long intervals. Now, I ask you, is not that want of action one of the first signs of weakness? What Norwich or Yorkshire breeder would tolerate such inactivity without knowing there was something wrong with the health of the bird and straightway trying to remedy it? Some Crest breeders, I suggest, do not trouble to do this. They flatter themselves that their birds are improved by being loose in feather, and they breed with them.

Perhaps they do mate blood relations, and the result of mating those weaklings is all put down to inbreeding. Now, who was to blame? Not the principle, but the man who wilfully ignored that weakness. He did not exercise the same amount of care with regard to their health as he did with regard to their feather properties.

We are also told that inbreeding will produce sterility. If this be true, we should not at the present day have our Canaries as we do. They would long since have proved sterile; and the very fact that we have them to-day in all their beautiful types and colours is evidence that judicious inbreeding is not only beneficial but permanent. One of the first signs of sterility is the young being found dead in shell. I do not mean a few in the first round, but two out of four in the second and third nests—fully developed chicks unable to free themselves. The thoughtful breeder says at once This won't do; something is wrong. If he has been breeding too closely he gets a change of blood. The other man takes no notice; he is quite content with the two survivors, forgetting, as our friend says, "they were tainted in constitution"; and in the next year or two the eggs are practically clear. He will not blame himself. Oh, dear no! Poor inbreeding gets the credit.

Is that right? Why blame the effect and not the cause? The man who caused sterility by injudicious breeding was to blame for not exercising proper care. He would not pair two birds possessing the same fault in feather properties, yet did not hesitate to mate two birds possessing inherent weakness. Remember the old saying, "It was not the first straw that broke the camel's back, but the fool who put the last one on."

Judicious inbreeding does not mean loss of stamina, neither does it produce sterility; and to suggest that it does is an insult to all those hard-headed fanciers, past and present, who have with such careful thought produced our present-day Canaries, and who, having done so much, give the lie direct to the sentimentalist.

A Simple Case.

I will give you a very simple case of judicious inbreeding. We must first presume a fault in our strain. For argument's sake let it be head weakness. We purchase a cock to meet this deficiency (bred right), and mate it to one of our hens. The result of that mating is 50 per cent. of blood of each bird. We then select the best young hen and mate her to her sire—result, 75 per cent. blood of sire. Thus do we concentrate that good point. Suppose we are among those who say we must not mate that father to daughter; we should have to pair the result of that first union with our own stock, when the result would be, not 75 per cent. blood having tendencies to good heads, but 25 per cent., with 75 per cent. bad blood. Now, mate this 25 per cent. into your stock and you have practically lost the benefit of that good point. Which is best? I ask you as men of common sense, where is the harm? Again, where can the loss of stamina come in?

Yes, but you say, that first union might not show any improvement. Admitted: but it is there. It must be inherent, and all the more reason why you should inbreed to bring it out before you disperse that blood into your strain.

But inbreeding does not only mean the mating of birds closely related in blood. After a few years all our birds must necessarily be related more or less. It is true the table of affinity does not contain the different degrees of relationship, and I am truly sorry for the conscientious breeder; but we know from our pedigree book that there are family connections, and to my mind it is just as much inbreeding to mate these family connections as to mate pure blood relations. It is the judicious inbreeding of these family connections that builds up a strain and identifies it as one's own. It is also just as much inbreeding to mate two birds possessing certain characteristics whether related or not.

Inbreeding means breeding in, no more and no less. A precocious youngster once said to his father, "Aye, dad, why is it the colour of Goldfinches is so similar?" The old wag replied, "I guess it's inbreeding, for old Noah knew a thing or two when he only took two in the Ark."

An Important Point.

There is just one point more that I will touch upon, and that is, do not endeavour to build a strain in one season. How many starters in the Fancy have purchased show birds, and before they have served their apprenticeship find themselves in the highest section? Money makes more champion exhibitors than brains. It is not long, however, before this class retire because they have not the time, or, in other words, they themselves have got shallow pockets, or else liver complaint. They selected from face value; fortune smiled, but she is a fickle dame. The blood was so mixed and could only bring disappointment.

I would recommend the starter to purchase stock birds from a reliable breeder, and then deal with them systematically. One year remedy one fault, and having done this take another; but don't let the other go wrong again. I know many breeders who rely on sire or dam to control certain points, and each year purposely mate up one faulty and one good bird. This means that every youngster has only a 50 per cent. chance of reversion to that faulty parent. Is that right? No; the whole of the progeny are unreliable, and the element of chance predominates. The best cock should be mated to the best hen. This will materially reduce your pairs because you will soon have fixed up your good birds, and have all the bad ones left. Let it be so. As the gardener prunes his rose trees and thus perfects a few blossoms, so deal with your birds. Then, by your systematic breeding will you produce a reliable strain. It may take years, but what is worth having is worth working for. A perfect strain, perfect in pedigree and perfect in progeny, is what I commend to your endeavours. It is a high ideal—an impossibility, I admit—but remember the old precept, "Shoot high, though perchance you may only hit something as the arrow falls."

In conclusion, I do not ask you to accept my views; I leave them with you for careful thought. If, after that you do not agree with them, ignore them. One man's meat is another man's poison. The fight is with the strong. To the careless man I commend selection, but to the thoughtful, systematic breeding. Pedigree first, and if that be right, select from that pedigree. In this way pedigree supersedes or displaces mere selection by superior power. Blood will tell, and by keeping that blood under control will success be sustained. If after due care one of your pedigree purchases does not turn out as you expected, do not throw all the blame on the vendor. Try to find out whether you are not equally to blame, and I venture to suggest that in most cases you will succeed. Study the bad points in your birds; the good ones can then better take care of themselves. Having found them get rid of them systematically.

I thank you for your kind attention. I invite your opinion and criticism, and would remind you that to spare the rod is to spoil the child; and as the woman once said when reproved for beating her child, "Aye, but I smacks 'em while I got the chance; I can't when they be grow'd up." I urge you to discuss the questions I have raised. I know I have spoken strongly, perhaps you may think too strongly; but, to my mind, the subject cannot be dealt with by half measures.

The Discussion.

The chairman now declared the meeting open for discussion. Mr. Cole had, he said, remarked that he would hit hard, and he had certainly done so. He hoped, however, that they were not all converted, and invited them to ask any question on the subject. A very interesting and somewhat animated discussion followed.

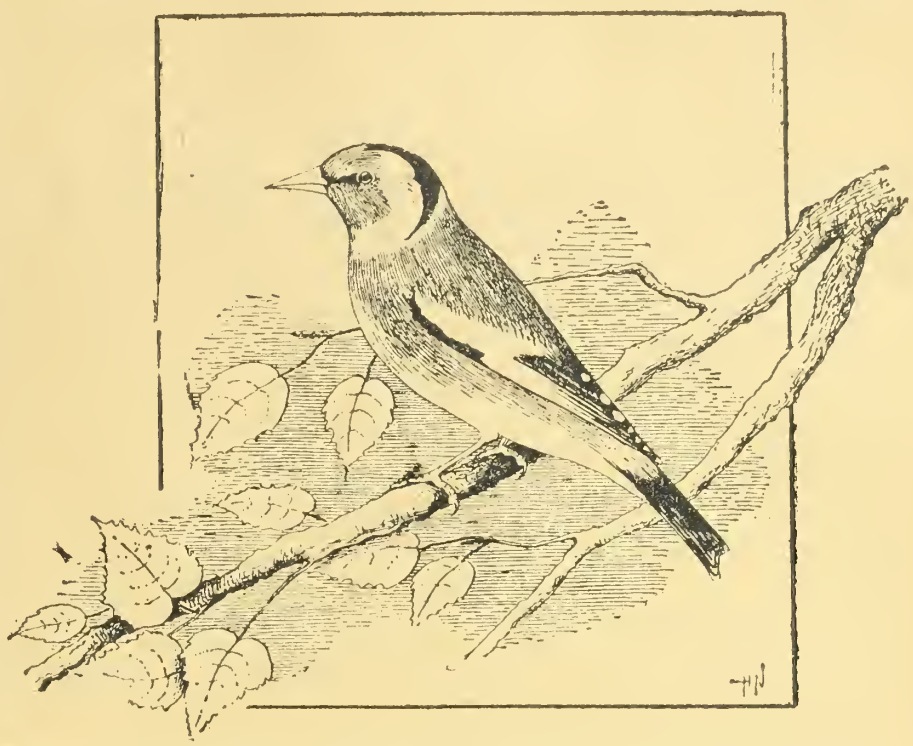
One of the questions asked was: How often should fresh blood be introduced?—Mr. Cole: I should like to answer that question by showing you this chart; I call it the selection chart.

First of all, does my friend know that from 3 pairs of birds it is possible to obtain 36 different families, not one of which is related to the other? I will explain what I mean. In the chart before you, you have 3 cocks and 3 hens. We can mate No. 1 with 4, 5, and 6. No. 2 with 4, 5, and 6, and No. 3 the same. This would produce 9 different families. No. 7 is the family produced by cock 1, hen 4. No. 8 is produced by cock 1, hen 5, and so on through the line to 15, which is produced from cock 3, hen 6. This is the first step.

Family No. 7 can be mated with families 11, 12, 14, 15; family No. 8 with 10, 12, 13, 15; family No. 9 with 10, 11, 13, 14, and so on through the 9 families, taking care that in no case the same number appears in both birds.

I do not say it is necessary or advisable to make these matings. This can only be ascertained from the birds themselves, whether they are suited one with the other. If the result of these matings is not satisfactory, and I could not see any advantage in inbreeding I should certainly get a change of blood. As I have said, you may find a cock although apparently suitable, does not "hit it off" with a certain hen. It is useless proceeding with this pair, so try a change. Don't go here and there for fresh material, but use up what you have. This chart cannot be objected to by the sentimentalist, and should provide material for several years breeding.

In reply to another question on pedigree, Mr. Cole produced chart No. 2.



I should like to draw your attention, he said, to a pedigree chart. It is known as Beech's Poultry Table, and you will see it shows how by inbreeding from one pair of birds 5 families, each differing in blood from the other, can be produced. If you look at the chart you will notice broken and unbroken lines. The broken lines indicate the female side and the unbroken the male. We have no choice for the first mating. No. 1 must be paired with 2, and we produce 3, which is, of course, half the blood of each bird. We now take a male from 3 and mate back to his mother, No. 1, and we produce 4, which is three-quarters blood of dam. A female from 3 mated to her sire 2 produces 5, which is three-quarters blood of sire, and consequently only quarter blood of dam. We now take one bird from 4 and one of the opposite sex from 5 and produce 7, which is again half blood of original pair 1 and 2. Females from 5 mated back to 2 produce 8, which is ⅜ of No. 2, and a male from 4 mated back to No. 1 produces 6, or ⅜ blood of original dam. We now take a male from No. 8, and a female from 6, and for the third time produce half the blood of original pair, which we number 11. Starting again, we select a male from 6 and a female from 4 and produce family 9, which is 13-16ths blood of original dam and only 3-16ths blood of sire.

We now select a male from 9 and a female from 11, and produce 14, which thus becomes 21-32nds of the blood of No. 1, thus preserving her strain of blood. A male from 13, which is 13-16ths the blood of sire No. 2, mated to a female from No. 10, gives us family 17, which is 9-16ths the blood of sire. No. 16, produced by a male from 12 and a female from 10, is again for the fourth time half the blood of the original pair. No. 18 is for all practical purposes the blood of the original sire.

I should like to impress upon you, however, that it is useless trying simply by inbreeding to produce any desired point unless that point is inherent or apparent. Inbreeding is a means to an end, namely, the fixing of a certain point, and although, if I thought it advisable to mate the closest of relations I should do so without hesitation, I should not inbreed merely for the sake of it.

Other questions discussed were breeding or feeding for size, the colouration of wild birds in certain districts, breeding for markings, etc.

The discussions were taken part in by Messrs. Tringham, Tomsett, Hazel, Richardson, Goodwin, Austin, Cracknell, Carpenter, Hollands, Mazzoni, Morgan, Norris, and Steed. A very hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Cole and to the chairman for presiding brought to a close one of the most successful meetings of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.

A WELL-KNOWN EXHIBITION BRITISH GOLDFINCH.

THE PRODUCTION OF YORKSHIRES.

Lecture before the Wombwell and District B.F.A.

Meeting held Jan. 14th. We were favoured with a lecture by Mr. J. Eyre (Dodworth). Mr. Eyre, in his opening remarks on the breeding of the Yorks., said that he believed in getting all things ready for breeding—cages nice and clean, with no crevices to harbour red mite. He strongly objected to the use of enamelled cages, and advocated white lime with a solution of soda. I use sand trays, he said, which I damp with paraffin on the under side; and I find that by the use of sand trays I disturb the birds less thus than by taking the whole cage front out when breeding. I believe in one man dealing with one variety only, as no man can serve two masters. The vital point is pairing up of stock, and I should advise you as novices to select a bird with a good pedigree, but see that the bird is good as well as its pedigree. It is not always best to get show birds for stock. Always go in for a silky-feathered bird; and I don't believe in introducing the Lancashire, as you can only expect long-feathered birds from such a cross. Get them in good condition, as they are liable to quarrel if not in good condition.

I feed on the best Spanish Canary seed, with rape occasionally, throughout the winter, giving the hens a little niger seed two or three times a week, starting about six weeks before pairing up. I am not a believer in double-buffing, and only resort to double yellowing in order to reduce the quantity of coarse feather. Use a green or a cinnamon to a clear, the marked bird for preference on the cock side, when breeding for colour. I always take the eggs out each day and substitute a dummy one, until the hen has laid her third egg, and I feed her on good plain Canary seed during incubation. I don't believe in giving too much green stuff, as it tends to give the young ones diarrhœa, and on no account do I give it when it is frosty.

I find a good plan in steadying the birds is to take the cages in the hand and pass them to any visitors you might have, and thus get the birds used to being handled. Look well after the claws and tails, see that they are clean, as it is difficult for them to show position if their feet are clogged up with dirt. I never inbreed nearer than cousins as I find that by in breeding nearer than cousins as I find that by in breeding too much the birds lose their vigour and stamina. It is well occasionally to introduce fresh blood. During the moult keep a good look-out for red mite, as they are liable to suck all the colour out of the birds.

The following is my preparation for colour-feeding: 5 pounds of sweet pepper, two pounds of hot pepper, one pound of sugar and two ounces of almond oil. I use the bath freely during the moult, keeping the sun off the cages for successful colouring. Many birds lose on the show bench through not being clean, and not having clean show cages. I strongly advise all fanciers to build up a strain for themselves, and not keep buying one here and there. Mr. B. Malpass asked: Do you believe in pairing two yellows?—No; I don't believe in it. You get shorter birds. You might try it when you have a lot of coarse-feathered birds.

Mr. G. Rostrance: How do you get length in the Yorks.?—Have the cock bird on the strong side, the hen not to show a hollow neck. I never bred quality and type with a large hen, but always with a medium-sized one.

Mr. J. W. Dean: How would you improve length of flights without lengthening the body?—By using a quarter-bred Belgian; but the offspring will have a tendency to be thin in the neck, and it takes a lot of judicious pairing to get rid of thin necks. You could also try a bird with extra long flights; but bear in mind that when you lengthen one feather you lengthen the whole.

Mr. H. Crossley: Do you believe in running one cock with two hens? I never make a practice of pairing my show birds with two hens, but if I have a good stock bird I run it with two.

This concluded Mr. Eyre's lecture, and I am sure we all benefited by it. A hearty vote of thanks was given him.—J. Hudson, Sec.

Swifts Colliding.

Two Swifts have been known to fly together with such force that they have both fallen to the ground one of the two being killed.

The Jay in Scotland.

The Jay is somewhat rare in Scotland, and is only locally distributed. Like the Magpie, it would soon increase in numbers if left undisturbed, as it lays from four to six eggs, and generally manages to rear a full brood. When once out of the nest, young Jays are able to take care of themselves fairly well, so that not many of them go under.

How I Breed My Yorkshire Canaries.

ALBERT BURTENSHAW (Worthing).

Moulting and Colour-Feeding.

When the young are eight weeks old the most likely looking show birds I put in pairs to moult. The very best I put entirely by themselves to make certain they do not get plucked by the others. I commence to feed them with colour food every day, and I keep it up right through the moult. I begin with it weak, and work it up to full strength, continuing with the same quantity and the same strength until the finish of the moult, when I reduce it to three times a week.

The head is usually the last part of a bird to complete the moult: you will then want to reduce the strength of your colour-food, also the quantity, to get an even colour all over, otherwise you will have what is known as "fiery heads," meaning a different colour on the heads than on the body. To get your birds even throughout pay strict attention to them in the last stages of their moult.

Mixing the Colour-Food.

Give the birds their usual seed during the time they are on colour food, and on no account remove their seed vessel. Make it so that they can clear it up every day. Use one pound of tasteless pepper and four ounces hot cayenne pepper; well mix these together for every six birds that you want to moult. I find that it works out well at that. Give in the strength of two spoonfuls of tasteless pepper to one hard-boiled egg, and a slice of home-made bread rubbed through a sieve; add a teaspoonful of brown sugar (known as "raw" sugar), and when the birds are half-way through their moult add the same amount of pure ground linseed meal, well mixing it, as most birds do not care for linseed; but when used as above it has the desired effect, namely, to produce sheen. Also give a slice of boiled carrot between the wires three times a week for a month, as it tightens up the feathers splendidly. Allow a free use of the bath, but only when the weather is warm. I use sawdust through the colour-feeding season. I hang up their grit in a drinker inside their cage; they keep nice and clean then, and it saves the use of the brush a good deal.

Add twenty drops of the following solution, well mixed in the colour-food:—Put two drachms of hay-saffron to four ounces of best rum, and let it remain for seven days, then strain off and keep it well corked up. Three times a week place one or two drops of this solution of iron in the drinking water—fresh daily, mind you—enough to colour it.

Sheeting Down.

Keep the birds as best you can out of the sun. I use a sheet hung about four inches from the cage fronts to within a foot of the floor. By hanging the sheet away from the cages the birds get a current of fresh air up between the two. This keeps your birds nice and clean, and also steady. When you are in the room of an evening draw your sheet back for the time you are in the room: and when you retire for the night draw it again to shade them from the early sun, if, that is, the bird-room window faces east.

Conditioning Foods and Sheen.

There are different opinions as to the best way to produce sheen in getting birds into good trim for the show bench; and to those who have had good results from their own system I would say, by all means stick to it, as I am myself a firm believer of old friends. I might say that I do not care for many drugs used for getting birds fit; I use them only when they are needed in sickness.

I find that with careful attention through the moult there is not much to do to get the birds in trim. I give a mixture of three parts of best Spanish Canary seed, one part of summer rape seed, half part maw seed, and half part white millet, three times a week; on the remaining days I give Spanish Canary seed only, as seed diet. But three times a week I give egg-food with a teaspoonful of pure linseed meal, and enough tasteless pepper to colour the egg-food; I add twenty drops of sherry to it, and well mix altogether. Also I supply boiled carrot, ripe apple, and sometimes a small English tomato, but more so when they are on colour food.

I also make free use of the sprayer. For this I add to one pint of soft water one teaspoonful of pure glycerine, when it is time for me to send out to the birds' first show. It should be done about four days before as it gives you time to look them over, and time for them to fine down, that is, to groom themselves.

Training Young Birds.

This is most necessary, also a most important matter. One cannot spend too much time with his birds if he wants them steady; and unless they are steady and are of good position, the chances are against them. I hang a Yorkshire show cage on their stock cage, and let them go in and out at will. I place some little tit-bit in the show cage, and get my birds used to me, and used to the moving of the cage. Then I place them in the show cages (when I can spare the time) for a few hours—seven or eight cages together. I also place between them a thin board that will come level with the topmost square wire round the cage. I place a small piece of apple between each two cages, when I find that the youngsters draw themselves up to their utmost to get a look at their neighbour, also to get a peck at the apple. They will also get used to their show cages as well.

Clean Cages.

It is useless to send out birds and cages that are dirty, and it only wants that the owner of one shall see how it looks when in company with a well staged lot of birds for him to feel sorry that he sent his out dirty; and I feel sure that he would not do so again. But with care (as indicated) there will be no need for anything beyond the occasional washing of the birds' legs, tails, and flights, if they are sprayed twice a week, as before-mentioned.

Run the birds in a show cage that will answer for a spraying cage; have two thin pieces of board, and lay on the two bottom perches. Have them cut so that the two cover the bottom over, leaving the top perch for the bird to stand on while you are spraying him. Wash the show cage well, also the perches, and have them spotlessly clean.

Sending Birds to Shows.

Read carefully the rules of the show you intend sending to; it will save the show officials and yourself a lot of trouble. Send your birds off in good time, with the bottoms of their cages covered with plain Canary seed only, and send them in boxes or baskets that give no trouble, either to the one who unpacks or at the time of repacking for the return journey. Cages tied in paper with string are not only a source of danger to the birds, but are a great nuisance to show stewards and packers. Get a good outfit to begin with.

Should you be one of the "unfortunate exhibitors," take your defeat like a man, and try again; let the judge please himself, and let us abide by his decisions. In conclusion, make up your minds to breed your own winners. Little credit attaches to the man who buys his show birds to win with.

A Lady's Experiences of Canary Breeding.

Miss BANDOCK (London, N.E.).

My experience, though certainly not much, nor very exciting, may interest your readers. I started last season with one pair of birds a friend giving me a few directions as to how to go on. I supplied myself with a good-sized breeding cage, and all necessaries for the birds' welfare and housekeeping. I introduced the birds to one another on the 1st of May, and on the 11th the first egg was laid; and so on, one each morning till there were five. I should here say that I knew absolutely nothing about the hobby, and as I wanted to know many things and did not wish to wear out my friend's patience, I did the best thing I could do—I bought "Canary Breeding for Beginners," by Claude St. John, and started taking in CAGE BIRDS (which I have done every week since).

A Proud Moment.

On the evening of the 13th day of incubation I spent a good bit of my time listening by the side of the cage, but without result. I was with the hen again at 4 a.m. the next morning, and wasn't I proud when I heard some faint little "chips"!

I prepared some egg-food as directed in "Canary Breeding for Beginners," having boiled the egg over night. That same night I managed to get just a peep into the nest, where I saw three little mouths wide open. Next morning another chick was hatched, which left one egg; this proved to be clear. I ought to say that I had taken away the cock bird during incubation.

Lettuce and Bread and Milk.

The hen fed the youngsters on lettuce and bread and milk principally. I gave her a supply of egg food only once a day, as I found she fed the babies all day long on the two first-named, and only very intermittently on egg food. All four youngsters were on the perch on the 15th day, and as the hen was anxious to nest again, I put them in a nursery when they were three weeks old, and returned the cock bird. The mother fed them till three more eggs were laid, when she handed them over entirely to her mate; but by this time they were cracking the seed nicely, and getting fairly "on their own."

The second nest was more successful than the first, as five eggs were laid, and all hatched out.

Notes on the Raven:

In Captivity and its Native Wilds

By "NEWCASTLE."

Having a little knowledge of the Raven, one of our largest British birds, I will try and write it down for the benefit of the readers of CAGE BIRDS. The Ravens are fast dying out, as game preservers wage a constant war against them. The birds seem to inhabit the more northern parts of England and Scotland: Ireland also has its share of them. I have never heard tell of many in Wales and the South of England, although there are some, as the Rooks and Crows many a time get the blame for the damage the Ravens do. About ten years ago I could have gone for a walk and seen fully half a dozen pairs, where, at the present time, I may not come across a single pair.

The Raven is a glossy black in colour, and has a thick black beak and dark legs. Unlike the Rook, he has no bare patch at the base of his bill, the feathers coming close up and ending with hair-like bristles. The eyes are brown. He is a good deal broader across the back and shoulders than the Rook, being a bird of more substance altogether.

Very Innocent-looking.

Ravens pair for life, and no birds are more attached to each other. When walking about in a grass field, they have a queer way of bobbing their heads up and down. To see a pair thus in a field you would think them as innocent as any of the other birds; but if you observed them for very long you would soon see that all the others give them a wide berth. And they very often get the field to themselves even from their own kind.

The only time I have ever seen more than a pair together was in July, 1909, when I saw four, two of them being young ones that had not been long out of the nest. They feed a good deal on worms and slugs, but when these are scarce they will attack both hares and rabbits, generally picking their eyes out first and soon making an end of them with their strong beaks. In the spring time they will also attack the lambs in the fields; in fact, the farmers in one part of the North were complaining of the Crows destroying the lambs, but I have an idea it would be the Ravens who were the offenders, as I have never known the Crows to attack any animal unless it was dead.

There are very few farmers who seem to know the difference between a Rook and a Raven. The Raven takes good care you don't get much nearer than a hundred yards of it. The gamekeeper will not have it near his preserves, so it generally takes to the scattered woods of outlying districts wherein to build its nest, where, however, it fares very little better, as some of the boys seeking birds' nests climb the trees and take either the eggs or young. Or sometimes the keeper comes across the nest and puts a shot through it. The old ones, of course, can take pretty good care of themselves. When building their nests Ravens are very cunning, and should anybody be about they "clear out," and don't come near again till the party has gone.

Ravens at Home.

I came across a nest in the April of 1909; it was built high up on the topmost branches of a tall oak tree. I had never noticed the nest before, and so was rather curious about it. The trees had not broken into leaf, so I had a good view of it, and although I was about seventy yards off at the time, the old one slipped off. The tree was about the worst I ever climbed, and the nest was perched on the highest branch that would bear it. There were four eggs in the nest; they were green in colour with brown and grey spots. The nest was two feet or more across, and was lined with grass and a little wool. The outside was built of sticks. The parents reared two young ones, which I saw with the old birds the following July.

Young Ravens stick to the nest as long as they can, and even after leaving it return many a night to sleep.

The first Raven that I ever saw caged was caught at a farm; it is very rarely that Ravens will venture near a dwelling of any sort. The snow had been lying on the ground for a month or more, and he was dying of hunger. He was given some of the small birds that were caught, which he ate a fast as they were supplied. He soon became familiar and would eat any scraps from the table that were given him. He would take them from your hand and would snap at a finger if he got a chance. After being caged for nearly a year the door was left open accidentally one day, and he escaped.

Enormous Appetites.

About six years ago a friend of mine got four young Ravens from a nest in a large beech tree. They were of a dirty black or brown colour. The largest was about full feathered, while on the smallest the feathers were only just breaking through. It is curious, by the way, that, in the nests of nearly all birds of prey that I have come across, there have been little and big young ones, and especially so in the case of Hawks and Owls. The young Ravens had enormous appetites and could have kept a small butcher's shop gong. They never seemed to be satisfied. Young Ravens seem to require to be fed on all kinds of animal food, or there is not much chance of one's rearing them. When adult, Ravens will eat anything that the Jay or Magpie will eat, and I have seen them eat corn when there was nothing else to be had at the time.

There is a great deal of mystery attached to the Raven by old writers. And I don't wonder at it, for there is very little chance of observing the habits of these birds unless they are feeding or nesting, and in the latter case you have to be pretty smart to keep out their sight. In the winter time I have seen them feeding on the seashore, where most of them go when food turns scarce in the country. As cage birds, Ravens would be interesting to those who care large birds, for there is not another bird in the British Isles to compare with them for cunning and intelligence.

The Second Pair.

Now I must tell you about my second pair, which were anything but a success. First of all the hen's nest-building was all wrong, so, after having recourse to my "Canary Breeding for Beginners," we made a first-rate nest, which her ladyship approved of. She laid one egg, then missed a day, and so on till four were laid. On the third morning of incubation, I found one egg on the cage floor; on the fifth morning I found another; which reduced the number to two. She sat out her time well, but the eggs were both clear. I gave her a fortnight's rest, and fed her as advised in my guide book; then I mated her again, and five eggs were laid this time, two being laid in one morning (I make special mention of this, as I was told it couldn't be; but I am very positive about it, as I attended my birds entirely myself, and knowing how erratic she was over her first nest, I took particular notice).

She again, during incubation, brought three eggs out on to the cage floor, and at the end of fifteen days I found she had one clear egg and one chick dead in shell. However, I didn't discard her. I have had her in a large cage, and hope to do better with her this season.

The Method of Management.

The following has been my method of management all through. I carried out the advice and instructions given in "Canary Breeding for Beginners," and found out what the mother bird fed best with and gave her a fresh supply of same five times a day, the first meal being at 4 a.m. Egg food was served first, then a young fresh leaf of lettuce, and a little bread and milk; then soaked rape, and next crushed hemp seed; and for the last meal bread and milk again. All nine birds were brought up on these foods, and they have never once looked back from the time they left the nest.

I clean out all cages regularly once every week, and all food vessels after each meal, taking away all stale pieces from the floor of the cages every night. All through the season I dusted the nests and corners of cages with insect powder and painted all crevices once a week with paraffin. I had no red mite at all till the moulting began. I don't know if it is usual for these pests to make their appearance specially then, but I noticed many queries on the subject in CAGE BIRDS. I followed out the advice given there, and am glad to say that I soon got rid of them.

At the end of the breeding season I had a "cut" at making a cage for my birds for the winter. I got two good-sized Sunlight soap boxes, and fixed them so as to make one or two, as wanted, with a wooden slide. I sent to one of the advertisers in CAGE BIRDS and got all requisites. I thoroughly scrubbed and distempered the boxes; I varnished the outside black.—two coatings were enough—and although it was not a very handsome flight, I certainly thought it was when I put my first nest of birds into it. And to see how they enjoyed using their wings repaid me for all the bits chipped out of my fingers and various other discomforts I had to put up with.

I sold seven of the birds, and the other two are, at the time of writing, nearly "singing my head off." I hope this experience will encourage some one beginning in the hobby this season, as I was last. My advice is this: Before you mate up, go to the first paper shop, and get CAGE BIRDS; then send to CAGE BIRDS offices for those invaluable books, "Canary Breeding for Beginners," and CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. Then you can feel you are well armed for any emergency that arises.

Wood Pigeons Roosting.

When going to roost wild Wood Pigeons are exceedingly careful not to be detected. They generally fly to the summit of the tree they choose, and, after surveying the surrounding district for some time, flutter down to their roosting sites in the lower branches.

Preparing for the Breeding Season.

EDWARD BINGHAM (Biggleswade).

The breeding season will soon be upon us, and we must have everything in proper order ready for starting business. Now is a good time to go over cages, etc., and give them a good clean. If they are enamelled inside, wash well, and dry thoroughly; then procure some petrol and a small brush, and go carefully round the joins, and the ends of perches—it is certain death to red mite (but beware and do not put the petrol near a naked light, as it is highly inflammable). If you use lime-washed cages, clean them out, and go over the joins in a similar manner; leave out in the air for smell to go off, and the cages will be ready for use. Also the nest pans should be cleaned, and treated in a similar manner.

The next thing to think about is the stock. Cage all the cocks off in separate cages, as they are likely to be quarrelsome as the season advances. The hens should be allowed to fly together in the flight-cage until you are ready to pair them up. They will thus get plenty of exercise, and so be braced up for the great strain they will have to endure a little later on.

The cocks should be given a more liberal diet, as generally they are not in such a forward condition as the hens; hence so many unfertile eggs the first round. Give a small teaspoonful of egg-food about twice a week, and also twice a week a teaspoonful of the following seed mixture: 1lb. each hemp, niger, German rape, and gold of pleasure; ½lb. each maw, red and white millet and linseed.

Pairing Up the Stock.

About the end of March or the beginning of April (according to climatic conditions) will be time enough to pair the birds up. You will be able to take from the pairs three nests in the season, which is ample for any pair of birds. They should be allowed a little egg-food each day now until the hen starts to sit, when it must be stopped, and plain Canary seed given during incubation.

After pairing, keep an eye open to see that no quarrels take place. I mean by this, make sure they do not injure one another; of course, there are generally little differences to right before they settle down to housekeeping. Should they quarrel a lot, put one each side of the wire partition if you use double breeding cages, and if single breeders, hang so that the birds can see one another. After two or three days of separation you will generally find them calling to one another: then you can let them go together, and they will nearly always settle down to housekeeping in a proper manner.

Now hang on your nestpans and give a little moss or cow hair for preference, and as soon as you see the hen busying herself carrying it into the nest pan, give her sufficient to build her nest with, unless, of course, you use felt linings, which I much prefer, as they do not fill up the nest so, and one is able to see the eggs and young birds much better.

On the evening of the thirteenth day after the hen has commenced to sit, give them some egg-food, made of four Osborne biscuits to one hard-boiled egg, as on the fourteenth morning if all has gone well and the eggs are fertile, the young will hatch and will want their breakfast. If any eggs have failed to hatch, remove same on the fifteenth morning, because if left too long they may get broken as the young birds get stronger, and will make a nasty mess. Do not interfere too much—just have a peep every morning and evening into the nest to see if all the young ones are alive, as nothing is more detrimental to the health of young birds than a dead brother or sister in the nest.

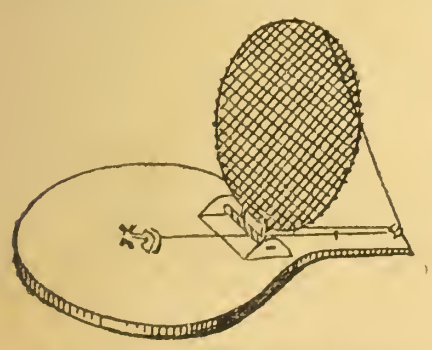
To those fanciers who do not care for the job of making egg-food with egg and biscuit, I would recommend them to try the following, which saves a lot of time, and I find answers as well: 2 small cupfuls Spratt's cod liver oil cage bird food, a small teaspoonful of castor sugar, a pinch each of maw seed and salt, and just enough boiling water to make it crumbly moist; allow this to cool.

The Egg-binding Trouble.

Sometimes fanciers are troubled with egg-bound hens during the early part of the season. I am a firm believer in prevention being better than cure, so when the hen is building her nest I always give my birds the following to drink: Put 1 tablespoonful of common treacle in 1 quart of water, continuing to give the bird same until she has laid her clutch.

Keep an eye on the old birds, as they will soon start nesting again, and will perhaps pluck the young ones for the purpose of building their new nest. Should this happen, put the young into a nursery cage, and hang on the front of the breeding cage; or if you use a double-breeder, transfer to the other side of the wire partition, and the cock will finish feeding them off through the wires.

In about a month the youngsters will be able to do for themselves, and after thirty days they can safely be put into a flight by themselves, giving them egg food and crushed hemp and canary seed. Do not crush more than the birds will eat in a short time, as it soon goes rancid and will then cause trouble. When six weeks old they will crack seed for themselves. The egg-food should now be given in very small quantities about three times a week, and the birds should not be allowed too much water, as there is not the least doubt that too much egg-food and water is the cause of hundreds of deaths every season.



When about eight weeks old they will start to moult, and if intended for show purposes, should be given colour food. Remember, that the moult is a critical time with young birds, and they require to be kept in as bright and as airy a place as possible, free from draughts; there need then be little fear but that they will come through this trying ordeal all right.

The Nightingale at Home and in Captivity.

Before we discuss the Nightingale as a cage-bird it may be advisable to say a few words about trapping, and in this connection I should like to call your attention to a curious old book, which I picked up for a few shillings. It is called "The Bird-Fancyer's Delight: or Choice Observations and Directions concerning the Taking, Feeding, Breeding, Curing and Teaching all sorts of Singing Birds. The like not extant. London: printed in the year 1711." The author is anonymous, but it is evident that he was really an expert in the management of the Nightingale, to which subject the greater part of the book is devoted. The following is his description of a spring net-trap as made 200 years ago. Although we may smile at the quaint expressions of mediæval English, the description is so lucid that I have found no difficulty in sketching the trap as described: "Take a net made of Green thred or silk about the compass of a yard, made after the fashion of a shove net to catch Fish or or a Cabbage-net; then get some of your large sort of wire, bending it round and joyn both ends, which you must put into a short stick about an inch and a half long; then you must have a piece of iron with two Cheeks and a Hole of each side in which you must put some Cat's gut or fine Whip-cord three or four times double, that so it may hold the piece of wood that the Ends of the Wire is put into, and with a Button of each side of the Iron twist the Whip-cord that so the net may play the quicker; you must fasten the net to the Wire, as they do a Shove-net to the Hoop; then get a board of the Compass of your Wire and joyn your two Checks of Iron at the Handle of your Board and put a piece of Stick about two inches long and a Hole at the Top of your Stick, which you must have a peg to put in with two Wires, an Inch and a half, to stick your Mealworms upon; then tye a string in the middle of the Top of your Net, drawing the Net up, having an Eye at the end of the Handle to draw your Thred through; pull it till it stands upright, then pull it through the hole of the stick that stands in the middle of your Board and put your Peg in the Hole, and that will hold the String that the Net cannot fall down; you must put two worms upon the wires before you put it in the Holo and set it as gently as you can that the bird may throw it down with the first touch. . . ."

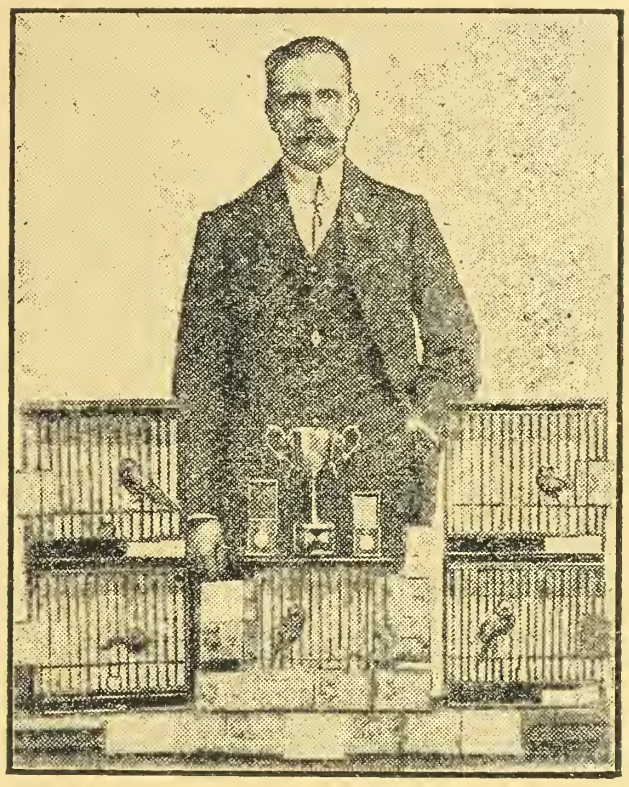
This antique trap is interesting, I think, as being the forerunner of our modern spring net-trap. I have shown the hoop, which carries the net, in an upright position partly because the details are thus more easily seen, and partly because it is so described, but when set, it would of course be pulled down flat. The twisted cat-gut which actuates the hoop would be twisted up tightly by turning the "button" from right to left. It may be asked why cat-gut should be used for a spring when wire was available for the hoop. The answer probably is that steel-wire (which alone is of any use for springs) was not made at that time. I think the trap would work all right: the bird would peck at the mealworms, thus loosening the small peg and the string which holds back the hoop would then be released. The same bait apparently was used then as now.

Catching a Nightingale is not a difficult feat, and yet I tried several times before I succeeded. I first tried driving a bird towards the trap, as often recommended, but this I found impossible. I then set a number of traps in different places, the only result being that I caught all the Robins in the district and some of them several times over. I then tried a trap-cage with a male as a call-bird, but this did not seem to attract, though I expect a hen call-bird would be effective in the last week of April. Finally I marked the exact bough on which a cock 'Gale was in the habit of singing and placed the trap exactly underneath, and then I did not have to wait long.

To distinguish a cock from a hen when taken out of the trap I have not found at all easy, and our 17th century author seems to have been of the same opinion, for he says: "I have had perfect brave cocks, Song-Nightingals, and that a great number of them, that have been very small and little, having all the marks ascribed to them to be hens." He gives us a useful hint, however, when he tells us that if the hen (of a pair) is caught, the cock will at once commence to sing loudly, but, if the cock is caught, there will be silence.

The Nightingale in Captivity.



Everyone must answer for himself the question whether it is, or is not, justifiable to cage a Nightingale. Personally, I am an ardent protectionist of our rarer birds, but I am convinced that, in the case of species in which the males outnumber the females, a moderate amount of trapping (of males) is quite the reverse of detrimental. Let us, however, agree on one point, namely, that no one should undertake the task who has not sufficient knowledge and leisure to keep the bird as it should be kept.

It is odd that Philomel should be popularly regarded as a difficult subject, because I have found him far from delicate and, being by nature a deliberate, thoughtful and affectionate bird, he usually takes very kindly to cage life.

The beginner should commence with a hand-reared bird: all that I have owned have been the most delightful pets which would come to the whistle and could even be carried about in the pocket, but not one of them ever learned to sing. Personally, I think it very cruel to take more than two young birds from a nest, and two are enough for anybody.

The Brancher, caught in August, is soon reconciled to a cage, but it is not easy to distinguish cocks from hens, and, though they sing better than nestlings, they are seldom first-rate. I have seen it stated that Philomel does not sing in the winter in Africa. If this is so, how is it that the young birds, which leave us in September without any vocal attainments worth mentioning, return in the following April accomplished songsters? The Chiff-Chaff and the Willow-Wren sing throughout the winter in the sunny south, so why not Philomel?

If we want a really fine songster we shall have to obtain a spring-caught bird, and this, of course, means breaking a law—and a wise law, too! I think too much has been said about the difficulty of "meating off" these April birds. I have caught several, and have been singularly lucky with them, and yet I have taken no further trouble with them than to put them in a canvas-topped cage (not darkened), and to supply them with gentles, mealworms and crumbled sponge-cake mixed up together in a glass feeder. The one I lost was lost in this way. In my absence from home it was fed by a housemaid who gave it plenty of gentles, but some of these were in the larva and some in the pupa stage. The larva took refuge beneath the pupa (as they always will, if they can), and the bird had not learned to eat the pupæ—so it starved!

Wild Bird-Life.

Notes on Pairing.

At the time of writing these notes the weather is exceptionally mild for the month of January, and when the sun happens to force its way through the clouds one can almost imagine it is springtime instead of the depth of winter. Considering we have had very little severe weather this season, it is not surprising that the present unusual conditions are affecting the bird life of the country-side. The selection of partners for the breeding season in the case of some species takes place directly after the moult, but the majority of wild birds defer this important function until a month or so prior to nesting, and where we have an exceptionally severe time, it is in many cases put off until what one might term the last minute.

In the mating of birds there appears, to the writer, to be a distinct difference between our resident and our migratory species. The former (as remarked above) pair any time after the moult, and pairs of most of them may be seen in the fields and meadows during the short days, either quite alone, or feeding a little distance away from the main body, or flock, of their kind. When we consider that the spring warblers which first reach our shores are, in the majority of cases, male birds, and that the hens no sooner arrive than they at once pair and go to nest, sometimes within a very few days, there does not appear to be much time lost in the preliminary courtship.

Gulls and Sparrows.

In the London parks many Seagulls frequent the open water and grass plots. These live chiefly upon the food thrown to them by bird lovers, but occasionally one manages to secure a fat London Sparrow. One has been seen to catch a Sparrow while drinking, and drown him by holding him under water.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Loss of Voice.

C. C., Sheffield.—You must find out the cause of the bird's loss of voice in the first place, and remove it before you can hope to cure its effects. This will be practically certain to be found among these causes—constant draughts, damp, or extreme fluctuations of heat and cold. See these are all removed; keep the bird in a fairly warm place which is equable day and night, and free from the fumes of burning lights in the evening. Feed on a staple of three parts Canary to one part of summer rape. Every second day for a fortnight give a morsel of bread and milk, the size of a hazel nut, with two drops of cod-liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar. On the alternate days give either a spray of watercress or a morsel of banana, and a pinch of maw seed. In the drinking water give 20 drops of whisky, six each of oxymel of squills, and ipecacuanha wine, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week afterwards.

Protracted Moulting.

H. G. H.—In all probability the bird's position is the cause. Remove to a position further in room, out of the way of draughts, and not too near a fire or burning light, so that the day and night temperature will be as equable as possible. See also that cage is free from red mites. As staple diet give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod-liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed, and on alternate days give a pinch of hemp and a morsel of banana. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts and ten drops of lemon juice for two days, and afterwards four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid, every second day for a week. The dirty appearance round neck is the dirt and grime which gradually accumulates there. The bird bathing will not remove it. The only way to do this is by hand-washing, which is not advisable as a practice. Birds' appetites and other conditions vary so much that no hard and fast rule can be laid down as to quantity of seed required by a bird in 24 hours. But a fair sized teaspoonful per day is quite sufficient for the average normal Canary. I doubt whether any Canary in confinement would ever starve on this quantity, and some would grow fat upon it.

In a Bad Way.

C. Quinn.—The bird is suffering from so-called asthma in an extremely bad form, and I doubt whether you will do any good for it, or even if it will survive long. Keep it in a cosy place, not too near a fire of burning lights, and not necessarily very warm, but quite out of the reach of draughts and great fluctuations of heat and cold. Examine cage well for red mites, which I suspect are troublesome, and if any are found, thoroughly eradicate them. Keep the bird as quiet as possible until it has got over some of its excessive nervousness. Feed on a staple mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod-liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and on the alternate days a pinch of maw and a morsel of banana or watercress. At the end of a fortnight stop all extras and feed plainly for a fortnight, then revert to the above dietary for another fortnight. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts every second day for a week, and on the alternate days in the latter half give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid. After this give 20 drops of a mixture of two drams each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one dram each of chlorodyne and ipecacuanha wine, plus six grains of iodide of potassium, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another fortnight afterwards. Shall be glad to hear result at end of this time.

From Now Till April.

J. Cooke. — (1) I think the hen shows a more promising form for the season this time than last year, and I see no reason why you should not try her again. But as you are so desirous of not drawing another blank season, why not get another hen and run the cock with each one alternately, leaving the hens to hatch and rear the broods by themselves. If you decide to do this try to get a thick clear yellow pink-eyed Yorkshire, bred from clears if possible, for his second mate. You need not trouble about getting a typical shaped hen. One that is too stout for good Yorkshire breeding—a waster—will do better. (2) Continue to feed hen on a staple of plain Canary only. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape in the egg-drawer, and twice a week on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts of hemp, inga, teazle, millet, and linseed. On each of the remaining alternate days give a little green-food or banana, and twice in the first week give a grape with the skin broken. In the drinking water give six drops of dandelion juice and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and in the following week dissolve in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water a crystal of sulphate of soda, the size of a small pea, a crystal of sulphate of iron half as big, and add six drops of dilute sulphuric acid; give this every second day. Continue above feeding until end of February, and if hen is then getting too forward reduce the extra items by two-thirds until end of March.

Breeding and Training Roller.

H. I. R.—To go fully into details of all your questions would necessitate quite a long article, which cannot possibly get in here. Therefore, I would advise you to get the nutshell booklet on the "Roller (or Song) Canary," 2½d. post free, from our manager, and look out for the part of "Our Canaries" which will deal with the subject in due course. Meantime the following brief replies will help you along. Open wire cages are not to be commended for any breed, save in exceptionally well placed rooms or surroundings, much less the Roller, which is apt to suffer from voice troubles. Box cages are the best. But for training high-class singers, open wire cages are frequently employed, which fit in a close box or cabinet, with doors on front to open or close at will, which fully answers the purpose of a box cage proper. When birds are in training the doors of the song boxes are opened more or less according as the birds are high or low in song—those that are too high being shut up to keep them steady and prevent them corrupting others, whilst the low soft singers are given more light. For early disposal of trained singers it is advisable to cage up the cocks separately from the flights as soon as they are full grown and the sexes distinguishable. If your cages are all arranged on one side the room, the opposite wall would be a good position for the tutor or tutors. If all round the room, put one in centre on each side, or hang one in middle of room. The actual position must depend to a certain extent upon the size, shape, and position of room. Hang them where they are quite free from draughts, and you get the best effect from their song. All the tutors should preferably be of same strain. As to whether the breeding stock should also, is, save perhaps in the best contest singing strains, a matter of taste. In breeding high-class singing Rollers, colour and appearance is of no moment whatever. All you need to do in this direction is to mate yellow with buff, and a clear with a marked or ticked, to keep a certain amount of green blood in your stock, or you may, as you suggest, occasionally use a green stock bird. But the bird's performances must decide which are kept for stock.

Loss of Sight (H.W.).—I suspect bird is suffering from cataract, in which case you will find on examining the eyes closely that they have a rather clouded, milky-white appearance in the pupils. There is absolutely no cure for it, so you need not worry the bird by useless treatment. If you keep it in the same cage it will get along very well, and its affliction will be scarcely noticeable, as it will soon get expert at finding its way about.

Bites his Feathers (Yellow Peril).—Give a staple diet of plain canary only. Twice a week give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and every second day give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed. On each of the alternate days give a spray of watercress. Continue this feeding for a fortnight. In the drinking water dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea and add ten drops of lemon juice daily for three days. Allow him to bathe freely in mild weather.

Not in Song (Anxious).—It is not very unusual for birds when they get as old as yours to be a little late in resuming song. See that he is not exposed to the fumes of burning lights in the evenings. Give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it every second day for a fortnight. In the water mix six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards 20 drops of whiskey, six each of glycerine, and oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, shaken well together, every second day for a week.

Resting Flat on Perch (A. J. A.).—The bird is probably a trifle overfed. She will probably pull herself together in time for the breeding season. Feed for a fortnight on plain Canary only as staple. Twice each week give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on each of the remaining days a spray of watercress, morsel of apple or banana, or a grape with the skin broken open. In the drinking water give twelve drops of syrup of buckthorn daily for three days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

Injured Foot (Mac, Airdrie).—My experience is, these deformities, particularly when arising from injuries in adult birds, and when all the toes are affected, are quite incurable, and I consider all mechanical methods of rectifying the deformity just so much pain inflicted upon the patient for no good purpose. If only one of the smaller front toes is turned under it is easily remedied by tying it to the centre toe, but it has to remain tied permanently for many long months. Other methods are illustrated in Part VI of "Our Canaries." But, candidly, I would advise you to leave it alone. There is no reason why it should not breed successfully. I have had them do so myself. Many thanks for good wishes and efforts on behalf of CAGE BIRDS.

Wheezy and Coughs (M. Knight).—See reply to "C. Quinn" in this issue, and treat your bird as advised therein for a month, which should put it quite right, if not too for gone to be cured.

Pair with Asthma (Viaduct).—You should not keep the birds too warm—just away from the cold side is sufficient. Treat them as advised to "C. Quinn" in this issue for a month. You will make a big mistake, by the way, if you breed with this pair of birds; both similarly affected as appears to be the case.

Yawning Border Fancy (M.S.).—Your bird is just beginning to fall a victim to the evil effects of hanging in the window. Remove him at once to a position further within the room, where he will be quite free from draughts, and do not put him too near a fire in order that the temperature may be fairly equable. Neither place him where he will be exposed to the fumes of burning lights in the evenings. Having attended to these points treat him exactly as described to "Anxious" for bird not in song, which should set matters right.

Song and Cinnamon (W. H. Lovelock).—(1) See reply to "C. C., Sheffield," for treatment of the Yorkshire cock which seems to be singing but makes no noise. It is quite possible he may have fully recovered his voice long before it is time to mate up for breeding. If bred with there is no reason whatever why his progeny should be similarly affected, unless you expose them to the same causes. (2) If the bird is a clear you should mate him with a cinnamon-marked or ticked buff hen with the object of breeding cinnamon-marked and clears. House's "Canary Manual," which our Manager would send you, post free, for 1/2, would probably suit you. "The Yorkshire Canary," by H. W. Battye, same price, also deals with cinnamon-marked breeding. In due course you would also find the subject dealt with in "Our Canaries" now publishing in monthly parts.

Pecking at Feet (A. H., Brighton).—You should have said whether the bird is getting old, and has large, coarse scales on feet. Try the following treatment, and if it does not remove the trouble, write again, and give the above information, when I will further advise you. Keep cage and perches quite clean, and the cage floor strewn with clean gritty sand. Keep a scrap of something in wires for it to peck at, either green food, fruit, or a bit of cuttlefish. Dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda, the size of a split pea, in the water every second day for a week. Catch the bird and bathe the feet for a minute or two in a warm solution of boracic acid—a small teaspoonful of acid in half a teacupful of warm water—then dry gently, and anoint them with a little zinc ointment. Do this three times in a week.

Not Breeding (Spivinix).—The failure to breed last season is no criterion that he will not breed this year. Feed on a staple of plain canary. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately. Twice a week on the alternate days give a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake, or egg food, with a pinch of a mixture of equal parts maw, sesame, and gold of pleasure seed mixed in it, and on two other days a like quantity of equal parts hemp, inga, and teazle. Give a morsel of fruit or green food three times a week, and as soon as you can find young growing dandelion, give him two leavee a day until ready for mating. When the proper time arrives mate him with a lusty young hen that is anxious to go to nest.

Utilising Shed (Willing Starter).—You could certainly breed in the aviary you describe with the birds flying loose, but the number you suggest would overstock it. Six hens and two cocks would be quite sufficient for breeding. The cement floor should be covered with a good layer of gritty sand, and the window in front covered with half-inch mesh netting nailed on to a light frame, hinged so as to be easily raised or lowered if desired. For this number of birds ten or a dozen nesting sites should be hung about—not too near each other. But, on the whole, I think you would probably do better by breeding in cages. Starting at about 12 in. from the floor the back of shed facing window would accommodate six single breeders 20 in. long in three tier. In each of these you could keep a hen and run each of the three cocks alternately with two of them, and the space left on the end of the shed would accommodate, two large flights, to which you could remove the young after leaving the parents.

Loss of Plumage (Novice, W.C.).—She is probably "getting on in years," which would partly account for her condition. Examine cage well—not the bird—for red mites, scraping out any open joints, cracks, and corners with a pin on to a sheet of white paper. If you "unearth" a lot of hidden mites, as you may, overhaul cage and thoroughly eradicate them. Keep her in a fairly warm place, which is equable and free from draughts. Allow her to bathe freely in mild weather. For staple diet give a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape. Three times a week for a month give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake slightly dusted with a mixture of two parts flowers of sulphate to one part chlorate of potash, and sprinkled with maw seed. On two other days each week give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts inga, teazle, linseed, and millet, and on the remaining two days each week give a spray of watercress or a morsel of banana. As regards breeding, you should get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d. post free, from our Manager; or read the article on "How to Breed Canaries Successfully," in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, which will shortly be ready.

Frequent Fits (Amadis).—The frequent fits are most likely due to a slight effusion of blood into the cranium, causing pressure on the brain, and considering the bird's age, it is doubtless the beginning of the end of its career. Keep it quite quiet in a comfortable place, not too warm, and free from draughts. Feed on a staple of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for a month give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, with two drops of cod-liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Twice a week on the alternating days give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and teazle, and on the remaining alternate days give either a morsel of banana or spray of watercress. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and on the alternate days four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid. It is possible this may pull it round nicely, though it will probably never be much more good.

Non-Success, etc. (Paradox).—You treat the hens too liberally for the season. In another reply you will find full details for feeding from now until the beginning of the breeding season. First of all, treat your hens as advertised to "R. Town" in this issue for three weeks, but add a pinch of inga seed to the diet twice a week. After this preliminary treatment, look up the other reply and continue the diet there advised until time to mate, or follow the advice in "Canary Breeding for Beginners" for winter feeding. The soft food you use is not necessarily the cause of your non-success. Many fanciers, I believe, have used it with excellent results, and I doubt whether you would do better with a mixture of egg flake. The above handbook, and "Our Canaries," advocate, as you say, the usual egg and biscuit, simply because it stands pre-eminent when properly used. But you quite overlook the fact that both these books give a great variety of foods which may be safely used for rearing young, as experimented with. Also, you will find "Our Canaries" give the first place to egg and bread crumb, with a good word in favour of trying a good wholemeal bread in preference to the fashionable superfine white.

To prevent Egg binding (Arda).—Read reply to "Paradox," and adopt same advice as therein given, except that you need only keep the hens on the spare diet advised to "R. Town" for a fortnight. Give about a third part of a teaspoonful of inga to each hen twice a week from now until mated, and when mating up see they are well supplied with cuttlefish, and smash up a little old mortar to a coarse powder and strew on the sand on the cage floor.

A Foursome (Know-more).—(1) The exercise the birds get by flying about conservatory and digging up the soil in the pots must be very beneficial. Provided only that chemical fertilisers are not strewn on the surface soil of the pots, I should say the practice was certainly good for the birds, but possibly bad for the gardener's temper. (2) If the conservatory is well ventilated and the birds not close to the aviary, there could be little or no harm in painting it indoors. At same time, if quite convenient, it would be better to do this work outside. Distemper may, of course, be used inside in any case. (3) A good distemper is better and wears longer than whitewash, as well as looking more cosy. I have never used the colour you name, so cannot say anything about it. (4) The sprouting seeds are excellent green food for the birds. By all means go on using them.

Too fat to breathe (R. Town).—See the bird is kept out of reach of draughts and is not exposed to the fumes of burning lights, nor to extremes of heat and cold. Feed on a staple of canary seed only, and for the next month limit the quantity to a fair-sized teaspoonful per day. Twice each week reduce this quantity of canary by one-half and make up the quantity with summer rape, and once each week give just a pinch of canary and a morsel of bread the size of a hazel nut sopped in cold milk as its daily ration. Four or five days a week give a liberal supply of watercress, or any similar green food you can get quite free from frost. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, for two days; after that give 20 drops of whisky, the same quantity of Epsom salts, and ten drops of lemon juice every third day for a fortnight.

Song and Lamps (A Beginner).—(1) Because a cock Canary does not sing, it does not necessarily follow that none of his sons will sing. It is quite possible he may have sons that are quite capable songsters, especially if allowed to hear a good singing cock in their callow days. Still, in breeding for singers pure and simple, it is most advisable to breed as far as possible from good singing cocks, and hens which are descended from good songsters. (2) The choice between a gas jet or paraffin lamp as a safe light for a bird-room depends, in my opinion, very largely upon the owner. Carelessly used, there is probably nothing to choose. Both are as bad as each other, and used with proper care and discretion one is no worse than the other. Gas is the least trouble and most convenient; that's all that can be said in the matter. In the showman's phrase, "Yer pays yer money an' yer takes yer chice!" But why use either if it is not for heating? (3) No, there is no harm whatever from hanging birds about the same level as paraffin lamps. That is about the best position for them.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Breeding Budgerigars.

T. S.—(1) Yes, and do well. Plenty of branches should, however, be either affixed to the walls or planted in tubs and placed about the room, as these birds delight to climb about, fly from place to place. Provision for this will tend to their general well being. While it is quite true a single pair in such a room would ultimately settle down and breed, it is also equally true that they breed more freely in company, and I certainly advise you to start with one pair each of the Yellow and Green varieties; at the same time, do not let this deter you from commencing with the single pair. No artificial heat will be required, but you must arrange for efficient ventilation without draught, and the window must be covered on the inside with half-inch mesh wire netting. (2) Late March or early April will be time enough to put in the husks; provide a shallow pan of old mortar rubbish in lumps, and also keep cuttlebone hanging about the room, also crush any egg-shells you get, and scatter them about the room, as this will reduce the risk of egg-binding to a minimum.

A Feather Puller.

A. G. S.—Put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia into the daily supply of drinking water every fourth day, so long as the voidings are not watery loose; on the intermediate days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Spray the bird every other day either with quassia solution or with a weak solution of fir tree oil, avoid getting the solution into the eyes as far as possible. The cage cover and all perches should also be well scalded with boiling water to get rid of possible minute parasites. Diet: Seed mixture, two parts each Canary and white millet, and one part each hemp, dari, oats, paddy rice, and sunflower seeds, the whole to be well mixed, and to form the bird's staple diet. Also supply ripe fruit (apple cores and grapes are usually taken readily), nuts (shelled walnuts are best), and a few pieces of plain biscuit, which can be moistened in the chemical food and water if the bird so prefers it, grit and cuttlebone must also be supplied, and pieces of branch, cotton reels, etc., for the bird to cut up. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. You will need to persevere with the above, as recovery of plumage in such cases is only gradual, the habit of pulling being very difficult to eradicate.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

An Ailing Budgerigar.

A. M. P.—It almost appears as if the Budgie had some skin eruption, and the bird should be caught, and the yellow substances well bathed with tepid water, and then lightly annointed with any cooling ointment twice weekly till the trouble yields. I don't doubt but what the trouble will yield to treatment, and the plumage be renewed in the course of the next two months. I should, twice weekly, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia into the drinking water (ordinary size cage drinker), and on the other days colour the water with chemical food. Give the bird a little ripe fruit (apple is as good as any), and keep a millet spray in the cage as well as the usual seeds. I should certainly destroy the busk, though I do not think the trouble is contagious—more likely constitutional; in such case there may be a periodical recurrence, have had similar cases and have not used the birds again for breeding purposes. Shall be pleased to hear how the bird progresses.

Aviary Queries.

A. W. Ware.—Yes; the Budgerigars, Canaries, and Finches are kept together by many, but if you let the Budgies become at all numerous you will be certain sooner or later to be occasionally picking up maimed and mutilated Finches. For breeding birds I should allow one square yard of floor space for each breeding pair. The fitting will principally consist of lining the walls with twiggy branches (pea sticks answer well), and hang up numerous nesting receptacles (husks and boxes), at least double the number you have pairs of birds. There should also be several seed hoppers, etc.; it is bad practice to force all to feed at the same place, as the latter tends to quarrelling and loss. You will also require a good sized shallow bath—porcelain photo-developing dishes answer well, and are easily kept clean. The arrangement shown on plans should answer well, and in your southern country should give good results. Once inch square quartering is ample for interior framing.

Budgerigars Not Nesting.

Tickle.—Are you sure you have a true pair? In case you do not know the sexual distinction, I may say that the cere over the nostrils is blue in the male and brown in the female when the birds are in breeding condition. If they are true pair they are either weak or young, and in consequence their eggs have so far proved unfertile. Probably about April or May things will right themselves, and they will hatch out and rear their young all right. In the meantime give them a slice of ripe apple daily, with Canary, white and spray millet seed, and a few crushed oats two or three times a week, also grit, cuttlebone, and water, the latter may be lightly coloured with Parrish's Chemical Food, which will tone them up a little. As soon as you can obtain it, let them have an unlimited supply of green grass flower (seeding green); it is their natural food, and will bring them into breeding condition better than anything else, but it must not be given when tainted with frost or when sodden with rain or dew.

Apparatus for Shelling Seeds (Lovebirds).—I cannot call to mind any apparatus for shelling seed; I usually do this by rubbing the seed on a flat board with a flat iron, and then blowing away the husks; but an enquiry of some of our large advertisers should get you what you require if such an article is on the market.

Parrot with Overgrown Beak (Springburn).—You will have to cut the beak back to normal length with a pair of sharp nail-nippers, but if you are not accustomed to this operation you had better let your local veterinary or some fancier friend cut it for you. Keep a piece (lump) of old mortar rubbish in its cage, and also a clump of hard wood for it to cut up. This should prevent a recurrence of the trouble.

Diet for Californian Quails (H. J.).—Small corn of any description may be given, but my Quails have lived almost entirely on Canary and millet seed. A little scalded chicken meal or any good make of biscuit meal should also be given, with, say, half a dozen mealworms daily. In the summer when insect life is plentiful almost any kind of insect may be captured and given them, also greenfood, and when they have young for the first week of their life some live ants' "eggs" should be given. They must be provided with a sand bath.

Atlas Weaver (N. Booper).—Will reply to this query in full next week, as several species have been known by the above dealer's name, and I do not care to quote without looking the matter up The price you gave is about right, and while Weavers are very shy breeders in captivity, you should stand a chance of doing so in your pheasantries. The most natural accommodation for them would be a small reed bed and clumps of bamboos.

Budgerigars (L. A. K.).—It is quite possible to tame adult Budgies, but I doubt your ability to teach them to talk. Carry out the directions given in our booklet on this subject. You are too impatient re the taming process; let the birds get to know you, and go about the matter very quietly and steadily, the hen will ultimately gain confidence from the demeanour of her mate. The cage ought to be double the size every way than the size you quote, though it is quite possible they may nest therein; but picture the result—an adult pair of Budgerigars and a brood of, perhaps, five or more in an ordinary Canary breeding cage!

Aviary Queries (George).—(1) The birds ought to go outside till May, when, if you provide a warm (weather-proof) shelter shed, which must be well lighted, the birds can be left outside altogether and should thrive, providing the aviary is large enough for ample exercise. (2) Get your aviary erected, plant the flight as a garden, and put the birds out about mid May, according to the season. (3) Not if you follow above directions. (4) See reply to Query No. 1.

A Talking Amazon (A. E. R.).—Your bird is a Yellow-fronted Amazon, and if in tight plumage, with a lengthy vocabulary, and does not screech, it should command £3, or even more if it would display its ability to the would-be purchaser. I am assuming that the yellow you mention is on the forehead immediately above the beak—if the yellow patch is on the back of the head (nape), then it is a Yellow-naped Amazon, and of a little more value than the above. You can easily distinguish a Blue-fronted—the forehead, that is, the front of the head immediately above the beak is blue.

Lovebirds, Waxbills, etc. (Opal).—(1) No, I do not think seeing each other through the divisions of the cage, but in the confines of such I fear it is only the Cutthroats that will breed. (2) It is better to supply a little soft food as well as their usual seed mixture; but I have had very robust young Cutthroats reared on nothing but dried ants' "eggs," seed, and greenfood. (3) Canary, white and spray millet will suffice for the Lovebirds, with greenfood and a little ripe apple with grit, cuttlebone, and water, is about all they require. (4) All the birds bathe, and a bath should be hung over the open cage door daily for them to take their tub. All the birds should do well under the conditions given above, providing they get light and air without draught.

Procuring a Singing Finch (Viaduct).—The outward sexual distinctions, i.e., in plumage, of the Grey and Green Singing Finches are infinitesimal, and I fear I can only advise you, if possible, to see your birds before purchasing, and choose a bird that is singing a little at any rate. The Grey is the best songster, but the Green is the prettiest bird, and is a songster of more than average merit. 7s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. would be a fair price for a singing bird, and, say, 5s. for a new imported cock. Supply Canary, white and spray millet, also a little British Finch mixture for them to pick over; they will also require greenfood, cuttlebone, grit, and water ad lib for drinking and bathing. A little fruit, apple, or banana, or anything they will take, is also very wholesome.

Cross Mating a Gouldian Finch (Laurie).—I never say any suggested cross is impossible, for it occasionally happens that the apparently impossible comes off; nevertheless, I must confess that mating the Gouldian with either a Canary or Greenfinch is not likely to yield any fruitful result. The Gouldian Finch is about equal to a small Border Fancy Canary. The combassou has very close affinity to the Whydahs, and is not likely to yield any result mated with a Canary. The most likely birds to cross with the Canary would be the Alario Finch, Grey and Green Singing Finches; in fact, any of the genus Serinus, also either of foreign Siskins, such as the Hooded and Black-headed. The birds named would live in an unheated room, but the cages for foreign species should be larger pro rata than those usually given to similar indigenous species.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. Weston.

A Dead Budgerigar (L. Steinhardt).—Bodies for post-mortem examination should not be sent to me, but direct to Mr. G. Yates (note rules under heading "Post-mortems"). I have sent the body of the Budgerigar to Mr. Yates, and if you will forward the necessary fee direct to him he will give you an opinion as to the cause of death.

Buzzard and Bustard (A. Rutter).—My memory played me a scurvy trick last week when replying to your question. Is is the Bittern which is celebrated for its loud "booming" note—not the Bustard. The latter is remarkable for the extraordinary "display" indulged in during the courting period by the male.

Offensive Excrement (W. Pugh).—I should give this Canary a little milk sop (not too sloppy) daily, well sprinkled with maw seed. In the drinking water (two tablespoonfuls) dissolve as much crystals of citrate of iron and quinine as will just cover a sixpence. You can get one ounce of the crystals from any good chemist. Keep this up for a few days (fresh daily), and the character of the excrement will, I feel sure, soon become normal. Give the Siberian Goldie a teaspoonful of hemp one day and a dessertspoonful of cracked sunflower the next day. As a stock mixture use teazle 3 parts, canary 2 parts, linseed 1 part, and a sprinkling of summer rape.

Breeding Matters (Senmas).—(1) This Bullie hen may quite likely breed this coming summer, despite the fact that she laid no eggs last. (2) You must not get too big a Goldie hen to mate with the cock Siskin. If your heart is set on this cross, why not try two pairs (the sexes reversed)? (3) In my experience, mealy Redpolls are not good breeders in a cage.

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

An Outdoor Aviary (Bird Lover).—Your place will accommodate comfortably a big number of birds, but if you have designs upon breeding with them, then you should be content to limit their numbers somewhat severely. You could include a few pairs of Canaries with perfect safety. Do not have more than one pair of Chaffinches, Bullfinches, Bramblefinches, and Yellowhammers. Would one dozen pairs of British birds satisfy you, and 2 or 3 pairs of Canaries? I think that would be about the "safety limit." Of Goldfinches and Linnets you could have two pairs; then there are the Redpoll, Twite, Siskin, and Reed Bunting, all seed-eaters and interesting birds, and more-or-less likely breeders.

Matching Pairs (Constant Reader).—(1) If a Mule (dark) comes with a distinct white throat mark, this is fatal to its chances on the show bench. But the hen you mention may quite likely never throw a Mule so marked. If I were you I should get a very big, bold-headed buff cock, more-or-less heavily marked, to mate with her. Next year you could double-yellow with one pair, if you get two suitable birds. (2) The best mate would be a clear yellow Norwich cock, bred from clear parents. If any marked birds come from this mating, do not cross them into your muling strain, but use only the clears.

Canary and Greenfinch (No Nom-de-plume).—The Greenfinch-Canary mating is a very common one, though it is somewhat unusual for the cock to be the Canary and the hen the Greenfinch. It is quite likely that you would get fertile eggs, but the hen Greenfinch may not hatch them out, and if she does she may not rear the young. All Greenfinch hens are not by any means to be relied on in these respects. You could put the eggs under a hen Canary, of course. The Goldfinch-Greenfinch mating produces a handsome Hybrid, but it is not a rare one, nor is it difficult to breed

The Case of a Goldfinch (Joey No. 2).—It is possible that "Joey No. 2" is being worried by red mites? It reads like it. If a bird is ailing and gets listless, these pests flourish amazingly, and their attacks serve to hasten the bird on the downward path. Look into this matter. In the meantime, give the Goldie some thistle, dandelion, and niga seed (mixed) every day. Stop giving the niga in the stock mixture. Let him have a strong tonic. Get one ounce of compound syrup of hypophosphites B.P. (Fellow's Syrup) from a high-class chemist, and stir a good half teaspoonful into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water fresh daily. This, as I am frequently stating, is a grand tonic and building-up medicine, soon puts birds "on their feed," and assists them to put on flesh. But if there is anything organically wrong with a bird, no medicine is likely to cure it. Good, of course, a tonic!

A Linnet (W. White).—I don't think you are feeding the bird to [illegible] "Canary mixture" sounds like it anyway. You should send 2½d. to CAGE BIRDS for a copy of the "Nutshell" booklet on the Linnet; this will tell you the correct method of feeding, how to get the bird into breeding condition, and give you a lot of other useful information. Afterwards, I shall be glad to answer any question you desire to ask me.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Norman K. Jackson.—I cannot trace anything of a contagious nature on examination of Norwich hen, and think that you might remain easy upon this score. There is no doubt your bird contracted a chill, and later suffered a relapse, brought about by prevailing bad weather conditions. The swollen condition of the eye would be but a part of the catarrhal process.

Charles Ross.—Siskin died of pneumonia, predisposed to by exhaustion and loss of condition, attributable to the incessant irritation to which it was subjected. There was present on the skin a number of small parasites, which accounted for the symptoms of uneasiness and irritation, causing the bird to pick itself. Should you ever encounter this condition again amongst your birds, spray them, or allow them to bathe, preferably the former, in a weak solution of sulphurated potash, using one drachm crushed to a powder, and dissolved in a pint of warm water. This is a very effective parasiticide. Having used it myself with great success, I can confidently recommend it. A bird so impoverished would fall a ready victim to lung affection during wet and cold weather

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

A Flashlight Photograph (Frank Rob).—We shall be very pleased to receive and publish the flashlight photograph you kindly promise to send us.

A Black Canary (W. J. Thomas).—We really cannot undertake to reply direct to every competitor—it would need a whole staff of clerks to do so. The winner is announced in this issue.

In Vancouver (S. B. G.).—We have no information as to any cage bird club in Vancouver, B.C. Canaries in Canada and the States fetch very much higher prices than they do in England—the cost of transport, of course, largely accounting for this.

Cuttings (A. Chilcott, W. Guppy, F. Scott, and others).—We tender you our best thanks for the newspaper cuttings sent.

Suggestion for a Plate (A. Young).—We will give your suggestion our consideration, but it is too late to give effect to same this season, as our arrangements were completed some time ago.

A Roller Organ (New Fancier).—We regret that we cannot publish your letter as to which is the "best" organ, for it would be unfair to our advertisers. Get the opinions of some prominent Roller fanciers privately.

The Young Naturalist.

*A Knowing Throstle.

One morning last winter I threw some bread in the yard for the birds. Soon after I saw a Throstle carrying a piece of the hard bread to a waterspout, where it soaked it. It then carried it away to a more quiet spot, where he ate it.—Sent by L. Rogers (age 13), 82, North-street, Wolverhampton.

*A Mischievous Parrot.

A young lady once went into a shop. When she had got inside, someone called out, "Shut the door, will you? Don't you know any better? It's cold outside." The young lady went back to shut it, and then when she looked up she was surprised to see a Parrot. The young lady smiled to think how she had been deceived, and turned round to look at some chocolates, when someone said, "What can I get for you, miss?' Without looking round, she said, "If you do not hold your tongue I shall pull your tail." Then she turned round and saw the lady who owned the shop. Both ladies laughed very much, and Pollie said, "Wasn't that funny?"—Sent by A. Clements (age 10), 99, Dempsey Street, Stepney, E.

A Clever Canary.

"Dickie" didn't like the muslin which we had to put around the bottom of his cage to save the seed litter, and so pecked at it until it became untidy; and as it was rather troublesome having to take the muslin screen off whenever we cleaned the cage, I have of late pinned a piece of plain muslin round the food vessel. But little birdie did not like this at all, and every day the muslin was found pulled off. So I determined to fix the pin so that it would not come out. I felt sure it wouldn't come out, but I had scarcely left it when I saw the muslin fall and heard the pin drop in the cage. The little rogue had picked the pin out. I now put the pin where it cannot be easily reached.—Sent by Ronald Roberts (age 7,) 106, Dixon Street, Swindon.

Singing Contests.

LEEDS.

Usual quality singing contest held Prince Albert Hotel, Newtown, Jan. 29th, when a good number of birds competed for three good prizes. Result: 1, 2, shared by Farrar and Cblp; 3, Chip. Judges, Messrs. H. Allen, A. Binns, and J. Smith.—J. Smith, Hon. Sec

Leeds Linnet F.A. usual quality singing contest, held at King's Head, Shannon-st., January 29th, when 16 birds sang. 1, Stead; 2, Butler; 3, Madden. Judges, Messrs. T. Summers, C. Cooper, and J. Melia. Grand Canary contest, Feb. 5, first bird up 7.30.—Wm. Sissons, Hon. Sec.

Skinner's Arms Linnet F.A., Buslingthorpe-lane, usual quality singing contest January 29th, when 13 birds competed, and some good singing was heard. Result: 1st, Lunn; 2nd, Green; 3rd, Ward. Judges, Messrs. Grainger and Simons.—Wm. Lunn, Hon. Sec.

Special meeting will be held at Plasterers' Arms, Skinner Lane, off North Street, February 5th, 8 o'clock p.m., to form a properly controlled club of Linnet and Canary fanciers, for contest singing. The object is to introduce novices into the sport, also to bring us more in contact with different clubs of other towns, that are singing matches home and away with them, either quality or time. So will all fanciers of Leeds and district please try to help us with this club, and turn up to make rules, etc., as contest singing at present in Leeds seems to be on the wane? Will fanciers of other clubs please pass their opinion of this idea?—Joe Hargreaves.

GLASGOW.

City of Glasgow Linnet S.C. usual weekly contest held February 28th. Result: 1, McMillan; 2, Ross; 3, Pullin. Judge, Mr. Rough; timekeeper, Mr. Campbell Contest next Saturday, 4 p.m., for a copper kettle, open to all; only members' points count for cup.—W Ross.

WARRINGTON.

Open Linnet singing contest for time and quality will be held at Mr. Longmore's "Railway Tavern" on February 25th, when a reasonable sum will be added according to entries. All welcome. Entries 1s. per bird.—J. and W. Mather.

LEIGH.

Globe Inn Linnet Club for time and quality contest, January 29; entry of 40 birds. But we were compelled to give twelve members their money back, as we could not get it over in the time, although we reduced the time, and there was some very good time done. The time done surprised us all; we held the contest for time and quality. Three prizes given for each class. Prize winners: R. Stathan, 1st, 154; R. Stathan, 2nd, 128; and D. Banks, 3rd, 110; quality: J. W. Jones, 1st; J. W. Jones, 2nd; and R. Statban, 3rd.—J. M'Allister (Secretary).

ERITH.

Open race held January 29th, when 5 pairs were hung, 10 minutes singing. Mr. D. Jones gave a special for winner. 1, Baker, 3 score, 14 spl.; 2, Barnett, 3 score, 11 spl.; 3, Beacham, 2 score, 14 spl.; 4, Wilders, 1 score, 11 spl.; 5, Roper, 1 score, 1 spl. Meeting Jan. 29th, when Mr. J. Turner and C. Curley were elected members. Open race, Feb. 5. —J. Baker, Hon. Sec.

CASTLEFORD.

Weekly Linnet contest, held "George and Dragon," Bridge-st. We had a record entry since we started the club, their being 41 birds to sing for three very good prizes. After a tight race, the awards were: 1, Potter; 2, Sweeting; 3, Nelson. Your paper CAGE BIRDS is doing a lot of good for us. We see strange faces every week.—Walter Dobson, Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD.

Weekly Linnet singing contest, held Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford Street, Attercliffe Common, Sheffield, January 29th, when 14 birds entered for three specials. Time singing, 3 minutes:—1, Thompson, 84 secs.; 2, Brown, 61 secs.; 3, Shimwell, 33 secs.; Cole, 30 secs. Contest every week end. Wanted new members to join the Whitsuntide contest; going strong. Apply to secretary, A. Brown, 11, Bold-st., Attercliffe Common, Sheffield, or to Mr. J. Grundy, Club nights every week-end from 8 to 9'clock.—J. Grundy

A Protest at Paisley Show.

SIR,—I desire to inform all those concerned that the protest against the buff hen which won the cup at our New Year show has been considered by my committee, and has been unanimously dismissed.

To Steady British Goldies.

SIR,—Can any of the numerous readers of CAGE BIRDS, kindly tell me the best method of steadying a British cock Goldfinch? I am compelled to keep the bird indoors. Does keeping him in a double-breeder with a hen Canary (separated off) help at all? I shall be very grateful for any advice on the subject.

Wirework Fly-traps.

SIR,—The wire-work fly-trap about which "Another British-bird Lover" enquires in your last issue is, no doubt, Perrin's patent Balloon Flytrap. This is oval in shape, and is made of fine-meshed tin wire. At the base is a well, in which, according to the instructions issued, the user "must place a small quantity of sugar, on which sprinkle a few drops of vinegar." I have used these traps with great success for ten years. Most large ironmongers retail them at 6d. a-piece. I think keepers of insectivorous birds will find these traps extremely useful.

A New Cage Bird Society for Kettering and District.

SIR,—I am pleased to be ablo to inform you that at a representative meeting of fanciers it was resolved to form a Kettering and Dis. Cage Bird Society, with a radius of six miles. Officers were elected, and Mr. Chas. Martin is to be the first chairman and Mr. Len Usher treasurer. The subscription has been fixed at 2s 6d. per annum for full members, or 1s. per annum hon. members. The headquarters are to be the Rifle Band Club, and the meetings the first Monday in each month. All fanciers are cordially invited to be present at next meeting, February 6th, at 8.15 prompt. All communications should be sent to me.

Are Birds Fruit-eaters?

SIR,—I was somewhat amused to read the letter from Mr. John Canning, in which he asserts that the Starling, Blackbird, and Thrush are not fruit-eaters. I venture to think that if he lived in the same locality, and had the same chances of observation as myself, he would quickly alter his views. My experience of the Starling is that he is a perfect terror for fruit, such as cherries, choice pears, apples, etc. The Blackbird and Thrush can be bracketed together as being quite as big sinners as the Starling, but they go about their business in a different manner, so that they are not so noticeable to the casual observer, nevertheless, they are exceedingly fond of fruit, for if they can get free access to a bed of strawberries, currant bushes, or gooseberries, they will very soon let you know whether they are fruit-eaters or not. The Bullfinch is another bird that can do with as much fruit as he can get, such as raspberries, currants, and plums, etc. I rather fancy that if some of our so-called experts were to live in the country they would be a little surprised how our wild birds live during the different seasons. I will give one little instance. My little boy found a Thrush's nest with young last summer, and, says he to me, "Dad, what do you think the old ones were feeding their young ones with?" "Slugs and snails," says I. "No," said he, "they were feeding them with strawberries." After questioning him, I did not doubt his word, for a gardener friend of mine has caught five or six a day that have managed to find their way under the nets put to protect the strawberries.

The Cuckoo in Captivity.

SIR,—I was quite delighted with the clear and beautiful reproduction of my Cuckoos in your Birthday Number. They have been much admired. You will be sorry to hear that on January 16th the young hen bird died. I think it caught cold in moving, as they are at present half naked in the moult, the old ones looking much like Rip Van Winkle after his twenty years' sleep, and the young one losing the pretty markings that reminded me so much of the cut onyx stone. I do hope the young one will live. It is rather hard to bring them well over Christmas, and then lose them. The old Cuckoo sits as usual in the window on a perch (not caged) the greater part of the day, and it is amusing to hear the remarks passed on him. Sometimes he is a stuffed bird; then a curious kind of a pigeon; a foreign bird; a Blackbird; and if a person happens to guess right the others laugh and say, "You're the Cuckoo, I should think." This morning two gentlemen returned to the window to have another look, and went off saying, "Well, what on earth can it be?" I have lost my hen Thrush; indeed, she was stolen, and afterwards cruelly used, the woman putting a cat in the cage when taxed with the theft. I thought of going to law about it. I fetched an inspector of the R.S.P.C.A. to her. However, the child that saw her do it was too young for a witness, and he told me I could recover the value of the bird in the county court, but as I afterwards heard that the child had been beaten, and I could not forget its little frightened face, I let it pass. It would not have been much consolation if she was only a "common little Thrush." She taught a lesson to many a lad round, one telling me that if he had known what trouble and pains these birds took to build their nests he would never have robbed them of their eggs. She was never short of snails from these boys.

A New C.B.S. for Smallbridge.

SIR,—We have formed a society, namely, Smallbridge and District Cage Bird Society, and our Headquarters are the I.O.G.T. room, Garside-street. We are having a general meeting on Monday, February 6th, and shall be glad if fanciers will attend, and oblige, National British B'rd and Mule Club Annual Meeting.

SIR,—The annual general meeting of the N.B.B. and M.C. will be held in the Board Room at the Crystal Palace on Saturday next, at 6 o'clock. All fanciers interested in British birds are cordially invited to attend, to consider very important business concerning the recent legal decision on British bird keeping.

The Growing of Early Dandelion

SIR,—I desire to thank Mr. F. Johnson for his kind offer to send on to me some roots of his prospective dandolion grown from seed planted on the ninth day of the first month in this year. I will be more than pleased to hoar of his success and to receive the dandelion. At the same time I think he rather misquotes me in saying I do not think it possible to grow dandelion from seed. What I intended to convey was that it was a very uncertain way of starting to grow dandelion that would certainly be in evidence early enough and in good fettle to give to the birds to get them into condition to begin housckeeping, and also to fill the little upturned beaks that come afterwards. I continue to be convinced that the best way to start a bed is to get the roots, because you can then watch their growth from the day you set them, and so know that your crop will be there when wanted. We were cutting young dandelion until after the moult last year. Mr. Coulson was looking at my young dandelion on Christmas Day, and remarking on its earliness, and I have been cutting a little of it all this year. But the sparrows were playing havoc with the young leaves, so we have stretched wire over the bed. Mr. Steele also informs me that his dendolion bed is "going strong,' with plenty of green showing. Other dandelion growers are also all doing well in this district; there are many growers about here now, all from planting the root. I enclose specimens gathered a week ago from my own garden, grown only 10 minutes' tram ride from the centre of Manchester city. You will notice the Sparrows have been sampling some of it, and I say, no matter how it has been grown, either from seed or the setting of roots, that as a health giver, a health preserver, and also as a most valuable green food for the feeding of young during the breeding season, dandelion stands alone in my experience. If more of our fanciers would give us of their experiences, like Mr. F. Johnson, there would be fewer failures in our bird rooms, and our knowledge of the Bird cult would quickly grow, to our own and the birds' advantage. I would have replied to Mr. Johnson last week, but we suddenly met the sorrow of our life by a cutting from the "Capo Times"—my only brother, one of the best-known commercials in the Colonies, met with a fatal accident whilst bathing. He died on Christmas Day in the Somerset Hospital. I have bathed in the same bath in the open air at Christmas time, little thinking when I left him behind on "Afric's sunny shores," that he would meet his end in that way.

Is It Cruel to Keep Birds in Cages?

SIR,—A friend of mine was out catching Goldfinches last week), when the cage drawer slipped out. This happening to be a wide one, the bird got out. He tried for some time to capture him, but all in vain. He left the cage there with the door open, and left the place for four hours. To his surprise, when he returned the little bird was back again in his cage, and stayed in while he went to him. Does this not settle the question? J. E. JONES.

Proposed New Society for Small Heath (Birmingham) & Dis.

SIR,—I see it is proposed to form a new society for the above district. I cannot see why, as it is only about two miles from the club-room of the Birmingham C.B.S.—tram passes door. But if it is necessary, let us at least have a sound foundation. Being present at the general meeting of the Birmingham C.B.S., I heard two letters read accusing members of lending birds for the open show, also champions showing in novice classes, and showing in their wives' names. The cases were thrashed out, and found to be groundless. Does the writer prefer to fly rather than face the members accused? I say, stick to the old club, which needs all the help it can get, seeing the heavy losses which it incurred at the last two open shows. I hope it is not a case of leaving the "sinking ship." But who said "sinking ship"? I hear all the debts are paid, and it has about 50 or 60 members.

SMALL HEATH.

The Cage Bird Union Annual Meeting.

SIR,—I enclose herewith report and preliminary balance-sheet of the C.B.U. Will you kindly state that the meeting at the Crystal Palace will be held at 3.30, the room to be announced on the show office, in the show-room.

GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE.

Letter sent out to Delegates.

SIR,—I enclose herewith the Executive Council's report and preliminary balance-sheet, which is to be presented to the meeting of delegates to be held on Saturday next, February 4th, at 3.45 p.m. prompt, at the Crystal Palace. Agenda for the meeting has already been supplied the Secretary of your Society. The Council trust that you may be able to attend, and that such discussion and suggestions may be forthcoming as will put the Union in a better position than at present, and that the rules may be so amended (if possible) as to make the Union agreeable to all societies. I have tendered my resignation as Secretary to the Union. Mr. de Mallet was the only other nominee for the position, but will not act.

Geo. W. F. Lythgoe, Sec. C.B.U.

Report of the Executive Council for 1910-11 to be submitted to the delegates at meeting on February 4th.

There have affiliated to the Union this year 73 societies, and 33 shows have been granted licenses, against 130 and 50 respectively last year, 148 and 73 in 1908-9, and 131 and 91 in 1907-8. The falling-off has taken place chiefly in the Northern and the London districts, the Newcastle district accounting for 14 societies, and 18 in London and the South did not renew membership. The Council much regret this falling-off in support, and particularly regret that the seceding societies, after repeated solicitations, would not give any expression of opinion as to the cause of their actions. An adjourned meeting of delegates was held in August, the seceding societies being invited to attend and give expression to their views, but not one responded. Though many societies intimated their withdrawal for various reasons not connected with the Union, only 4 or 5 gave, as reason, dissatisfaction with the Union or its rules. The Council have consequently been at a loss to know how to remedy the causes of these secessions.

An arrangement was come to early in the season between this Union and the Yorkshire Union, to each uphold the other's suspensions, and throwing the Yorkshire Union's shows open to Union members. This matter had been given as one cause of many societies not joining the Union, and it was hoped when this arrangement was made, many more societies would affiliate, but it only had the effect on bringing one into the Union. The restrictive rule (22) has also been given as the reason for these secessions, and at the adjourned meeting of delegates the rule was thoroughly discussed and it was decided it would not be beneficial to delete the rule. Another reason, given by the Secretary of a London Society for London clubs refraining from rejoining was, the suggested extension of the rule (22) to debar Union shows from accepting entries from non-Union members, and he intimated they were all willing to rejoin if this extension was not adopted: but although the rule was not extended, none of these societies rejoined.

There has been practically no clashing of shows, except by arrangement, in a few instances in the congested District No. 7, which it is proposed to divide. Shows held under the Union's rules have been particularly well supported, and on the whole the members have been loyal to the rules and have confined their support to Union shows. Several members have, however, taken the course of presumably resigning their society in order to show at non-Union shows, and it is proposed to amend the rules to prevent this in future. In only 3 or 4 cases have members been reported for exhibiting at non-Union shows, and the Council have had to suspend a number for infringement of the rule on this point. Following on these suspensions the Council decided to waive the rule that licenses could only be granted to mixed shows, and offered to grant licences to any shows applying for same up to the end of the present season.

In co-operation with the London Federation and the Yorkshire Union, a petition has been sent out to all affiliated societies for their members' signatures, which it is proposed to present to the railway companies.

Only five members have availed themselves of the Compensation Scheme, and the medal competition has only had half-a-dozen entrants

The Council express their disappointment at the lack of support to the Union, and trust that at the meeting the rules will be discussed, and if desired so amended as to make the Union acceptable to all, and that such a promise of support will be given as may again bring the Union up to its former strength. The Council have met three times during the year, viz., February 4th, March 19th, and December 17th.

How to Solder with Resin.

SIR,—Will some of your readers, through the correspondence columns kindly tell me how to solder wire fronts with resin instead of using spirits?

LINNET.

Making Doors in Wire Netting.

SIR,—I should be glad if some reader could give me a hint how to make neat, small doors in wire netting fronts to cages and aviaries. Punch bar fronts lend themselves easily to the convenient sliding door, but I find difficulty in putting neat and convenient doors in an expanse of wire mesh.

J. H. HARDS.

Darlington and Shildon Shows.

SIR,—I think it very unfair for Darlington to hold their show on the same date as Shildon, only about seven miles distant, as Shildon intend to have an open show (I understand by the members) this year. As this has been Shildon's show date since the commencement of the society, I don't think Darlington will do any good by changing their date. As a lover of justice and a good exhibitor, I don't like to see one show trying to outwit another so near at hand.

EXHIBITOR.

New Cage Bird Society for Boldon and District.

SIR,—A special meeting was held in the Boldon Colliery Institute on January 28th, with the intention of trying to form a Cage Bird Society for the above-named district. The meeting proved very satisfactory, and the Boldon and Dist. C.B.S. was established. A good muster of cage bird fanciers turned up, and rules were formed and adopted. Anyone wishing to become a member will be heartily welcomed at our next meeting, date of which will be published in CAGE BIRDS. At the next meeting we are holding a table show of Canaries and British.

The Mystery of Siberian Goldfinches Dying.

SIR,—Kindly allow me to answer J. H. Barrett re Siberian Goldfinches. I used to lose a great many Siberian or Russian Goldfinches at one time, but I happened to visit a bird show up in Wales, and quite accidentally I came across an old lover of Goldfinches, and the subject came on; and as he knew more about Siberians than I did, he told me a few things about moulting them. The chief trouble, he said, was in regard to the wings, in which a lump formed in them. I have had many like this, but since I built flights I have had less. Gently pull the feathers out and gently squeeze the had matter out until blood comes. After putting a little vaseline on, turn the bird into the aviary or flight cage, as I believe, like Mr. Barrett, in giving plenty of exercise. Inga seed I don't care for, but some birds would soon die if not given a little of it. I beg to differ with Mr. B. as regards medicines. I am a great believer in them, seeing they have saved me many a good bird which, had I not given them medicine, would, I feel sure, have died. I may tell Mr. B. that I have so much faith in medicine that I have written a small book for my own use, "How to treat, and what medicine to give"; and I have found it to be my best friend in cases of sickness in birds. Lucky, indeed, the fancier who has never a sick bird or two during the breeding season, as I myself am not so fortunate. I hold with Mr. B. as regards salts. I trust Mr. Barrett may moult many a Siberian and English bird.

Alleged Unfair Treatment at Guisborough Show.

SIR,—I had a similar experience to Mr. Radley at this show. I sent six entries so as to arrive a day before date for closing entries. As on the Thursday I had not received my class numbers, I wrote the secretary, asking him if he had received my entries. He had not the courtesy to reply, but on the day of show I received my numbers. As, of course, it was then too late, I did not send birds, but wrote Mr. Mays, asking him to return entry fees. I received from him the following "courteous and gentlemanly" reply (letter enclosed). Your readers can judge for themselves, after reading this letter, whether he intended returning entry fees or not. Seeing the kind of man I had to deal with, I did not trouble him further, but wrote to Mr. Cook, chairman of this society, whom I have always found a good fancier and a gentleman, asking him to bring the matter before his committee, as I could do nothing with the secretary. He kindly did so, and he it is we have to thank for the return of our entry fees, and not the secretary. In his letter, Mr. M. states they do not have marked catalogues, yet in their schedules, rule 15, it states catalogues with list of awards sent to exhibitors who enclose 4d. with entry fees. I sent 6d., and received catalogue on the Monday after show, but not marked. I did not intend troubling you re this matter, but seeing Mr. May's misleading letter, I felt compelled to support Mr. Radley in his just complaint.

G. W. CUTHBERTSON.

January 2nd, 1911.

SIR,—Yours to hand this morning. You say that I have made a muddle of your entries, but there is two opinions about that, for the muddle is your own fault, because if you had sent your entries at the right time you would have had plenty of time to let me know that you had not got your tickets. Your tickets were sent at the beginning of the week, straight back for you, and I expected that you had them. But it is the post office officials' fault, not mine, and seeing that you are an old exhibitor, you ought to know that your birds could easily have been ticketed if you had sent them, which is no excuse. You only sent word that you had not got them on Thursday, and I sent you another lot straight back, which you have not said anything about. So the post office is your place of grievance, not to me; therefore, you shall get no money returned from me, and as for catalogue, I have sent you one.

R. MAYS, Hon. Sec.

SIR,—I sent four entries to Guisborough eight days before the show date. I also sent the money for a catalogue, but I have not received one yet. Neither did I get any tickets for my cages, so I did not send my birds to the show. Then I wrote to the secretary to kindly refund my money. He wrote back saying: It will not wash with me, for I am not going to return money back to anyone. Then, when he sees Mr. Radley's letter in CAGE BIRDS, he sends me my entrance money back, but no catalogue nor any money for it either (but he has sent me two very insulting letters). Now, Mr. Mays, do you think we are all liars? I have seen a letter this week from Mr. Cuthbertson, saying you had treated him in the same manner. Mr. Mays, the next time you have a show, I hope you will keep a clear head, and not go muddling in this manner.

LUTHER DYSON.

The Southern Norwich P.C. Annual Meeting.

SIR,—The annual meeting will be held at the Palace Show on February 4th, at three o'clock sharp, in Board room (opposite the bird show), when the result of voting will be given out, also the position of the club for 1911 season. Will all members kindly return their votes by February 2nd, and let us have a record vote? If possible, the names of winners of cups and specials will be called out. Any alterations for the working of the club can be brought forward. Fanciers having any special interest in Norwich are cordially invited, and can join at the close of the meeting.

F. S. MATTHES, Hon. Sec.

Proposed New C.B.S. for Oswestry (Shropshire).

SIR,—A number of fanciers in the town of Oswestry (Salop) have decided to start a cage bird society. We have agreed to hold a meeting at the "Coach and Dog" Temperance Hotel, Church-street, on Saturday, February 4th, at 8 p.m. Will those fanciers wishing to join kindly attend? Or, if unable to do so, if they will send their names to me, we will be only too pleased to enrol them. I hope we will have a good attendance, for Oswestry I have found is a good field in which to commence or re-new a cage bird society.

E. J. EVANS.

The Late Sheringham Show.

SIR,—Referring to "Nosey's" letter in last week's CAGE BIRDS, I should like to tell "Nosey" that I have had an interview with the secretary re this matter, and he informs me they were not exhibits which were being carried by a certain official of the show, but six show cages which this official was lending to the secretary for the use of an exhibitor, and personal friend of the secretary. But I was unable to find out if the same exhibitor was Mr. ——, for whom special classes were provided, owing to the exhibitor having entered Crests and Crest-breds in Plainhead classes. Perhaps some other exhibitor can explain this, and also say why four of this exhibitor's birds were not wrong classed.

A Plaint from Wigan Linnet Singers.

SIR,—I cannot understand the attitude of the Wigan secretary in referring to Leigh not attending their contest of January 21st. In the first place I ask what is the reason that Wigan has withdrawn quality from their contest, and only gone in for time? I understand that they have always had quality before; is it because they cannot win at quality? They say that they patronise us, and we don't patronise them. Well, our contests are for quality and time, and I think if they want us to patronise them, their's should be the same. I go further: I will guarantee that if they hold their contests on the same lines as we do, then we shall exceed their entries to us, by double, at their own contests. But our contention is that any contests should be held for the benefit of all, and to keep quality out is against the interests of Linnet singing. Then, again, we have another grievance against Wigan. We attend a contest at Warrington, when it comes to the knowledge of the Wigan secretary that Leigh was about to get up a testimonial on behalf of the Brothers Green. Now, I should like the Wigan secretary to give a reason for not even keeping to his promise to let me know the result of his meeting with regard to the Green fund. I take it that he does not like the idea of having to play second fiddle to a junior club, and because he was late in the field, he will not take the active part in the matter that he should. If this testimonial does not prove a success, they cannot blame Leigh, but the clubs around them. I, as secretary of the Globe Inn Linnet Club, also wrote him in reference to another contest that we are going to hold, so that I can fix a date, and not let it clash with theirs, but he treats this with contempt by not answering. I will conclude by stating that I hope to see all old and many new faces at our next open Linnet singing contest for time and quality, on February 4th, at 1 o'clock, at the Globe Inn (Bradshawgate, Leigh).

The Hirst Universal C.B.S.

SIR,—A meeting was held in the Universal Social Club, Hirst. We decided to form a cage bird society, to be called the Hirst Universal C.B.S. We have secured a nice room in which to hold our monthly meetings, also a large concert room in which to hold our annual show—a room splendidly adapted for the purpose. Fanciers are cordially invited to attend our next meeting on Saturday, February 25th.

R. MIDDLETON, Sec.

New Society for Pateley Bridge and District.

SIR,—We have formed a new society, and having extended our radius to 15 miles, we shall be glad to have new members. Seeing we have such enthusiastic fanciers as Mr. T. Balfe and Mr. P. H. Marsden, we feel sure that the cage bird section will be a success in every way. Our first show will be held in the Oddfellows' Hall, Pateley Bridge, on February 11th. Mr. Marsden will judge the cage birds.

R. WEATHERHEAD, Hon. Sec.

A New Seed for Birds.

SIR,—We herewith enclose you a sample of a new grain for cage birds, which we are putting on the market, called "Nuseed." It is of African origin, and is much relished by Canaries and other Finch-like birds, and, moreover, is used by the natives as food. It is highly nutritious and wholesome, and would form a welcome change to the list of seeds now before the public. The seed can be seen and samples of it obtained free from our stand at the Palace Show. From the comparative analysis of two seeds readers will observe that it is a well-balanced ration. "Nuseed": Moisture 10.20, oil 5.20, albuminoids 14.38, digestible carhohydrates 67.56, indigestible woody fibre 1.23, mineral matter (ash) 1.43. Millet: Water 12.85, oil 4.56, albuminoids 11.08, carbohydrates 59.46, mineral matter 4.60, sand and silica 2.15, woody fibre 7.45.

TROWER AND CO.

The Use of Clap Nets.

SIR,—Some years ago a discussion, headed "How to Arm Nets," brought forth correspondence of a most interesting and helpful character from a number of practical people who evidently knew what they were writing about, and I would fain start another discussion in connection with the trapping of birds, if you will grant me the hospitality of your columns. I have used ordinary clap nets for years, but have never been satisfied with their speed and suitability to meet the ever-varying circumstances which confront the person who likes to spend a day in the country trapping his own birds. Apart from the cumbersomeness of clap nets, with their poles and other somewhat heavy accessories, they cannot be made to come over quickly enough to capture a wary bird, that shoots upwards between them, and refuses to fly laterally into either net. My nets are ten yards long, and work on poles 5 feet 4 inches in length. They are made of the finest thread, and I know the way to set them properly. Yet a change in the direction of the wind in an hour or two after setting, plus the springing up of a stiffish little breeze, will often impede the action of one net, and allow "the catch" to escape. Do what you will, the old clap net is slow, and unsatisfactory, and wants a lot of handling. A correspondent wrote once to say that his clap nets were worked on the "come-and-go," half-pole, system, and as such he never missed the quickest bird. What is the experience of others? My poles would (on this plan) be 2 feet 8 inches long, and would be less effective for netting birds on the wing? Would a pair of nets 8 yards by 5 feet be much faster? What is the best length, width, and colour, and which the best thread for a pair of Goldfinch nets?

A CATCHER.

The Disqualified Yellowhammer at the Scottish National Show.

SIR,—I notice Mr. Jones states that Mr. Russell was asked to allow the bird to be sent to your Mr. G. E. Weston, but refused. Now, I happened to be in the room when Mr. Russell came in (about 7.30) and I distinctly heard him say to the secretary that he would have his bird examined by an expert. They then agreed to send the bird away the next day. So I think Mr. Jones is quite out of place in saying that Mr. Russell refused to allow his bird to be sent away.

A VISITOR.

SIR,—I am glad "Bath Fancier" is satisfied and does not require any further information, but I think he should apologise through your paper for the uncalled-for remarks as to the failing eyesight of some of the greatest judges in the cage bird Fancy who gave my bird the prizes. Perhaps, however, "Bath Fancier" would prefer to see the judges examining each bird with a large magnifying glass, the same as was used at the Bath Show! Mr. S. E. Jones, whom I know only too well, says that Mr. Bull and TWELVE committeemen were satisfied that the bird had been trimmed. Imagine thirteen altogether peering through a large magnifying glass at a poor little bird! Out of the thirteen, I understand four or five only were cage bird fanciers, and the remainder pigeon, poultry and rabbit fanciers; a very nice collection to give an opinion on a British bird. Two or three of these committee men have informed me that they knew nothing whatever as to what they had to decide; but I expect it was a case of "follow the leader." It is surprising the amount of enthusiasm created when there is a chance of an objection or protest. I cannot understand why Mr. Jones should say I refused to send the bird under Mr. Weston. This is an absolute untruth, as I agreed to send the bird away under this expert judge of British birds on the following morning, after the bird had rested and been fed, but it was insisted upon by one or two (perhaps the "little clique") that it should be sent away immediately after the show, viz., 9 p.m. Naturally I would not agree to their proposal, as I considered that my suggestion was a fair way of dealing with the matter, especially after the bird being frightened the whole afternoon and evening. I do not wish to discuss the points of the bird with Mr. Jones, and time will tell the tale. My advice to him is, "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you."

F. RUSSELL.

A Goldfinch Problem.

SIR,—"Marchpane" would like some of your readers to inform him wherein lies the fault of his treatment of Goldfinches. I have kept Goldfinches for nearly twenty years, have fed them in different forms, and they all did well. I got one a few months ago from a well-known English dealer, and I am treating it in an entirely different fashion from my previous methods (although they all did well). I feed him every day when I come home from work, between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. I also, of course, give him clean water, but prefer to keep the vessel on the outside, and being very particular to wipe it out clean before refilling. Now, as to my method of feeding this bird (and you ought to hear him sing): I fill his drawer up three-quarters full of Canary seed, a pinch of inga in my three fingers, the same of teazle, with a small pinch of thistle between my finger and thumb. Now, he gets no more until the next day at the same time, so if he thinks fit to "wipe up" all or most of his tit-bits, other than Canary, he has just to fall back on the plain bread until he is fed next day. Here, then, "Marchpane," in my opinion, lies your fault; you are far too good to them; do not give them as much rich seeds as they are able to gorge themselves on at all times, be sparing with all but your Canary, do not flinch from this method, with an occasional spray or bath, and I am sure you will be able in a very short time to listen to his sweet song.

THE PROTECTION OF WILD BIRDS.

A PETITION TO THE HOME SECRETARY.

Help by Signing it at the Crystal Palace Show.

The National British Bird and Mule Club are moving to present a petition—a copy of which is appended—to the Home Secretary relating to the Wild Birds Protection Act (County of London), and they want all bird-keepers to help in the matter by appending their signatures to this said petition. It is intended that copies shall lie on all the stalls at the Crystal Palace Show—if permission to this effect can be obtained from the Palace authorities, and Mr. Ramsden, the show manager—so that visitors to the exhibition this week-end should not neglect the opportunity to append their names to this appeal.

To His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Home Affairs, the Right Hon. Winston S. Churchill, the Petition of the undersigned in relation to wild birds.

In consequence of a recent judicial interpretation of the Acts relating to Wild Birds, 1880 to 1896, and By-law No. 809, dated July 17th, 1909, relating to the County of London, the possession, sale and purchase of such wild birds legally and lawfully taken in other districts has become prohibited in the said County of London till they have been taken a considerable period before being brought inside the boundaries of the County of London.

We, the undersigned, therefore petition that such Acts of Parliament and By-laws shall be so altered and amended that wild birds legally and lawfully taken in other districts can be brought alive into and legally held in anyone's possession in the said County of London, as previous to above-mentioned decision.

We would also point out that the said By-law for the County of London was made for the protection against taking such wild birds in the County of London, and not against wild birds legally and lawfully taken in other districts and brought into the County of London.

We would also further point out in consequence of such judicial interpretation it causes serious loss of business to dealers, seed merchants, bird food providers, cage makers, and other kindred trades, resulting in loss of employment to a large number of workpeople engaged therein, also acting as a great detriment to the leading exhibitors and fanciers at London bird exhibitions held at Crystal Palace, Horticultural Hall, and various local districts, also considerably curtailing the hobby and pleasure of bird-keeping among the working classes.

Club Reports.

MIDLAND COUNTIES YORKS. C.C.

General meeting held Crown Hotel, Birmingham, January 19th, Mr. Wells in the chair. The members expressed regret that the competition for this season had been so bad. They were of the opinion that now the club is being properly looked after the prospects for next season are very bright, and with the hearty support of members we shall soon be one of the strongest specialist clubs in the kingdom. The winners of the point specials are Mr. P. V. Williams in the champion section and Mr. J. Clempson in novice section.—Beck and Andrews, Secs.

SCOTCH FANCY CANARY NATIONAL DERBY O.A.

Annual business meeting, held Grand National Halls, Main Street, Gorbals, Glasgow, 17th January. In the unavoidable absence of the president (Mr. Wright) through indisposition, Mr. Black occupied chair. Financial statement adopted. Relying upon the Association being more heartily supported, it was decided to continue the show, which will be held 23rd September. Mr. W. Hart appointed hon. president; Mr. Wright president; Mr. Councillor J. Hogg vice-president; secretary and treasurer, Thomas Smith, 10, Lochside Street, Crossmyloof, Glasgow; auditors, Messrs. Batcrin and Fraing; with a representative committee. Membership tickets (3/- each) will shortly be issued; any fancier not hitherto in touch with the society will be supplied on application to the secretary.—Thos. Smith, Sec.

TORBAY O.S.

Mr. A. N. Innes presided over the annual meeting, Jan. 16, Pope's Temperance Hotel. Balance sheet, showing a balance in hand of £3 19s. 11d., was adopted after discussion. Some alterations in the rules were proposed, and after due deliberation confirmed. Mr. H. Whitley was re-elected president, and Mr. W. J. Ham vice-chairman. Mr. J. N. Jeffery was elected secretary in place of Mr. C. Parnell, resigned, and Mr. J. Jeffery, jun., assistant secretary. Mr. W. Drew was elected auditor, Mr. J. B. Eastley hon. solicitor, Mr. F. W. Puddicombe hon. auctioneer, and Mr. A. N. Innes hon. treasurer. Committee, Messrs. A. N. Innes (chairman), Mr. H Daw (vice-chairman), J. Webber, A. Nicks, G. Mudge, G. Heathman, F. Badcock, H. Fletcher, G. Hynes, P. Lamble, W. Hodge, J. Bastard, P. W. Mugford, and F. Sanders. Annual show fixed for October 25th, a pair show March 8th, and first feather show July 18th. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded meeting.—J. N. Jeffery, Sec.

NOTTINGHAM (Permanent) O.S.

We are considering the advisability of introducing novice members' classes at our shows this year, and if we receive the support of novices, will give a good special for competition in those classes alone. The society is now open for membership to the county of Notts.; subs., 3s. per annum. We shall hold three shows this year (in addition to table shows). Fanciers, especially amateurs, will find it to their advantage to join us, as grand specials are given. Every member showing last year at the three shows received a special, the lowest value being 5s., which record, we think, is hard to beat. At our last show a grand extra special in the shape of a ham was presented by Mr. J. B. Caunt for competition in the British Hardbill classes, the prize falling to Mr. J. Wood. Tickets for open table show, Feb. 11th are now available, price 1d. each, and every ticket entitles holder to compete for a good singing Canary. There will be seven classes—two Nor., two Crests, and three Brit.—and a good special will be given in each section, in addition to prize money. The entrance is 6d. per cage. J. Bunn (secretary), 80, Westwood-road, Nottingham.

NORTHERN COUNTIES N. & C.C.C

Meeting held Jan 18th, Lockhart's, 65, Grainger-street (near Monument), Chairman, Mr. R. W. Smith presiding. Re holding a table show at our next meeting, February 15th; decided, to hold one with four classes: Cl., tkd., or variegated, yell. unflig.; ditto buff; hen unflig.; and pairs for breeding (old or young). Mr. J. Curran (Gosforth) was unanimously elected to judge. Also carried, that the entrance fee be 6d. per cage; prize money to be paid on the sliding scale—3, 2, and 1. Re the medals won over shows where our patronage had been given, it was decided that the Secretary get some samples and have them on view at the February meeting, when a final selection will be made. Members entitled to medals: Messrs. A. Holden and R. Hope (Morpeth); F. F. Lawson and W. Curry (Newcastle), T. Winter and F. Ayre (Blaydon), R. W. Smith and R. Topping (Gateshead), the champion medal winner being the first-named in each instance; latter the novice. The medals will be presented at annual meeting in March (date later). Specials for most points over shows were won by Mr F. F. Lawson (champion) and R. Hope (novice). I will be glad to hear from any fancier who resides in Northumberland, Durham, Cumberland, and Westmorland, who would like to join our ranks (subs. 2s. 6d.). For particulars, etc., send to me.—W. Curry, Sec., 60, Grosvenor Gardens, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

BANKFOOT AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Second annual tea and concert, in connection with the prize distribution, held Jan. 14th, Bankfoot Schoolroom. A good number of visitors attended. A splendid tea was provided, as well as a long and really excellent programme. Mr. J. Brown (who was to have appeared as humorist) could not attend owing to illness; but we were admirably helped over the difficulty by one of our own members—Mr. D. Lowe, the man with the stick. Mr. J. Lawson, another member, also came to our assistance. The chairman was Mr. R. Hallilday (ex-president Yorks. Union). The presentation was made by Mrs. J. C. Clark, the vicar's wife, who said she was proud to do anything for our society. At 4.30 p.m. everyone found a place at the table. The lady workers then had a busy time right up to 6 o'clock. At 7.30 o'clock the chairman opened the concert with a few remarks. Miss N. Sykes, Mr. A. P. Barraclough (tenor), Miss J. Ogden, Miss E. Murgatroyd, Miss E. Lupton, Miss A. Murgatroyd (elocutionist), Mr. P. Sykes (bass), Mr. D. Lowe (humorist), and Mr. J. Lawson contributed to the evening's entertainment, one and all being much appreciated. At the close of the first half of the programme Mrs. Clark presented the prizes to the successful exhibitors. The first prize was won by Mr. G. Hudson, who scored 154 points (and wins the society's cup); 2nd, F. Gelder, 119 (flower stand); 3rd, Mr. C. Hardaker, 98 (pair of vases); 4th, Mr. B. Wilman (cruet); 5th, Mr. J. Taylor (coffee pot); 6th, Mr. C. Priestley (case of spoons); 7th, Hinchcliffe, Horsley; 8th, Mr. J. Lawson; 9th, Mr. C. Baslow. Extra Novice Competition: 1st, Mr. H. Taylor (dress length); 2nd, Mr. W. North (gilt rose bowl). A large number of consolation prizes were dealt out to every member who had shown a bird irrespective of counting. The second half of the programme was then proceeded with. Mr. W. North afterwards proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Clark, which was seconded by Mr. J. Lawson, and carried amidst applause. Mrs. Clark replied. The Secretary, in proposing a vote of thanks to the Chairman, alluded to the good work done by that gentleman on behalf of the society. During the 18 months the society had been in existence Mr. Halliday had filled the positions of lecturer, judge, and chairman. Mr. D. Lowe seconded, and the proposition was carried unanimously. A vote of thanks to the lady workers, and the singing of the National Anthem, after which all the artistes were entertained to supper, along with the members' wives and friends, and the most successful undertaking (financially) ever attempted by the society was brought to a close.—F. Gelder, Sec.

SELSTON AND DISTRICT F.S.

Meeting held Schoolroom, Jan. 21st. Election of officers:—Chairman and treasurer, Mr. W. Booth; committee, Messrs. W. Beale, C. Bacon, W. Dobbs, W. N. Booth, A. Simpson, H. Maltby, H. Smithurst, W. Palethorpe, and E. Bent. Also decided, to hold table show, Feb. 25th, for stock pairs, Canary A.V., Muling or Hybridising pairs, 6d. each exhibit. All exhibits to be staged 6.30 p.m. Annual subscription is now 2s. 6d. instead of 3s. 6d. All wishing to join may do so by applying to the secretary.—F. Maltby, Hon. Sec., Back Lane, Westwood, Jacksdale, Notts.

BLACKPOOL AND FYLDE C.B.F.S.

Annual meeting, held Jan. 19th, Raikes Hall Hotel. Mr. G. Young occupied the chair. Balance-sheet passed and read showing a very satisfactory balance of £5, against 7s. 7d. of last year. Officers elected for 1911: Chairman, Mr. G. Young; vice-chair, Mr. J. Lightbown; sec., Mr. J. R. Crossley; treasurer, W. Binns; auditors, J. Kersham and W. J. Bevan; committee, Messrs. T. Patteson, H. Human, S. Clexley, J. Sheard, H. Reekle, S. Brown. Proposed by Mr. W. Binns, and seconded by Mr. J. Lightbown, and carried, that we lower our subscription from 6s. to 4s. for the ensuing year, and entrance fee 1s. I should be pleased to hear from any fancier wishing to join.—Jas. R. Crossley, Hon. Sec.

EASTFIELD SIDE C.B.S.

Annual supper held Jan. 21st, headquarters, "Mason's Arms," when about 50 members and their wives sat down to a splendidly arranged repast by Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bradbury. After supper there was a grand concert, and with Mr. J. Vaughan in the chair, everything went on merrily. Mr. J. Carlin proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the host and hostess; it was seconded by Mr. J. Wright and carried with musical honours, to which Mr. Bradbury suitably replied. The Society had engaged Mr. J. Allen (tenor), who, with Messrs. F. Beadall, J. Smedley, J. Wright, and A. Wright (Mr. J. Carlin at the piano), made things very lively. The Society grows week by week, and is composed of fanciers who take a lot of interest in the Society's doings. The singing of "God Save the King" closed the evening.—R. Nuttall, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A

Fortnightly meeting held Fawcett-street Cafe, Jan. 21st, Mr. G. Davidson presiding over a good attendance. Mr. W. F. Swan moved that we have a table show Feb. 18th for pairs matched for breeding, A.V., confined to members who have never won a first in open competition. Mr. R. Newcombe kindly promised to give a single breeding cage for most entries. Agreed to charge sixpence per cage, the proceeds to go to the first three in the following proportion, viz., 6d., 1s., 1s. 6d. Mr. Waters moved that Mr. J. Risehorough judge, and give a short lecture on the different varieties shown. Mr. Risehorough promised to do so, and I am sure the members have a treat in store, especially the younger members, who will no doubt turn up in good numbers. Mr. Swan moved that we have a social evening, on a date to be fixed probably at next meeting, the secretary and treasurer in the meantime to get particulars, etc.—J. Jeffrey, Hon. Sec.

EDINBURGH (Open) O.S.

Annual meeting held Jan. 14th, Buchanan's Hotel. Mr. D. Martin (pres.), occupied chair. The financial statement was submitted; it proved one of the best for some years, showing a surplus to the good. Office-bearers elected:—Pres., D. Martin; hon. vice-pres., J. Dalgleish. Re the sec. and treas., the present holder of the office could not see his way to accept the position, and being asked to reconsider his decision, finally declined. Mr. W. Thornton was proposed, his nomination being very popular. He requested leave to give the matter his consideration, to which the members agreed. Such a well-known judge and exhibitor holding the secretarial reigns would be a tower of strength to the society, and it is earnestly hoped he will decide in our favour. Auditors, J. Sinclair and A. Stavert; paid committee, A. Begbie and J. Robertson; hon. com., J. McLennan, J. Hendry, C. R. Drysdale, D. Campbell, P. West, M. Petrie, A. Paterson, and P. McNiven. A deal of discussion took place on the date of and hall for next show. The matter was submitted to the committee for report at adjourned meeting at an early date, for the completion of business. Votes of thanks to the officials brought the meeting to a close.—J. R. Meikle, Secretary (pro. tem.).

LEYTON AND DISTRICT C.B.A

Annual general meeting held Leyton Constitutional Club, High-road, Jan. 16th, Vice-President, Mr. S. C. Rhodes in chair. Mr. Ovenden proposed, and Mr. Bartlett seconded, that the balance-sheet be adopted as read; this was carried unanimously. On the proposition of Mr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Albany, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the retiring officers. A letter was read from Mr. C. R. Carr, late Vice-Chairman, regretting his inability to attend meeting owing to the illness of his wife, requesting also that he should not again be elected to office as he was afraid he would be unable to attend meetings. Proposed and seconded that the committee have power to invite Mr. Carr to attend all committee meetings during year. Mr. J. A. Bartlett was elected Vice-Chairman, Mr. W. Dalton taking his place on committee. With these two exceptions the officers remain as last year. In the absence of Mr. F. Williamson, Mr. C. H. Cooper moved that a novice section be formed for British birds. After some discussion this was carried. Mr Bartlett's motion re specials at annual show was lost. Mr. C. H. Cooper very kindly promised a special for most points during year for amateur or novice section at the discretion of the committee. Mr. Wilson also promised two specials for points for two shows. Vote of thanks accorded Messrs. Cooper and Wilson for their generosity re specials. The case of Mr. Bennett in the courts was mentioned, and a collection was made resulting in 13s. 6d. towards the fund for his defence. A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed meeting.—Forse and Son, Hon Secs.

ROTHERHAM C.B.S.

Meeting held January 28th, College Inn. The society has removed back to the "College Inn," where we had our first table show, which was won by Mr. G. Stringer with a nice clear yellow Norwich cock. It was the best meeting we have had for some time, all business being done in good time. Decided, to have a table show for breeding pairs next meeting.—B. Bailey, Secretary.

UDDINGSTON & DISTRICT O.S.

Annual general meeting held Reading Rooms, Jan. 19th. Mr. H. Donnon (president) in chair. Financial statement submitted to auditors, and after being read over by secretary, adopted on a motion of Mr. W. P. Campbell, seconded by Mr. W. Young, showing a good balance on the right side. Election of office-bearers: President, T. Prentice; vice-presidents, G. Munro and H. Donnon; treasurer, J. Shepherd; secretary, Jno. Kilpatrick; auditors, J. Junor and W. P. Campbell; committee, W. Taylor, W. Young, J. Bowman, J. Junor, and W. P. Campbell. A motion to revise rules was left for committee to draw up new rules and report to monthly meeting. A vote of thanks to chairman ended the business.—John Kilpatrick, Sec.

BRIGHTON C.B.A.

Annual meeting, followed by a table show, held at new headquarters, The Auction Rooms, Bond-street, January 11th. There was a large attendance, Mr. C. Pearson presiding. After reading the report, the following officers were elected: President, Capt. G. C. Tryon, M.P.; vice-presidents, Lord Newlands, Hon. W. F. Rice, M.P., the Mayor of Hove (Alderman Barnett Marks, Esq., J.P.), W. R. Campion, Esq., M.P., and Mrs. Patrick Wisden; treasurer, Mr. J. Roast; auditors, Messrs. A. Goble and P. Small; hon. solicitor, W. Graham Hooper, Esq.; hon. secretary, Will H. Gibb, 19, Bond-street, Brighton; committee, Messrs. Absalon, Akehurst, Bicknell, Boxell, Cadman, Dandridge, Flook, Burtenshaw, Pearson, and Sharpe. Fourteen new members were added. New rules were framed for what is hoped will be a most successful year. This concluded the business.—W. H. Gibb, Sec.

BIRKENHEAD C.F.A.

Annual meeting, held Jan. 17th, headquarters, Ahlett's Cafe Room, Mr. J. Burns in the chair. Balance sheet for past year, brought forward by Mr. G. Morton and passed. Election of office-bearers: Chairman, Mr. J. Burns; vice-chairman, Mr. S. Hadwin; treasurer, Mr. G. Morton; auditors, Messrs. Watson and Moss; committee, Messrs. Hawkes, Richardson, Greatrix, Sands, Howlett, and Bird. The following motion, "That all members outside the borough be our hon. vice-presidents—Miss Thorburn, and Messrs. Radcliffe, Cave, Handley, Rogers, Morris, Hadwin, Isaac, Young, Edwards, Cooper, Rock, and Porter." The next motion was re entrance fee for evening shows; decided, that 7d. be the fee—6d. in prize money and the 1d. to reserve funds. Carried unanimously. Decided, that Mr. J. Burns judge pair show, Feb. 21st., all pairs to be shown in one cage. Mr. Young (New Brighton) will judge British birds, Mules, and show of Canaries, March 21st. Four new members elected. New members should send names to me (84, Rodney Street), or to any of our members. Subs., 2/6 per an.—A. E. Lloyd, Sec.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

Annual general meeting and election of officers, Headquarters, Jan. 17th. A good number of members attending, Mr. H. E. Tringham in chair. In his opening remarks, Mr. Tringham reviewed the successful work of the society during the past year, and called attention to our very satisfactory financial position. The society was still going ahead on progressive lines. An interesting and novel list of fixtures is to be arranged. Several new members elected. Election of officers:—Patrons, Fred Hall, Esq., M.P. (Dulwich), — Richardson, Esq., M.P. (Peckham), A. Bonar Law, Esq., and A. Laing, Esq.; president, J. Crowe, Esq.; vice-presidents, Messrs. A. E. Crowshurst, G. Dansie, E. S. Lugg, D. Mabey, J. Robson, J. B. Waterman, and S. H. Whitlock; hon. solicitor, H. W. B. Tweed, Esq.; hon. treasurer, W. Hodson; hon. auditors, Messrs. F. S. Matthews and F. Cole; hon. assistant sec., Mr. H. W. Tomsett; committee, Messrs. H. W. Tomsett, L. J. Richardson, A. Cunningham, D. Reeks, H. E. Trugham, C. Botting, A. Goodwin, S. H. Stephens, J. W. Norris, J. W. Cranfield, C. L. S. Mazzoni, and W. B. Cracknell. Votes of thanks to last year's officers, proposed and unanimously adopted. Vote of thanks to Mr. Tringham for his duties in the chair brought the meeting to a close.—W. Hodson, Hon. Sec.

SCOTTISH METROPOLITAN (Open Derby) O.S.

Annual meeting held December 24th, Buchanan's Hotel, Edinburgh. Mr. C. R. Drysdale (president) occupied the chair. The financial statement was submitted; this showed we had a most successful season. £14 3s. 4d. was left for prize money purposes, and was divided into equal sums of £1 8s. 4d. per class. Messrs. Whitefield and Lile, auditors, gave their report. It being decided to hold another show on September 30th, 1911, the following office-bearers were elected to carry out the necessary work:—Hon. pres., C. R. Drysdale; hon. vice-pres., W. Thornton; sec. and treas., J. R. Meikle, 51, Lothian-road, Edinburgh; auditors to be elected next meeting; acting committee, J. McLennan, J. Dalgleish, A. Paterson, W. Allan, J. B. Kerr, and A. Stavert. Rules were re-adopted. Classification:—Scotch Fancy 8 classes, and Belgian Fancy 2 classes. Annual subscription fixed at 3s., entitling each member to exhibit ten birds and admission to show. The executive return their thanks to all members for the splendid support given them, and it is their intention to still further increase the popularity of this society by sending out their membership tickets to all Scotch Fancy and Belgian exhibitors in the kingdom. Votes of thanks to the officials brought meeting to a close.—J. R. Meikle, Sec.

NORTH LONDON C.B.A.

Annual general meeting, held headquarters, Public Library, Stoke Newington, Jan. 18th, Mr. T. R. Trower (president) in chair. A good muster of members were present. Balance-sheet submitted, and showed a cash balance of £9 2s. 7d. (being an increase of £3 on the year's working), and assets to value of over £23. The total turnover for year is £75 9s. 8d., against previous year's total £51 15s. 1d. Mr. A. J. A. Marley, one of the auditors, moved the adoption of the balance-sheet, which was carried unanimously. Motion, "That we have novice classes in British section," was thoroughly discussed, but was defeated. A suggestion that we substitute limit classes was discussed, but met with the same fate. Motion, "That we accept lady members, at 2s. 6d. subscription, without nomination fee," carried unanimously. Election of officers: Chairman, G. Mortlock; vice-chairman, S. Williams; committee, Penton, Cawthorne, Ayling, Lacey, Cook, Bell, H. R. Mortlock, and Castell; auditors, Mortlock and Marley; treasurer, H. Sweetman; assist. secretary, P. W. Jeffries; secretary, R. P. Harper. Seven nominations were handed in, which included three ladies. Mr. J. Robson was appointed to judge pair show, Feb. 15th; young stock show, June 17th; annual, Nov. 10th, at the latter in conjunction with another, to be appointed later. Secretary announced he would like to see Borders exhibited at our shows, and in order to encourage these classes offered a cup, to be competed for at the annual show for the best young Border, on condition there were three exhibitors. The five-guinea cup, generously offered by Mr. T. R. Trower, is to be won by the runner-up to Rennie Trophy, on account of the very close results for the trophy at past shows. Mention was made that new show staging would soon be required; decided, to invite tenders for same, capable of holding 500 exhibits, and to leave final decision to committee. Diplomas won during year were distributed. Vote of thanks to Mr. Trower concluded meeting.—R. P. Harper, Hon. Sec.

STRATFORD & E. LONDON F.S.

Members are requested to attend annual general meeting, Workman's Hall, Romford-road, Stratford, E., Feb. 9th, at 8 p.m. sharp, when balance-sheet for 1910 will be presented. Officers, etc., will be elected. New members elected at last meeting; Messrs. G. Stanton, R. J. Cage, W. Tufnell, and Mrs. A. M. B. Stow. Fanciers joining now will be in time for their names and addresses to be inserted in the 1911 Year Book. The Society is open to the United Kingdom, and caters for all sections of the Fancy; yearly sub. is 2s. 6d.—W. Maxey.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting January 23rd, which was badly attended. Mr. Curtis in the chair. Messrs. G. N. Thurley, F. Lingley, A. Crockett, S. Fuller, and A. G. Rodley were elected members. Letters were read from Mrs. Crowder, J. Robson, G. Gardner, F. Tibbs, Mrs. Clark, P. H. Harris, W. Francis, F. W. Thorpe, R. J. Watts, Rev. H. A. Soamee, and J. Abrams. An expression of sympathy was directed to be conveyed to Mr. F. Tebbs at his continued illness. The Reverend H. A. Soames, of Lyncroft, Bromley, Kent, was nominated for membership. Messrs. C. Prior, H. Norman, and A. Silver were nominated as British judges for the young bird show on July 1st (this being an oversight on the secretary's part). An interesting draw of questions then took place.—V. Wynn, Hon. Sec.

LANCASHIRE AND LIZARD F.A

Meeting held Wellington Hotel, Hyde, January 7, members from Macclesfield, Hyde, Denton, Oldham, Glossop, Hazel Grove, and Rawtenstall, attending. Usual business quickly gone through, a pleasant feature of same being the proposal of new members in Messrs. Whipp, Shaw, W. Shaw (Hyde), and A. Wellings (Prescot). The secretary then read an account of the club exhibition at Hyde, which showed a profit of 8s. 8d., this profit being added to the special fund, and divided as per rule. Income, 129 entries, £3 15s. 3d., £1 17s., gate receipts £1 5s. 8d., total £6 7s. 11d. Expenditure: Prize money £3 4s. 6d., specials £2 5s., show expenses, £1 7s. 9d.; left in secretary's hands, 8d.; total £6 17s. 11d. All prize money and specials have been paid out. Chairman also presented extra specials as follows:—Toronto medal, best Lancs., Mr. Wellings, junr.; medal best bird in show, and Mr. E. Fuller's special of a Lancs. for best novice Lancs., Mr. N. Stansfield. Mr. A. Hordern gave a silver cup for most points in novice Lancs. classes, which caused much amusement, and was won by W. Ridgard. Mr. Ollerenshaw won Toronto medal best Liz., and Mr. J. Rukin Ramsden's special—best col.-fed Liz. General meeting at Duke of Edinburgh Hotel, Oldham, in March. —John Rukin, Hon. Sec.

GLASGOW WEST END C.B.C.

First annual general meeting held Clarendon Hall, January 25th ("Burns' Night"), Mr A. Miller presiding over a large attendance. A large amount of business was transacted. Balance-sheet for 1910 adopted with great satisfaction, showing total income of £33 9s. 2d., and a total expenditure of £22 4s. 4d., leaving the handsome balance of £11 4s. 10d. in bank. This, after buying new staging for 350 birds, clearing working expenses, etc., is most encouraging. The Society is composed of some of the best, most experienced, and enthusiastic fanciers in Scotland. Office-bearers elected: Pres., Mr. H. Jamieson; Vice-Pres., Messrs. C Campbell and A. Crawford; Sec. and Treas., Mr. W. Proudfoot, 145, Henderson-st.; Committee, Messrs. J. Thomson, J. Hardie, A. Symington, A. E. Bibby, J. G. Adam, W. Loan, and J. Pinnock; Auditors, Messrs. R. B. Gibb and J. Smith. Decided, to hold table show for breeding pairs Feb. 10th; I hope members will favour us with a large entry. Monthly meeting same date. Date of annual members' show decided on, to be held same Saturday as last year (18th November). We cater for all varieties. Annual sub., 4s.—William Proudfoot, Sec. and Treas.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

Result of voting for officers 1911-12:—Auditors: Messrs. Heath and Robson elected practically unanimously. The post of hon. secretary: It was felt by an influential section of the members that on the present occasion it should devolve upon a provincial member; this, however, could not be brought about, as one or two gentlemen able and willing to carry out the duties of hon. sec. were strongly of opinion that the hon. sec. should be perched on the hub of the universe—London, to wit. It was decided, on further consideration, to nominate once again the late popular hon. sec., Mr. John Tyson. It is the wish of the members, as evidenced by the voting, that this gentleman will be once again induced to grasp the reins of office, and by so doing ensure a spell of prosperity to equal that achieved under his previous administration. Committee: T. Heath 56 votes, J. Robson 53, R. Rhodes 50, G. Ley 48, J. Tyson 45, F. W. Barnett 44, J. S. Clarke 43, R. L. Crisp 40, T. Taylor 38, J. Dobson 37, G. Colledge 37, Rev. G. W. Joyce 35, T. J. King 34, W. E. Greeves 33, H. Mills 33, R. Armstrong 30, J. Brotherton 28, R. B. Tope 27, J. Broad 25, J. Franz 22, T. R. Ind 20. Judges: T. Heath 57 votes, J. Robson 56, R. Rhodes 49, T. Taylor 42, J. S. Clarke 41, J. Tyson 41, J. Dobson 38, Rev. G. W. Joyce 38, W. E. Greeves 37, T. J. King 33, R. B. Tope 28, G. Colledge 24. 60 voting papers sent in.—J. S. Clarke, Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD O.S.

Meeting held headquarters. Unanimously decided that all prospective members could take part in the table show of matched pairs of Canaries for breeding at next meeting, Feb. 7th, and participate in all prizes, 5s., 2s. 6d., 1s. 6d.; no entry fees. Judge, Mr. J. C. Barnes. Buck up, you would-be members, and bring your birds.—John A. T. Woodall.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Annual meeting held Swan Hotel, January 28th, good number of members being present. The club financially is in a very good position, commencing the year with a balance in hand of £14 8s. 7d. Members' show arranged at club house for February 11th. Four new members enrolled. In future it is our intention to patronise other shows, with specials to be competed for by members of the P.R.C.C.—Andrew Percival, Hon. Sec.

ABERDEEN O.S.

Meeting held Trades Hall, Jan. 27th, president Mr. W. Allan in chair. Classification: Alterations and additions were made; three open classes for unflighted Nor. yell. cocks, buff cocks, hens any col; Crested section, four classes yellow crested cock or hen, crested cock or hen any variety, C.B. cocks, C.B. hens, one class for Belgians, and one for Scotch Fancy. In British bird section one class added for hen seedeaters. In the members' section it was arranged to give fixed prize money:—10s. for 8 entries, 1s. entry money. Three well-known judges were elected.—J. Bryson, Sec.

SOUTH MANCHESTER C.B.S.

Annual meeting held Jolly Carter, Ashton Old-road, Jan. 26th, Mr. Willis presiding. Balance-sheet read and passed, showing a balance in hand of £5 7s. 1d. Election of officers:—President, Mr. H. Smith; vice-president, Mr. Willis; committee, Messrs. Berry, Gardner, Chilton, Day, Cleaver; treasurer, Mr. H. Hipsley; assist.-sec., A. Smith; sec., Mr. F. Washbourne; auditors, Messrs. J. Siddall and T. Berry. Arranged to hold stock pair show Feb. 11th, birds to be staged by 2.30; 8 classes: Yorks. cl. yell. cock and buff hen, cl. buff cock and yell. hen, Norwich same as Yorks., Borders and A.O.V. nat. col., muling pairs, hyb. pair, A.O.V. Brit.—A. Smith, Assist.-Sec.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

Washing competition held headquarters, Jan. 24th, before a good muster of members and friends. Messrs. W. Blakey and L. Briggs were appointed judges, and six competitors took part for the society's two money prizes. No time limit being adopted, it gave those present a good opportunity of seeing the birds washed to the best possible advantage, and the efforts of each were appreciated. 1st prize, Mr. R. Wilkinson; 2nd prize, Mr. G. White. The society is still increasing in membership; four new members were proposed during evening. Intending members would do well to attend next meeting, Feb. 7th, when Mr. J. S. Clarkson (Halifax) will give his lecture on the breeding and management of Canaries.—H. Hill, Secretary.

DERBY C.B.S.

Annual meeting held Jan. 28. Balance sheet presented, and showed balance in hand of £3 2s. 9½d., considered very satisfactory. Officers for 1911 elected:—Pres., Mr. F. H. Bainsford; vice-pres., Ald. J. Fletcher, Coun. J. Newton, Messrs. J. Bexson, J. G. Fox, E. Fox, J. B. Griffiths, J. H. Roe, R. Rhodes, W. Stevenson, R. Theaker; chairman, Mr. W. H. Eley; vice-chairman, Mr. J. H. Sharman; treasurer, Mr. W. Stevens; committee, Messrs. A. Dolman, T. W. Evans, G. Colledge, J. Watts, H. Ramsey, E. C. Johnson, R. Hodgkinson, J. H. Drakeley, J. Pegg, A. Hicking; auditors, Messrs. Wharam and Bamsey; secretary, Mr. W. Stevens. It having been pointed out to us that our open show dates would fall on the same day as Leicester Hand-in-Hand Society (who usually held theirs on those dates), and that the new Sheffield Club had chosen those particular dates, we decided to alter our date and hold our show December 2nd and 4th, as we did not wish in any way to mar the success of any show if we can help it, but it will be impossible to alter it again. Messrs. H. Strange and Thomas proposed for membership.—W. Stevens, Secretary.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Meeting held Jan. 5th. Vote of condolence passed to Mr. Currah, our chairman, on the death of his mother-in-law. Members listened to a very pleasing address from the vice-chairman, Mr. J. Shepherd. Commencing his life as a fancier, with a nest of Sparrows (which had to be removed during building operations near his home at Dipton) he traced the growth of his love for birds in various towns, until he finally settled down in Newcastle near his birthplace. In each city birds and birdy men attracted him and many anecdotes he related of his experiences, chief of them all being his forcast of the result of a certain young lady's exhibits. In this case he said they would both win, and being right, there was nothing for the young lady to do but follow his advice always, which she had done faithfully to the present day, and it is difficult to know whether Mr. or Mrs. Shepherd is the keener bird lover. A vote of thanks was given Mr. Shepherd. Members' prize money paid out. Decided, to hold a social for which a sub-committee was formed to make arrangements; date [illegible] Show date fixed for October 20 and 21.—T. C. Crawhall, Hon. Secretary.

CODNOR PARK AND DIST. C.B.S

Meeting and washing exhibition held January 28th, club-room, Portland Arms. A good number of members and friends turned up to hear Mr. Admitt lecture on "Washing Birds," also to see him put the birds through their tubbing, which was done with much ease and clever handling, that showed the lecturer had washed many in his time. The lecturer uses three hasins, two camel hair brushes, and a sponge to finish the birds off with. He dealt fully with how to handle birds, and the use of brushes. He put three Canaries and one Goldfinch through the wash. The drying cage used was one with tank for boiling water, wire front and glass back. Re the drying cage, all details were explained so that it was impossible for the youngest member not to be able to understand. Whilst birds were drying we got on with our business. Proposed and carried that as many members as can get to Eastwood (Notts), on February 4th, go to a meeting called to form a Cage Bird society, to try and get the Eastwood fanciers to amalgamate with us, and make one good society. We are willing to hold meetings alternately at Eastwood and Codnor Park. Also proposed to pay Secretary for his services for the coming year, seeing our membership is increasing at every meeting. Balance sheet for 1910 showed a substantial balance on the right side. Arranged to hold a stock pair show February 11th: Canaries, Mules, and Hybrid pairs; also classes for novices; birds to be staged by 6.30 p.m. Will members please bear in mind and bring birds in good time? All fanciers are invited, admission free.—J. H. Mitchell, Sec.

The Testing of Exhibition Birds.

A GLASGOW SOCIETY CAST IN DAMAGES.

Judge's Amazing Explanation: "Beautifying" a First Prize Goldfinch

An action against the City of Glasgow Ornithological Association and Alexander MacDonald, Crow-road, Partick, Glasgow, secretary and treasurer, was brought before Sheriff Mackenzie, at the Glasgow Small Debt Court, by Alexander Dalling, Bank Clerk, Little Boghead, Bathgate, for £10 10s., for loss and damage sustained by the pursuer on account of his Foreign Goldfinch having been injured by the fault of the defender, or their officials, so as to render it unfit for further show purposes. The case was heard to-day (Tuesday) after an adjournment from a fortnight ago, and after evidence from both sides, Sheriff Mackenzie awarded pursuer £2 15s. damages and expenses.

The Terms of the Action.

The defenders held their 57th annual show and competition at the Drill Hall, 138, Stirling-road, Glasgow, on 21st and 22nd October, 1910. The pursuer duly entered on terms of the rules in the Foreign Goldfinch class. While the birds in this class were being judged, the judge and other officials of the defenders removed the pursuer's bird to the secretary's office, and there applied some chemical to the head of the bird, with the view of ascertainng whether the bird had been artificially coloured to improve its appearance. While the said test was being carried out, the chemical used injured the eye of the said bird, and, consequently, the bird is no longer available for showing purposes. The said judge and officials had no right to apply any chemical test to the said bird. In any event, the test was applied in a negligent and careless manner, and without proper precautions being taken to prevent the bird being injured. The said bird was awarded 1st prize in its class. Such were the terms of the action.

An End to Its Winning.

The pursuer, Mr. Dalling, gave evidence that his bird was in perfect condition before going to the show, and after judging the bird was suffering pain owing to the treatment received at the test for stain. Nothing had been taken from the bird during test, and the judge awarded it first prize. Pursuer contended that he lost a full season's showing of the bird, owing to the eye feathers being burned out, thereby throwing the bird out of show condition, and possibly damaging it for all time. The pursuer complained of the insolence he received when he made complaint to the officials, and in consequence of damage to bird he placed the matter in his agent's hands.

Mr. Wm. Sharp (Bathgate) spoke to the bird's good condition before the show, and on the Saturday of the show he saw the bird in evident pain, owing to the chemical used. He thought it quite possible for the bird to have gained further honours, and quite worth the full catalogue price (£4 4s. 4d.), at which it was entered at the show.

Mr. Andrew Muir (Bird Dealer, Saltmarket, Glasgow) saw the test taking place before several committee men. He considered the bird a good one. Asked as to what chemical had been used, he admitted that he did not know. On being asked if glycerine and water had been used, he laughingly said he could not say.

Said One Judge to the Other.

Mr. R. Bald (Bathgate), who judged the show along with Mr. Peter Pettigrew, saw the bird tested, but advised Mr. Pettigrew, who tested the bird, not to do so, as he might injure the bird. He (Mr. Bald) would hesitate to test a bird so near the eye. He never heard of glycerine and water being used as a test to take off any colouring matter put on. He personally used liquid potash. He admitted that the bird was still bare of feathers around the eye, and thought something more powerful than glycerine had caused the bareness.

Mr. Jas. Livingstone (Bathgate) gave evidence as to the condition of the bird before and after the show. On the Saturday at the show, the bird appeared to have been tampered with, and was sufferng great pain. He was about to call in the R.S.P.C.A. people, owing to the mischief that had been done, and was convinced something stronger than glycerine had been used. He said no chemical should be used without the consent of the owner. He was of opinion that the bird was able to have won 13 first prizes. Some people, he said, were very fond of testing.

Mr. T. Todd (Partick) gave evidence as to seeing the test, and so far as he knew, it was a serious test—not a mock test. He could not say what had been used, but the bird after testing was evidently in pain, and its value considerably lessened.

Mr. T. Bell (Bo'ness) said he would have bought the bird had it not been for its condition on the Saturday of the show. It was suffering pain.

"A Mock Test."

Mr. Peter Pettigrew, who judged and tested the bird, said the bird in the court was not the same bird, or else it had gone through some process. (Laughter.) He said he used glycerine and water when testing the bird.

The Sheriff: Why glycerine? Would that take off colouring?

Mr. Pettigrew: I put on the glycerine to make it look nicer.

The Sheriff: What right had you, as judge, to make any specimen look nicer.

Mr. Pettigrew then said he used the glycerine to take off the colouring matter.

The Sheriff: But why glycerine? Is it a solvent?

Mr. Pettigrew said he really had gone through a mock test, just to see how far his maligners would go.

The Sheriff: I really do not understand you.

Questioned as to this mock test, Mr. Pettigrew admitted that along with Mr. Connelly and Mr. Adams he pre-arranged to hold a mock test, and the liquid he used was glycerine and water. What influenced him in doing so was just to test how far his maligners would go. Mr. Pettigrew admitted that the bird was outstanding—but not valuable.

Asked if he once paid money to some Coldstream fanciers, owing to an error of his in the testing of their birds, Mr. Pettigrew went to some length in explanation.

Mr. J. H. Adam (Glasgow) said he was a judge and reporter. He saw the bird after the test, and it appeared as if it had been washing.

Mr. Connelly said he saw the bird, and thought it had only been washing. He heard that glycerine and water had been used. Along with Mr. Peter Pettigrew, he arranged that a mock test should be carried out.

The Sheriff: Are you a member of committee?

Mr. Connelly: No.

The Sheriff: What right had you to arrange a mock test?

Mr. Connelly: Fanciers had a spite against Mr. Pettigrew, therefore a mock trial was arranged.

Mr. Marlin (vice-president) said he saw nothing wrong with Dalling's bird. He spoke to Dalling half an hour before leaving the show. He was present when the test was made, but could not say what was used. He never heard of glycerine being used to take off colour. He usually used benzine, and would not think of using glycerine.

Mr. Black (president) said officially he did not hear complaint made at the show, and he quoted a rule of the Association, showing that the Association were entirely free in the matter. But the Pursuer's Agent, on raising the point had the concurrence of the Sheriff that the rule was not material.

Mr. MacDonald (Secretary) admitted he saw the test taking place, but was too busy to pry into the matter. He had had no intimation of the injury until after the show.

Another witness was called for the defence, and caused much merriment by his answers.

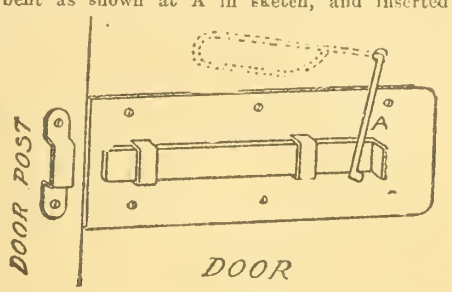
Mr. McLeod Sinclair (Bathgate), agent for pursuer, spoke at length, submitting he had established his case.

Mr. Cameron (Glasgow) agent for defenders, followed, and contended that pursuer had failed to establish responsibility, so far as the Association was concerned.

A Verdict for Plaintiff.

The Sheriff, on summing up, said that negligence and the carelessness of a chemical was, it was quite evident, the cause of the damage to the bird's eye and feather, and on the evidence it was quite established that the bird was a good specimen. Otherwise, it would not have gained first prize in such a strong class. Regarding the mock trial, he thought no one was entitled to "beautify" a bird in such a fashion as Mr. Pettigrew tried to make out he had endeavoured to do, and taking everything into consideration, the damages would be £2 15s. and costs.

HASTINGS UNITED C.B.S.



Annual meeting held Royal Oak Hotel, January 19th, Mr J. Stevens presided. Letters were read from members unable to be present through ill-health. The Secretary read the statement of accounts, the treasurer being away through illness. Income for year, £62 5s. 2d., expenditure £60 1s. 4d., leaving a balance in hand of £2 3s. 10d. The report stated that the year had been an unfortunate one. The Society's greatest loss was the death of the President, E. E. Clark, Esq., who had always taken so much interest in the society, and whose place they had that evening to fill. Mr. W. Ellis, winner of Society's silver challenge cup for the third time, it now became his own property. The annual open show resulted in a loss owing to the poor support received from outside. The best shows had been the five evening shows, which had been well supported. Balance sheet and report were adopted. Chairman said he did not think they had much to grumble at, as owing to the generosity of the winning member, they were able to show a balance on the right side. Officers for 1911 elected: Rev. J. Paterson, President, subject to his approval; Vice-Presidents re-elected en bloc, with the addition of Councillor E. H. Harden; Treasurer, Mr. T. G. Coombs; Auditor, Mr. W. Ellis; the committee re-elected. The election of Hon. Sec. was not so easily disposed of. Mr. A. E. Godden, present Hon. Sec., said he was unable to take the office this year, his business taking up so much of his time. No member present being willing to fill it, after much discussion the Chairman suggested applying to the Labour Exchange for one. Decided, to hold general meeting February 15th to elect hon. secretary, Mr. Godden consenting to remain secretary pro tem. Decided, to open membership to Kent and Sussex in place of the 20-mile radius. A vote of thanks to Secretary and Chairman concluded meeting.—A. E. Godden, Hon. Sec.

Illustrated Ideas

No. 480.
An Aviary Door Fastener.

Sent by Mr. W. Little, Tullie Street, Warwick Road, Carlisle.

The sketch is of a fastener suitable for an aviary door. It can be obtained of any ironmonger. It is placed on the inside of the door and opened from the outside by means of a key made from a piece of strong iron wire bent as shown at A in sketch, and inserted through a hole bored in the door a little above the fastener. The door can be readily opened and closed with this key. On entering the aviary the door can be secured by this catch, thus doing away with an additional fastener, which is necessary when a lock is fitted that can only be worked from outside. By twisting the key right round, the bolt can be shot or drawn as required.—W. Little.

No. 481.
A Useful Seed Scoop.

Sent by Mr. A. J. Shipton, 71, Cloudesdale Road, Balham, London

I enclose a sketch of a very useful scoop for taking seed out of the tins and putting into the pots or hoppers. All is required is: I get a twopenny spice tin; cut it into shape seen in sketch; and turn the edges of the part I cut down and hammer down neatly. Larger ones of the same can be used for sand, etc. They look very neat, and are most useful —A. J. Shipton.

FISHGUARD (Pemb.).

This now well-known port held its first show on January 25th. Eight classes were put on for cage birds, open to the Counties of Pembroke, Cardigan, and Carmarthen, and drew 40 entries, which Mr. Hodges judged. The show was in the Temperance Hall, a suitable place, nice and warm, and well lighted. There was a good attendance, and the interest taken in the event all round should encourage the committee to greater efforts in the future. Mr. J. W. Rogers acted as hon. sec., and he was ably backed up by a good working committee.

NORTHERN YORKSHIRE C.C.

Annual general meeting, held Headquarters, 25th Jan., Mr. J. Curry (chairman) presiding. Secretary reported that owing to cups and medals not having come to hand, he was unable to present the balance sheet. Mr. J. Curry expressed a desire to be relieved of the duties of chairman, and Mr. T. C. Crawhall also resigned position of secretary. The resignations were accepted with regret and hearty votes of thanks were passed to both. Following officials elected: President, G. W. Cuthbertson, Esq.; vice-president, Mrs. R. Irwin Dees, W. J. Taylor, Esq., T. Pearce, Esq., Dr. C. D. O'Neal, J. Curry, Esq.; chairman, Mr. T. C. Crawhall; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Shepherd; committee, Messrs. W. Cockburn, J. Davison, D. E. Kent, J. Harrison, W. CHELTENHAM C.B.S.

Annual pair show held January 21st, headquarters, Sydney Arms, and it proved a great success, as it was generally voted the best the society has ever held, both as regards quantity and quality. A good deal of interest was evinced, many members and visitors putting in an appearance; and we are pleased to be able to state that this society is now very strong numerically and full of vitality. Messrs. Treasure and Pounsett, the hon. sec. and show manager respectively, had all the arrangements perfect and the exhibits nicely staged. The silver medal for most points gained by a novice was won by Mr. Price. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards.

CITY AND SUBURBAN.

That ever-progressive metropolitan society, the City and Suburban A.C.B., held a very successful combined show of matched pairs, British and Foreign birds, on Jan. 28th, at headquarters, the Church Institute, Paddington Street, W. The handsome showroom was nicely filled with high quality birds, and an enjoyable time was spent by the members and visitors. Mr. V. Wynn, the painstaking hon. secretary, supervised the arrangements in his usual admirable manner, and was afforded excellent assistance by Messrs. Curtis, Dickinson, Offord, Sanders, Pooley, Page, and other willing members. The matched pairs of Canaries made a fine display; the specials for best pairs went to A. W. Curtis (champion), F. Knight (amat.), Pickard (nov.), and Mrs. Thynne (ladies). The Hybrid pairs were extremely interesting, and the novice members made a grand showing. Spl. for best pair fell to Mr. C. Prior, with a fine British Goldie and hen Siskin. The British birds were a grand lot, the struggle for honours in this section being very keen between Mrs. Weston and Messrs. C. Prior (sp. for most points), P. H. Harris (spl. best bird, with his Hawfinch), Botting, Page, Grahame, Curry, Clements, Offord, Pickard, Thrower, Wynn, and others, who staged some fine exhibits. The Foreign section was distinguished by a simply charming Purple Sugar Bird, beautifully staged by the Hon. Mrs. Bourke, which won the spl. for best lady's bird. The judge was Mr. J. Robson.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, 'Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-ides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

MANY PEOPLE FIGHT.

Many people fight shy of a dealer's advt., thinking they will not get value for their money. No doubt most of them have a cause for their prejudice, but before condemning all, I ask those people who have previously been disappointed, to give me one trial, as I send everything I sell on approval at my own risk; they cannot possibly lose a penny by doing so. I have a grand lot of genuine Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, all well caged, steady, and in song, at 2/-, 3/-, 4/-, and 5/- each; splendid lot guaranteed cage moulted cocks, finger tame and in full song 5/-; twice cage moulted white-legged cock, warranted bred mules last season, 7/6; splendid lot of finger tame Siberian cock Goldfinches in full song, 6/- each; these Siberians have been in my own aviaries since November last, and are much stronger and more vigorous than freshly imported birds; cock Goldfinch Mules, full song, day and gaslight, 6/- and 7/6 each; handsome lot of country caught cock brown Linnets, all guaranteed nut brown backs and red breasts, 1/- each; three 2/-, six 3/6, twelve 6/-; specially selected cocks, guaranteed in song, 1/6 and 2/- each; exhibition specimens, 2/6 each; splendid lot cock Bullfinches 2/- and 2/6 each; Siberian cock Bullfinches, the only genuine Siberians on the market, 5/- and 6/- each; few guaranteed genuine hand-reared German hen Bullfinches, finger tame, and ideal birds for hybridising, 5/- each; splendid lot mealy Redpolls, very large birds, 1/- each, three 2/-, six 3/6; selected red-breasted cocks for breeding, 1/6, 2/- and 2/6 each; Lesser Redpoll cocks, 8d. each, three 1/6; cock Chaffinches 8d. each, three 1/6; cock Bramblefinches 1/- each, three 2/-; cock Twites 1/- each, three 2/-; cock Greenfinches 6d. each, three 1/-; exceptionally handsome lot cock Skylarks, all big, bold, plump birds, not half hens or skeletons, 8d. each, three 1/6; selected cocks, very steady and in good song, 1/6, 2/- and 2/6 each; Linnet, Goldfinch, Bullfinch or Lark cages, 6d. each, six 2/6, twelve 4/6; clap nets, 3 yards long, 5½ feet deep, 4 feet fly, 4/- pair; ditto, 4 yds. 5/-, 5 yds. 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7 yds. 8/-, 8 yds. 9/-, 9 yds. 10/-, 10 yds. 11/- per pair; all fitted complete with pegs, poles, lines, etc., ready for immediate use; real Japanese bird lime, strongest lime ever made, retains all its keenness in wind and rain, ½lb. 6d., ¼lb. 10d., 1lb. 1/6; sample 3d., post free; self-acting spring net traps, 24 by 18 inches, 1/- each, ditto 18 by 14, 9d. each; by far largest and most effective traps on the market, used by all leading Softbill catchers; self-setting and self-acting trap cages, guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each. Everything required by catchers always in stock; send stamp for full list of catchers' appliances; it will save you pounds. See following: Gt. Horton, Bradford. Feb. 7.—Sir,—Goldfinch to hand to-day, and was singing in less than two hours; he is a beauty and I am well satisfied.—Yours, S. Angus." "117, Hartshill Road, Stoke, Jan. 20. Sir,—Exhibition Goldfinch arrived safe, highly pleased with him. Record time, under 10 hours from time of posting order till he had a bath in my kitchen.—Yours, G. Couper." "42, Fuller Street, Kettering. Jan. 31. Sir,—Please send 1 birdlime. The last from you was grand stuff, and very clean. I have never used better, and am a catcher with above 30 years' experience.—Yours, H. Panther." "128, Cumnonloch, Auchinleck. Jan. 30. Sir,—Birds arrived safely and am well pleased with same. I have had three lots from you before, and thank you for promptness. I have had a number of Goldfinches, but one from you excels all I ever had of that species. I have shown him to fanciers here, and all are pleased with him. I also informed them how honest you had been in replacing Linnet for me which died. I can assure you that my stock obtained from you make a good advertisement for you.—Yours, E. Dunsmuir." Don't forget everything is guaranteed exactly as described and sent on approval at my risk on rules of "Cage Birds," or on receipt of cash, and money promptly refunded if every satisfaction not given. To avoid disappointment place your orders with Britain's premier bird dealer, and note only name and address:

YOU MUST ADMIT

that unless my Rollers were all that I claim for them publicity would do me harm instead of good. I have repeatedly said in this and other papers that my Leipzig Rollers are far better value than any other Rollers on the market, and I want every intending purchaser to test the truth of this by having one on a week's trial, and one from elsewhere on similar terms; test them side by side, and if mine is not better value at a lower price, return it and back comes all your money. I now have a tremendous stock of pure Leipzig Rollers, all in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, waterbubble runs, piccolo trill, bell, harp and gong notes, and jug-jug of Nightingale; price 7/6 and 8/6 each; special bandmasters, which excel in the hollow bell, hollow and bass rolls, 10/- and 12/6 each. Leipzig Roller hens, 2/6 each, 4/6 couple. I also have a limited quantity of genuine glucke bred contest Rollers in full song, and guaranteed fit for immediate contest singing, price 15/- and 20/- each; hens, guaranteed same strain, 3/6 each. These contest Rollers are of purest blood Germany can boast of, and are "the thing" for connoisseurs. Roller singing cabinet cages, with loose fronts and folding doors, 2/6 and 3/6 each; ordinary singing box cages, 1/6, 1/9, 2/- each. Following letters are entirely unsolicited, and never before been published: "2, Ivy Cottages, Horace-st., Boston, January 28th.—Sir,—It affords me genuine pleasure to give you another order for birds. The Roller you sent few weeks ago continues to give entire satisfaction. Please send on following birds.—Yours, Chas. Long." "Patrick-st., Kilkenny, Jan. 28th.—Sir,—Received Cauary safe. He is a beauty, and sang same day. I am very thankful to you for sending such a nice bird.—Yours, M. Corish." "81, Devonshire-st., Sunderland, Jan. 29th.—Sir,—Birds safely to hand. Please accept many thanks for straightforwardness and promptness. If others leave selection to you the same as I did I am sure they will get every satisfaction. I am really disgusted with some I have got (from elsewhere).—Yours, J. Dodd." "39, Adam-st., Abertillery, Jan. 27th.—Sir,—Received two Leipzig Rollers safe, and am quite satisfied with them.—Yours, A. Padfield." "489, Bolton-rd., Darwen, Jan. 27th.—Sir,—Roller arrived safe, and after week's trial I am quite satisfied with him. Thanking you for prompt attention, yours, R. Shillitoe." "Healey, Stocksfield, Jan. 26th.—Sir.—Received both birds all right, and am very pleased with them. This is second lot I have had from you, and you have given every satisfaction.—Yours, Alex. Findley." "66, Nevill-st., Llanelly., Jan. 26th.—Sir,—Please send following. The Roller you sent in November gives every satisfaction, and is equal to those in town at three times the price.—Yours, J. Moremon." "62, Walves, Totlington, near Bury, Jan. 24th.—Sir,—Bandmaster I received last week is doing nicely, and am thoroughly satisfied. Thanking you for fair transaction, yours, W. Chadwick." "Upper Princes-st., Ballymena, Jan. 24th.—Sir,—I must thauk you for Canary; he is a stormer, and no mistake. I am more than pleased with him. He sang five minutes after being put in cage. He is best I ever had, and I have had some good ones in my time, but he beats them all.—Yours, A. McLean." "215, Moukswood, Newtongrange, Scotland, Jan. 23rd.—Sir,—Received birds safe. The cock is a lovely singer, and well worth money. I have two others I bought this year, but they are no class beside yours.—Yours, Jas. Hutchinson." "122, Church-st., Golbourne, Jan. 20th.—Sir,—Received Roller with thanks, and am very pleased with it. He was well packed. I have had a friend or two in to listen to him, and they say he is a storming singer.—Yours, David Hayes." "Hitchin, Jan. 20th.—Sir,—Received Roller safe, and am quite satisfied. He started singing soon as unpacked.—Yours, C. Common." Please note—Every Canary is safely and warmly packed (no matter how cold the weather) in special travelling cages, with food and water, and sent on full week's approval at my risk, either on receipt of cash or deposit system of "Cage Birds," and unless bird gives every satisfaction and realises your every expectation it has only to be returned and the whole of your money is promptly refunded. Every genuine Leipzig Roller is stamped on wing "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am the only importer of this strain, no other man can sell them, unless he first purchases from me. All are guaranteed to sing twenty hours in each twenty-four, day or gaslight, so send to the importer if you want best value obtainable.

BUY DIRECT OF

breeder and trainer. Finest strain of Rollers in the country; trained to perfection, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- upwards; hens, 2/6, two for 4/6; cash or deposit: F. Cartwright, 15, Farfield, Kidderminster. Established 1888.

JUST YOU COME

Come and see for yourself who has the largest and best collection of Canaries in England. I use no bluff. I have the rooms and the birds. In fact, I occupy the largest business premises in the town. My Roller Canaries are trained and kept in rooms to themselves, far away from all other birds, thus hearing and knowing nothing but the pure Roller song. I can show you absolutely the best collection of Yorkshires, Norwich, Borders, and Rollers it has ever been your privilege to see, and my prices are within the reach of all. I have no fancy prices; every bird sent out guaranteed the best possible value for money, and you have the birds seven days on approval at my risk, for my one desire is that every customer shall be fully satisfied. If you cannot come and select birds for yourself, allow me to send your requirements, carriage paid to your door. I will give your order every personal attention. Here are a few of the letters received this week (not a lot of old, trumped-up rubbish); the originals, with thousands of others, all open for your inspection. Note the dates:—"28/1/11. Malpas-st., Cwmbran,—Received bird safe, and he is a lovely songster. I have given him a fair trial, and will most certainly recommend you to my friends. Thanking you for your straightforward dealing, W. Haywood." "27/1/11. Jamaica Cottage, Malvern,—Received Roller; he is a beauty; started to sing half-hour after arrival. I am quite satisfied.—G. Brown." 22/1/11. Norton-rd., Petsall.—I acknowledge safe arrival in good condition of two Rollers. I am well satisfied with them.—T. Newton." "28/1/11. 64, Kennedy Villas, Dublin.—Received Roller; am very pleased with him; he commenced singing next day. Thanks for your straightforward dealings.—S. Donnilly." 27/1/11. 30, Lime-rd., Bedminster.—Received Rollers in pink of condition, and find I have got good value for money.—S. Dodden." 23/1/11. 10, Upper Lime-st., Gorseinon.—Received Roller safe and sound; am very pleased with it; commenced singing as soon as unpacked. Thanking you for the straightforward manner in which you dealt with me. I will recommend you to all my friends.—W. Phillbeys." I could fill this page with such letters as above received this month. Send a post eard for my illustrated price list. My stock of Rollers is second to none. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Roller cocks, in full song by day and artificial light, with long waterbubble runs, barp, bell, and gong notes, deep rolls, bass rolls, etc., 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- each; pure Roller hens, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6. If you want a real noisy songster, a genuine workingman's friend, I have them. Hartz cocks, in full loud free song by day and gaslight, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3 each; match pairs, for breeding songsters, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; when scanning below prices bear in mind I supply birds to win, and you do the winning. Just call and inspect my stock, and see the thousands of unsolicited testimonials from delighted customers. Smart, long, typical Yorkshire cocks, feathers like wax, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, standard length and on full song; splendid lengthy hens, full of quality, 3/-, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each; pairs, matched to breed winners, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; pairs in clears, ticked, variegated, greens, etc. Large cobby Norwich, astounding value; birds that will satisfy the most sceptical buyer. Cocks of the right quality, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; thick-set cobby hens, 3/-, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; accurately matched pairs, to breed winners, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; Yorkshire, Norwich and Hartz songsters, cocks, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6; neat travelling cages, 3d. each; price list free; all Canaries carriage paid; on seven days' approval: Miss E. L. Storey, Crowle, via Doncaster.

Remember I Invite YOU

To come on any day but Sunday, and inspect my stock. I have a magnificent collection, including nearly all varieties of Canaries or Mules.

If you cannot come, and are in want of any variety of Canary or Mule, or any requisite for the bird room or aviary, send a post card for my free Illustrated Catalogue, and remember I guarantee to give full and complete satisfaction.

I guarantee safe delivery, and send every bird on 7 days' approval, at my risk.

For VALUE in Stock or Exhibition birds I defy all Competition.

During the season I have supplied Yorkshires and Norwich that have won for my customers in keenest competition at all the leading shows. I have bred some of the best, including both Norwich and Yorkshires, that have secured premier honours at the Crystal Palace Show, 1911. My customers have bred many winners from stock birds supplied by me. Letters proving this can be seen at any time. They are filed for inspection along with hundreds of other testimonials for every visitor to see.

I am now in a position to supply stock or exhibition birds in Yorkshires or Norwich that cannot be equalled for price and quality. This is a bold statement, but can be easily tested by sending for one or more birds on approval, and comparing with all others. I offer 7 or 10 days' approval; if not satisfied I guarantee to return cash in full and pay carriage back. I guarantee pairs to be unrelated, and bred from pure winning strains. Every bird sent at my risk absolutely, and safe delivery guaranteed.

The following are a few prices, but I invite you to send a P.C. for my free illustrated catalogue, containing full particulars and advice to breeders, etc., etc., before placing your orders.

Yorkshire cocks, grand birds, good length, and full of quality, and on full song, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- each, upwards. Smart, racy, upstanding hens, full of "breed," 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- upwards.

Properly matched pairs, guaranteed unrelated, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- upwards. In Clears, Ticked, Greens, or Variegated.

Norwich, some grand cobby birds, with good substance and short tails and flights, bred from the best. Cocks, same price as Yorkshires. Hens, Buffs, from 3/- each; yellows from 5/- each upwards. A few grand stock birds, from my own "John Bull" strain. Write particulars.

The following are now in stock, and ready for immediate disposal:—

Yorkshires, Norwich, Greens, Cinnamons, Crests, Crest-breds, Scotch Fancies, Border Fancies, Mules, St. Andreasberg, or pure Seifert Rollers (in full, Rolling song), Siberian Goldfinches (including a few that can win), grand Sib hens, for Muling, etc., etc.

If you want a winner, or good stock birds, likely to breed winners, all I ask is that you will send me particulars, and let me send you birds on approval, and compare all others.

Easy payments arranged, if necessary, with any bona-fide fancier. Full particulars in my catalogue.

PARRY'S

high-class Yorkshires; having selected my own breeding stock, am prepared to sell about 50 real good birds at very low price; satisfaction guaranteed: Oak Bank, Rhos, Ruabon.

TRY EDMONDSON & SON

for Yorkshires, Canaries, to breed own winners; having bred and sold winners to leading exhibitors in Yorkshire, we are prepared to offer 50 pairs of Yorkshires, own breeding, from 10/6 to 30/- per pair; odd cocks or hens from 5/- to 30/-; on approval, cash or deposit; stamp particulars: Granville Aviaries, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

POWICK'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES, the same strain as the winners at all the leading shows; guaranteed the best and cheapest obtainable; cocks, 7/6, 10/6; sure winners, 15/6; hens, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6 each; 10/6, 15/6, and 20/- per pair; no rubbish; at my risk, ten days' approval: Wm. Powick, Eastfield House, Dewsbury.

have a wide world's reputation; nothing but the best kept, and bred by me; this stud has achieved more successes at home and abroad than any other in existence. See our wins in Australia last show season, as well as at home at all shows of note, as Halliday and Chittenden. I have some splendid pairs for disposal at 15/- to 50/-; single cocks or hens, 6/-, 10/-, 15/-, to 50/- each, in clears, ticks, or variegated, yellows or buffs, all on approval: 108, Bolton Hall-rd., Bolton Woods, Bradford.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

On account of continued illness, am reluctantly compelled to sell practically my whole stock of Yorkshires (about 300), inluding past season's breeders, in all varieties excepting whole Greens; to induce early sales, will allow all purchasers a reduction of 20 per cent. from current list prices, which will be forwarded free on receipt of postcard addressed to Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire. See breeder's card.

OWING TO REMOVAL

Most of my well-known stock will have to be sold from 15/- per pair; clears, Cinnamon, and green marked; write early to avoid disappointment.

W. RICHMOND, 16, Mayfield Grove, HARROGATE.

J. WILCOCK.

Not having had time for exhibiting this season, I have some real topping Yorkshires for sale, all sent on three days' approval: The Fountain Inn, Ecclesbill, near Bradford, Yorkshire.

IT'S NOT NEW,

but the old reliable firm that has given the uttermost satisfaction to thousands of customers, who always send their repeat orders, and recommend their friends to Miss Storey, the best, most reliable, and cheapest house for Canaries in the world. Read a few of the thousands of unsolicited testimonials I am continually receiving:—"28/1/11.—Received bird all right. Thanking you for your honest way of dealing with me. I shall always send to you.—G. Brocklebank." "21/1/11.—10, Victoria-st., Govau, Scotland.—Received bird; he pleases me splendidly. I will send you another order.—S. Stevenson." "27/1/11.—97, Chester-rd., Flint.—The birds give every satisfaction. I want more birds, and will most certainly send to you.—J. George." "26/1/1911.—15, Sandback, Sheffield.—Thank you for the pair of Norwich you sent me, which were received quite safe. They are a pair of nice birds, and I thank you for your selection.—H. Anson." "27/1/11.—84, Augustin-rd., Southsea.—The pair of Norwich arrived safely, in good condition. I am quite satisfied with them.—J. Harding." Call and inspect my stock. You will be convinced. I have the best pure-bred Yorkshires, that cannot be beaten for type, size, and quality; feathers like wax. SHACKLETON'S YORKS.

still lead the way; my record of successes with birds of my own breeding during the last 10 years is miles ahead of anything accomplished by any other exhibitor or firm with this variety; see reports of all leading shows, which will confirm the above facts; birds of the finest type and quality the world can produce, either for show or stock; prices reasonable; stamp for particulars: W. H. Shackleton, Melrose House, Lytton-rd., Girlington, Bradford.

SUTCLIFFE & SON.

We have bred and sold more winners in marked birds than any other fancier, also won the 10 guinea cup for Green marked Yorkshires this season, and winning the Cinnamon marked championship for 9 years, also special for best bird in show, with clear birds. This is sure proof of the quality of our stock, including highest honours at the Crystal Palace; we have a few extra good show and stock birds for sale, price from 15/- to 60/- a pair; state wants; three days' approval; inspection invited: 1, Kitson Street, and 1, Back Kitson-st., Cragg-rd., Windhill, Shipley, Yorkshire.

PURE YORKSHIRES,

direct from strains which won at Crystal Palace this last 20 years, including Mr. Bates', Mr. Binns', Mr. Blackhurst's, all big winners up to 1910. I have supplied scores of winners and can do so yet, not exhibiting this variety myself; some grand yellows and buff cocks, 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/- each; hens, yellows or buffs, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-; matched pairs to breed winners, 12/-, 15/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/-, 25/- pair; any on approval; full guarantee given; breeder 30 years this address: Sandiford, Canary Breeder, Preston, Lancs.

SAMUEL DEAN,

6, Ash Mount, Grent Horton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

Who is the Champion IN YORKSHIRES, 1910-11?

Read below, and judge for yourself. With 153 entries I have won 61 1sts, 23 2nds, 20 3rds, 15 4ths, 24 spls., making a grand total of 143 prizes. I have also won in the very keenest competition shows; have won Yorkshire Union 30-guinea challenge trophy, which makes it twice in succession, also Naylor Challenge Trophy, also twice in succession, and Ramsden 6-guinea cup, which makes this twice in succession, and now becomes my own property; also Y.C.C. 7-guinea challenge trophy, and the cinnamon marked competition prize for the man who has bred his own winners. Have also won three gold medals, few cage birds prizes, and colour food prizes too numerous to mention, and last, but not least, with 8 entries at 1911 Palace Show, capturing 5 1sts, 1 2nd, 1 3rd, 1 vhc, and championship diploma best cinnamon marked birds. I think this will convince you that I hold the plums in the Yorkshire Fancy. Have still a few 20/- pairs and some pairs extra good at very reasonable prices; stamp particulars: Bailey, South View-ter., Sandy-lane, Allerton, Bradford.

The following are merely a few examples of unsolicited - - - opinions received out of many hundreds since the last appeared. These many hundreds with official post-marks can be seen at my office.

Know where to deal now.

Girvan, Feb. 2, 1911.—Birds arrived safe; good value for money. No approval needed. Know where to deal now.—D. Meechan to W. Rudd.

Such Value is Exceptional.

29, Hill-st., Kilmarnock, Jan. 26, 1911.—Crested hen arrived to-day. Accept my thanks for same. Such value is exceptional.—W.R. to W. Rudd.

Prompt and Careful Attention.

Colwyn Bay, Feb. 4, 1911.—The Canary sent me on the 30th ult. After 4 days' trial I am much pleased with it. It sings very nicely. Thanking you for your prompt and careful attention.—J. Pilling to W. Rudd.

Don't believe such value can be got elsewhere.

Abbotstown, Feb. 1, 1911.—I received the hen quite safe, and I am more than pleased with her. She is a splendid bird, and I don't believe such value for the money can be got elsewhere.—E. Casey to W. Rudd.

Thanks for trouble taken.

A pleasure—not trouble, to me in studying customers' interests.—W.R. 12, Dudley Gardens, West Ealing, London, Jan. 23, 1911.—I beg to inform you that I received the Yorkshire hen last Thursday quite safe. I must say that I am pleased with her, and must thank you very much for the trouble you have taken on my behalf.—H. Lock to W. Rudd.

The merest novice, etc.

14, Drift-yard, Parton, near Whitehaven, Feb. 1, 1911.—The birds arrived in grand condition. It was proof of your smart business way of executing orders. The pair of Norwich are grand value for money. I would not take for the cock alone what I paid for the pair. They are far above my expectations. It is the first time I have dealt with you, but it won't be the last. The merest novice may rely on getting satisfaction, and no need to use the deposit system.—J. Holliday to W. Rudd.

I CHALLENGE THE WORLD TO BEAT THE FOLLOWING HUGE BARGAINS.

WILL FIND ANY OF THESE A GOOD INVESTMENT:—

Special Matched Pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-. Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-. Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Border Fancies, 10/6, 12/6. These are the best value ever offered. Cages, 3d.

NOVICES

A Pair of Norwich Plainheads, Yorkshires, or Hartz Mountain Rollers, properly matched, and the cock on song, at 8/6 and 10/6. Cages 3d.

Remember that I personally match these up myself, and exercise the same care as if they cost pounds, and just as I would do if I were pairing for myself. In fact, I always make it a rule to thoroughly satisfy in selection—then I am sure I shall satisfy my customer, i.e., if satisfaction is possible. Now, this may not sound like anything very particular, at the same time it is of the utmost importance to the purchaser, as everything depends upon this matching as to what results are likely to be; hence, you want it done by someone who not only knows what is right and what is wrong, but also someone who takes an interest in doing so, to get the only best results possible from the class of birds purchased.

I also offer, suitable for all above pairs, a good, serviceable breeding cage, fitted complete, price 3/6; ditto, fitted with sand trays and sanitary utensils, 5/-.

For every other variety send for the largest, completest, and the First Illustrated Canary price list ever published, and do not be gulled with imitations, which will bring only disappointment and delay, for I Have the Birds I offer; that means a good deal more than some people recognise.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

H. H. TOWERS.

Crystal Palace, 1911, see report herewith.—Two 1sts, three 2nds, three 4ths.—The results following on my wins throughout the season at all the principal shows, prove the excellent of my strain. These wins include the Cinnamon-marked Y.C.C. championship trophy, and three championship diplomas (Cinnamon-marked Championship Diploma, Palace, 1910). Birds bred similar to above are offered at most reasonable prices to clear; separate cocks or hens from 7/6; matched pairs from 14/6 upwards; write at once, stating wants, all on approval, cash or deposit: Address, Glusburn, Crosshills, near Keighley.

AMBLER'S WINNING YORKS CHANCE OF A LIFETIME.

Owing to illness, am compelled to part with most of our birds, which include some of the best living; also a wonderful good lot of stock birds, cocks and hens, perfect type, and feathered like silk, from 15/- to 60/- pair, single birds proportionate. The finest blood in the world, for these last 30 years we have bred and sold some of the biggest winners on the bench (not hogus or local winners), but Palace and other champions, including some of the best birds out this year. Our birds have been bang at the top all the season, and last Palace won championship for best Yorkshire in show. State wants; approval; satisfaction guaranteed: Messrs. Ambler, 29, Sefton-rd., Morecambe.

Use our Picture Postcards.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

Singing Contests.

ERITH.

Open race held February 5th, when five pairs were hung (ten minutes' singing): 1, J. Baker, 3 score 11; 2, T. Barnett, 2 score 7; 3, F. Pope, 1 score 14; 4, J. Roper, 1 score 13; 5, D. Wilders, 1 score 0. Open race, February 12th. Mr. D. Jones is giving a prize for highest score in members. Mr. G. Sibley was elected a member on February 5th.—J. Baker, Hon. Sec.

HULL.

Will all old fanciers in Hull attend weekly singing contests (open to all England) at new headquarters, Grapes Tavern, Brook Street, opposite Paragon Station? Hull was once the foremost town in England for Linnet singing, but unfortunately the club broke up. I hope and trust all will bring their birds and help me make this new club a huge success.—Fred. Allen, Hon. Sec.

DURHAM.

Linnet singing held Butchers' Arms, Spennymoor, January 28th; 36 birds entered. Result: 1, 2, 3, Brady. Judge, Mr. J. Gardener. Also February 4th. Singing held Colliery Inn, Brandon, when 30 entered. Result: 1, Showler; 2, 3, Brady. Judge, Mr. J. Stout; timekeeper, Mr. T. Cameron. Next contest, Travellers' Rest, Gilesgate Moor, Durham. Prizes: Silver cup and all entrance fees; meet 2 p.m., February 11th.—Geo. Reed, Sec.

CASTLEFORD.

Weekly Linnet Contest, held headquarters, George and Dragon, Bridge Street, about 50 members and friends being present to hear 41 birds sing for three good prizes. After a very close contest for 2 and 3, the result was: 1, Towler; 2, Potter; 3, Nelson. We sing 5 secs., breaks to count; the birds' numbers are drawn out of the bag at 2.45; first bird hung at 3 p.m. prompt.—Walter Dobson, Hon. Sec.

GLASGOW.

City of Glasgow Linnet S.C. show of house and field-moulted Linnets held Feb. 2nd, Mr. A. Muir's, Saltmarket. Considering the foggy weather there was a fair turn-out. The field-moulted class was excellent, and Mr. J. Muir, as judge, had his work cut out to place the awards. However, his work seemed to please every exhibitor, although he shelved some of the National card-lifters. HOUSE-MOULTED: 1, Todd, wins Mr. Healy's special; 2, 3, Cochrane; 4, Johnstone. FIELD-MOULTED: 1, and Mr. Graham's special, Algie; 2, Johnstone; 3, Todd; 4, Cochrane. Usual singing contest held Feb. 4th for a copper kettle: 1 and 2, McMillan; 3, Pullin. Contest next Saturday, 4 p.m.—W. Ross.

WIGAN.

Wigan Linnet Club held first club match Feb. 4th, Weavers' Arms, Scholes. The members sang for some very nice and useful presents. There was some very fair singing; it would have been better, but the weather was very dull when the birds sang:—1, J. Larkin, 96; 2, W. Fishwick, 76; 3, J. Marfarlane, 67; 4, A. Parker, 45; 5, T. Mawdsley, 36; 6, R. Macfarlae, 27; 7, B. Wharton, 17; 8, E. Parker, 14; 9, R. Layland, 13; 10, T. Fishwick, 13; timekeepers, Messrs. T. Fishwick and J. Mawdsley. After the match the members sat down to a very good and substantial supper. After cloth was removed, we had songs and dances. They made a nice presentation to the secretary for his services. An open Linnet match at Weavers' Arms, Feb. 18th, for time and quality; we hope we shall see some new faces.—A. Parker, Sec.

LEEDS.

Skinner's Arms Linnet F.A., Buslingthorpe-lane. Usual quality singing contest held Feb. 5th, when 12 birds competed. Result: 1, Green; 2, Lunn; 3, shared by Thirkell and Ward. Judges, Messrs. Grainger and Read.—Wm. Lunn, Hon. Sec.

Leeds Linnet F.A., King's Head. Usual quality Linnet singing contest held Feb. 5th, when 20 birds sang to a large number of visitors from all parts of Yorkshire. 1, 2, 3, J. Bland; 4, H. Wryfield. Judges, Messrs. W. Naylor, P. Hobun, and J. Naylor.—Wm. Sissons, Hon. Sec.

A contest will be held at the Plasterer's Arms, Skinner Lane, off North Street, Leeds, Feb. 11th, commence 2.30 p.m. In addition to the prize money, Mr. Kendall will give a copper kettle as a special to winner. So bring all your champions, and let us see who has the best; it is open to all. Hoping to see all old fanciers and friends.—Joe Hargreaves.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

Open Linnet singing contest held February 4th. Result: 1, Hanson; 2, 3, G. Hills and R. Hartley. An entry of 28 birds, and some good singing was heard. Judge, Mr. G. Robson; timekeeper, Mr. T. Wilkinson.—John Watson, Sec.

RYHOPE.

Linnet sing, held Victoria Inn, Murton Colliery. Mr. Welsh gave following prizes: 1st, £1; 2nd, 10s.; 3rd, 5s.; 6d. a bird; 40 entries. 1, 2, 3, Punten. Judge, Mr. R. Gray; timekeeper, Mr. T. Elliott; book-keeper, Mr. R. Elliott.—J. Cope, 6, Baden Terrace, Ryhope.

NEWTOWN (Leeds).

Usual quality Linnet singing contest held Prince Albert Hotel, Newtown, Feb. 5th, when 19 birds sang for three good prizes. Result: 1, Turner; 2, Sellars; 3, Chip. Judges, Messrs. A. Binns, P. Madden, and J. Smith. Also grand Canary contest, same evening, when nine birds competed. Result: 1, Jinks; 2, Curran; 3, shared between Bland, Binns, Janson. Judges, Messrs. E. Wood, J. Smith.—J. Smith, Hon. Sec.

LEIGH.

Globe Inn Linnet Club second open-to-all-England Linnet Contest, held Feb. 4th, when we had a very good entry of 40 birds, and some very fine singing was done both for time and quality. Prizes, four for each class, divided as follows: Quality, first prize, G. Randels (Warrington); second, J. Statham (Leigh); 3, Boxer (Leigh), 4, Topping (Blackburn). Prizes for time: 1, J. Hampson (Lowton) 138; 2, Boxer (Leigh), 107; 3, J. W. Jones (Leigh), 101; 4, R. Statham (Leigh), 90. Judges for quality, Messrs. W. H. Topping, T. Gibbons; time, judges, Messrs. R. Holcroft and T. Statham. Minute, judge, Mr. W. Milligan (Wigan); bird man, Mr. J. March.—J. McAllister, Sec.

Club Reports.

HOLYTOWN, NEW STEVENSTON AND DISTRICT O.S.

First meeting on February 14th, in the Masonic Hall, New Stevenston. We intend having a large turn-out this year, and any fancier within a radius of five miles will be heartily welcome. Our entry money is 1s. 6d., and 6d. per month subs. All birds are entered at our annual show free. We have had a very successful year, and finished up with over £9 in the funds. We hope all fanciers within the five-mile radius will rally round us, and help to keep up our name.—Jas. Lamb, Sec.

DUNFERMLINE AND DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting held Co-operative Hall, Jan. 28th. Mr. J. Rankins (president) occupied the chair. The Chairman congratulated Mr. Alex Howie on the very successful season he had had on the show bench. Date of breeding pair show, fixed for February 25th, to be held Co-operative Hall, all birds to be in hall by 6 o'clock. The classification includes one class each of the following: Scotch Fcy., Crest, P.H., Yorks., Border Fcy., A.O.V., Mule, and Hyb. Entry 3d. per pair. Judges: For Canaries, Mr. Cullen; for Mules and Hyb., Mr. Malcolm. Agreed, that the members start a cup fund; to this end a subscription list will be in the members' hands in the course of a day or two, when we hope a ready response will be made. We entered into a new and novel scheme, namely, a judging competition, not from the real stuff, but the members will place in order of merit three sets of picture plates of birds which have, from time to time, appeared in the Fancy Press. Mr. W. Cullen acted as referee; prize winners, with their respective points: J. Branline, 26; W. Campbell, 25; H. Hogg, 21; and W. Rolland, 20. The referee made some remarks, which brought an interesting meeting to a close.—Robt. F. Campbell, Sec.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD C.B.S

Annual general meeting held Spencer Hall, Jan. 26th. Officers elected: Chairman, Mr. G. Gardner; vice-chairman, Mr. Dann; treasurer, Mr. A. Fisher; assistant-sec., Mr. J. Hyde; auditors, Messrs. Shearer and Milsom; secretary, C. W. Law; committee, Messrs. Shakespeare, Johnson, Street, Bush, W. Knight, W. Cooper, Walmsley, Sparkes, Armstroug, Cowie, Elton, and Trigger. Balance-sheet was read showing the society would start the year with a balance of over £5. This is very encouraging considering the extra expenses incurred throughout year. The members number 70, actually paid up subscriptions. The society has paid back the whole of the subscription received (£10 10s.) in special prizes throughout the year; this is entirely due to the way in which the members have worked, both with the advertisements and sale of tickets. Votes of thanks were passed to Mr. Gardner, Mr. Dann, the secretary, assistant-secretary, and committee. Elected: Miss E. Limans, Miss M. Limans, and Messrs. T. Newcombe and W. Day. Pair show February 25th, not 23rd as announced. £2 special money prizes besides articles. The social in connection with pair show distribution March 2nd. Judges for year: Young Bird Show, Mr. J. Oldaker; Annual, Mr. Geo. Gardner.—C. W. Law.

FROME AND DISTRICT F.A.

A pleasant gathering took place at the Lamb Hotel on January 13th. The members met under the genial chairmanship of their president (Mr. C. Foxcroft). The proceedings took the form of a smoking concert, and the occasion was utilised for making a tangible acknowledgment of the services rendered to the Association during 14 years by Mr. C. I. Young in the capacity of hon. secretary, and also of presenting the prizes won at the recent open cage bird show and the various members' shows which were held during the year. The Chairman, in asking Mr. Young's acceptance of a purse of gold for himself and a brooch for his wife, said Mr. Young was not only a very enthusiastic but a very careful secretary, and he had done his work for the love of the work. (Applause.) He was an admirable secretary, and was, as Mr. Vincent had said, at the top of the tree as an exhibitor, and he was a thorough sportsman. (Applause.) With regard to Mrs. Young, they all knew what a thorough helpmeet she was to her husband, and how greatly she assisted him in his work as secretary of that Association. (Applause.) The health of Mr. and Mrs. Young was enthusiastically drunk with musical honours and cheers. The musical programme was greatly enjoyed. Excellent songs were rendered by Messrs. M. Cogswell, T. L. P. Biss, E. Green, J. Iles, J. Oxenham, W. C. Glass, H. R. Hughes, and A. G. Young. Mr. F. Hunt also contributed. Mr. Gibbs ably played the accompaniments.—"The Somerset Standard."

CITY OF WAKEFIELD O.S.

Annual general meeting held Crown and Anchor Hotel, Jan. 28th, Mr. Daniels in chair. After balance-sheet was passed (showing a little on the right side after paying off the deficit on our open show), the following officers were elected: Mr. Daniels, chairman; Mr. Rollings, vice-chair; Mr. Slack, assist.-sec. and treas.; Mr. J. Atkinson, Sec. Mr. Isherwood, our late chairman, said he had a pleasant duty to perform in presenting the members' cup to Messrs. C. and C. T. Parkes; Mr. Netherwood's cup to Mr. H. Taylor; Mr. Parker's novice medal to Mr. J. Slack. The members present subscribed to make our late sec., Mr. Parker, a present for his valuable services. The proprietor of our headquarters, Mr. J. Lovell, and Mr. J. Netherwood, have kindly consented to give a special each for our members' show.—J. Atkinson, Sec.

SPEN VALLEY C.B.S.

Annual meeting, held Jan. 16th, headquarters, Commercial Hotel. Mr. J. W. Wharton (pres.) occupied chair, and there was a fairly good attendance. Mr. J. Lewis, hon. sec., presented a record of the year's work, which was well received. Mr. E. Wood (treasurer) submitted accounts, which indicated a small credit balance. Resolved, to run six exhibitions during present season—one for pairs, two first feather, and three old bird shows. Rules governing shows were amended so as to impose a claim limit of £2 2s. on all birds staged after the first three shows. Hitherto there had been no limit. Officials for ensuing year: Pres. J. Wharton; vice-pres., T. Smith and R. Bennett; treasurer, B. Wood; secretary, J. Lewis; auditors, F. Allen and R. Bennett; delegates to Yorks. Union, J. Lewis and T. Smith.—J. Lewis, Hon. Sec.

ALNWICK AND DIST. C.B.S.

Third annual general meeting held Jan. 26th, Temperance Hotel. A good attendance showed that this young society is becoming very popular. Treasurer's report read, showing a net balance in hand of £11 5s. 0½d., which, for a society of only three years' standing was considered very good, comparing favourably with older societies in the North. Following officers elected for ensuing year: Chairman, M. Swan; vice-chairman, W. Landers; secretary, R. Forster; assistant secretary, T. M. Tate; treasurer, H. P. Staig; committee, W. Miller, W. Straughan, J. Wright, W. Nesbitt, Thos. Dixon, J. Cairns, F. C. Rennison, J. Forster, G. Carns, T. Wake, and E. Beswick; auditors, W. Landers and E. Beswick. Open show date considered; decided, to again hold show Nov. 15th, as being most suitable for this district, and that a larger hall be secured. Arrangements were left in hands of secretary for a series of table shows, comprising a pair show and address upon pairing up of Canaries; a British bird show and address on the feeding and preparation of British birds for show; and a young bird show and hand-washing exhibition, providing the services of suitable gentlemen can be secured. A proposal to abolish the 10 mile radius was lost, it being thought advisable to keep members' classes local for the present. Several new members enrolled. Anyone desirous of becoming a member can be supplied with any information they require from any of the committee or of me.—R. Forster, Sec., 36, Bondgate (Without), Alnwick.

CINNAMON-MARKED YORKS. C.C

The Crystal Palace show brings to a close our club's competitions, concluding a most successful season. The following is the list of points gained by members in open competitions:—Mr. H. H. Towers, 174; Messrs. Ogden Bros., 132; Mr. L. Dykes, 79; Mr. J. Bailey, 77; Mr. A. Cooper, 65; Mr. F. Allen, 36; Mr. A. Jowett, 33; Mr. A. Hirst, 25; Messrs. Sutcliffe and Son, 19; and Messrs. Drake and Son, 18. Open Novice Competition: Mr. J. Smith, 33 points, Mr. E. Clegg 15, Mr. F. Hammond 11, Mr. D. Thornton 11. Mr. P. Mason's breeders' prize is won by Messrs. Ogden Bros. with 83 points, Mr. J. Bailey having 65. Junior Novice Competition results. These cannot be given at present owing to non-observance of rules. Will any member finding above points incorrect communicate with secretaries at once?—Grayshon and Allen, Hon. Secs.

ENGLISH & WELSH BORDER F.C.

I should like to take the present opportunity of notifying the members how matters stand. Last October a draw took place, which I hoped would put things straight. Unfortunately this was not so, the draw barely clearing expenses. Along with the draw books a statement of accounts was sent to each member, so that the members know how things stand, as they are in the same position as before the draw. I should like the members to do something to remedy this state of things, and so put the society on a sound basis. It is not very pleasant for a secretary who is doing everything he possibly can to make things go smoothly, to be fired at by every Dick, Tom, and Harry, skulking behind a "nom de plume." I did not publish a balance sheet, etc., last year, because I thought it was of more importance to get the specials wiped off than incur this expense. Will members who have not paid their subscriptions for 1910 please do so, and if there are any who would like to help with a donation, I shall be pleased. Members must bear in mind that a subscription list of about £6 will not work the society and pay £12 worth of specials each year, without extra assistance.—S. Hadwin, Sec.

YORKSHIRE CANARY CLUB.

Result of competitions provided by the Y.C.C.; the three nominated birds only counting. The Bailey Trophy Competition: 1, and Ramsden Teapot, J. Bailey, 146 points; 2, Sandiford's Cup, Messrs. Ogden Bros., 131 points; 3, 4, and Ramsden medal, Messrs. Thornton and Bower and J. Thomas tie with 109 points each; runner-up, J. Hellliwell, 101 points. Ramsden's Cup and Money Specials Competition: 1, J. Bailey, 156 points; 2, and Ramsden Teapot, Messrs. Ogden Bros., 137 points; 3, and Ramsden medal, H. H. Towers, 125 points; 4, J. Thomas, 95 points; runner-up, W. H. Shackleton, 89 points. Novice Competition: 1, and Ramsden Teapot, C. E. Hall, 52 points; 2, H. Smith, 28 points; 3, J. Horsfield, 26 points; 4, E. Clegg, 25 points. Junior Novice Competition: 1, 2, S. S. Rigg and J. Whitwham tie with 119 points each, 3, S. Rigg taking Ramsden's medal with 51 points; 3, 4, C. Morrison and A. Radley tie with 98 points, runner-up, A. M. Craven, 94 points. CAGE BIRDS prizes (professional): 1, J. Bailey, 302 points; 2, Messrs. Ogden Bros., 263 points; 3, H. H. Towers, 207 points; runner-up, W. H. Shackleton, 146 points. Amateur Section: 1, J. Thomas, 88 points; 2, L. C. Casey, 80 points; 3, F. Townsend, 60 points; runner-up, C. E. Hall, 32 points. For result of 3rd, 4th, and 5th bird cash prizes, see next week's issue of CAGE BIRDS.—John Greaves, Secretary.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

Mr. Tyson Resumes Office.

"After the appeal which has been made to me I will accept the office, but the biggest and strongest man in the room ought to go home with me, for I don't know what my wife will say and do." Thus spoke Mr. J. Tyson in again consenting to take charge of the secretariat of the C.C.C. at the annual meeting which was held in the Board Room at the Crystal Palace on Feb. 4th under the presidency of Mr. Rhodes, who, taking the chair, said it was a pleasure to do what he could for the club at all times. Amongst the members present we noticed Mrs. Litchfield, Mrs. Thynne, Messrs. Heath, Evins, Ley, Mugford, Broad, Lazarus, Bilsey, Franz, Jones, Oldaker, Cook, Barnett, Crisp, Pickard, Tyson, Robson, Taylor, Turner, McLay, Brotherton, Shepherd, Braund.

Secretary's Report.

Mr. Clarke said the accounts had been audited, but they had not been printed and sent out as usual, owing to the desire expressed that the Palace account should be included. He said he thought that in the future the C.C.C. should be just before it was generous; it was dispensing seven-eighths of its income in specials, and this should not be. He urged economy in this direction; they should support fewer shows, and thus meet their liabilities out of income. Their liabilities at the moment were about £13 10s., and they had £5 to meet them with. He was delighted at the success of the Palace show, which would have been greater still but for the fear in members' minds of what the C.B.U. would do. It was an ironic state of affairs that a body supposed to exist for the benefit of the Fancy should actually be a hindrance. They had liquidated every debt except the medals for the Roberts' Cup competition. He said that he had the greatest difficulty in securing the twenty shows, and thought that outside of the eight shows at which C.C.C. patronage had been given, the competition had not drawn the members of the club. The income for the year had been £43 19s. 11½d., and they had spent it all except £4 9s. 11½d., whilst they had liabilities, as before mentioned. It seemed to him that one half of the club found the funds, and the other half got them. The competition for the Roberts cup had produced a ding-dong struggle between Messrs. Ley, Evins Bros., and Taylor, from which Mr. Ley had emerged successfully, and he had also won the £8 8s. bowl for most points with birds outside the money. The two guinea Novice special had been won by Mr. Morris, Mr. Guy being the runner-up. He had received two medals from the Toronto C.B. Club, for the best Crest and best crest-bred at the Palace Show. The Toronto fanciers had shown great interest in the C.C.C., and had shown themselves most grateful for any little help given to them. The report and balance sheet were adopted.

Mr Ley's Scheme.

Mr. Rhodes, in speaking as to the working of this scheme, said that it had been a great success in all points except one—finance. Mr. Ley and himself, however, thought the scheme should go on. It had not cost the club anything, and they felt it should not. Fanciers had received benefit and Mr. Ley and himself were of opinion that the scheme having been properly launched, fanciers should be prepared to take some of the risk themselves, and the scheme should be modified so that instead of standing the full guarantee, fanciers should be satisfied with half prize money when the classes were less than eight. The Yellow classes had not paid; they could hardly expect it; they had been neglected for so many years, and it would take a season or two to make them a success. He could not understand why the Yellows had been neglected, for they were the most beautiful of birds, and from them one got quality. A sub-committee might be appointed to re-organise the scheme on the lines he had mentioned, and they would again guarantee the club against loss.

Mr. Jones said the generosity of Nottingham had taken all the wind out of their sails. They were much indebted to them. The scheme was a good one, and should be continued. He agreed that if Messrs. Rhodes and Ley only guaranteed half prize money under eight entries, it would make for the success of the scheme, as fanciers would realise that part of its success depended upon themselves, and they would keep the classes full by extra support.

Mr. Clarke considered the scheme had done good work in bringing the Yellows out, and he thought the club should take it over, and not leave its support to Messrs. Rhodes and Ley. The club could reduce its cash specials and leave the cash free to guarantee this scheme. They were too lavish with their specials, their income was greater, yet the club was worked at a greater loss than it used to be. Members should be willing to exhibit a little self-sacrifice, and not try to get all they could out of the club.

Mr. Ley did not agree with Mr. Clarke. He thought the cash specials were a great inducement to fanciers. The scheme had brought out the Yellows, and improved them, and as the scheme grew the yellows would improve more and more, and they would be more largely bred. "Keep the scheme," he said, "but don't give up the specials."

Mr. Crisp proposed, and Mr. Evins seconded, that the sub-committee, in considering the future of the scheme should also be instructed to consider the advisability of doing away with support to two or three shows, and thus enable the club to meet its liabilities. This was carried.

Secretarial Honorarium.

Mr. Crisp proposed that the secretary should be given an honorarium of 1s. per member. It was not right to expect a man to work hard, give up his time and pleasure, and neglect his business for their sake, and give him nothing for it.

Mr. Ley agreed, but the club could not afford it. They might subscribe. He knew one member who would be prepared to give £2 2s., and two others who would give £1 1s. each. Mr. Robson disagreed entirely with Mr. Ley. It was not right to be always whipping the willing horse. The honorarium should come out of the funds, then all would stand their share. Mr. Rhodes: We have no cash to do it with. Mr. Clarke: It's no use drawing cheques to have them dishonoured. Mr. Robson: Rule 4 provided for an honorarium; the rule had always been there, but never carried out. Mr. Crisp proposed, and Mr. Ley seconded, that they pay the secretary a honorarium of £10 per year. Carried.

Mr. Rhodes said Mr. Tyson was the only nomination for the post, and his election had been unanimous. They all knew of his good work in the past, and hoped he would again come to their assistance. Messrs. Ley, Taylor, and Robson supported.

Mr. Tyson said he felt highly gratified by what had been said, and by the unanimous vote, but he could not take the post. He had been out of office for two years, and they could not imagine how much happier his life had been. He had his limitations and short-comings. They needed new blood, someone with fresh ideas.

Mr. Ley said they could not take Mr. Tyson's refusal lying down; they had made up their minds he was to be secretary, and now he had knocked all their ideas down, and disheartened them by refusing to act. No one could do the work better than Mr. Tyson. Mr. Robson urged Mr. Tyson to accept, as did the chairman, and eventually, as mentioned above, he did.

Club Specials.

Mr. Crisp thought the club's success would be greater if some of their specials were for points, and he proposed a sub-committee should consider it. Mr. Robson said the Southern Yorkshire Club found their scheme work very well indeed. Mr. Ley seconded, and it was carried.

Mr. Crisp withdrew his motion relative to the alteration of date of A.G.M., the chairman pointing out that the Palace was undoubtedly the best time and place for the meeting, and that if it was a question of including the Palace show account in balance sheet, that could easily be done by making a reserve.

Messrs. Rhodes, Heath, Clarke, Robson, Crisp, and Ley, were appointed as a sub-committee.

Vote of Thanks to Mr. Clarke.

Mr. Jones proposed, and Mr. Ley seconded a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Clarke for his work as secretary. Mr. Rhodes pointed out that Mr. Clarke took up the work at a moment of great difficulty, and had he not done so the club would have ceased to exist. Mr. Clarke, replying, said had it not been for increasing business, he would have gone on, but he felt the club would suffer, and therefore that it was best to retire.

Mr. Crisp suggested a whip round to wipe out the deficit. Mr. Jones supported it, saying members not present could send their contributions to Mr. Tyson. The list subscribed in the room was as follows: Messrs. Cook 20s., Lazarus 5s., Taylor 5s., Pickard 10s., Jones 5s., Franz 5s., Bilsey 5s., Turner 5s., Broad 5s., Braund 5s., Brotherton 5s., Crisp 5s., Robson 5s., Barrett 20s., Evins Bros. 10s., Shepherd 5s., and towards the secretary's honorarium, Ley 20s., Shepherd 5s., Broad 5s.

The meeting closed with votes of thanks to the auditors and chairman.

I have from one small advert. in "CAGE BIRDS" disposed of £15 worth of Clucke strain Rollers. Part of the above amount is included in an exchange, which has been very satisfactory indeed to both parties. This is the second exchange that I have had with this same fancier within a period of 12 months. One of the birds he has just had from me has already won for him a 2nd prize in keen competition.—J. TOMLINSON (Newcastle-under-Lyne).

I have sold the Parrot I advertised in "CAGE BIRDS." I could have sold at least 12 like it. Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement. Several gentlemen offered good exchanges.—Jas Sparks (St. Helens).

OUR STANDARD WORKS AND HANDBOOKS are Keys to Successful Bird Keeping.

Have you purchased your copy of

"CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS"?

By CHAS. HOULTON.

The Great Standard Work on the whole art and practice of Hybrid Breeding.

This work, which contains sixteen magnificent Coloured and ten Art Plates of Hybrids, by the great bird artist, Mr. H. Norman, is NOW READY, complete, bound in cloth gilt.

PRICE 7/6 Carriage Paid for Cash.

Totally different from anything that has ever been produced before. It constitutes a book which no hybrid breeder who would be successful in his hobby can possibly afford to be without.

Mr. Houlton, with the experience of 25 years as a leading exhibitor, expert, and judge, explains fully everything that is necessary for the fancier to know to become a successful breeder of hybrids. All known varieties of hybrids are dealt with, and a special chapter is given on possible hybrids which a painstaking breeder might produce

A Noted Hybrid Breeder's opinion of "CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS":

January 16th, 1910.

"I received the Bound Copy of "CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS" safely, and must congratulate you on bringing before the Fancy such a magnificent work. The illustrations are such as will gladden the heart of any lover of Birds, whilst the information contained in the book is of great value, both to the novice and the expert."

F. CARL, PUBLISHER, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

National British Bird and Mule Club.

The N.B.B. and M.C. held in the Board Room at the Palace Show on Feb. 4, one of the best attended annual meetings of recent years. The presence of a large contingent of country members was particularly gratifying. Mr. J. Robson, the chairman, presided. Those present were Messrs. Thurling, Bennett, Longden, C. R. Tyson, Dewhurst, Mortlock, P. Walsh, Galloway, Archer, Chittenden, Inman, Davies Cooper, Trower, Newley, Crabb, Askew, Swaysland, Bentley, Jeacock, Gilbert, Lawrence, Frostick, Marley, Prior, Maxwell and Weston. The first business was the reading of the annual report, from which we hope next week to make a few extracts. It showed the club to be in a very favourable and satisfactory position.

The election of committee resulted as follows:—Messrs. Askew, Carr, Crabb, Cooper, Dewhurst, Dobson, Francis, Mortlock, Marley, Newley, Page, Silver, Thurling, Weston, and Wyse (London), Messrs. Dewar, Hurst, Longden, Norman, W. T. Plumbridge, and Swaysland (Provincial).

A very satisfactory balance-sheet was read by the popular hon. treasurer, Mr. T. R. Trower, showing an income of £51 8s. 6d., and a cash balance to the good of the club of £10 4s. 2d. The total assets amount to £16 8s. 10d. A sum of close on £13 had been expended on medals during the past season, and £2 2s. contributed to the defence fund in the Preston and Flower law case.

Alterations and additions to rules: 3, add the words: "Chairman and vice-chairman." 13 to read: "three eligible members or six competitive members." 22 add: "The secretaries to have power to call a special committee meeting as urgent business may require, notifying each committeeman at least two days beforehand." All these were accepted by the meeting.

The country members seemed strongly in favour of the alteration to Rule 13, expressing the opinion that it would help the provincial shows. Mr. D. Bentley (Gt. Harwood) was of this opinion. Mr. Chittenden (Bradford) said that he regretted to have to state that matters had not gone as well as they had hoped with the club they had established in Yorkshire. But they were doing their utmost in the interests of the British Bird Fancy, and he hoped to get several recruits to this, the parent, club. Mr. F. Archer (Huddersfield) also made a very telling speech, in which he voiced the good-will of the men of his district towards the N.B.B. and M.C. He said they were true fanciers, with the good of the Fancy at heart, and did not show merely for what they could get out of it—they were, in fact, as the South-countryman would find out, willing to put something into it as well. He would do his best to help on the N.B.B. and M.C.

Mr. Morby raised the point about notifying the secretaries as to the entries made by members competing for the club's cups, and afterwards of the points scored. In his experience this involved the members in a deal of expense in postage stamps. He thought the secretaries of the shows ought to undertake it. After an interesting discussion, in which it was pointed out how well the present system worked, and what a great help its institution had proved to the hon. secs., the matter was allowed to drop.

Mr. Longden mentioned the matter of the classification in the Mule and Hybrid section at the shows, and asked whether the Club could not bring this to the notice of show officials, with the object of getting an up-to-date and understandable wording of the classes. He pointed out a grave defect which occurred even at the N.B.B. and M.C. Club Show (held in conjunction with the L.C.B.A.), and gave it as his opinion that this undoubtedly adversely affected the entry. It was eventually agreed that the committee should deal with the point.

The question was raised as to the counting of points in two classes at Clapham Show, which each contained only one bird, the judge awarding a first to one, and a third to the other. Some members seemed to think that in the absence of competition one bird ought not to count more points than the other. In the result it was decided that the judge's placing must be abided by, and points counted accordingly, viz., 7 for first and 5 for third.

Mr. R. Brownlie was proposed for membership.

In concluding the meeting, the Chairman, Mr. Robson, in the course of an eloquent speech, welcomed the country members, and expressed the pleasure he felt at seeing them present. He said that the club had had a very busy and successful season, and mentioned the good it had done in improving the classification. He paid a high tribute to the work of the hon. secs., Messrs. Plumbridge and Carr, who, during the year, had been presented with gifts as tokens of the members' esteem. He also thanked the hon. solicitor, Mr. Nichols, for the help so generously given them, and the auditors, Messrs. Cooper and Silver, while the hon. treasurer, Mr. Trower, also came in for a well-deserved meed of praise.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the meeting.

The medal and cup winners during the 1910-11 season are:—Wellingborough, A. J. Howe, silver; Clapham, J. M. Walsh, gold, A. Coffey silver, A. C. Askew, Mr. Maxwell's silver; Battersea, W. Francis, silver, Coffey bronze; Newcastle, A. J. Marley, silver, B. section, Hybrid medal not awarded, only one competitor; Manchester, Walsh, 1st, silver, D. A. S. Longden 2nd, silver; Hastings, not awarded, only two competitors; Swansea, Coffey 1st, silver, W. J. Bancroft 2nd, silver; Nottingham, G. Lawrence, silver; Wimbledon, Marley, silver; Bournemouth, C. R. Tyson, silver; Frome Bancroft, bronze, no competitor to take silver medal; Cambridge, S. H. Mays silver, Lawrence bronze; N.B.B. and M.C. show, Longden gold, E. J. Lamb silver, A. Sheilam bronze, G. Morton (novice) silver, Mr. Trower's (Hybrid Section); Mrs. Weston gold, Mr. Longden silver, Marley bronze, G. Mortlock Mr. Trower's novice silver, W. A. Lott, gold (Hurdbill Section); J. Frostick silver, Howe bronze, Mr. Trower's novice medal not awarded; Leicester, Marley gold, A. P. Hurst silver, Mr. Weston's novice medal not awarded; Gateshead, J. Dixon silver, A. Pickles novice silver; Plumstead, W. Andrews, silver; Crystal Palace, A. Coffey gold, S. H. Mays silver (B. Bird), G. Lawrence silver (Hybrids). Nomination Cup: Mr. Marley. Runner-up, Mr. R. J. Howe. Hybrid Club-show Cup, Mr. Longden.

A Successful Gathering.

A NUAL DINNER OF THE L.C.B.A,

One of the events held luring the Crystal Palace Show time is the annual dinner of the London Cage Bird Association. This interesting function took place in the Throne Room at the Holborn Restaurant on February 6th, when Mr R. L. Crisp (the President) presided over a gathering of members and visitors totalling a hundred or more—a number which must have been very gratifying to those who were responsible for the evening's arrangements. A glance by some of those prejudiced faddists of to-day (who still imagine that those interested in the Fancy are still the unenlightened individuals as of yore) at the enthusiastic gathering of ladies and gentlemen present would have served them to the conclusion that the Cage Bird Fancy of to-day was second to none in this age of Fancies.

There were many ladies present, and among the members and visitors were Mr. and Mrs. John Tyson, Mr., Mrs. and Miss Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Mugford, Miss Dooley, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Griffiths, Mr. H. and Mrs. Smith, and Mr. W. H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Warley, Mr. and Mrs. Englefield, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Tringham, Mrs. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Bargint, Mr. and Mrs. Howitt, Mr. and Mrs. Strugnell, Mr. and Mrs. Ayers, Mr. and Mrs. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson, Mr., Mrs. and Miss Savage, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Carter, Mrs. L. Thorpe, Mrs. E. Lichfield, Mr. and Mrs. Allwright, Mrs. Oakshott, and Miss Ada Oakshott, Miss A. Peyton, Mr. and Mrs. Robson, Messrs. C. T. Maxwell, T. A. Trower, R. J. Pretty, S. A. Sandy, L. Miller, Angear, Masters, Askew, Wheatley, Gentleman, Wollington, Franz, Wallace, Baker, Matthes, Richardson, Goymer, A. Silver, W. S. Bennett, J. Mitchiner, W. Bennett, Watts, Dewhurst, Yeo, H. Mitchiner, Burkett, C. R. and A. W. Tyson, A. C. Barn, Attridge, Minvalla, Shepherd, Peyton, C. and N. Cooper, W. H. Woodroff, J. Cooper, Maher, C. Woodroffe, L. Allwright, Gibbons, H. C. Mugford, T. C. Pickard, and F. Carl.

After an excellent repast had been partaken of, and the clouds of smoke began to rise, the toast of "The King and Royal Family," proposed by the chairman, was duly honoured, and the company settled down to an excellent programme, the like of which is seldom seen, and we venture to think has not been hitherto excelled at any of the previous festivities of the Association.

The toast of the "L.C.B.A.," also proposed by the Chairman, was the next interesting item. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Crisp said that although the Association had been through bad times in the past, it had now a satisfactory balance in the bank of £74, and he attributed much of the success to their hon. sec., Mr. Mugford, whom he thanked for his untiring efforts in the interests of the Association. Another thing which went a long way towards accounting for the success was the advertisement by posters and notices in the Press. They held the record for the biggest members' show, and this was largely achieved by the support given by the "boys of the old brigade." Friendly rivalry amongst fanciers was good for the Fancy generally. He coupled with the toast the names of Messrs. Miller and Mugford. Mr. Miller, replying, said that much of the success attained was due to the great assistance given by the Press in general, and the Fancy Press in particular. Mr. Mugford said he had done his best while he had held the office of hon. sec., but he was not satisfied with the present bank balance, and hoped in the near future to see a balance that would enable the Association to lend a helping hand to fanciers who happened to fall upon bad times or had lost their birds through no fault of their own, and to give them a fresh start in the Fancy. He regretted the lack of support of the pair and young bird shows.

The event of the evening was the presentation to Mr. J. Robson of a handsome gold albert which had been subscribed for by his many fancier friends as a token of affection and sincere regard for his many past services. Many of the old members had watched him climb the ladder of fame, and he could now claim the largest circle of friends in the Fancy. Mr. Robson, in returning thanks, said that in the early days of the Association he held office for seven or eight years, and they were rough times in those days. But he had always done his best, and had tried to make the Fancy better than he found it, and to make it a pleasant pastime for lady and gentleman alike. Among other cups presented was a handsome silver cup for Norwich Plainheads, which had now been won three times in succession by Mr. Richardson with birds he had himself bred, and the cup now became his property. Cups for the best Yorkshire, ditto Norwich, ditto Novice Norwich, and Boxall's cup were won respectively by Messrs. Knight, Rennie, Belscy, and House, none of whom were present, and the Novice Crest by the hon. sec., Mr. Mugford, the Novice Yorks falling to Mr. F Smith.

In a few well-chosen words, the Chairman proposed the last toast of the evening, "The Ladies and Visitors," to which Mr. Minvalla briefly replied, saying he would offer a prize of £10 to the member who was able to breed a Bulbul or Minah, which offer was readily accepted by the Chairman, who thanked the donor for his generous gift.

The musical programme included humorous songs, "Mr. McKie," and "Mr. Schneider," by Miss Ruby Wilson. Mr. Walter Montague rendered a humorous musical interlude, his instruments being imitation bottles, joints of meat, cheese, etc., which caused much laughter; and living marionettes by Mr. Arthur J. Hill; while Miss Jessie Jolly and Messrs. Mortlock, Morris and Will Bentley also contributed some capital songs.

Thanks were tendered to Mr. Tyson for arranging the excellent programme, and the entertainment was brought to a close by the singing, shortly before midnight, of "Old Lang Syne," and the National Anthem.

BRITISH ROLLER C.C.

Annual general meeting, held headquarters, Feb. 4, and in spite of there being no Roller classes at the Palace, country members turned up in rare force. The following were present:—Messrs. Bird, Harper, Humphries, Jacquemin, Twigg (from Wolverhampton and district), Dr. Read (West Bromwich), R. Kremner (Manchester), W. Whittlestone (Kettering), A. Chilcott (Southend), and F. King (Cambridge). The following were present from the London district:—Messrs. Fisher, Lester, Neugebauer, Randall, Schluter, Slade, Watson, Venn, Williams, and J. W. Norris. Owing to the meeting being held on Saturday, a lot of London members were unable to be present. It was one of the most businesslike meetings the club has had. The election of chairman: proposed by Mr. Schluter, seconded by Mr. Whittlestone, and carried, that Mr. F. A. Lester take the chair. Election of new members: Proposed by Mr. Fisher and seconded by Mr. Whittlestone that the following be elected members: Messrs. C. Carruthers, H. Cole, A. Hudson, A. Montague, J. Rollinson, and J. H. Wardlesworth—carried unanimously. Balance sheet came up for discussion. The treasurer stated that several 1909 subscriptions had come in which he had included, also that in going over the accounts of the Young Bird competition he discovered an error, which made the profit £16 instead of £15 4s. (this error, by the way, was discovered before the accounts had been audited); and he was pleased to say that the balance in hand was £7 8s. 7d. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the balance sheet, pointed out that the club's finances were in a better position than in the previous year; they had received more in subscriptions, made more new members, and the profit on the rings was £2 more. Turning to the expenses, they had printed judging sheets, which had been a boon to the different societies, and the secretary had told them they had enough for five years; another extra expense was having an extra judge at club show. So that, taking it altogether, they had had a very successful season, which was largely due to the hard work the secretary had put in for the club. Several questions were asked, anent the balance sheet, and answered to the satisfaction of all. Proposed by Dr. Read, seconded by Mr. Slade, and carried unanimously, that the balance sheet be adopted.

Result of the election of officers: President, Mr. Tweed; vice-presidents, Messrs. Barnett, Lester, Lyons, Massey, Merrick, Netherwood, Percival, Randall, Schluter, Waring, Willows: hon. sec. and treas., J. W. Norris; committee, Messrs. Fisher, Lester, Gloeckner, Mooney, Munroe, Neugebauer, Randall, Rochl, Venn, Watson, and Williams. Following gentlemen also elected: Vice-presidents, Dr A. E. Read, H. Venn, and W. Whittlestone. The suggestion to appoint an assistant secretary to report meetings, give account of shows, etc.: several members were proposed, but none would accept, but it was thought that something should be done in this matter, and it was left to the committee, who have had a suggestion sent since, but which must remain a secret at present. Suggestion re the club buying organs, and letting the members have them on the instalment system: this was voted impossible, as the club had no funds for that purpose, even if they had they would be running a big risk. The question of cages: a good many suggestions were made, and no doubt something will come of them; and it was left to the committee to go thoroughly into this question. The meeting gave the committee power to make the necessary arrangements. Agreed, to allow members to repaint their cages, and to paint the wire fronts black; for the painting of the inside of the cages decided to have blue; and the committee were to decide on a paint that could be procured in any part of the country, so that the colour should all be alike as near as possible. Whilst on the question of cages, it was also decided that in future the water tins be placed on the right hand side of the cage, the end where the door is. If members only knew the difficulty there is when the birds are at the shows through seeds getting put in the water tin and water in the seed tin, they would understand why this is done. Members are requested for the future to adopt this method—water-tin the door-end of cage. Suggestion, to have a top to the water-tin: this was voted as being impracticable at the present time. The meeting suggested a sponge being used to prevent bird bathing. The question of sending out medals was gone into. The present system is to send them out after all the shows are over, but it was pointed out that a member won a medal in November and had to wait till about six months; in the meantime if he had the medal it might be the means of his selling a bird. It was thought they could go out earlier. The secretary agreed, and promised that in future they should be sent to the different secretaries before the show.

The question of subscriptions came up; agreed, that rule book be printed March 1, and that members who had not paid their 1910 subscription should not have their names printed. Members who have not paid will be notified; at the same time they are to take this as a gentle reminder. Proposed by Mr. Schluter, and seconded by Mr. William, that any member who had not paid his 1911 subscription by October 1 be not allowed to compete at any shows, as per Rule 3, and the secretary was requested to write to the different secretaries asking them to co-operate with the club. The question of supplying rings to members who had not paid their subscriptions was gone into, but as no proper notice had been given of this alteration to the rules, it could not be acted on, but notice was given that a proposition would be made for the addition to Rule 10 next year. Suggestion as to having committee meeting in different parts of the country: in the first place the club had no money to pay travelling expenses, and it could not be worked to have a committee in the North and one in the South. Such arrangement would never answer, and no good would result, only discord. It was pointed out that the different vice-presidents could attend committee meetings by virtue of their office. Suggestion that a circular be sent out to members for them to vote on the election of judges for club show: it was a question whether members would take the trouble to return the voting paper; also a judge might be selected, who had not the time to attend. The quesion of altering the rules governing the young bird challenge cup was brought up by Dr. Read. It had happened this year, that there had been a tie, and that the member who had scored the most 2nds, 3rds, etc., should be the winner. The secretary, in replying to the proposition, went fully into the question of the conditions of the last cup, which had been given in the first place by a few London members to encourage members to ring their birds; and the condition was that it was to be competed for at the club show. The cup having been won outright, they were having a new one, and to avoid any unpleasant remarks, suggestions, etc., which had been in the air for some time past, as to the judges favouring London exhibitors, which was entirely wrong, it was decided that the cup be competed for at every show where the young bird competition takes place; and that it should be for the most 1st prizes won by a member in the champion or novice classes. In the event of a tie, which might be the case, the winner was to be the member who scored the highest song points. The question of 2nd, 3rd, did not (and they did not want it to) enter into the matter at all. If they did, it meant that the member with the longest purse would be the winner. Their young bird point competition provided for the most points. Another thing was that under the existing rules the novice stood an equal chance with the champion, as if he only bred one good bird, he stood as much chance as the man who bred half a dozen, as only one bird's win could count at each show. Several members joined in the discussion. Dr. Read then asked permission to withdraw his proposition, and said that, after hearing the facts and hearing the discussion, he could see he was under a wrong impression, and it was agreed that the rule could not be altered to any advantage.

The question as to why the club did not support the Palace was given to the meeting, who agreed that the arrangements last year were unsatisfactory to the club. The suggestion as to raising the honorarium to the secretary was brought up, and much against his wish, the meeting unanimously decided to increase it to £3 3s. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the committee, auditors, secretary, and last, but not least, to the chairman. This concluded one of the best meetings the B.R.C.C. had ever had.—J. W. Norris, Hon. Sec.

LOCHGELLY C.B.S.

Meeting held Feb. 1, to consider election of judges for open show. Unfortunately all the replies from the judges nominated had not been received, and after nominating two other judges for a section where the two judges written to had stated their inability to come on show date, the meeting adjourned. The fixing of judges to be settled at usual monthly meeting, Feb. 20.—W. Whiteford, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Fortnightly meeting held Fawcett-st. Cafe, Feb. 4th, Mr. J. Farrer in chair. After a long discussion it was decided to drop the proposed social evening for the present, the feeling being to hold it near the end of the year, and have the presentation of cups and specials at the same time. But it was agreed to hold a picnic in the summer, about Whit-Monday. Mr. Reid moved: "In future no one be admitted a member who lives outside the borough and the rural district." Mr. Bainbridge, Monkwearmouth, was admitted a member on the nomination of Mr. A. Walker. Next meeting the table show for pairs, A.V., confined to novices, will be held, and new members who may be nominated that night and pay entrance fee will be allowed to compete. Will members please note that subscriptions may now be paid?—J. Jeffrey, Hon. Sec.

INVERNESS O.A.

Annual general meeting held Workmen's Club, Bridge Street, January 27th; Mr. G. Mackenzie (president) presided. There was a large turn-out of members. Secretary and treasurer submitted his financial statement for the past year, showing a balance in hand of £3 7s. 1d. Mr. A. Sanderson, in moving the adoption of the report, spoke in high terms of the officials responsible for such a creditable balance-sheet, and Mr. A. Smith seconded. Election of officers: President, A. Smith; vice-president, E. Chisholm; joint secretaries and treasurers, A. Urquhart, 86, Telford Road, and T. Sutherland, 15, Wells Street; auditors, A. McGillivray and W. R. Elliot; also a large committee of management. Mr. J. Mackenzie, in proposing a hearty vote of thanks to our past esteemed president, said how sorry we all felt he could not hold office for another year. Unanimously resolved, to appoint him hon. vice-president. The customary votes of thanks were then passed, which brought a most successful meeting to a close.

READING AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held Feb. 1, there being a splendid attendance. Six new members elected, viz., Messrs. E. Allen, Hayward, J. Ward, W. Ward, Church, and Potter. Canary pair show, for which 23 pairs turned up for points. Mr. T. Yates judged and gave great satisfaction. Principal points winners:—H. Priest 31, Dearlove 11, Styles 11, Lawrence 10, Tremlett and Preston 9. Taken altogether it was a very nice little show, and the members seemed very interested. Secretary brought forward an offer he had received of 2 silver cups at a low price. They were both on view and excited favourable comment. After a brief discussion it was decided to purchase them, providing they were up to warranty. One was allotted as a points special to be held by winner of most points; the other will be allotted later on. Also decided, to have annual show on the last Wednesday in November, the secretary to write to judge and ascertain if engaged on that date. The new rule cards were on view. Every member is requested to procure one (price 2d. each). Next meeting March 1st for muling and Hybrid pairs, and as the two new silver cups will be on view, it is hoped there will be a record attendance.—W. H. Pyke, Hon. Sec.

Size of Birds' Eggs.

The size of birds' eggs is one of the peculiarities of bird life that we are quite unable to understand. It does not follow that a large bird should lay a large egg. A bird with exceptionally long wings or beak does not apparently require an extra large egg in which to develop. Take an example of the common Gull and the Hooded Crow. The Gull lays a much larger egg, yet is not so large a bird, nor so heavy as the Crow.

Some Notable Foreigners at the Crystal Palace Show

The Cock of the Rock (Rupicola crocea): This grand exhibit formed part of a group of rare birds collected by Mr. W. Frost in the early part of 1910 for Sir William Ingram. On their arrival they were placed on deposit by him at the London Zoo, where some of us made our first acquaintance with living specimens of this glorious genus. Unfortunately only males were imported. One of these passed into the hands of Monsr. Pauvvels, of Belgium, who, though a comparatively new adherent to the ranks of foreign bird exhibitors, has stepped at once into the very front rank.

It is a bird of which any exhibitor may well be proud. Its glowing beauty and quaint form are well delineated in the illustration appearing on our front page.

Description: If a glance is taken at the illustration it will suffice if I state here that with the exception of the dark areas on wings and tail, which are black, and the light patch across base of flight feathers, which is white, the plumage is a glowing, fiery orange, save also for a black line extending round the crescentic crest; the beak and legs are orange-yellow, and the iris of eye deep reddish-orange. The female is merely a blackish-brown bird, suffused with orange on the abdomen and ventral region, also a patch of orange on underside of wings. Her much smaller crest, beak and legs are also blackish-brown.

This fine species appears to do well in captivity if given a roomy cage and suitable diet. This exhibit enjoys, at home, a cage with a base of about thirty square inches, and a height of about three ft., with suitably arranged perches. The diet consists of insectivorous mixture (soft food), but this should not be too finely ground or the birds will not take it readily, as they appear to like it best in the form of pellets; ripe fruit and some live insects should also be supplied. In captivity the tendency of these birds is to moult out whitish-orange, really but a ghost of their former beauty, and great credit attaches to Monsr. Pauvvels and Mr. Millsum for the triumph they have achieved by a system of colour-feeding in placing this lovely specimen on the bench, not merely in finest condition, but in the full brilliance of its natural colouring. This has been accomplished by enclosing pellets of insectivorous mixture and red-feed (Ramsden's pepper) in grapes, in which form it has been readily taken by the bird.

The call note of the species is not displeasing, and when in display the bird is more interesting still. The tail is spread, the wings dropped, the quaintly curved extensions of the webs of the wing feathers in a state of rapid vibration, and the crest opened at the front and brought forward over the beak, so as to almost obscure it. It is to be hoped that at no distant date some enthusiast will import females, and that an opportunity will be given them to reproduce their kind in captivity. The birds were found on the northern slopes, Merume range, South America. It was awarded premier honours in its class, and was one of the, if not the, rarest birds in the show.

The Blue Budgerigar.

The Blue Budgerigar: This exquisite variety of the well-known species, the Green Budgerigar, was still enquired after as one of the sensations of the show, their previous appearance at the L.C.B.A. Show in November last having cost them nothing in popular esteem, for they shared notoriety with the Cock of the Rock and Purple Sunbird. This is now a well-established variety, and breeds true to colour, even when cross-mated with the original green species. They breed true, that is, the young are either pure Blues or pure Greens, and the broods usually contain some of each. However, when properly mated, the progeny are all true to colour, and as there is no more difficulty in breeding these than the ordinary Green, no further remark is called for; a few years hence this lovely variety will be as numerous as "everybody's bird," the popular Green Budgerigar.

In form, type, and markings it resembles the original Green, but all the yellow has been bred out, the result being a lovely blue and white bird, with dusky-black undulated markings in the upper surface.

Monsr. Pauvvels' enterprise is not only apparent in the procuring of rare and unique species, but in sending them such distances to compete at the principal bird exhibitions. They again captured premier honours for their fortunate owner.

The Purple Sunbird.

The Purple Sunbird (Arachnecthra asiatica): This exquisitely feathered gem my esteemed friend, Mr. Douglas Dewar, aptly describes as being clothed in purple and fine linen (for their plumage is a deep rich purple with a sheen and a gloss like that on a brand-new silk hat), and this is no over-statement of the case, for the glowing and ever changing hues of their iridescent plumage is simply beyond the power of either pen or brush to adequately depict. These chameleon-like changes arise, both from the intensity of the light and the angle at which the sun's rays fall upon it. Thus we see it as richest of blacks, greens, mauves, and purples, with in some lights golden-bronze reflections on the back of the neck and breast. This exquisite exhibit of Mr. Maxwell's was last seen at the recent L.C.B.A. Show, when it was out of colour; it has now donned the gorgeous nuptial dress of iridescent purples and black; this, combined with its dainty and minute form (see illustration), make it a sight upon which "the eyes ne'er tire of lingering."

As I pen these notes I have before me a photographic reproduction of the bird in its gauzy and fragile-looking nest, almost as interesting as the bird itself, though looking at first glance little more than a mass of dried grass and rubbish.

The Sunbird's diet in a state of nature is honey (nectar from flowers), and minute insects. In captivity a diet of ripe fruit, milk-sop, sweetened with honey and a few insects, such as flies, spiders, minute beetles, and aphides should be supplied. This dainty gem, which was staged in Mr. C. T. Maxwell's usual immaculate style, carried off premier honours and three specials.

The Purple Sugar Bird.

The Purple Sugar Bird (Cæreba cærulea): Another dainty gem of very similar habits to the preceding species, and living on a very similar dietary in a state of nature, though differing perhaps in insects forming a larger portion of their menu. The bird figured in our illustration was drawn from a bird exhibited by the Hon. Mrs. Bourke. The illustration clearly shows the difference in form between the Sugar-birds and Sun-birds.

These lovely birds, the Blue Creepers of the West Indies and South America, though very difficult to acclimatise, are afterwards comparatively easy to keep, and when properly treated are by no means short lived. Their diet in captivity should be sweetened milk-sop, ripe fruit, such as sweet grapes, banana, etc., and occasionally a live insect, flies, spiders, or mealworms.

The Sugar-birds, like the Sun-birds, have a summer and winter plumage. In the latter they are more or less greenish, and are not very attractive at this season. But when the nuptial dress is assumed, they are gorgeous indeed. The wings and tail are black, the remainder of the plumage being various lines of purple, the whole very refulgent and varying to a considerable extent by light refraction. The longish curved bill is blackish, and the legs resemble two pieces of yellow sealing-wax as to colour.

The female is green above, yellowish below, with green striations; sides of face and throat dull brownish-orange; legs, greenish-yellow. They are about the size of a small Tit, very active, alert, and full of interest. Their cage should be roomy and furnished with a twiggy branch for perching. These birds (i.e., the Yellow-winged and Purple Sugar-birds) are being more freely imported at the present time, and are a delightful acquisition; and treated as above, should thrive and do well once they are over the first few critical weeks in this country.

Everitt's Parrot.

Everitt's Parrot (Tanygnathus Everitti): While being very handsome and also rare, this species is not so striking as many Parrots. Its plumage consists of an arrangement of greens, very chastely blended, darker on the wings, each feather of which is narrowly margined with light green. The effect of this is distinctly pleasing. The lower back and rump are turquoise blue. A distinguishing feature of the genus is the powerful beak, of almost Macaw-like dimensions and form. I believe this to be the first time this species has been exhibited. It was staged by that lover of rare species of Parrots, the Rev. G. H. Raynor, and carried off the second prize, the first prize in this class going to a very fine Hawk-headed Parrot, exhibited by Monsr. Pauvvels.

The specimen figured on our plate is evidently immature, as the beak is still light horn-colour, whereas in the adult it is red.

MENAI BRIDGE

Judge, J. H. Roe. O. OWENS, 43, High Street.

I was extremely pleased and surprised on opening CAGE BIRDS of February 4th, to find a picture of my winning Goldfinch. He was not shown at Cambridge (where you say he won 1st), but he has won 1sts at Hastings, Wimbledon, Luton, and this week at the Crystal Palace. He was 2nd at the L.C.B.A., where he was beaten by Mrs. G. E. Weston's Goldfinch, and only h.c. at Caterham, where for some reason or other he did not seem to please the judge, who had already given him 1sts at Hastings and Wimbledon.—B. Murton Gill (Caterham).

I beg to thank your reporter for so good a report of my young Crest-bred, v.h.c. at the L.C.B.A. Show. I am pleased to say this past week he has won 1st in his class at the Crystal Palace, which fully upholds all your reporter said I have named the bird "Barum King."—F. G. Bale (Barnstaple).

Owing to pressure of business, I have resigned the secretaryship of the Midland Roller Club. The date of our annual show comes just in the busiest part of the winter season in my business, and I find it difficult to spare the time. Mr. T. J. Smith, 10, Hall Street, Wolverhampton, has been elected secretary in my stead, to whom all correspondence should in future be addressed.—J. H. Willows (Wednesbury).

Mr. B. C. Smith, of the East Ham C.B.S., writes: We are holding our first pair and British bird show at eight o'clock on February 16th, at Hartley Avenue Schools (Cookery Room). We have every assurance that the members who already number over 30, will give a good display. Several big Palace winners will be on exhibition, and interested fanciers in the neighbourhood are heartily welcomed. Intending members should write Mr. F. Fox, Hon. Sec., 12, Sherrard Road, Forest Gate.

A correspondent writes:—The Menai Bridge C.B.S. have arranged to hold their show, open to North Wales, on February 25th, with Mr. J. H. Roe as judge. An advertisement of same is to appear in this week's CAGE BIRDS. There is to be a good classification, and valuable specials, and also a specialist judge. I think the committee deserves a good support. The show is managed under a well-known committee of fanciers in North Wales.

A seed separating and dressing machine has been designed and put upon the market by Mr. F. Whiting (Brockford, Stowmarket), who writes that it has been well received by buyers, of whom he has found many through his advertisement in the columns of CAGE BIRDS. Messrs. Hopton and Son have written him as follows: "It is a capital machine, and will no doubt supply a long-felt want. No one should continue with the old sieve method."

Mule and Hybrid breeders.—Have 100 real Siberian hen Bullfinches, like Thrushes, 100 real Siberian Goldfinches, 50 Siberian cock Bullfinches, 100 Siberian Siskins. These are not the small Russians. Best and biggest I ever had in my life. Imported direct by me from Siberia. Not been picked at by anyone. Order at once; last lot this season. Noted fanciers can have any of above for payment on arrival. See advertisement. Sandiford, Preston.—Advt.

OBITUARY.

Mr. HUGH DAVIES (Kilbirnie).

Mr. Smith (Glasgow) writes: I am sorry to report that the well known and highly respected Scotch fancier, Mr. Hugh Davies (Kilbirnie) passed away on February 3rd, in his 61st year. He was seized with appendicitis, and succumbed to it. Of a quiet and unassuming temperament, he was a genuine fancier, and took a delight in visiting shows. All will join me in sympathy with his widow and family.

The King has, we hear, been pleased to grant a special Warrant of Appointment to Messrs. Spratt's Patent, Ltd., the well-known manufacturers of Spratt's Dog Foods, Game Foods, Poultry Foods, and Hearson's Incubators.

Owing to a business venture I will be unable to continue in the Fancy, writes Mr. G. Wilson (Eccles), but I shall certainly continue as a subscriber to CAGE BIRDS, which I am pleased to say I have taken from the first issue.

Owing to the demands of my new business, writes Mr. J. Wilcock (Eccleshill), I had not time to send my birds to the Palace, and they should have been marked "absent," therefore, in the catalogue. Will you please state this in the columns of your widely-read journal?

As a constant and enthusiastic reader of CAGE BIRDS, may I offer you my heartiest congratulations upon the magnificent Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS? The coloured plates and extra supplement were excellent, and the plate depicting "Wild Seeds and Plants," is really extra. It has been of great interest and knowledge, and exceedingly useful to me. May I also give Mr. Norman my hearty congratulation upon his very fine plate; and may I offer the same to Mr. Prior, for his valuable notes, from which I have derived great benefit. I wish the "good old paper" every success.—W. J. Williams (London, N.).

Mr. W. Rudd, of Norwich, has just issued a new catalogue of cages, appliances, foods, etc. In it will be found full particulars of the "Perfection" and other breeding, show and flight cages, etc., drying-cages, bird-room requisites, bird seeds, etc. The catalogue is unique in that practically every cage, appliance, etc., referred to is illustrated and described in a way that leaves no room for doubt as to the character and make of the goods in question. This fine price list will doubtless be found of great use at this season of the year. The prices throughout are very reasonable, and readers of CAGE BIRDS should lose no time in applying for a copy direct from Mr. W. Rudd, the Bird Specialist, Norwich.

Fanciers are reminded that entries for the Nottingham (Permanent) O.S. open table show (February 11th) must be made at the Grapes Inn, before 3 p.m., writes Mr. J. Bunn, the secretary. Mr. W. Burrows has consented to judge the Canary classes, and Mr. W. H. Raven the British bird classes. We hope to have a record entry. There are three grand specials, in addition to prize money. Several members are still in arrears with last year's subscription; we hope they will come up to the scratch on Saturday. This year we have made a rule that 1s. must be paid before the first feather show, and the balance before December 1st; otherwise defaulting members will not be allowed to participate in the annual specials.

I am sorry to say I have to sell all my stock, as I sail for New Zealand early next month, writes Mrs. W. T. Hill (Levenshulme). I have been a subscriber to your paper from the first, and one of my greatest pleasures was to see my cinnamons on the front page of CAGE BIRDS. I have now a fine stock of Cinnamons, and if I had been staying in this country I should not have sold one feather, as I have a perfect breeding and show stock after five years' expense and experience. I have had to, at the last day, withdraw my name as secretary to the C.C. Club. If luck comes my way, I shall have another stock over the sea, and I may add I shall have the news as usual, only a few weeks later, having made arrangements to have CAGE BIRDS sent each week.

The Norwich Plainhead Club.

Will you kindly announce that I have sent out all specials for the above-named club, and that anyone not receiving what is due to them should communicate with me at once, writes Mr. Jno. Hopkins, the hon. secretary N.P.C.

Kindly state that Mr. Alf Binns (president of the "Prince Albert" Linnet Association) has a piping Canary, and anyono wishing to hear the same will be welcome at the hotel, writes Mr. J. Smith, the Hon. Sec.

We have been permitted to inspect the plans of a range of six foreign bird aviaries which Mr. H. Lewis (Handsworth, Birmingham), is having erected, and they promise to be exceptionally fine, up-to-date, and practical in every detail.

We regret to hear the loss that the well-known Mule and Norwich exhibitor (Mr. W. J. Parry, Dinorwic) has sustained through the accident of his lamp smoking, which caused him to lose some valuable birds, including an ideal yellow Norwich.

We are pleased to hear from Mr. C. A. Edwards that the West Herts F.A. has extricated itself from the financial difficulties in which it found itself last year, and that there is now the promise of a successful career before the Society. Fanciers in the district will be welcomed as members. Mr. Edwards address is Flowerdene, Oxhey, Watford.

It is with great regret I have to inform you that our treasurer, Mr. H. Sweetman, an old and well-known Yorkshire exhibitor, is lying at death's door with enteric fever, writes Mr. R. P. Harper, Hon. Sec. of the North London C.B.A. He was taken ill with congestion of the lungs on January 22nd; this developed into pneumonia, and on February 4th he was taken to the Homerton Fever Hospital suffering from enteric fever. At the time of writing there is no change for the better. I hear from Mrs. Sweetman that the doctor says there is no hope for his recovery.

Presentation at Hull.

At the close of the meeting held on February 6th, the chairman of the Hull C.B.S. handed over to the sec. (Mr. E. R. Ridley) a beautiful gold bangle, given by the Society to Mrs. Ridley, as a token of appreciation of the help she must have rendered her husband, and the inconvenience allowed in the home, due to the running of the open show. The Sec. suitably responded on behalf of his wife.

Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS of Jan. 21st, exchange yellow Norwich hen. The replies were too numerous for me to reply to. This speaks well for CAGE BIRDS.—R. HENDRIE (Brechin).

Kindly thank applicants for writing me re my small advert. in "Cage Birds." I could not reply to all, there were so many; but those who sent stamp were all written to. My advert. appeared on the last Saturday in January. What a circulation! On one side from Penzance, and on the other Great Yarmouth. Many enquiries came from the Midlands and the North, and a crowd came from Scotland. The birds were disposed of in good time. Yours is the medium.—JAS. NELSON (Nelson).

Owing to the large number of letters received in answer to my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS re housemoulted Greenfinch, I find it impossible to answer them individually. Up to the Monday evening I had received over 40 replies, and they came from as far North as Scotland, and as far South as Bournemouth, which shows what a large circulation CAGE BIRDS has, and how well read the advertisements are. I have made a satisfactory purchase. Will applicants please take this as an acknowledgment of their letters?—W. WHITE (Cowes, Isle of Wight).

One of our oldest and foremost exhibitors contributes most helpful notes on Mr. Goodchild's coloured plate.

As one having the privilege of personal acquaintance with Mr. Goodchild, the gifted artist whose charming plate of British Finches provides the subject matter of this article, I may perhaps be pardoned the liberty of informing my readers that the outstanding characteristic of his personality is the happiness of his disposition. Knowing Mr. Goodchild already as a man of happy thought and happy speech, it is now my pleasure to bear testimony to his capacity for happy deeds. For the accompanying coloured plate is surely as happy an effort as ever artist was capable of, and must rank as one of the best presented to readers of CAGE BIRDS. The Editor has asked me to surround the picture, as it were, with an article which is to be practical and educational. Well, Mr. Editor, it is not in my power to pen any article so instructive as this production of colour and brush. I will endeavour, however, to place before readers a few rambling observations touching the leading show points of the seven species so charmingly depicted, their dispositions, and some of the means of distinguishing the hens from the cocks. That done, I will try, in the concluding portion, to string together a few brief hints on the admittedly somewhat threadbare subject of the feeding and general management of the birds. Then if your circulation suffers as a result of my boring the readers—but, there, they have the picture anyhow.

The Jewel of the Tribe.

Yes, there is the picture. Look at it. A quick, cursory glance, and the attention is at once rivetted to the central figure of the group. There is the jewel of the whole tribe, a bird whose title to premier position is clearly and firmly established, beyond all challenge he is the gayest in colours, the sprightliest in actions, the most exasperating in eccentricities—the Goldfinch. A good Goldfinch, too!—nicely proportioned bird, standing at a pleasing angle on the perch. He has a back of the richest chesnut, a breast and flank tanned in profusion down to the very tail. A grand expanse of crimson blaze, bright and clear, yet deep, bisected by a moustache desirably narrow and densely black. A broad and well-defined wing-bar of a delicate lemon yellow, regular and well-placed buttons, and a raven shoulder go to make a good bird indeed; a hard nut to crack in any company; a champion.

And yet, withal, a backslider from the stereotyped standard of perfection. For, mark you, his blaze is not square, not even clear cut; his wing-buttons do not meet, and there is a suspicion, just a suspicion, of "guttering" in his blaze. A thousand thanks, kind artist, for the perpetuation (not perpetration, please, Mr. Printer) of these little inexactitudes. They serve to illustrate the fallacy of a too hard and fast adherence to exact standards.

This Goldfinch is, of course, a cock. Hens, although similar in their colouring, are much less brilliant. The blaze is not nearly so extensive, and the narrow black moustache changes to a rusty black muzzle; often flecked with splashes of grey. There is a rounder head, a smaller beak, and shorter neck. The general appearance is of an undersized and "squatty" bird. Such a bird is the hen.

The Gentle, Affectionate Linnet.

Even as the Goldfinch fascinates us by his beauty, promoting the continuance of our affection by his very capriciousness, so, no less surely, does the Linnet, his great rival in popular favour, endear himself to us by virtue of his sterling merit. His beauty is of an entirely different but none the less attractive kind—a harmonious blending of various shades of brown, set off to perfection in good specimens by the snow-white edging of the wing flights. His very mannerisms are gentle and affectionate, and his song, well, whilst an ordinary singer is good to listen to, the music of a star performer is something to be remembered. These matters are outside our province just now, so we must hasten to a consideration of him as a show bird.

Of course, we have our ideal. Mine is very clearly engraven in my mind, though rarely indeed does the living reality delight mine eye. Here it is: A bold, upstanding bird, striking an attitude about midway between the two great Canary types—Norwich and Yorkshire. More sedate than the Yorkshire (no swagger, mind you), but more active than the Norwich, and travelling from perch to perch with some elegance of movement. In shape, big at the chest and tapering to the waist (the correct shape for all living animals saving, perhaps, swine), the tapering continued in unbroken line to the very tip of the tail. The colour, pure and clear. On the back a rich, nut-brown. A softer tone of the same shade for the breast and flank, with the inevitable merging into dirty white driven so far down the belly as to escape notice. The pencilling, as profuse as is consistent with sex (of which more anon); on the back a network of spangling, on the head and breast a succession of parallel lines, running right down the sides and vanishing under the tail. The head, shapely and well poised (ah, yes; I dearly love a Linnet with a head), the outline rising boldly from the rather small beak, and sweeping in an almost circular curve until lost in the nicely filled-in neck. The eye, bold and bright. The well-displayed white edging of the wing flights gives the finishing touch, and—what's that, Mr. Editor? "Then you wake up?" Well, yes, quite right, then you wake up.

You wake up; your vision changes from the ideal to the actual. See, now, how the actual presents itself. You get a Linnet, bold in size, grand in head, correct in type and style, sound and unbroken in breast colour. Sound in colour, yes, but cloudy as compared with the transparent quality you wish for. Markings? Well, a microscope might discover them, but it is doubtful. The very wing flights are tucked away out of sight. Still, such a Linnet is no duffer. On the contrary, he will win over far more than will win over him. Certainly he is not one to be easily shelved. Another is all that you desire in size, in type and in colour. He may fail a trifle in the conformation of his skull, but his pencilling and display of wing flights are a treat. Alas! the dirty cream-white of the abdomen insists on being in evidence. It steals upwards towards the throat, dividing the russet-brown which you would fain see in sole possession, and leaving an otherwise ideal specimen undeniably "open on the breast." Yet he, too, must be recognised as a doughty claimant of supreme honours; and perfect indeed must be the winner who can lower his colours.

Lastly, for our allotted space being limited forbids the further pursuit of this topic, there is the specimen who presents all the qualities we see in our ideal save the one, taken by itself, most important of all—size. Such an one is our little friend in the picture. Pure colour, lovely quality, superb pencil[illegible], fine shape, smallish beak, rounded head, [illegible] eye, conspicuous wing flights; all the good points are there to perfection. Place him under a triple magnifying glass, and we have what we want. But do not let us wait for what we may never see. Let us avoid the most patent faults and be satisfied. The perfect points have been amply explained. The fatal defects are flat heads, narrow skulls, ugly beaks, "hinged" tails, heavy abdomen, and bad manners. If we can stage two Linnets who possess between them all that we would like to see in one, believe me, we shall not do badly.

The Gentler Sex.

A word about hens. Curiously, the "sexing" of Linnets, while presenting no difficulty whatever to the expert, is to the inexpert an almost insoluble problem. Of cock Linnets, there is a multitude of types; of hens, one, and one only. Far and away the most noticeable thing about hen Linnets is the extraordinary regularity and abundance of their breast markings, and the "closeness" of their breast colour. Take such a bird as this in the hand, and spread out the wing. If the white edging of each feather is divided from the rib of the feather by a strip of black, the bird is a hen. If it were a cock, the white would be a whiter white (I can describe it in no other way), and would, at some part of the feather, touch the rib. Make observations on these lines upon every Linnet that comes into your possession, and you will soon learn to sex Linnets. Occasionally, because of the excellence of their breast markings, hen Linnets are awarded prizes over cocks. This is not always as it should be.

"Bullie," the Beautiful.

A beautiful bird, indeed, is the next under notice—the Bullfinch—whose position in the plate is immediately behind the Goldfinch. A highly desirable pet, he appears to commend himself especially to the gentler sex, perhaps because, of all the Finches, he seems to be the most capable of real personal affection. For exhibition purposes, he has a very extensive and highly varied following; and right worthy is he of their patronage. Specimens of really conspicuous merit are not at all common, and lucky indeed is the aspirant to honours who can boast ownership of a British Bullfinch as prolific in good points as the one in our illustration.

The show specimen must, first and foremost, be possessed of brilliant fiery breast colour. No excellence of cap or wing bar can redeem his show career from failure if he has not this indispensable first requirement. Then, he should be chubby in type, filling the show cage from back to front rather than from end to end. Given these two essentials, the other points really need be taken little account of. The "dense black cap," "lovely back" and "well defined wing-bars" will in every probability be present as a matter of course. Naturally we want a wide skull and correspondingly broad and cleanly outlined cap, and our sturdily built champion almost invariably obliges us. A Bullfinch built on too slender lines is not likely to do much winning, although many of this type are excellent in colour and quality. Again, a bird which has the habit of ruffling the feathers round his thighs imposes a severe handicap on his chances, as also do others who get their feet clogged with dirt.

Both these latter failings are associated chiefly with Bullfinches, which are not cage-moulted—for many are shown, and successfully, too, while still in wild feather. A good house-moulted specimen is, however, the correct thing to aim at. If originally gifted with breast colour of the requisite purity, brilliance and depth, it is not at all an impossible proposition to turn him out with credit after the moult; and even should he lack a little of the fieriness of the field-plumaged specimen, the wise judge will forgive him that, taking into consideration not only the fact of his being house-moulted, but also the extra sleekness and steadiness he will have taken on, and putting him up accordingly.

Hen Bullfinches, which are also frequently exhibited and have a peculiar value for hybrid-breeding, are easily distinguished from cocks. The changing of the fiery breast colour to a dull brownish hue, without a trace even of pink, is sufficient guide to differentiation.

A Living Rebuke to Faddists.

We turn now to the top of the picture, where, on the left side we have an absolutely lifelike presentation of the Lesser Redpoll, and on the right a quite bewitching portrait of the Siskin. These two merry little chaps are a living rebuke to those faddists (doubtless well-meaning, but certainly misguided) whose hirelings are plotting the destruction of our hobby. From the moment of capture the Redpoll makes himself thoroughly at home in his new surroundings, eating and drinking from the first without the slightest exhibition of fear.

He is one of the few birds who, while still in wild feather, can compete at our shows on equal terms with his house-moulted brother. Easy to obtain, easy to keep and easy to win with, the Redpoll is pre-eminently a bird for the novice, as well as a valuable unit in the team of the full-fledged exhibitor. He is gaining in popularity with remarkable swiftness; and those wide-awake show committees who provide him a class to himself, find him mustering in twenties and thirties.

Wild Bird-Life.

The Independent Wren.

With sharp morning frost and the rime covering the earth, wild birds look anything but happy during the early part of the day. In the gardens the Blackbirds and Robins sit about or hop aimlessly from one side to the other, waiting for the sun to dispel the fog and somewhat soften the ground, so that they may have a sporting chance of finding something in the way of food. Those birds that frequent the gardens are certainly better off than those in the fields, for in addition to the scraps thrown out for their benefit, there is generally the chance of stray morsels to be picked up around the chicken run or from the troughs of domesticated animals, and a little meal such as is given to the poultry goes a long way towards keeping bodily heat in some of our smaller birds. Among the species that frequent the garden there are very few that disdain to share in what one might term artificial food. The perky Robin (an insect feeder) is as keen to get a peck at a piece of crumbly meal or bread as the Blackbird and Sparrow, but there is one little bird who is without doubt the most independent and solitary of all our common birds; this is little Jenny Wren. All through the winter, no matter what the weather, this tiny atom of bird life roams the hedgerows, farm buildings, and gardens, all by herself. Nor does she at any time appear to associate with others. One may see a flock of Sparrows, Finches, and Buntings, busy among the straw and refuse in the farmyard, but although the Wren is in the vicinity she is searching the interior of the sheds, the old carts, or farm implements for hidden cocoons. The nearest approach she gets to any association with other birds is when she occasionally forages over the manure or refuse heap, but even this is done in such a manner that one cannot but be impressed with her independence, for she has no sooner finished her investigation of the heap than she flies to a pile of wood or faggots, and flits in and out, quite regardless of any doings of the rest of the bird life in the neighbourhood. This morning one has been busy in the writer's garden clambering among the climbing roses against the fence. The thoroughness with which she investigates every branch and shoot makes one think that, small as she is, there are few of our wild birds so methodically useful as this little favourite.

How to Make a Practical Breeding Cage.

By H. NORMAN.

Our Artist-in-Chief describes and illustrates simple methods of making and fitting up single and double breeders.

Now that the show season is drawing to a close, fanciers' thoughts naturally turn to the preparation of the breeding room, and the appliances necessary for the continuance of the hobby during the early spring and summer months. Old fanciers and those who have kept birds for a few years will no doubt be well supplied with the cages and other accessories, but among the multitude of readers of CAGE BIRDS will be many who are only just commencing to be inoculated with the "bird fever," and consequently have not had time to get supplied with the usual paraphernalia of the bird room; and it is to these novices especially that this illustrated article upon the construction of the simplest form of breeding cages will appeal.

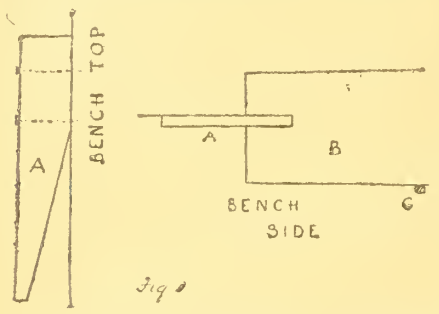

Fig I

There is now no reason whatever why anyone who has a few spare hours during the evenings should not amuse himself constructing his own breeding cage. The tools required are very few, and can generally be found in most households. The wood may be purchased ready cut and planed, and the wire fronts with pot holes and door, obtained for a few pence through the advertisement columns of "C.B." In regard to purchasing the wood, I would advise the novice to procure the ordinary yellow pine or deal, and, if possible, to make all his cages eleven inches wide in preference to only nine inches, as the extra two inches in width do not make much difference in the room the cages take up, but the extra makes an appreciable difference in the space in the interior of the cage, which is a great consideration, especially to nervous hens, which always appear to want to get as far away from their owner as they possibly can, particularly when the young brood first puts in an appearance.

A Make-shift Bench.

Where the fancier does not possess a proper carpenter's bench, the kitchen table or dresser will no doubt be made use of. In such cases the usual "vice" to hold the wood in will have to be dispensed with, but in its place a very handy "clip" can be made as shown at A in Fig. 1. Cut a piece of wood three-quarters of an inch square and about nine inches long, slanting it off as shown, and fix it to the bench by means of a couple of screws. When the board B is pushed into this "grip" it holds it quite securely, a peg or screw at C preventing it dropping when the edge is being planed.

We proceed to construct a single breeder to take a wire front eighteen inches by twelve, which is a stock size constantly advertised.

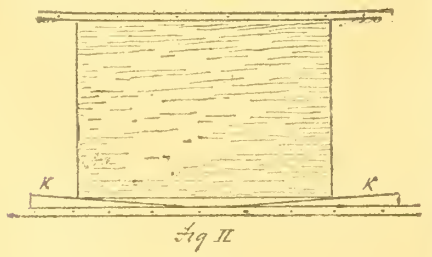

Fig II

Cut two lengths of wood twenty inches, for the top and bottom of the cage, two lengths fifteen and a-half inches for the sides, and two pieces nineteen inches for the back. Now these two last boards placed side by side will make a height of twenty-two inches, whereas we only require fifteen and a-half; so we retain one board intact, and from the other we cut a strip four and a-half inches, or just sufficient to make the required height for the back when the two are glued together. Of course, the fancier need not glue these together, but it makes a much neater and stronger job, and fills up one crack where the red mite would be sure to congregate.

Fig. 2 shows a simple method of glueing these boards together; it consists of two strips of wood nailed on to the bench a shade wider apart than the two boards are when placed side by side. Neatly plane the edge of the boards, so that they make a good joint (you can test this by placing them together and holding them up to the light). Now get the glue nice and hot, warm the edges of the board, put some glue on them, lay them flat on the bench between the strips, rub them together, and when they are perfectly straight, tighten them up by means of the wedges K K. This should be done as the last job before leaving off for the night. In the morning it will be perfectly dry and hard, and can be cleaned ready for nailing.

Glueing and Nailing.

We will presume that all the wood has been cleaned up and sand-papered ready for nailing. For this purpose we will use three-quarter inch oval-headed brads, as shown at D, Fig. 3; these are much superior to the ordinary wire nails, as they are not so likely to split the wood; nor do they show so much head when nailed. Take the glued board B intended for the back, and fix it in the "grip" A, Fig. 3; to this the bottom board has to be nailed—it is an inch longer than the back, so be careful to halve this surplus length on each side. Now, with a very fine bradawl, make a few holes in the top board and proceed to carefully nail it; and if any nails go wrong, do not worry about them—let them alone until you have put in others to take their places, and then carefully draw them with the pliers. Now take one of the side boards and nail on to the back and top, Fig. 4, and treat the other end the same. Fix the top, and the box is made (Fig. 5).

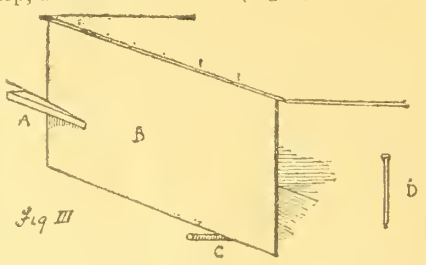

Fig III

We have now to convert our box into a cage, and to do so we must make a front and sand tray. Cut a strip of wood, three inches wide and nineteen inches in length, or just long enough to fit fairly tight between the sides to form the bottom rail. Measure off three-quarters of an inch down one side of this, and rip it down with the saw; this piece will do for the front of the sand tray, or to form a turn rail, if the fancier intends to have one.

The other piece of wood, two and a quarter inches wide, must be cut as shown in Fig. 6, to receive the egg pan. I am unable to give the size for this, as these pans vary, but the cage-maker can easily lay one on and mark with a pencil. My reasons for advising the egg pan to be at one end are first, that it simplifies the construction, and secondly, that it is not in the way of the bath when the latter is hung on (as it frequently has to be during the breeding season); and if the egg pan was placed in the centre of the cage it would be in the way, not only of the bath, but when the young are run into a nursery cage it would necessitate its being taken off each time a little fresh egg food was supplied.

A Distinction and a Difference.

Gardeners say that the Song Thrush will not touch fruit all the while it is able to obtain slugs or snails, whereas the Blackbird will leave both slugs and snails to feast on fruit. Undoubtedly the Blackbird is the more harmful of the two.

Wren Singing at Night.

In addition to the Nightingale, we have several birds that sing more or less after dark. One of these is the little Jenny Wren. She will frequently warble a few notes at night, especially when her roosting site is in a shrubbery near a house; a flash of light falling from a window on to the evergreens will at once start her singing.

Tits Covering their Eggs.

It is very seldom that one finds a Tit's nest with the eggs quite uncovered. Some watchers seem to think that the sitting bird covers the eggs before leaving them, but it is just possible this covering is mere accident, and is caused by the abundance of feathers which form the lining getting somewhat disarranged when the hen bird leaves the nest.

Hybrid Breeding: Its Pleasures & Difficulties.

By E. COLLINS (Barnstaple).

This arrangement for the water consists of an ordinary medicine bottle inverted in an open glass or earthenware drinking vessel. The materials required consist of a six or eight ounce flat bottle, an open drinker, and a thick, flat piece of wood about an inch wider than the bottle. The bottle and glass are wired to the wood in such a manner that the bottle shall be inverted with its mouth about a quarter of an inch into the drinker. Both should be wired so that they may be removed for cleaning purposes. Finish by nailing on two side pieces of wood to hold a front perch on a level with the drinking vessel. This may be hung at the back of the cage on a level with the perches. This plan ensures a good supply of water, and in addition the water is kept free from sawdust and dirt.

The Nesting Arrangements.

So much has already been said and written about nesting arrangements, that it seems almost unnecessary to touch upon this part of the subject. Yet I feel compelled to add a few words to the information supplied from various sources. I have tried almost every kind of nesting receptacle, and have found the ordinary wooden nest-box as successful as any. My boxes are fitted up in the following manner: A large clod of turf is placed in the box and hammered into the shade of a nest, the grass forming a good lining. If the nest shrinks a little in drying, a wedge between the nest and the back of the box will keep it steady. Round the outside of the box are fastened two wires, and between these and the box some small branches of fir fixed, leaving an opening on each side for the birds to enter and leave the nest at will. These wires should be placed low down so as to prevent the birds' claws becoming entangled when the bird is perching on the side of the nest-box. With very few exceptions my Britishers have taken to this nest, especially the Bullfinch hens.

Other very good nesting receptacles are the Hartz travelling cage with one end removed, an ordinary nest-pan lined with turf or felt and placed on the floor of the cage, or hung near the perch, or an old Blackbird's nest fixed in the bottom of one of those small back cages so frequently seen in bird shops. Another good plan is to supply your hen with a small bush of furze, or other suitable plant fixed in a pot, and it was my privilege in the summer of 1908 to see some splendidly constructed nests built in such receptacles in the aviaries of Mr. Denny Hunt,

A Choice of Sites

It is just as well to allow your hen a choice of building sites, giving her two kinds of nesting places, and these in two different positions. Some breeders advise placing the boxes high up near the roof of the cage, but there is always the danger of the eggs being dropped, and I find that the hens take to the nests equally well in the lower positions. I give my hens a certain amount of seclusion during the breeding season by fixing a large sheet of cardboard at the end containing the nesting places.

For building material I supply the Finches with the nests of wild birds, such as Linnets, Goldfinches, and Chaffinches, gathered the previous autumn after the nesting season. These nests are pulled to pieces, and the materials placed between the wires and on the cage bottoms. Dried grass is also a favourite building stuff. My Bullfinch hens are also supplied with fibrous roots and cocoanut fibre. The latter can be obtained from old door mats. After a good washing this material is ready for use. Cow hair is another excellent thing for nest-building, and my Canaries get no other.

Just one final word before leaving this part of my subject: Do not wait until you see that your hen wants to go off to nest before making all these preparations. This will mean disaster, for you will very likely upset your hen for the remainder of the breeding season. Perches should be brought low, and the nest-boxes and sawdust introduced not later than January or February, for then the birds will have become accustomed to the new arrangements before breeding time arrives.

The Importance of Careful Selection.

So far we have dealt only with the housing of our birds. We come now to another important matter for consideration, viz., the selection of our Finches for breeding purposes. I am afraid this matter does not receive the careful attention it deserves. Of course, I am assuming that it is the aim and ambition of every breeder to produce a specimen which shall bring credit to its owner; and that being so, it is essential that we should procure the best birds we can buy. This does not necessarily mean that we should pay a high price for them, for really good, fresh-caught birds are to be obtained at a reasonable figure. It is not always the exhibition bird which makes the right kind of bird for hybrid breeding; on the other hand, birds which in some way fall short of the exhibition standard will often make ideal specimens for the breeding cage. To give one instance, the Linnet from which I bred my Linnet-Bullfinch Hybrids was not by any means an exhibition specimen; it failed in breast marking, and was not so prominent in whites as some exhibition birds, but I have yet to see the Linnet I would sooner have for breeding purposes. Of great size, with fine head and breast, and wonderfully rich in colour, he was an ideal bird for the work required of him. A leading Welsh exhibitor pronounced him the finest Linnet he had ever seen. In the great majority of cases breeders are content to purchase the first Finches which come their way, and these are paired up in haphazard fashion without any thought as to their suitability to each other. Now, what should we say of the breeder of any variety of Canary who went to work in such fashion; and what would be the outcome of his season's work? I venture to suggest that he would be in a sorry plight at the end of the season. Instead of faults being rectified by then, they will have become intensified, and other faults will have appeared which will take years of work to correct again. It is just the same with the Hybrid breeder; with this important difference, however, that while the Canary breeder by the exercise of care and patience may put his house in order again, the breeder of Hybrids has to be satisfied with the result of his cross, for, as most of my readers are aware, it is of no use attempting to breed with our Hybrids, and it is better so, for such birds would lose their identity, and I tremble to think of the long names it would be necessary for us to use, say, after the sixth or seventh cross, in order to show how such-and-such a bird was produced.

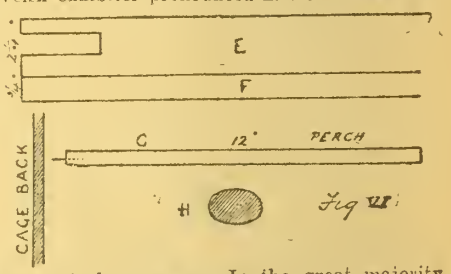

Fig VI

Points of the Breeders.

Remember, too, that the little extra expenditure involved in the purchase of the better class of bird is only an initial one, for the poor specimen, once he is in the bird-room, costs as much to house and feed as the better one, and is far less likely to produce satisfactory results. Birds of good size and shape should be selected, and we should be especially careful in regard to the latter point. For my own part, I would much prefer a bird of good shape and position to a larger one which was lacking in these properties. I would not, however, reject a bird which was weak in any one bad point, unless the weakness itself was a bad one. Suppose, for instance, you have a Bullfinch hen of good shape and carriage, and large stout body, but failing in head properties; do not reject such a specimen, but see that she is mated to a bird especially strong in these points. Avoid birds having bad wing and tail carriage, birds which crouch badly, and the "keel-chested" bird, for these faults are difficult to get rid of.

Colour an Important Factor.

We next come to another important point in making our choice of Finches—perhaps the most important of all—that is, colour. It seems hardly necessary for me to say that unless our Hybrids are rich and sound in colour they will stand very little chance on the show bench, and that being so, we must see that in selecting the prospective parents we procure birds of good rich colour. And remember, we should exercise as much care in the choice of our hens as in that of the cocks. Birds of poor colour should never be allowed to form part of our breeding stock, unless it is a hen, perhaps, which is wonderfully good in all other respects.

The Roller Canary: Its Breeding, Training & General Management.

By "SCHOOLMASTER."

This practical article is written by one of our leading present-day Roller experts who, however, wishes to remain anonymous.

"He is mighty hard to please; I wonder what he wants." This was the remark I overheard as I was leaving a bird stall in our local market, where some beautiful specimens of the German Canary were exposed for sale, but in my own opinion the beauty of these so-called specimens, lay in the imagination of the dealer who had them for sale. For nearly twenty years I have been a lover of any kind of a singing bird, both Canaries and Britishers, but it was not until I had visited an old friend of mine that I found my ideal. Perhaps it was, as some people would say, instinct, because at this time I did not know to what depth of song, combined with the beauty of the same, it was possible for a really high-class Roller to sing, more especially in the Glucke strain, and it is this Glucke strain that is more than holding its own to-day on the show bench, in spite of the faults which it brings out in the song. I have been reading the Roller show reports in CAGE BIRDS, with its hollow roll, hollow bell, schockel, etc., etc., with great interest, every time a show has been held, but it might have been Dutch for all I could make out of it, until I remembered that an old friend of mine had asked me to come over one Saturday afternoon and stay the week-end with him. There is no need to weary the reader of that 20-mile journey, only to say that many a negative answer had I to give in answer to "Are you off to see the cup-tie?" But it was of no use my telling a man who is not a fancier that football was nothing in my line, and that I had not seen a football match for 19 years.

The Deaf Heareth.

Arriving at my destination I found my friend at home. In answer to my enquiry, I was informed that he was upstairs in the bird-room. Calling at the foot of the stairs his wife could get no answer. "Perhaps he's having a nap?" I suggested. "Not he," was the reply, "he is listening to one of the birds singing; I can hear it, and it's useless calling any more until that bird has finished his song; but you go upstairs yourself—first door on the right." But when I got to this first door I could hear a regular chorus of singers, but they seemed to me to be at a great distance. Then I heard one, and one only, singing louder than the others. I tapped at the door; still no answer. I took French leave, as the old saying goes, and walked quietly in the room. There was my friend very much awake, but not until that bird had finished singing and he had closed the shutters of its cage did he turn his head to see who had entered. "Hello, old man, so you have turned up at last?" he said. "Oh, yes," said I, "I've been here some few minutes. Have you not heard you wife calling you?" With a sly wink and a smile, he said: "Many a time." Glancing down on the table in front of where my friend had been sitting I again saw this mysterious H.R.H.B.S., etc., and other letters that were not in the reports that I had seen in my CAGE BIRDS. In answer to my question, he said, "That is only just a little method of my own; but I will show you." He then approached a rack that was filled with shutter cages, and brought one cage and hung it on a nail in the wall in such a position that the bird could not be seen, unless you turned your head round, that is (I should say), if you were seated at the table.

Enraptured and Amazed.

A chair was placed for me in such a position that I could see right into the cage. After the doors were opened, the bird had not been open to the light more than two minutes before it began to sing. There was no need for my friend to tell me before-hand not to make a sudden movement, or I should stop the bird from singing. I sat amazed, or to quote the words of an old song: "Enraptured, amazed I was, my inmost soul was stirred." Now I had found something that would suit me, yet I had never thought it possible that a German Canary could bring out such deep tours. But one thing I noticed was that my friend never once raised his eyes from the paper that he kept figuring on until the bird had finished his song. Then he turned and closed the cage shutters with the remark, "That bird's hollow bell is improving." In answer to a question, he explained to me the meaning of what were then to me nothing but a mysterious lot of letters. After writing out on a sheet of paper the full tours it was possible for a bird to sing, he said, "Now, listen to this bird, and as it brings out its different notes I'll put a pencil mark underneath the names I have written down here." Opening the cage doors again, the bird started to sing, and as a mark was placed underneath several names, so was the letter G, M and P, which I afterwards understood meant that in my friend's opinion the particular tour in question was either good, moderate, or a poor one; also that he had no need to look at the bird when it was singing. And so I have found out since for myself; by practice, a trained ear can single out a good tour from a poor one, and a fault without looking at the bird; also tell the different tours and rolls from one another. I thought at the time that it must take a clever man to do this, but I suppose it is the same as in everything else, when you know how, it is very simple.

Subsisting on Song.

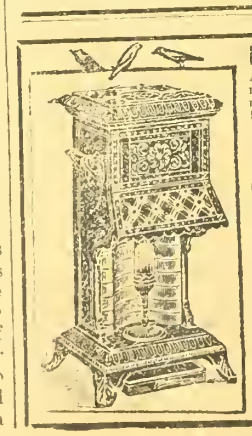
"Dad, tea is ready," came a voice from below. We went down, and many a good laugh we had. How our dad would sometimes call downstairs, "All right, I'm coming." "Yes," said the wife, "and usually when he does come his food is cold, and the rest of us have finished our meal."

After tea it was suggested that I should go and hear some more singers. "Are they the same kind as yours?" I asked. "Well, no; not exactly. I think some of them are dyed, whereas, as you see, mine are neither stained nor colour-fed." "Oh, he is trying to have a joke with you," said the wife; "he means that he suggests going to the Theatre of Varieties." "Then to-morrow," said my friend, "I'll show you my breeding room and the rest of the stock" But before that time had arrived I had bargained for a cock and two hens from him; also his methods of breeding, moulting, training and exhibiting.

Now, as every Roller fancier knows, this variety is making a remarkable headway in this country. Yet at the same time it is an absolute fact how little the average Canary fancier knows, as to the proper treatment required for the Roller Canary. And this is the more noticeable in districts where there is no Roller Club; and there are, I know, many who are willing to make a start if they could only be set on the right path, and it is to such that these lines are dictated

"First Things" for Beginners.

The first thing the beginner should most certainly set about before he purchases any stock is to decide where he will keep his birds when he has them. A light corner of a living kitchen is not a bad place; yet it is not nearly so good as a similar place in a bedroom, or any other room that gets plenty of light, and where no fire is burning during the daytime. You will find that in a living room all your work will be cut out to keep the red mite pest at bay. Another disadvantage is, hens do not feed their youngsters so well where people are continually passing in front of the cages. I think a great deal can be said against, and very little in favour of, breeding in a living room; but the choice of a room for breeding purposes must rest entirely with the fancier himself, as some have a spare bedroom, others being again fortunate to be able to erect a wooden house at their back premises. Should you decide upon the latter, see that it is stormproof, free from draughts, and not damp; also do not place the windows in such a position that in the summer time the sun will be pouring into the room for the greater portion of the day. And ventilate the place in such a way that cold draughts will not blow directly on the birds.



Now, as to cages. I do not intend to say much about these, i.e., the breeding cages, as so much has already been written concerning them. I myself use a two-compartment breeding cage, which is fitted with a removable, wooden partition; also a wire one, which slides into the middle of the cage. When breeding I allow each hen to have the two compartments to herself. Where this is possible, it is an excellent idea, and its uses I will describe at the proper time.

To be Taken as Before.

Having got cages fixed up in a suitable position, your next consideration are the birds themselves and their seed, but this latter must depend a great deal on how the birds have been used to being fed. Some fanciers use equal portions of best German summer rape and Canary seed mixed; others give a staple diet of rape, and allow about a small teaspoonful of Canary seed in a separate vessel each day. But it is much the better plan to adopt the same way of feeding as the birds have been used to, and this can be ascertained from the seller.

In purchasing your stock, place yourself in the hands of a respectable dealer or fancier. The number of birds to commence with must be left entirely to each individual concerned, as some of us are better blessed with this world's goods than others; but I would suggest procuring one cock and two hens of the best quality that the pocket will allow. If it is your aim to get a good, low-voiced cock to breed from, and afterwards to use as a schoolmaster to tutor your young cocks, you should by all means beg, buy, borrow (but don't steal) a Roller shutter-cage. You will want this when the cock is not being used in the breeding cage. If your pocket will not allow you to purchase a cock that is fit to act as a tutor, procure one that is as good a singer as you can afford, bred from a good strain; also, if possible, get your hens from the same strain and place. Don't think that, having got a good cock, any kind of a Common German hen will do to pair with him, or your results as far as turning out a good class of youngsters is concerned, will be nil, and too much attention cannot be paid in procuring suitable hens of the same strain as the cock.

THOMAS SMITH (Glasgow).

The choice of a Scotch Fancy hen Canary is of great importance in breeding. The disposition is to select a hen best suited for the male bird, which may be on hand. That is all right in a way, but the question comes: What is the most reliable basis to build upon? Speaking from experience, the best birds produced have come from a Buff hen. It is easier to get a solid foundation by her than by any other. The Yellow hen is of a lighter build and finer in the feather.

The desire of every breeder who goes into the Fancy with any spirit is to rear large birds of good substance. This can be done from the Buff hen well bred. She has a splendid physique, and is clothed with ample feather, which gives her the appearance that she will be equal to raising a family of stalwart chicks.

Many breeders have a preference for breeding two Buffs together. I have known grand results to come from double Buff breeding. It helps the size, and when a bird that has come from double-Buffing is bred with a Yellow, the product is nearly all Yellows, and the birds are larger, and are longer in feather than the young bred from parents that have descended from Yellow and Buff breeding for years. This is pretty well known by the leading breeders, but it is desirable to spread a knowledge of the fact.

Another advantage is that the Buff bird has usually the most prominent shoulders—an important desideratum in building up a reliable strain, the progenitors of a race of winners.

The Buff hen is usually a splendid hatcher and feeder, which enables the owner to do without foster parents; and this quality in the hen keeps her from laying clutches of eggs too close upon each other, thereby exhausting herself. A good hen should be preserved; which can best be done by keeping her in natural condition, which can be accomplished by allowing her to follow the natural course of laying, hatching and rearing. A big percentage of hens are wasted, and reach a premature death through being rushed in the matter of the laying of clutches of eggs. Everybody knows that is done in the common round of the bird room. Breeders should keep the Scotch Fancy Canary on a higher level.

The final effort to secure a good stock is made at the end or beginning of the year. Of course, the best have been disposed of, but a stray bargain may be obtained.

Some Recent Arrivals from Abroad.

By W. E. TESCHEMAKER, B.A.

The Massena Quail.

This handsome and rarely imported species has lately reached our Zoological Gardens, and has been advertised both in the English and the German trade. I have not seen those the Zoo obtained (I regret to hear that they have been carried off by mycosis), but we may be sure they were correctly identified, and the German dealer who advertised some is, I know, accurate in the matter of identification. The pair, however, which were shown me by one of our dealers a few days since were certainly not C. Montezumae, but Colins—I think the Cuban Colin (O. Cubanensis). The Massena Quail is found in Mexico and in Southern Texas, and is locally called the Black, or Foolish, Partridge, from the fact that, when flushed suddenly, they sometimes will attempt to conceal themselves on quite open ground, and can then be often knocked over by a stone. It is partial to rocky ravines. The short crest is reddish; the sides of the head, the throat and neck are strikingly masked with black and white spots, and the under parts deep black. The female lacks the black and white markings on the throat, and has the under-parts pale vinaceous. One of our best-known authorities on the Quails, to whom I referred the question whether this species had been bred in captivity, did not seem to recognise it by this name, and asked me if I meant the "Montezuma Quail." This, of course, is its scientific name, but Dresser, when describing in the Ibis in 1865 a collection of birds he had made in Southern Texas, called it the Massena Quail, and in Ogilvie Grant's "Game-birds" it is called the Massena Harlequin Quail: the Germans also seem to know it by this name, which therefore appears to have a good standing.

The real difficulty in breeding the Quails which are imported from the warm parts of America is only realised by those who have actually bred them. It is that most of these species go to nest in our country so late in the year that, by the time the young are hatched, the weather has generally become cold and unfavourable for rearing the delicate and chilly little chicks.

The Black Seed-Finch.

When Mr. Luer wrote me nearly a month since that he had received some "Blackbirds with a white bar on the wing, said to come from Cuba," I was completely mystified as to what the new arrivals could be. When, a few days later, I had an opportunity of inspecting them I was much interested to find that they were something quite new to me. That they were S. American Seed-finches of some sort was obvious, but I was not sure of the species so I did not include them in last month's notes. Mr. Allen Silver has since written me that he has identified them at the Natural History Museum as Melopyrrha nigra, for which courtesy my best thanks are due to him. They closely resemble Bullfinches in shape, though they are somewhat smaller and slighter, and have large, coarse beaks of the Grosbeak type. In colour they are jet black, with a prominent white patch on the wing in the neighbourhood of the bastard primary and a white bar across the flights, which, however, is mostly concealed by the greater coverts. One specimen I have examined has the secondaries marked with white only on the posterior margin, the other on both margins. Unlike the majority of the S. American Grosbeaks, the females of this species resemble the males in colour. Dr. Butler, in his most excellent "Foreign Cage Birds," tells us that they build globular nests, and are much valued in Cuba as cage birds for their song. As aviary birds, I am much pleased with mine. They are wonderfully hardy and have stood the recent sharp frosts well; they are also quite peaceable.

The Tropical Seed-Finch (Oryzoborus torridus).

Another rare species, which closely resembles the above in shape, and to some extent in colour, has been imported during the past autumn by Mr. Suggitt and Mr. Sutcliffe. The male has the under-parts chestnut (instead of black), and its beak is huge, rather like that of a Hawfinch. The female is a warm olive-brown. It inhabits Brazil, Guiana, etc. Mr. C. W. Beebe mentions ("Our Search for a Wilderness") having seen this Grosbeak at Georgetown in a private garden, and he subsequently succeeded in trapping some for the New York Zoo. I have lately had an opportunity of watching a young male come into colour. It took a couple of months to complete the process, the black feathers appearing a few at a time, and giving the bird a curious mottled appearance.

Gossip from the Palace Show.

A Grave Defect.
"That there Cock of the Rock is a rummy sort of a bird," said a countryman at the Palace. "He looks like Lord Nelson at the top end, but the bounder hasn't got one arm, let alone two!'

A New Species.
One fair lady enquired earnestly for the "Twist-neck" (Wryneck), but had to be told there was not one in the show. A wag amongst the bystanders suggested that perhaps the "Hatch-nut" would do as well!

Judging the Judges.
Re-judging the slim ones went on merrily on the Saturday, when the men from the North flocked in. The discussions were sometimes both hot and noisy, but good fellowship always prevailed, and generally ended in an adjournment. Talking's thirsty work!

Not Always to the Swift.
Two men simultaneously made up their minds to claim a Yorkshire Canary, and both started together to the office. One was lame, so was handicapped in the race, but he was cute enough to take a near cut, and just won by a head, much to the amusement of the onlookers.

'Ware Hens.
Hen Goldfinches and Linnets were fairly plentiful in the Novice British bird class, and the prices on them were such as to tempt the unwary; but the knowing ones would have nothing to do with them, in spite of their being entered by novices!

Points of Merit.
There was a good deal of argument over the winning British Bullie. Some said it won just on colour; others on cap and colour; and others even went so far as to say it was the best and most typical bird. But the judge had the first and the last word.

In Luck.
One buyer of a Parrot insisted upon his purchase being delivered home before his better half had her morning cup of tea. It was a present for her! Grutchfield cleaned it out, and good old Small took it home. The "tips" were so good that their only regret was it did not happen daily.

Looking for the Ideal.
We met one disconsolate Yorkie exhibitor roaming up and down the rows day after day looking for a certain buff cock. He could find the bird right enough, but the price was always wrong. When the price was all right the bird was all wrong. Let's hope he'll get t reight 'un later on.

Hunting for Hybrids.
Hybrids appeared to be much in demand. Everyone seemed to be looking for a possible winner at a reasonable figure, but those wanted were generally out of reach. There was quite a rush of would-be purchasers to the Novice section; but the Novices had made no mistake in fixing the prices.

Hard Hit.
A cheery, well-known South country exhibitor had a particularly bad time among the "chubby ones" (the worst at the Palace for many, many years), but although he was a bit put out at first, he soon regained his usual high spirits, and without a doubt he will come up smiling next year. May he do his usual share of the winning then.

The Annual Mistake.
The crowd on the Saturday were not all fanciers, as one could tell by the questions asked. There were many enquiries as to what was a "Mule." When informed by obliging officials, many of the enquirers seemed rather surprised that it had nothing to do with the humble but honest moke!

What Was It Saying?
It was being said that "G. G." quite blushed when told he had pased the wonderful talking Canary with only a v.h.c. card. "I don't know," said he, "but somehow or other I thought I saw its lips moving; but then I had sent in my judging slip."

The Right Class.
"Pa" and Harry were looking round the show on Friday, when "Pa" said: "I should like to be a bird and hear the ladies say 'Pretty dick,' 'Pretty boy.' Wouldn't give me t' prize, Harry, if thou had'st to judge me?' "Aye, if thou was t in t' talkin' class I would!" replied Mr. Battye.

Was He Joking?
At the judges' luncheon "Pa" Mundell said that if judges wanted to be popular they must have certain types of birds for different localities, also for different temperatures. Then wherever they went the locals would win, and the judges would be acclaimed "good fellows." When the local men didn't win, then "t' fat was in t' fire.'

A Quick Change Artist.
Mrs. Askham's charming Canary-Bullie "Copper" is quite a quick-change artist in its plumage. It is no secret that he damaged his wing, knocking out a primary feather, which grew again quite white. This he repeated no less than three times, and each time it came white. But at a fourth attempt the feather regained its natural colour, and so the fair owner was able to exhibit the bird once more, and get well up in the prize list.

A Quick Clearance.
"Show cleared and all birds handed to the railway companies by 10.30 p.m. on Tuesday night," writes Mr. J. W. Ramsden. May they all arrive home safe and well, say we.

Linseed N eded : Not Hemp.
One Norwich Plainhead had such a tremendously deep chest that it was said to have so rubbed the perch as to rub down the feathers bare to the skin at the point of the chest. It provoked from a very old exhibitor the remark, "It wants poulticing."

Two Protests.
We are informed by the show manager that a protest has been lodged against the Corn Bunting which took 2nd prize for Mrs. J. B. Caunt in the Novice section, it being alleged that the bird is not a genuine novice exhibit. The protest against Mr. F. Russell's Yellow-hammer was overruled (as mentioned in our report).

Sad News.
We were grieved to hear that our old friend Mr. Jos. Hills, the veteran fancier and judge, was stricken with severe eye-trouble, being now almost blind, and unable to get about unaided. He sent a telegram saying how much he would have liked to be present at the show. Mr. Sam Cook (Mr. Hill's life-long friend and co-judge) spent some hours at the Palace on the Monday.

Help!
Sister Mary bought a Canary
From our butcher's boy;
In our dairy, this little fairy
Since has been our joy.
But strange to say it never whistles—
Echo asketh why?
We've found some old cock Sparrow's bristles
Coming through the dye!
T. F. Morgan.

Nothing New Under the Sun.
The sensation of the show from the point of view of the ordinary visitor and the representatives of the daily papers was, of course, the talking Canary. But there was a talking Canary at the Palace so far back as 1875! Our friend, Mr. Francis, showed us a cutting from the "Illustrated Loudon News" containing this information, and stating that it was priced at £100. More curious still, the owner of this very bird wrote to Mr. Ramsden mentioning the fact, having read of the latest talker in his morning paper. It is said, too, that the Queen Mother, Alexandra, owned a talking Canary some years ago.

THE JUDGES' LUNCHEON.

This function was presided over by the President (Mr. G. Crabb), who was supported by Rev. G. H. Raynor, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsden and Ramsden, junr., Mr. and Mrs. Thynne, Mrs. Annungson, Messrs. Heath, Battye, Camps, Robson, Mundell, Matthes, Lugg, Dickins, Evins, Cousins, Green, Lott, Oldaker, Gardner, Dewar, Finn, Humphreys, Silver, Swaysland, Weston, House, Broadley, Norman, Pretty, Hodder, Mortlock, Milsum, Day, etc.

In proposing "The Judges," Mr. Crabb read a telegram he had received from Mr. J. F. Hills—"Hearty good wishes; my love to you all." Mr. W. O. Brooke, of Bournemouth, an old secretary of the L.P.O.S., had also written wishing them good luck. Mr. Crabb expressed the pleasure it gave him to welcome everyone present, and in referring to the show said that although they had not a record, the figures had only been beaten on two occasions, and with each of those special circumstances had been associated. This year had also been somewhat of a special occasion, not because of increased support, but, on the contrary, because of the opposition and fear of the C.B.U. The prophets had prophesied for them a bad year, but he would say—"Never prophesy unless you know." Turning to the exhibits, Mr. Crabb said the Crests, he was pleased to say, were exceptionally good, as were the Crest-breds. The Yorkshires, he was told, were the finest ever seen, whilst the Norwich also were good. Noticeable amongst the Britise was that great rarity, the Dartford Warbler, whilst the Foreigners, thanks to their Continental friends, were wonderful in beauty and rarity, such birds as the Sky Blue Budgerigars and the Cock of the Rock adding greatly to the interest of the show. Then they had the white Canaries, also the talking Canary. Therefore, he concluded, they could rest satisfied that the show had well maintained its reputation. He thanked the judges for the manner in which they had carried out their duties, and associated with the toast the names of Messrs. W. Mundell and W. Swaysland.

Mr. W. Mundell, in a humourous reply, said he did not know why they made such a fuss of the judges at the luncheon, because according to the Press the great success of the show was due to "the King of Show Managers," but, they could take it from him, it was not so; it was the judges who brought the entries. The competition that day had been unusually keen, and he considered the Yorkshires wonderfully good, especially the unflighted birds.

Mr. Swaysland emphasised Mr. Mundell's remarks in reference to the quality of the exhibits, and said that speaking for the judges, he believed all tried to do their duty, pleased themselves, and did not try to please every exhibitor.

Mr. Heath proposed "The Chairman," and Mr. Crabb responded, saying it was a pleasure to do what he could to help forward the Palace show, with which he had been associated for so many years.

PRESENTATION TO MR. WESLEY T. PAGE.

The Hon. Secretary of the Foreign Bird Club Honoured by His Fellow Members.

The occasion of the Crystal Palace Show was selected as a suitable time for an event of considerable interest to members of the Foreign Bird Club, for on the Saturday a representative gathering was held by the members of the Foreign Bird Club in one of the private dining rooms of the Palace for the purpose of presenting Mr. Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., with a framed, illuminated address, in token of the members' esteem for him as the Hon. Editor of the Club Magazine, "Bird Notes."

To readers of CAGE BIRDS Mr. Page has long been known as the expert adviser on all matters relating to the keeping, breeding, and identification of Foreign birds, while to those who specialise in Foreign birds, and who, like Mr. Page himself, keep the rarer species, he has become known as an expert in the art of keeping and even breeding out-of-the-way Foreigners.

The presentation was the outcome of a spontaneous request from certain prominent members of the Club that Mr. Page would accept some token of esteem, and of Mr. Page's rejoinder that any money subscribed should go to form a fund to be devoted to keeping up and even improving the already well-illustrated periodical, "Bird Notes." The presentation was preceded by a dinner, the first the Club has held, and Mr. Rogers, who was in the chair, and who was the moving spirit in this event, having duly proposed the toast of "The King," spoke of the skill, knowledge, and determination that Mr. Page had always devoted to the by no means easy task of firmly establishing the club and its magazine, and having in well-chosen words expressed what the club in general and those present in particular thought of Mr. Page's devotion to the cause, formally presented him with the testimonial amid the acclamations of his admirers.

Mr. Page, in response, said that had he only known that such a testimonial was intended to have been lavished on him he would have put his foot down, and had the cost devoted to another coloured plate, but as it was, he accepted it with all good wishes for the welfare of both the club and its magazine. Reviewing the past chequered history of the club, he spoke of the position the club was in at the time he succeeded Dr. Creswell in the Editorship, and although he did not mention it, it was known to all present that the membership of the club had gone steadily up until at the present time it stood at practically three times the number that subscribed when he became Editor. Not only had the strictly aviecultural part been raised to a high standard, but field notes by competent observers of birds in distant lands have appeared, giving the magazine a permanent scientific value, while the novice had not been forgotten.

Tribute was paid by Mr. Page to the loyal way the hon. business secretary and treasurer, Mr. Willford, and the hon. exhibitional secretary, Mr. Townsend, had helped to make the club the success it was, while the generous support, not of a few, but of many of the club's members, but for which the magazine could not in past years have been kept up to standard, was justly mentioned.

Mr. Sutcliffe spoke, and proposed the toast of "Mr. Page's Health," which all honoured, and after Mr. Page had again responded, and thanked them, the gathering, which included the chief officers of the club, the artist, and the publisher, broke up, and returned to admire the birds in the exhibition.

Solomon Not Wanted.
A lady came from Leo to the show on the Monday, and said that from what she had read she believed the talking Canary to be a bird which had escaped from her possession, as apparently it repeated the same words and answered to its description. She spoke of returning to the show on the Tuesday night to meet the owner of the bird. But apparently the fair claimant did not put in an appearance. And J. W. R. felt relieved.

Lost and and Found.
When putting up his stall on the Thursday evening, Mr. Joe Thomas (the well-known bird specialist, of Amblerthorn), hung his overcoat on a peg close at hand. It was a very cold night, and when he went to get this indispensable garment, lo! it had vanished. So Joe had to walk home without, and keep himself warm with—well, in the Yorkshire fashion. On the Saturday, however, the overcoat was found hanging once more on the same peg! Who was the cute individual that borrowed it? Mr. Thomas would like to shake him by the hand.

I must congratulate CAGE BIRDS on bringing out such an issue as your recent Birthday Number.—H. Hinkley, Jun. (Gravesend).

I have been a reader of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, for three years, and have learned a lot from it.—J. Scribbins (Exeter).

In sending us a copy of his association's balance-sheet for the year ended December, 1910, Mr. H. Dewhurst, secretary of the West London F.A., writes: You will see that the funds are gradually increasing, and this year we hope to further improve the financial standing of the society. The balance in hand is now £8 11s. 6d., which is £3 6s. more than at the beginning of the year. Mr. Dewhurst and his fellow officials are to be congratulated on this result.

Welsh Fanciers Visit the Palace Show.

By "Taffy."

To spend a day at the Palace Show has been the wish of a large number of South Wales fanciers, and thanks to Mr. S. H. George, secretary of the Swansea and District C.B. Society, who made the necessary arrangements with the railway company, they were able to travel up to London on Saturday last by saloon. The party numbered 22, made up of the following members of the different societies: Swansea, Messrs J. Richards, W. J. Jenkins, D. Williams, J. J. Rees, J. H. Ford, W. J. Ford, E. M. Evans, S. H. George, D. A. S. Longden; Morriston, D. Jeremy, W. H. Lewis, W. R. Morgans, W. H. Wilcox, J. T. Jones; Cardiff, H. J. Ford, A. Maggs, A. Shellam, G. Drake; Llanelly, D. R. Jones; Amanford, A. D. H. Hughes, S. H. Davies; Aberaman, W. Davies.

The Palace was reached about 12 o'clock. This being the first time that many of the party have had the pleasure of visiting this magnificent building, they were surprised at its vastness and the beautiful statues it contained. Yet another surprise was in store when they entered the show. The different societies in South Wales have held some grand shows, containing 800 and 900 birds, and have felt proud of them, but after visiting the Great Palace Show, our humble efforts are like a pebble on the beach compared to this show. The quantity and quality of the birds on view will long remain in the memory of the party. Having spent a few hours looking at the exhibits, of which the chief centre of attraction was the Foreign Section, the party broke up in sections, some going to see the sights of London, and others remaining in the show. Those who remained were well repaid, by coming into personal conversation with well-known breeders, and many a little tip was given to them which is bound to be helpful in time to come. It gave the writer great pleasure to be introduced to many fanciers whose names are household words at the club-room, and who are held in high esteem. Their kindness in giving the information asked for has increased the zeal to try and obtain the model which every fancier is trying to produce in his bird-room.

The party met at mid-night in Paddington Station, and having over one hour to wait before the train left for home, we broke out in song (as all Welshmen do), and this gathered a large company around them to listen to the Welsh airs, which, to all outward appearance were greatly enjoyed by the listeners. It was with feelings of regret we had to leave for home, taking with us the memory of a red-letter day, one that will live long and be retained by all the party for the hospitable manner in which we were entertained by the English fanciers at the Palace Show of 1911. May it be our good fortune that one day we shall be able to extend to them in like manner a hearty Welsh welcome.

Allow me to thank you for the good penny-worth you give novices like myself through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. Your plates are really a treat. Success to C. B. May it go on prospering.—John Knight (Aberdare).

The rule booklet of the Reading and Dist. C.B.S. has just been issued. It contains the names and addresses of the members, the names of the officials, and the rules of the society. The secretary is Mr. W. H. Pyke, 25, The Grove, Reading.

From the abstract of accounts, a copy of which was sent us by the secretary, Mr. W. Guthrie, we gather that the Kilmarnock O.C.B.S. has a balance in hand of £8 5s. The society is to be congratulated on their financially strong position.

"The British Journal Photographic Almanac and Photographer's Daily Companion for 1911" (published by Messrs. Henry Greenwood and Co., 24, Wellington-street, Strand, London, at 1s. net, and 1s. 6d. net, cloth), makes an imposing volume running into 1,350 pages. It contains much useful information, including an epitome of progress by the Editor, a directory of photographic societies and bodies, tables, weights, etc. The publishers are justly proud of the fact that the almanac has attained its jubilee.

How to Make Money from Poultry.

"How to Make Money from Poultry," by W. Powell Owen, is the latest and most up-to-date book on all phases of poultry culture. It is a practical guide that can be taken up by anyone, touching, as it does, such a wide range of subjects. The poultry fancier or poultry keeper can at once form an idea as to the branch most likely to be profitable with such conditions as he or she can give them. The book should be a most helpful one to all classes of poultry-keepers, as the chapters are short and pithy, and are classified under short, comprehensive headlines. The object of the work is self-explanatory, as the following list of chapters will go to prove:—"Poultry-keeping in towns"; "Modern Poultry Farming: its possibilities"; "The egg specialist"; "The Farming Specialist"; "The Table Specialist"; "The general farmer and his poultry"; "Poultry culture for the smallholder"; "The Backyard Farmer"; "The Backyard Farm"; "Home preservation of eggs"; "The day-old chick and duckling business"; "Golden rules for feeding"; "The golden egg problem solved: what experience has taught us"; "Common ailments of fowls and how to cure them"; "Profitable duck culture"; "On Geese and Turkeys." The book is post free 7d., and readers should make a point of ordering their copies per return from The Poultry Press, Ltd., 134, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—Q. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Scurfy Head.

Songstonian.—You should keep this apart from your other stock, to avoid any possible risk of contagion, and keep the cage and perches as clean as possible. Give plain canary only as staple diet, with a half teaspoonful of rape every second day, and on the alternate days twice each week for a month, give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut lightly dusted with flour of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed. Give a spray of watercress if available four or five times a week, otherwise substitute a morsel of banana, bit of raw carrot, or an occasional grape broken open. Keep the dietary to this for at least two months. Allow the bird to bathe freely in mild weather. In the drinking water give as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence and ten drops of lemon juice every second day for a week, and in the following week six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day, then miss a fortnight and repeat both weeks in the same order. Slightly moisten the bare places once with a small feather dipped in creosote, and afterwards smear three times a week with Sanocyllin. Report progress in, say, two months, hence, referring to this reply.

Roller, Song and Feeding.

A. B.—(1) As you say the Roller cock sings a good deal, and seems all right, I cannot imagine there is anything wrong with him. The low, soft song, such as you describe, is probably just the thing a real connoisseur of Roller song would admire, yet you fail to appreciate the excellent thing which you appear to have. It is quite common for cocks to get louder in song when mated, but this is a detriment rather than otherwise, to a good singing Roller. Have patience, and by mating up the bird again this coming season, by the time he gets over his next moult he will probably be high-voiced enough for you—though certainly not so good as a quality singing Roller. (2) I do not approve of your idea to permanently remove the hen's seed when she has young. If you find she is feeding on seed only, and the young do not seem to thrive on it, make the egg food as dainty as possible and add a little maw seed to it, or a pinch of soaked rape, but be careful of "souring"—and keep it on the dry side. You probably mixed it too moist for her fancy, or sticky. In this way coax her to take the egg food freely voluntarily. Also add a little crisp young green food fresh two or three times a day, and you may give a little soaked rape in a separate vessel. If, then, she still persists in feeding on seed, give a fresh supply of egg food and green food in the early morning, when she is keen on feeding, and remove the seed for two or three hours. Then return it during the middle of the day, and repeat the same operation in the afternoon, just before she starts feeding up for the night. Pardon my not intruding on my colleagues' domain. See Messrs. Weston and Page's columns next week for replies in their departments.

Moulting and Wheezing (A Worried Reader).—It is quite a usual thing for any little weakness a bird suffers from to show itself in an aggravated form during moulting, which explains the return of your bird's trouble with each moult. Keep it in a fairly warm and equable place, but not over-heated, and see that it is quite free from draughts. Give the plain canary and rape seed diet, as staple. Every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed, and on the alternate days give a morsel of banana and a few grains of hemp. In the drinking water give four drops of tincture of gentian and two of tincture of steel every second day for a fortnight. If the bird refuses this remove its drinker at night, and having filled it with the medicated water next morning place it on cage for ten or fifteen minutes. Then remove it again for a couple of hours or so, and again replace it for a short time. Continue thus throughout the day, when the bird will probably take a sip or two each time it is replaced. After the moulting is stopped you might give the bird a course of the mixture advised to "Novice" for a fortnight or so.

Too Late (J. A.).—Sorry reply came too late to be of service this time. To provide against such cases you would do well to keep the nutshell booklet on "Ailments of Cage Birds," or Part VI. of "Our Canaries," by you.

Wing Drooping (A Beginner).—The drooping wing from such a cause as you say would not affect the bird breeding in the least, nor be likely to affect the progeny in any way, so you may quite safely use him for breeding. It is probable that the accident strained the tendons of the wing, and in course of time the wing may grow stronger and improve considerably in carriage.

Sand for Cage Floors (Inquirer).—Both samples you sent are excellent for particular purposes. No. 1 is the best for ordinary use all the year round. No 2, which appears to be a nice clean sample of finely crushed oyster shell, would be excellent for breeding birds during the nesting season to prevent egg-binding in the hens. It would not be necessary to use it solely. A tablespoonful, or less, placed in a little heap on the other sand three times a week whilst a hen was nesting would suffice to answer the intended purpose. No trouble at all to help you.

Heating Room (Rita).—Beyond saying the room is a small one, you give no idea of its actual size, but still, judging from the general points given in your enquiry, I have no hesitation in saying the best form of heat for your conditions is a small hot water coil heated by a bunsen gas burner, placed about the middle of the room, and connected with the gas stove by a flexible tube. Any gas-fitter would arrange this for you, and the cost would probably be but small.

Out-door Aviary (T. B.).—The aviary seems to be ideally placed for your purpose, and there is no reason whatever why you should not breed very successfully in it. It is, however, very small, and for breeding, one cock and three hens would be quite sufficient to stock it. That being so, you should try for one variety only—putting in either one cock Canary, or, if you prefer to use the finnets, you might put in two of them. But do not introduce two cock Canaries by any means. Treat the aviary and surroundings with virus, to clear the mice. Give the seeds in separate vessels, to prevent waste. You would find "Aviaries, Bird-rooms and Cages," 2/3, post free, from our Manager, of great assistance.

Distemper Washing off (Ignoramus).—(1) You omit to mention what distemper you used, so I cannot say whether your experience is the usual one. I should advise you to write the maker, enclosing a stamped envelope, and tell him exactly how you mixed the stuff and whether you used hot or cold water, and the quantity, and ask him to kindly tell you how or where you went wrong. This he would doubtless gladly do, and also inform you how to mix and use it to make it adhere better. (2) I do not think the 36 in. breeding cage would accommodate four birds separately, if divided into this number of compartments. The compartments would be altogether too cramped and awkwardly shaped.

Canary Querists should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "House's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

Swelling on Leg (B. Y.).—Continue painting both swellings as previously advised, three times a week, for a month. If they are not then absorbed, and still feel solid, allow a few days to elapse, then bathe one leg in fairly warm water, dry it, and carefully prick the surface skin with a clean needle and press out the cheesy contents. Wash clean, and anoint for a day or two afterwards with carbolised vaseline. When that leg is quite recovered, treat the other in the same way. Add as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence to the drinking water every second day for a week, and in the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day.

Blindness and High Condition (Nelly, Birmingham).—(1) With the data at my disposal I cannot account for the Roller going quite blind suddenly. I am inclined to think the affliction has developed more gradually than you imagine, though you have not been aware of it. You might get your chemist to mix you five grains of yellow oxide of mercury in half an ounce of spermaceti ointment, and place a morsel of this, about the size of a pin's head, in each eye, once a day, for a time, holding his head whilst it melts, and assisting it to work well around and under the eyelid. Candidly, I do not think you will do any good for it. (2) Your feeding is very good. It is quite natural for young cocks to be in high condition and full song at this time. There is probably nothing to be concerned about.

Mopy Yorkshire and Red Mites (M. F.).—The treatment you purposed starting with would answer very fairly, and if the bird has not shuffled off the coil of mortality, it will be chiefly due to that treatment. As a staple diet give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar, and on the alternate days a morsel of green food and a pinch of maw. Continue this diet until she eats seed freely again. In the drinking water give first the aperient mixture, and in the following week the gentian mixture, both as you purposed doing. No, red mite would not be the sole cause of this condition. By the bye, you must examine the cage and all cracks, holes, joints, or corners for this pest, and not the bird. Pour a pint of boiling water over two teaspoonfuls of quassia chips, broken quite small, at night, stir well, allow to stand till next morning, when you may pour off the clear liquid into the baths. I would not advise you to spray the birds at this season, more particularly the one that is out of condition.

Makes No Sound (Stultus).—This condition is so frequently associated with exposure to draughts or extreme fluctuations of temperature that I would advise you to look again very carefully into these matters and see that they really do not exist. Give half a teaspoonful of sponge cake prepared as advised to "A Worried Reader," every second day for a fortnight, and sprinkle it with a mixture of equal parts maw and gold of pleasure. On the alternate days give a morsel of paste made by well mixing on a warm plate a tablespoonful of honey, teaspoonful of cod liver oil emulsion, as much chlorate of potash as will cover a shilling, and half the quantity of grain of paradise, add sufficient finely powdered biscuit to make a soft paste. When quite cold it will be harder, and you can cut a piece off the size of a large pea, and stick it on the end of a perch. Shall be glad to hear of progress at end of fortnight, and will then advise further if necessary.

Population (G. B. F.).—Although not indicated, I take it you mean 14ft. by 7ft., as the size of your aviary. If this is correct, it would accommodate 100 birds at its full capacity. But for breeding 80 would be sufficient to start the season with. You will not require pairs, as you do not want to have as many cocks as hens in a place of this kind. Say, five or six cocks and 25 hens, which will be ample. Put up at least 30 nesting places.

Bronchial Trouble (Novice).—You could certainly introduce the two Canaries you mention—hens, I presume—into the aviary when the weather gets mild and settled, and use them for feeders with safety so far as the other birds are concerned. There is no danger of infecting the other birds, if that is what you mean. There is, however, a great risk of the plan aggravating the bronchial condition, and hastening a climax. Try keeping them in a comfortable temperature, quite free from draughts, and under healthful conditions. Feed as frequently advised here; give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it three times a week for a month, and every second day for the same time add 20 drops of the following mixture to the water. Mixture: 2 drams each glycerine and oxymel of squills, one dram each chlorodyne and Ipecacuanha wine, and six grains of iodide of potassium. Any chemist will mix it for you.

Best Paint for Cages (C. J. R.).—There is not much to choose between them so far as the effect on red mites for the time being is concerned. Where a number of birds are kept, red mites will occur from time to time, no matter what paint is used on the cages, thereby necessitating renewed attacks upon them at intervals. To clear them out as thoroughly as possible, all the cages, appurtenances, and position, should be overhauled at one operation. Having well cleaned cages, wash them with a solution of a tablespoonful of Jeye's Fluid in a quart of water, using this as you would a whitewash, and working it well into joints and corners with a paint brush. When dry this operation may be repeated next day, if desirable. Then, finally, paint or distemper them. For distemper, Hall's Sanitary washable is excellent. For paint, any working painter may be asked to mix the required quantity of good hard drying "flatting" of the desired shade. In ready-made paints Maurice's Porcelcine is the best I know, and electric green the best colour for your purpose.

Covering Cage, etc. (Norwich).—(1) There can be no harm at all in throwing a light cover over the cage in the evening, and if there is any risk of draught or the room becomes chilly late in the evening it would be a decided advantage. It certainly gives the birds more rest by inducing them to go to roost much earlier than they otherwise would do. As to whether they are quite as happy is merely a question of sentiment which I think we humans, not having the brain or "mind" of a bird, cannot presume to answer. If they are not most happy under such careful management then they must be very ungrateful creatures. Personally I do not suppose they care a "rap" one way or the other (2) The cage you describe is really only big enough for one bird. It is too small for a single breeding cage, although if you introduced a hen they would make attempts at breeding. If birds could really reflect upon their conditions of life, I should say a pair of birds kept continually in such cramped quarters certainly would not be happy.

Weak on Perch (R. W.).—Give a staple diet of plain canary seed. Every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Give a spray of watercress or two young dandelion leaves if available in good condition four times a week, otherwise substitute a morsel of banana. Give also a grape, broken open, and add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to the water for two days. After this give 20 drops of whisky, six each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, in the water every second day for a fortnight, and, on the alternate days in the first week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid.

Roller with Looseness (German Rape).—A new and unseasoned rape seed will often cause a deal of looseness in birds, but as none of your other birds were similarly affected, I should scarcely expect it was the cause in your case. Mild, nutty, and sweet, well seasoned summer rape will not harm the health or voice of the best Rollers, whether it costs 3d., or 5d. per lb., and good seed can be had at the former figure. To check the looseness give first six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for one day only, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of aromatic sulphuric acid for a few days. Add a pinch of crushed plain dry biscuit to its diet daily, and every second day give a morsel of banana and a pinch of good sound hemp, until looseness is corrected.

Three Queries (Norwich).—Your first letter is, I believe, replied to this week, and your first two questions in the second letter dealt with in that reply. As regards No. 3, leaving birds alone if the weather is cool, and mild, the water supply would not be difficult to get over in a four days' absence, but if very warm and sultry it would doubtless be risky. However, if there is nothing else for it—no one you can depend upon to give them fresh water each day—you can, for a special occasion like this, get over the difficulty with the minimum of risk by getting a blue-topped type of self-supply fountain for each cage, and setting it in one corner on the floor inside the cage. These will hold ample for two birds for four days. You would need to use them for a few days before leaving the birds in order to be sure they were accustomed to them. If the weather is sultry, Jones's Hygienic drinkers would be best, as you could place inside each drinker a piece of charcoal which would ensure the water keeping sweet and fresh for this length of time.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Identity of Bird (H. Lawton).—The body you sent me was that of a Tree Creeper, a delicate insectivorous bird, not easy to keep in captivity except by skilled aviculturists.

Seed Samples (A. L.).—(1) This rape looks to be somewhat dusty and full of "bits"; it should certainly be well shaken in a sieve before being used. (2) This looks like gold of pleasure seed. All seed should be sieved before being given to birds.

Pair of Bearded Tits (G. B. T.).—Your treatment (feeding on a good quality insectile mixture and such live foods as are available) is substantially correct. Give them a teaspoontul of maw-seed 2 or 3 times a week in addition. I should not turn them out into the aviary until the end of March or beginning of April.

Feeding a Siskin (T.B.).—Note reply given "Mortimer" this week. Your wish will be speedily realised, for a "Nutshell" booklet dealing with the Siskin, Twite and Redpoll will be published in the course of a week or so. Send to our publisher for a copy of it.

The Redpoll-Greenfinch Hybrid (Trier).—This hybrid is not really a rare one—some examples appeared in the classes I judged last week-end at the Crystal Palace. They are not often seen on the show-bench, because they stand but a poor chance in the average classification, against Goldie-Bullie, Canary-Bullie, etc., Hybrids, of getting a prize worth the having.

A Linnet "Flushed" (S. J.).—I regret to say that I really do not know what you mean by "flushed," and your letter does not help me to solve the puzzle. If you will kindly explain the nature of the trouble you refer to as "going flushed," I will try to help you. I shouldn't give salts unless the state of the bird's bowels calls for the use of this opening medicine.

Redpoll Not Singing (Reeding).—The mixture you name is too generous for every-day use, containing too many oily fattening seeds. Leave out the linseed and hemp; and only give the sunflower to the Chaffinch. Get one ounce of dandelion juice (taraxacum) from a chemist, and for 5 or 6 days stir a small teaspoonful into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water.

In An Aviary (J. Smith).—All the Finch family (which includes the Buntings) will thrive upon seed and would be suitable for your aviary, which will comfortably hold 16 to 20 birds. Try cocks of any of the following species: Goldfinch, Bullfinch, Bramblefinch (one only), Linnet, Chaffinch (one only), Twite, Redpoll (Mealy and Lesser), Siskin, Greenfinch, Yellow, Cirl, and Reed Buntings.

The Canary was Frightened (Newport).—I should just think the cock Canary was frightened. I expect he looked upon the hen Bullie as some apparition from the lower regions. You sprung her upon him too suddenly. But I also expect that he has got over his feelings of alarm ere this. You have done the right thing in running them together. But I am puzzled to understand why you left a hen Canary in with them.

Breeding from Mules (F. Nash).—It is impossible to answer your question as to "which is the hardest to breed from—Goldfinch or Linnet Mules," because only two or three instances of Mules having bred have ever been recorded; many people, in fact, won't even now admit that they will breed at all. You will find it a pretty hard job, I fancy, to breed from either. So I leave you to take your choice. A gentleman residing on the Wear-side recently put it on record in CAGE BIRDS that he had bred several youngsters from a Linnet Mule.

Siskin's Loss of Feathers (Mortimer).—If any "stumps" have been left in, then these feathers will not, of course, be renewed until the bird has moulted. If plucked clean out, then they will be fully grown again in 5 or 6 weeks' time. The best stock seed mixture would be a somewhat plain one, as these birds are so very apt to put on fat: canary and teazle two parts each and summer rape one part would answer well. Give a feed of packet Finch mixture once a week; likewise wild seed mixture.

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

The Case of a Blackbird (A Constant Reader).—I think the bird is a little down in condition, that is all. I hope you have him in a good-sized cage and afford him frequent opportunities of taking a bath—the latter is essential to continued good health. Give him some ripe fruit frequently—banana, etc. Get a small bottle of Parrish's Chemical Food (any good chemist), and every other day well mix a small teaspoonful into the bird's supply of soft food. This should soon "buck him up."

A Lark's Plumage (R. Hayhurst).—Keeping a Lark in too warm a room will certainly tend to produce a bad state of plumage, and probably you are right in attributing the trouble to this. A Lark does not want niger seed, but groats (or coarse oatmeal) and canary seeds, varied with maw and freshly-cracked hemp. Sprouting (soaked) summer rape is also a grand thing for them. I suppose it is not possible that the bird is being worried by grey lice? These are extremely troublesome to Skylarks, and no bird can flourish and be in good plumage where they are present. If you catch the bird and hold it for a short time, you will find these lice running on your hand if any are present. In any case, give the Lark a light spray two or three times a week, and while he is wet dust him well all over with bird sand. This is a splendid way to get any kind of Lark into a hard, tight, show condition of plumage.

The Case of a Goldfinch (W. H. L. Cardiff).—You appear to have got hold of a very tame and accommodating Finch, but I advise you not to persist in giving him plum cake regularly to eat. He'll soon develop "a liver" if you do. Give a few doses of dandelion juice, as advised "Reeding" this week. If he then still seems dull, write me again. There can't be much wrong with him, however, or he wouldn't sing at all. A box cage is much to be preferred to an all-wire one. Spray him, by all means, on suitable days (not wet and cold ones), and add to a teacupful of the water a teaspoonful of infusion of quassia, obtained from a chemist. This is harmless, but will soon shift any chemist. This is harmless, but will soon shift any red mite; keep the cage free from these pests. Get a medium-sized chubby-built (Norwich type) hen Canary (yellow for preference), and pair them at the end of March.

A Variety (Hybrid).—(1) I moult my own Hawfinches in large cages. They are apt to get very wild if turned into an aviary, but do not damage other birds (are not viciously inclined). Your best method of feeding would be to buy a packet of Finch (not Parrot) mixture, and add to it twice its bulk of white sunflower seed. (2) It is always the safest plan to remove the Goldfinch and let the hen Canary be alone while batching the eggs and rearing the young. Some Finches won't interfere, but they are the exceptions. (3) As regards nesting receptacles, note the article on Hybrid breeding published this week, by Mr. Collins. It will tell you all you want to know. Under the circumstances you name I think the hen Greenies would bring up the young.

Two Items (S. Clark).—The best covering for the inside of a flight cage is a good sanitary washable distemper, such as "Duresco," or Hall's. You could order this through any paint-shop. Some paints might be dangerous. CAGE BIRDS a short time ago gave a coloured plate of the male and female Hawfinch; I advise you to send for a copy. The sex difference is very much the same as in the case of a Chaffinch, viz., the hen is very much greyer than her mate, lacking the warm browns found in his plumage, while her bib, by comparison, is small and ashen in colour.

A Siberian Hybrid Couple (No Nom-de-plume).—I advise you to follow the detailed instructions being given by Mr. E. Collins in his article upon Hybrid breeding, which is now running in our columns. This fancier is known to me personally, and is a very practical enthusiast. Very much hemp seed is not good for either Siberian Goldies or Bullies at the commencement of the breeding season, especially those who exhibit a tendency to put on superfluous fat. "Fat" birds—podgy birds—are certain failures in the breeding cage. The hens want very carefully choosing, preference being given to big, long-sided birds. The huge, big-chested, very thick-set hens are all right for show purposes, but not as breeders, for they are generally lazy and sluggish, and soon get as fat as prize pigs. Restrict the quantity of both hemp and sunflower once the birds get "well on seed."

Concerning the Bramblefinch (J. K.).—(1) The Bramblefinch should be fed on almost exactly the same lines as the Chaffinch—Finch seed mixture as the staple, with a little sunflower seed added. Note the article written round the coloured plate this week, which will give you much valuable information. (2) The hen Bramble lacks the black hood and reddish-orange breast of the male. The sexes are extremely easy to distinguish. The difference is very much the same as that between cock and hen Chaffinch. (3) Some Brambles absolutely cannot be tamed, and this kind ought to be given their liberty. A bird of good disposition should be chosen in the first place—one that takes the perches without ever "hashing" at the wires. Such a bird soon becomes tame. (4) The Bramble has no song, strictly speaking—just a curious jumble of notes.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Breeding Grey Parrots.

A. E. B.—(1) Yes, the bare skin round the eye is pointed or rather, perhaps, somewhat pear-shape; at the back of the eye in the male; in the female this position is comparatively round in comparison. In a recent issue of CAGE BIRDS a coloured plate was given, showing these distinctions clearly, also the slight difference in the shape of the back. If you have not got the plate you should certainly send to the Editor for a copy. (2) The age is doubtful, but so far as present knowledge goes, not before three years old—rather early in the year. (3) Parrots and Parrakeets are rather irregular creatures in captivity, and there would certainly be a good prospect of them doing so, though your patience would probably be severely tried before actual results came, but the Grey Parrot has been bred in captivity in this country. However, the shelter attached to your aviary must be dry and damp proof. (4) Seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit, green food (lettuce, etc.); you must also supply cuttlebone, grit, old mortar rubbish, and water ad lib. for drinking and bathing.

About Budgerigars.

Amateur.—The advice is quite correct; it is better to separate the sexes in the winter, and not put them together till April, when they can be put into their breeding quarters and left to choose their own mates. If the sexes are left together all the year round, there are apt to be losses from egg-binding during the winter months—these risks are greater indoors than in an outdoor aviary—also the birds breed almost continuously when not separated for the winter, and this soon exhausts the stock. Nevertheless, with my own birds I have not separated them; losses have been very few, and they are so prolific that replaces were always to hand To get best results, the separation system is really best, and the young should be removed to a separate flight as soon as able to fend for themselves.

Avadavats in Poor Plumage.

Perplexed.—Keep this bird at the present season in fairly warm quarters, at the same time it must have fresh air without draught. Keep a millet spray continually in the cage, also a slice of ripe apple between the wires of the cage, and put a little of Parrish's Chemical Food in the drinking water. Also let it have a daily bath of chilled water, unless the weather is very exceptional, in a warmish room there will be no risk, if the cage is kept in some position free from draught. It would also be advisable to anoint the bare places with a little clean vaseline; do not use sufficient for it to run into the plumage and make it greasy. You must watch the bowels, and if the voidings are at all hard, you must occasionally put half a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into the drinking water—ordinary sized drinker—in lieu of the Chemical Food. There is no need to destroy the bird, though recovery may be tardy, it will eventually look as well as ever again—it is the difference of temperature between your room and the shop that was the cause of the trouble.

What Parrot? ("Constant Reader").—Compelled to put off replying to your query till next week.

For an Outdoor Cage ("Ginger VII.").—It is too early in the year for you to begin in an outdoor aviary; the treatment and arrangements you name will suffice, but in so small a place, even in summer weather, a covering should be put over the netting, with, of course, proper provision for ventilation. Put in pairs of Zebra Finches, Cutthroats, Bronze-wing Mannikins, and Spice Finches. Natural branches for perches all round back and ends of cage, at back of these being one or two Hartz travelling cages, with one of the bars cut away and internal fitting removed, also a small box or two, in such a position that they will be screened by the twiggy branches. Diet: Canary, white millet, spray millet, and a few crushed oats, with green-food, grit, cuttlebone and water ad. lib., for drinking and bathing. You must not put the birds outside till first week in May.

Parrot with Weak Eyes ("Chin-Chin").—You must continue the treatment for the eyes, and while the bird must have air, you must carefully keep it out of draught. Glad to note there is so great an improvement in its condition. There is nothing like stopping a cold in time. I do not know of an instance of the diluted glyco-thymoline proving ineffective for running at the nostrils, and presume it will soon yield to treatment. Have sent you a post-card.

Grey Parot with Swelling (F.E.R.).—It is impossible for me to say whether the swelling needs pricking; only a vet. could do that; it would be better to consult one. Keep the bowels properly regulated with Dinneford's Magnesia, one teaspoonful to the ordinary sized drinker, and not oftener than every fourth day; on other days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. You must keep the bird strictly out of draught, and you might try—if you do not wish to consult a vet.—bathing the swelling daily with a Rose-water and Zinc eye solution (from any chemist), and report progress about a fortnight hence. Your dietary is about right, but she might have a few nuts, hazel, pea, or shelled walnuts.

Are they Cockatels? (T. Bailey).—Yes, they are Cockatels, but I cannot say whether they are adult or whether you have a true pair. But you can tell from the following description the sex of your birds, unless they are mere nestlings. The male has the sides of the face bright primrose-yellow, with the ear-coverts bright red, and the underside of tail plain grey. The female has the head all grey with slight wash only of yellow on the sides of the face, and red on the ear-coverts over the grey; the underside of her tail is laterally barred with grey, white and pale yellow. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet, greenfood, ripe apple, etc., few oats, and occasionally a few small pieces of plain biscuit, with cuttlebone, grit, and water ad. lib. for drinking and bathing. The nest-box should be about 9 by 6 inches, and the bottom of it must be concave, or the eggs will roll about and spoil; they use no nesting material.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Robert Howe.—Death arose from bronchitis. There was also emphysema of the lung; that is to say, a broken-up condition of the air spaces of the lungs at their borders, which, when present, produces symptoms of asthma. Being thus affected, the bird was more predisposed to attacks of bronchitis than a healthy one would be, and consequently more influenced by fluctuations of temperature.

J. E. Pink.—The symptoms you describe were due to brain pressure from a clot of blood on its surface. Irresponsible movements, unsteadiness of gait, and an alteration in the carriage of the head and neck sometimes appear together, whilst at other times only one of these symptoms may be manifest. The Bullfinch was in high condition, and contained a quantity of interual fat. Possibly some alteration in the texture of the walls of the arteries and exceedingly high blood pressure was the exciting cause. You evidently feed too high, and I should advise care in this respect in future.

W.A.J.S.—Your bird died in a fit, possibly from fright or some other form of excitement. The brain was highly congested; otherwise, the bird was very healthy and showed no signs of pre-existing disease.

F. H. D.—The bowels were in a highly inflammatory condition, and as you have omitted to afford me any history as to dieting, whether any symptoms shown, or the duration of its illness, it is difficult to arrive at the solution as to its cause. Irritants consumed with the food, bacteria, and even spells of wet cold weather, are all capable of producing such lesions. I should think death must have occurred fairly rapidly, and that a high temperature existed. The spleen (milt) was a little enlarged, but I could find no evidence of contagion.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A Report (A. Bryden).—We are very much obliged to you for the trouble you have taken.

A Cheap Spray (J. H. Barnes).—Is not this spray one that is on sale at bird shops, etc., as the "Trumpet Bird Spray?" We want new ideas, or ideas which are not widely known.

A Special Prize (T. Truman).—In our opinion, if the novice class was open to all-comers, whether members or otherwise of your society, then any members' bird in this said class is entitled to compete for the special for "best bird shown by member in the open classes."

A Suggestion (P. H. Harris).—Thanks for your suggestion as to an article. We will endeavour to publish one when the colour-feeding season comes round.

Unable to Find (S. Mason).—We are sorry you should have had a fruitless journey. We believe it was a printer's error, however, and that Stockport should have been the town Breeding Mealworms (E. Gilham).—Mr. Mallett's letter dealing with the breeding of mealworms was published in our issue of Oct. 24, 1908.

Press Cuttings (G. B. Vanner, S. Hogg, and others).—We thank you for the interesting news items sent us.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.A.

Meeting held Gothenburg, Mr. J. Stenhouse (president) in the chair. Agreed, to add a hen selling class for Borders, price 7s. 6d., also selling class for Crest-breds, 15s., and to make hen British class read, "Hen British not larger than a Lark." A number of judges were proposed to judge open show Oct. 21st. Agreed, to apply for all club patronages in Scotland. Also to have lecture by Mr. Steel (Dalkeith) on March 3rd. Mr. P. Penman was admitted a member.—A. Dickson.

WIGAN AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Special meeting held Jan. 21st, headquarters, "Legs of Man" Hotel, Mr. Roberts in chair. There was an excellent gathering. Three new members proposed during evening. A lot of business was got through, the main business being how to meet loss on Roller and open show. Decided, to have a draw to meet loss, 23 prizes being given by the members, which generous response speaks well for the good feeling and sportsmanlike spirit which prevailed. We hope this will clear all our liabilities and give us a hit to start the season with.—W. Dyer, Asst. Sec.

WEST STANLEY AND DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting held Jan. 28th, when prize money was paid, and afterwards about 70 members and guests sat down to supper, provided by their president, Mr. J. Langsdale. After tables were cleared Mr. Langsdale presented Mr. Butler with challenge cup won by six nominated birds. Members also presented their host and hostess with a silver cigarette case and a silver brooch. The rest of the evening was spent in singing: Songs, by Messrs. Langsdale, Tarn, Long, Foster, Urwin, Pyle, Wilkinson, Hutchinson, Laverick, and Mellon. Arranged, to give £1 for an open Linnet show, field moulted, and entrance money added, to be held Feb. 25; allowing six-mile radius.—W. Elliott, Sec.

PELTON FELL AND DIS. C.B.S.

Annual meeting held Old Institute Hall, Jan. 23rd, Mr. J. Stanger in chair. Balance sheet for 1910 read by the treasurer, Mr. W. Forster, which showed a grand balance, thanks to our good patrons in the Pelton district. We commenced 1910 season with 4/6 in the funds, and after running our annual open and members' shows, paying out all prize money and specials, we are left with a balance of £3 19s. 6d. Vote of thanks accorded our patrons for their generous support, and also to our secretary, chairman, treasurer, and committee. Election of officers: —Chairman, Mr. J. Stanger; secretary, Wm. Forster, 6, Hett Hills, Pelton Fell. S.O.; committee, L. Hall, W. Davison, J. H. Elliot, E. Forster, J. McDonald. We then had eight new members nominated:—Messrs. W. Butler, R. Peart, E. Atkinson, of West Stanley; J. McDonald, Old Pelton; J. Archer, Pelton Stanley; J. McDonald, Chesterlest; — Fenwick, and — Fell; — Miller, Chesterlest; — Fenwick, and — Dixon, of Houghton-le-Spring. Open for members, any radius; subs. 5/- per ann., with 1/- to join. Wm. Forster, Secretary.

NORTHERN LIZARD CLUB.

Meeting held Feb. 4th, headquarters, Mr. Jeffrey chair. A discussion ensued regarding our cages, but this was deferred. A pleasant discussion followed. On the motion of Mr. Jeffrey a vote of thanks was accorded the sec. for his services in the past season. We invite all to whom the Lizard appeals, to come and strengthen our ranks. Contributions only 2s. 6d. per annum.—G. Davidson, Sec.

BOURNEMOUTH AND DIS. C.B.A.

20th annual general meeting held Albert Restaurant, Jan. 20th, 26 members being present. The chair was occupied by Mr. G. W. Jones. The hon. sec. gave his report on the past year, and presented the balance sheet, which was passed as audited by Messrs. S. M. Davies and R. R. Churcher, who were cordially thanked for their services and re-elected. Chairman asked that a vote of thanks be accorded the retiring officers and committee—carried amidst applause. The hon. sec. also received a vote of thanks and asked to reconsider his resignation. The hon. sec. remarked that as there appeared to be a difficulty in appointing another secretary he would carry on the duties for another year, which statement was received with approval. The following were elected to form the committee: Messrs. G. W. Jones, R. R. Churcher, M. Cook, L. Bousfield, S. M. Davis, F. House, E. Stead, J. E. Stead, C. Howard, and W. Basten. The rules were next read through and passed subject to following alterations. Headquarters to be removed from Quadrant Restaurant to Albert Restaurant; monthly meetings to be held third Thursday in place of the second Wednesday in each month. Annual sub. to be raised from 2s. 6d. to 3s. Vote of thanks to the chairman closed meeting.—W. O. Brooke, Hon. Sec.

Correspondence.

New Cage Bird Society for North Wales.

SIR,—At a meeting of fanciers held on Monday evening it was decided to form a Cage Bird, etc., Society, to be known as the "North Wales Cage Bird and Pigeon Society.' The following officers were elected: Treasurer, Mr. Edward Jones; sec., J. W. Jones, 40 Williams Street, Carnarvon.

J. W. JONES, Hon. Sec.

The London and Counties O.A.

SIR,—Do the members of this Society know, or is it they don't wish to know, that at our annual general meeting both our president and secretary resigned, and that there were not enough members present to elect officers for this year? Are they going to let the club fade from existence, or rally round at our next meeting and keep the club on its legs? which would please a lot of members as well as

GOLDFINCH.

How to Solder with Resin.

SIR,—Your correspondent, "Linnet,' will find resin of as little use as spirits in soldering wire fronts. The best medium he could adopt to dispel his difficulties would be a tin of the advertised "Fluxite" soldering paste. I am an amateur cage-maker myself, and can prove that if "Linnet" would get a tin and wipo a minute quantity where the bars cross and carry a little solder on the iron he will be amazed at the speed with which he can accomplish the work. The makers of "Fluxite' claim that dirty metal can be soldered by its use without cleaning a claim, which I can provo from my own experience.

CHERRY.

New C.B.S. for Smallbridge.

SIR,—Re the above in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS, I for one think there are really too many Cage Bird Societies already in this district, as we have two in Rochdale, where one would do very well, only there is a certain class of fanciers who want to hold the reins and drive the show, or else they will start another society. Now, Smallbridge is only 1½ miles from Rochdale at the outside, and Littleborough about 3 miles, where there is (or was) a Cage Bird Society. Now, why cannot these fanciers from Smallbridge see some of the Littleborough fanciers, and arrange to throw in their lot with them, as Littleborough Society is, I hear, being reconstructed, and they hold a silver Challenge Cup, which is to bo competed for yearly at Young Bird Show, and which ought to be worth competing for.

WELL WISHER.

The Use of Dandelion for Rearing Canaries.

SIR,—In regard to the growing of early dandelion, I think there is no green food to beat it for Canaries. I ramble miles for it about here. I can find plenty of it from the second week in January. I generally breed with 20 or 30 pairs of Yorkshires (greens, clears, and marked), and there is nothing like dandelion for getting birds into condition for breeding, till the hen starts to sit; then I only give plain Spanish canary seed and water until the young hatch. I then start giving dandelion at once—plenty of it—and when I take tho young from the parents I still give them as much as they will eat; and as long as I can find a leaf it is for my birds, also I give the flowering heads and seeding heads in abundance. I collect heads of the seeding plants and store them. I throw them into the cage bottom. I have always reared plenty of young ones upon it. It is, in my opinion, the best of green food for Canaries. There is plenty about here (Skipton, Yorks) now in sheltered places and in old limey walls, and the birds I find will go for it before anything else

W. H. BECK.

Are Birds Fruit Eaters?

SIR,—In reply to G. Gregory re the above, I must say his letter is an eye-opener, at least, to me. How a Starling can swallow a cherry beats me. I have, or think I have, a good knowledge of this bird, and the kind of food he likes best, but I have never seen the feat of swallowing a cherry performed. I have seen cherry trees absolutely bended with fruit in a district that abounds in birds of the Softbilled species, and although the gun and nets have never been used, the fruit has come to very little harm with the exception of very warm summers, when the wasp has made his appearance, this being one of the worst enemies that fruit growers have to deal with. But G. Gregory doesn't say a word about the pest. As for the Starling dyeing his head and throat purple with the juice, I must say that this is absurd in the extreme. As for funny fruit growers I have got hold of (as you say), you can have it that it is so; but I must say none so funny as you appear to be. I'll tell you why. You admit you have shot 150 of these Softbills in one week, not on the ground, but on the trees pecking the fruit as shot. Now, it is absolutely impossible for you to accomplish this feat without damaging a vast deal of fruit. The number of bullets, and the spread of the same before they reach their billet is bound to play havoc with your cherries, for no one wants them with these unpleasant things in them. Now, Mr. G., I didn't say that I got my information from fruit growers; I said the workmen on the farm. In the kitchen gardens at Welbeck Abbey (the Duke of Portland's residence), you will see the fruit trees covered with nets, but they are no protection in the real sense of the word at all. The birds can get underneath them, and eat as much fruit as they like. I have before me a Board of Agriculture leaflet which tells how a Belgian fruit grower in one of the largest nurseries in Belgium found himself being ruined by a plague of chafer beetles. In spite of all his efforts they were gaining upon him, and ruination seemed to stare him in the face; when one day he saw the Starlings had discovered them, and were making a clean job of them. What did he do but set up some boxes on poles 15 feet high for these precious birds to nest in, and these being taken up in quick time, he increased them to 125. The plague was completely done for, and finally stamped out. Now, Mr. G., what do you think about it? Perhaps you will say that this must be a funny leaflet, but nevertheless it is a true one, or the Board of Agriculture would not issue it. Mack's idea of the Starling does not tally with Gregory's. Mack had to get them, or his pears would have gone; whilst Mr. G. says they never touch either apples or pears. One of them is bound to be wrong, and I think it is Mack. This bird does not destroy this kind of fruit. But berries, especially the elderberries, he will attack vigorously, and will destroy the whole lot. I may say I have seen large crops of fruit growing in Lincolnshire where tho three species of birds condemned fairly swarm, and although no guns have been brought into use, the fruit has been successfully gathered from the trees. Fruit is not the natural food of these birds; if it were, they couldn't exist in the winter, and if in the autumn when the fruit is left over-ripe they sometimes take a little, let us be merciful to them, and take into consideration the certain fact that if it weren't for these glorious creatures there would be no fruit grown at all, and mankind would, I think, have a job to exist.

A Substitute for Sand Drawers

SIR,—Not caring for sand drawers in our breeding cages, I used to find the bottom of the cages get very dirty and damp, so I hit upon an idea which I think will be very useful to readers. I procured some sheets of brown paper, cut them the shape of the bottom of the cages, and placed them in the bottom, covered with gritty sand. The next time I went to clean tho cages I found on taking out the brown paper, that after sweeping out what little sand had got on the bottom of the cage, that it was nice and clean. Then I throw the brown paper away, and use some fresh.

Proposed Border Fancy Canary Club for the South.

SIR,—I have read with considerable pleasure the letters which have appeared in your interesting paper regarding the formation of a Southern Border Fancy Canary Club. That such a club is wanted by the fanciers in the south there can be no doubt. A Southern Border Club would be of advantage to breeders and to the various societies which provide Border classes, and would likewise stimulate the breeding of our wee gems. I had the good fortune to meet many fanciers at the Palace Show who enthusiastically hailed the very mention of such a club with delight. Especially was this the case of the gentlemen from Swansea and South Wales generally. Of the Welshman's love for the Border enough cannot be said, and the promise of support from this quarter greatly helps matters. I shall be pleased to hear from fanciers desirous of assisting in the formation of a club, by letter or postcard at my address. It will be necessary to have at least 40 good paying members to ensure success. If a sufficient number of promises is forthcoming a meeting would be called at some convenient place to discuss matters. I would like to have the meeting held on Saturday, March 4th. "Well begun is half done." All that is now necessary is a good start.

Prolific Foreigners.

SIR,—I was very interested in the account given by Mr. Mathias of his success with the Black-cheeked Love Birds, but was sorry to hear of the small results from his yellow Budgerigars. But in my case it is quite the reverse; I have always found yellow Budger gars very prolific. Last season, in an aviary where I placed three pairs, I had splendid success. These birds hatched and reared perfectly, forty young ones, and these at the present time look a perfect picture of health. I might mention that one hen laid in each nest; she had eight eggs, rearing seven of the young each time. The above birds are English aviary-bred, also unrelated, and by breeding with such birds I find that success is almost certain. If Mr. Mathias would care to take my advice, I should advise him to procure three pairs of unrelated adult English aviary-bred birds, and pair the cocks with his hens, and the hens with the cocks, placing each pair in separate cages (or grocer's boxes, covered with wire netting will do). These cages should be placed in a cold room (free from draughts) about the middle of March, and kept there for two weeks; and then turned out into the aviary on a favourable day. Your correspondent would then find by this means that each will know its own partner, and they will settle down to breeding much quicker. As I have proved the above arrangement to be a success myself, I trust it will be useful to Mr. Mathias, and other readers of your valuable paper.

The Mystery of Siberian Goldfinches Dying.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me space to thank those gentlemen who have given me their advice as to the treatment of my Goldfinches? But I think in the main that my method of feeding is very much the same as theirs. Certainly, I may leave out a seed they mention, but on the other hand I substitute one. I think perhaps "Ayrshire Laddie" may be right in saying that I am "too good to them.' Possibly, rich oily seeds (though keeping their plumage in nice condition) may upset their liver and, consequently, prevent their singing. It is only just lately I have been unfortunate with them, as a few years ago I never had any trouble with them.

"MARCHPANE."

Are Thrushes Fruit Eaters?

SIR,—I am rather inclined to think some of your correspondents are mistaken when they say that Thrushes eat pears and cherries. I have a garden opposite our back window, where I grow both these fruits, and have done for a great many years. I bought a gun many years since to shoot the depredators, as we should have neither cherries nor pears if we did not take precautions. We had to get the fruit before it was ripe, or keep a strict lookout, and that we have done. I have shot a great many Blackbirds and Starlings busy tearing away at both kinds of fruit, but I can truly say that I never had an occasion to shoot a Thrush, as I never saw one inclined to meddle with either kind. What I think is that your correspondents who make the statement make a mistake in calling a hen Blackbird a Thrush, as it is brown, but much dingier than a Thrush.

R. RILEY.

Small Heath (Birmingham) and District C.B.S.

SIR,—I am very pleased to inform you that we are now able to settle all arrangements, thanks to Mr. T. Leike, of the Sydenham Hotel, Small Heath Station (one minute from Bolton Road tram), who has promised us to push the Society forward, and being such a well-known fancier in the prize collie world, we could not have fared better. A very cosy meeting room is at our service, and a grand room available for shows, etc.—so Wednesday next, February 15th, at 8 p.m. sharp, we shall welcome all that have promised their support, along with any anxious to become one of us. Nearly thirty names on the list. In last week's issue "Small Heath's" letter was most laughable, and no logic in it. I hope it will not stop intending members from joining the City of Birmingham Cage Bird Society. I can assure them that the writer, "Small Heath" (and I could name him in one guess), is not a fair sample of the members of that Society, whom I found most gentlemanly, and not afraid of signing their own name. I resigned through them sticking to the Cage Bird Union. Anyhow, let's all be together and go "forward with freedom," so that our effort may not be in vain.

J. T. SHEPPARD,

Russian and German Hen Bullies and Their Management.

SIR,—Nearly all who are trying for Hybrids use hen Bullfinches, either English or Foreign. Of all these I choose tho Russian, although I must admit that hand-reared Germans are the freest breeders. But they are small, and of poor colour. Now, the Russian hens are much larger, and are of poor colour compared with some of our English hen Bullies. But all the rage is for size, so it behoves us to use the larges stock bird. Now, when I get a Russian or German hen Bullie I place it in a stock cage, and if it is a Russian, I feed her on white sunflower, summer rape, and canary and hemp. The sunflower seed I crush through a mill, and I also place a mealworm for her if she chooses to take one; some will eat them and some will not. Now, the German hen is fed solely on German or summer rape seed and a little canary seed, so I feed them on it, and I give them plenty of sunflower and add linseed, hemp, and maw to make a good tit-bit for them. Never take a Bullie in your hand and place her on her back, for it is ten chances to one she will be dead when you come to put her back into her (or his) cage. What is the cause of this I don't know. In nearly every case of hen Bullfinches I have had and kept they are at first troubled with wheeziness, and if not taken in hand at once become worse, and then drop dead. I get a feeding peg, and I have by me a bottle of cod liver oil emulsion, of which I give a little to her direct into the mouth. I give her toast-water to drink. By "toast-water" I mean toasting a piece of bread and breaking it up into some boiled water, which I give them to drink. I have found this remedy work wonders, and have been well repaid for my trouble. When the young shoots of hawthorn arrive I am after a bit here and a bit there, and the birds do full justice to them, too. Of course, they may much prefer the buds of fruit trees; but we can't often find people wanting to give fruit trees away. I give plenty of dandelion leaves and heads when in season, and anything I come across with green fly on is mine; and towards September I find plenty of thistles covered with these green flies, as I term them. The Goldie delights to have a go at these; and so does Mrs. Bullie. The best way I have found hen Bullies go to nest is by placing an old Blackbird's nest in their cage or aviary; they will then try and add a little more to it. I give them dried grass or hay cut into lengths, also dried chickweed, but German hen Bullies like pieces of shavings to build with, cut up very thin. Why this, I do not know. I have found it so with mine. If I am breeding in an aviary I hang up a Hartz Mountain Roller cage with the bottom taken out, and place upside down and the Blackbird's nest put inside it. In the spring I give them some soaked or split German rape seed, also soaked canary seed and a spider or two, if they will eat them; some will and some won't. Give plenty of old mortar.

W. LLOYD.

Concerning In-breeding.

SIR,—Through our valuable and useful paper, CAGE BIRDS, I would like to ask some of my fellow fanciers their opinions on "inbreeding." I have already read various accounts given at lectures, and afterwards printed in CAGE BIRDS. Last year I bred some very good Norwich. My intentions were, at that time, to keep only a few of the young cocks; I therefore turned all my young birds into one large flight, until they were through the moult. I now see I have some very good-shaped hens. Should I be seeking trouble, if I mated them to some of the young cocks? What relation, if any, they would be I cannot say. Possibly none, as I paired up five pairs. Through not keeping a stock book. I now see my folly. For an opinion on my subject from any other fancier I shall be very grateful. My usual method is the hen a season older than the cock.

ONE IN DOUBT.

The Use of Clap Nets.

SIR,—I should like to say in answer to "A Catcher" of your issue of February 4th, page 109, column 3, that I think tho best size nets to use would be 10 yards x 8 feet, to fly on 4 feet poles, with a peg placed in centre of net, and the line attached by two half-hitches; then stretch the line on to the top of the pole and measure the distance; after, double the string and tie a loop half-way between the peg and the top end of pole. When this is done, attach the V line to the loop. He will then get double the speed besides the advantage of having his net along the ground like a rope, giving extra width. This would allow him to throw over growing thistles 18 inches high. I do not understand trapping birds at all. If your correspondent trains a Finch to the brace tied in the top of thistle, he will not require the flirt cord, which causes trouble.

SHARPED CATCHER.

SIR,—The above heading took my eye in your last issue, and I was very much interested in what "Catcher" had to say on the matter. I am a catcher myself, and also have two nets, one a single clap net, which measures 12 feet x 8 feet, tho other I suppose is termed a "come and go" net. It comes up like a purse. I find this net much quicker than the clap net, but I also find the birds escape between the two head lines. I should be glad if someone would give their views on the matter, as I intend to buy a pair of larger nets for another season. I should also be glad if I could learn the way to set this come and go net properly, so the two head lines would come together closer, which net is the best and quickest to use, the clap net or the come and go net?

W. A. PERING.

Is It Cruel to Keep Birds in Captivity?

SIR,—Is it cruel to keep birds in confinement? I have taken a keen interest in the letters appearing in your paper on this subject. I now wish to bring under the notice of those against such, a case which occurred in my experience. I keep several kinds of birds in my signal box. During the week I took home a Siskin from the box (in a paper bag) to my home, over a mile distant. While cleaning its cage yesterday it slipped out and flew into a tree. After being there a short time it flew away. I gave it up for lost, but on my mate going to the box at 10 a.m. the next day the Siskin flew in after him through the open door. When I went to see her she was in her old cage, looking very cold and hungry, but ready to peck a hemp seed from my finger. I only caught tho bird in October, and she would hop from the cage and peck hemp from my hand.

D. MCINTYRE.

SIR,—I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for two years, and I should like to take this opportunity to refer to the alleged cruelty of keeping wild birds in cages. It is cruel to keep British birds in cages—I don't think. A friend of mine keeps British birds such as Linnets, and when he goes to town sometimes he will go to his bird-room, get a Linnet or two out, and take them to the town, and let them go; then when he goes home to his bird-room, he finds his Linnets in their cages enjoying themselves. So, brother fanciers, I do not think there is anything cruel about that. I think this should settle the question.

A Glasgow Fancier's Loss by Fire.

SIR,—I am grieved to inform you of my loss by fire on February 1st of all my stock (£33 worth) and cages and fittings (£18 worth). There was no insurance on them, and the loss is a very hard one for me, as five years ago I lost a foot, and I had been hoping to start a bird shop with my stock. I have been interested in the Fancy since a boy, I may say, and belong to the West of Scotland C.B. Club.

A. M. LENNIE.

The Artificial Heating of Bird-rooms.

SIR,—I should like to answer Mr. Huggins's question on artificial heating. I myself have used one of Clarke's Syphon Stoves for the last five years, and I consider this one of the best heating appliances a breeder can have in his bird-room. A stove quite large enough can be bought for about £1 18s., which I consider very cheap for the work it will do. Regarding the dampness on the glass, it is caused by the breathing of the birds, which is quite natural when the weather is so damp and cold. Don't take any notice of this whatever; it will do no harm at all. No matter if you have a stove in the room, you will still find the glass damp, but I must tell you that really 36 degrees is too low for birds which are bred indoors in Summer heat. I don't care what other breeders say, but you will find that if you can keep your room between 45 and 50 degrees, you will have much healthier birds than if you keep them in such a cold room. Of course, you must not over-do it, and should a few days turn up mild, and you see the temperature is above 45 degrees turn your gas out, but keep an eye on your glass. Of course, you must see that you have ventilation that is pure, without draught; by so doing you will find your birds lively and singing, instead of being buddled up, as if perished with cold.

A CREST FANCIER.

The New Cage Bird Society for Edinburgh and District.

SIR,—I am pleased to report that a large muster of fanciers and friends met in the Cairns Memorial Church Hall on February 4th, and formally inaugurated a new Cage Bird Society for Edinburgh and district, with a radius of 12 miles. The following influential fanciers were appointed office-bearers: President, Mr. Charleton; vice-president, Mr. A. W. Watson; committee, Messrs. W. Thomson, R. Craig. The subscription is fixed at 2s. 6d. per annum, with 6d. as an entrance fee. Annual show date is fixed for December 2nd. Membership roll closes definitely at meeting in May. Thirty members enrolled their names at meeting. Next meeting takes place February 21st, at 8 p.m., in Cairns Memorial Hall (next Hearts Football Park), Gorgie Road, when fanciers and friends will be made welcome. A syllabus, it is contemplated, will be drawn up, and the interest of members maintained in the giving of lectures, table shows, washing exhibitions, etc. All communications and enquiries addressed to me will receive prompt attention.

J. I. MACKIE, Secretary.
Gorgie, P.O.

SIR,—I was delighted to see such a large gathering of fanciers and friends at the meeting in the Cairn's Memorial Church Hall, Gorgie Road, for the purpose of forming a new society on up-to-date lines. It was quite evident the proposals put forward were to be carried unanimously, which was fully indicated when thirty fanciers signified their intention of giving the society their loyal support. The society may congratulate itself upon having such efficient and qualified fanciers in various offices. Among the advantages of this society is that the subscription need not be paid in a lump sum, but members must be clear and fully paid-up by meeting in May. The secretarial reins are held by that energetic and enthusiastic fancier, Mr. J. I. Mackie, whose ambition it is to at least raise the membership to 100 before next May. The society will doubtless be one of the best in Scotland in the near future.

WELL WISHER.

Alleged Unfair Treatment at Guisborough Show.

SIR,—I see that Mr. Dyson has a grievance along with Mr. G. W. Cuthbertson. Well, Mr. Dyson, you say that you sent some entries eight days before the show, which is not correct, as you filled your form up and sent it off on the 24th of December, and I received it on December 26th, five days before the show. Then I had to enter them along with others, and send you your tickets back. I need not have entered them if I liked, for the closing date was December 24th. You say you have not got a catalogue yet, but be careful, for you have had two, one not marked, and one I marked myself. Another thing, you did not let me know that you had no labels until a day after the show was over, January 1st, 1911. It was not through Mr. Radley's letter in CAGE BIRDS that you got your money returned; it was through my calling a committee meeting, when they passed that you should have your money back, as well as Mr. Cuthbertson. Now, Mr. Dyson, you asked me very plain if you were "all liars." I can say that you are a stranger to the truth, as all the readers will see by your letters, when they compare them. So next time you write about anything, keep to facts.

R. MAYS, Hon. Sec.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. G. W. Cuthbertson's letter about unfair treament, I, for one, cannot see where it comes in. Both him and Mr. Dyson did send some entries, and I entered them, as will be seen by the catalogue. They say they did not get any tickets, but that is no reason why they could not have sent their birds, for when birds come to the show without tickets the secretary can always put some on. Mr. Cuthbertson wrote to me on Friday morning, December 30th (and the show was on December 31st), saying that he had not got his tickets, and I despatched some more immediately, so I did all I could for him. Then, Mr. Cuthbertson, you wrote to me on January 1st demanding your money back. You know that no secretary of any show can send money back to any exhibitor after he has entered his exhibits without the consent of his committee, that is, if he is an honest man. In your letter in CAGE BIRDS you say that you had to thank Mr. Cook for getting your money back, as he called a meeting and got it for you. Now, that is an untruth, for I neither saw Mr. Cook nor heard anything from him about your case. It was I myself who called a meeting, after getting a letter from you about taking legal proceedings to get your money back. But it seems to me that your dear friend Mr. Cook (according to your letter) must have been a traitor to his Society in preference to you, his friend. I might say at the meeting he did go strongly for you having your money back, but said nothing about the others. Still, other members said that no preference should be given to one man, and if you had to have yours back all the others should have theirs as well. So now you can judge where the "gentlemanliness" comes in.

R. MAYS, Hon. Sec.

(Mr. May sends a number of letters written by Mr. Cuthbertson and Mr. Dyson, but it would take up far too much of our space to publish them. We cannot devote further space to this correspondence, as we feel it is not of sufficient general interest to our readers to warrant our doing so.—Ed.)

The Classification of a Siskin Mule.

SIR,—I have just received the catalogue of the Palace Show, and am not altogether surprised to find that my exhibit has been wrong-classed by the judge (and your expert), MR. G. E. Weston. I would explain that my exhibit, Class 97, No. 1656, was a cock Hybrid by a Black-headed South American Siskin, out of a Canary. A careful study of the schedule before making my entry left me quite uncertain in which of the two classes apparently available (I could not show as a novice), the bird might stand. Eventually, I entered it as for Class 97, Dark Siskin, Redpoll or Twite, and Canary Hybrid-, or Class 98 ("Any other variety of Canary Hybrid") and I pinned to the entry form (on which the full description of the bird as above was given) a slip addressed to the authorities, pointing out the uncertainty as to the classification, and requesting them to enter the bird in one of the two classes named. I do not know if such a request was, in the rather special circumstances, admissable, or if it influenced in any way the resultant entry of the bird in class 97. Nor am I at all aggrieved, so long as the little bird comes safely home. But I think the circumstances raise a point which is of general interest to Mule and Hybrid breeders and exhibitors. Here is a bird, a Hybrid between a Siskin and a Canary, which is also technically a "dark" specimen, wrong-classed in a class provided at the premier bird show for "Dark Siskin-Canary Hybrids." Had the bird been shown in class 98 (A.O.V. Canary Hybrid), it seems to me a judge could quite properly have wrong-classed it there, seeing that a class for "Dark Siskin Canary Hybrids" was provided. The reason for wrong-classing the bird in class 97 was presumably that the bird, though a Siskin-Canary Hybrid, was not such a Siskin-Canary Hybrid as was contemplated by the schedule. I have had some experience in these matters, having exhibited, not without success (even at the Palace—a 4th!) for six or seven years—and I consider that Mr. Weston was quite right in wrong-classing my bird. I also consider he would have been right in treating it the same way in class 98. Perhaps your readers who have the schedule could tell me if the bird had no rest for the soles of his black feet therein? Incidentally, the propriety of Foreign Hybrids (e.g., those by the Asiatic type of Goldfinch) competing with British Hybrids suggests itself for discussion. The bird's father is, perhaps, upset by his son's rebuff, but he hopes to do his share in producing more of them this season—perhaps enough to fill a class at Smithfield Market, if there is nowhere else for them.

BLACKAMOOR.

The Codnor Park and Eastwood C.B.S.

SIR,—I am pleased to be able to inform you that at a meeting held on February 4th, to consider the formation of a cage bird society—which I had the pleasure, with three other officials of the Codnor C.B.S., of attending, to get the Eastwood fanciers to join us—this, it is my privilege to state, was approved of by all present. Mr. R. Cooper occupied the chair, and made a most worthy chairman. It was put to the meeting, and carried, that the Eastwood and Codnor Park amalgamate, and be named the Codnor Park and Eastwood C.B.S. Then came the election of secretary; it was carried unanimously that G. H. Mitchell (present secretary of the C.P. C.B.S.) be secretary for this new society. Assistant secretary, Mr. A. Thompson. Mr. R. Cooper was elected as chairman, and Mr. T. Barlow vice-chairman. Committee: Proposition by J. H. Mitchell, that six of the present committee elected by the C.P. and D.C.B.S. stand on committee, and that six more be elected from the Eastwood side; seconded by B. Simpson, and carried unanimously. Following are the committee: Messrs. W. Holmes, B. Simpson, L. Parson, H. Parsons, C. Barrows, W. Turner, C. H. Martin, J. W. Martin, R. Nutt, A. Kew, H. Smithurst, and R. Henstock. Moved and carried, that this society be open to accept members. Annual subs. 2s. 6d., meetings to be held alternately at Portland Arms, Jacksdale, and Three Tons Inn, Eastwood. Next meeting fixed for February 18th at the Three Tons Inn, 7 p.m. I am pleased to state that sixteen new members were enrolled, which brings our total to 50 members. Any fanciers who would like further particulars can have same by applying to the secretary. There are lots of more fanciers round about Eastwood yet, surely? So fanciers roll up at the Portland Arms, February 11th, 6.30 p.m., to the Stock Pair Show. If unable to attend, come to meeting at Three Tons Inn, February 18th, when all fanciers are heartily invited. Let's have a club room full, and make this society one of the strongest in Notts or Derbyshire. We have two good club rooms at our service, and a genuine committee made up of the true metal; also a hard-working chairman. As for the secretary and the assistant secretary, it is left to the members and friends to test their metal, by giving as much assistance as possible to make this society prosper now it has a good footing. Now that we have joined hands, it is to the interests of us all to put our shoulders to the wheel, and not leave it all to one or two to keep it running.

J. H. MITCHELL, Sec.

The Late Bangor (Co. Down) Show.

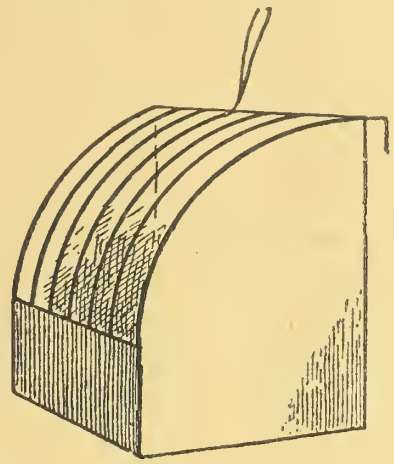
SIR,—In reply to Mr. D. E. Alexander in your issue of January 28th, and in support of the complaint of "Hybrid Breeder," in your issue of January 21st, I may state that I am in a position to prove that there were specials and prize money due when "Hybrid Breeder's" letter appeared in print, and that the same were not received until the following week—fully seven weeks after their show. Evidently they were sent before Mr. Alexander's letter was published; so he was quite safe. In my opinion it was the hon. secretary who should have answered "H. B.'s" letter, and I challenge the hon. secretary (Mr. Pidduck) to either disprove my statement or prove that all demands by exhibitors were paid before January 21st.

A SEEKER AFTER TRUTH.

Kindly notify all who answered my advertisement in "CAGE BIRDS" re a Parrot, that I could not reply to them all. I could have sold fifty Parrots if I had had them.—M. Parkes (Grimsby).

Kindly thank all who answered my advertisement re Goldfinches in "Cage Birds" of Feb. 4, as there were so many I could not possibly reply to them all, no stamps being enclosed for same.—J. H. Mitchell (Alfreton).

Kindly thank all who answered my advert. in "Cage Birds" re British Exchange. I could only answer those who sent stamps. They were very numerous.—C. Plummer (Lewes).



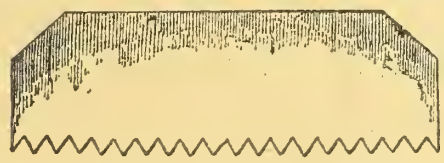
Re the Goldfinch I advertised in "Cage Birds," I had so many replies that it is quite impossible for me to write to all who had birds to offer. I shall be glad, therefore, if you will kindly thank them in your paper.—J. Coward (Keswick).

Illustrated Ideas

No. 482.
A Bath Fastener.

Sent by Mr. H. W. Jones, 29, Parrin Lane, Monton.

Enclosed sketch is of a bath fastener to keep the bath upright, and also to avoid bird getting shut in the bath by the door slipping down. Get a piece of cage wire, bend it to the shape of a hairpin, and solder to top of bath (see sketch).



When hanging the bath on slip it under crossbar of front, making it impossible for it to shut off the bath from cage; also if the bath is small for the cage it prevents the bird escaping, and keeps the bath perfectly upright. The idea will prevent many deaths which occur through birds being shut in the bath.—H. W. Jones.

No. 483.
To Mark Bars for Cage Fronts.

Sent by Mr. Howard Jukes, 140, Watling Street, Bridgtown, Staffs.

The tool illustrated—for marking bars for cage fronts—is easily made by filing teeth into a piece of ordinary hoop iron or any other thin metal the desired distance apart. This ensures the wires being parallel, and the whole bar is marked with one blow, thus saving a lot of time.—H. Jukes.

Under the White Rose.

THE Crystal Palace Show is once again a fixture of the past, and fanciers in the county of the broad acres will be pleased to note that their prestige has been well upheld, particularly in the section named after their county, and also that the numbers were well in advance of last year's. As a matter of fact, all the premier honours in Yorkshires fell to the lot of West Riding fanciers, but here, perhaps, some will say, no, that is in reference to Mr. Ambler. But, though resident in Lancashire, his heart and mind are in Yorkshire, health alone keeping him away from Bradford, the hot-bed of the variety he so well knows. Then in the Norwich section we are making good headway, and it is a pleasure to note that several 1sts were notched by fanciers from the land of the White Rose. The variety seems to be making good progress. The club is evidently doing some good by promoting interest in the county.

GREEN Marks, for the first time under the patronage of the club, appear to have been a fair success, and the show authorities did well to include them. No doubt they have come to stay. They are a very taking variety, and in time to come will be able to hold their own in competition with the clears. Even at present they are extra well up in type, and other requirements of the Yorkshire bird.

CINNAMON Marked fanciers from the West Riding met with very little competition other than what they had had to face before, and literally swept the deck, the host to be seen being on view.

THE Palace closes all the competitions of the various specialist clubs, and the secretaries will now have a nice little job on, to get all the winners sorted out, the prizes bought, and all the necessary arrangements made in time for the Annual Amalgamated Prize Distribution, which is to take place on March 11th; and matters will be greatly helped forward if winners of prizes will get their studying caps on, and decide what they would like, so as to be ready to reply to the enquiries of their respective secretaries. Don't keep them waiting; they have a lot to do in little time.

WAS out the other week, and saw a travelling show case. My! What a size!! Somebody said it was a harmonium, and this was easy to believe; in fact, I would sooner have believed it to be that than a show case. Fortunately I had the pleasure to inspect it later on, and found it to be a threedecker, each deck to hold seven Yorkshire show cages—twenty-one in all, a real good one to go to the Palace with. Let's hope the owner is fortunate enough to fill it with winners out of next season's breeding. "STRAIGHT 'UN.'

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners-up.

*Quite at Home.

Three weeks ago I caught a hen Bullfinch and put it in a cage. I thought it was no good, so I let it go. It stayed away one night, and came back the next morning. It flew straight into the cage. I kept it two more days, and let it go again, and to my surprise it came back a third time, and flew into the cage. It soon started to feed, and made itself quite at home.—Sent by Cecil B. Holmes (age 12), Dairy Cottage, Wood End, Fisherton.

A Wary Thrush.

While feeding the birds during the recent frosts, I saw a Thrush take possession of all the food, and stand guard over it. Although there was plenty for a score of birds, yet the Thrush would not allow one of them to touch it. A Bluecap, a Hedge Sparrow, a Robin, and several Starlings were amongst those it stood guard against. When disturbed by a human being it did not go far away, but always kept its sharp eyes upon the food, coming back again when the line was clear.—Sent by Albert Barnes, 5, Railway-place, Grangetown, S.O., Yorks. Age 13.

*An Offended Parrot.

A friend of mine had a tame Parrot that used to come out of its cage to be fed, and to walk about his arms and head and shoulders for a little exercise. One day some friends of his came to see him, and he showed them the Parrot. It was just near the Parrot's feeding time, so he fed the Parrot in their presence to show them how tame he was. When he started to feed him with nuts from his own lips, one of his friends wished to do the same, so my friend let him; but when the Parrot came to get it he drew back and began to tease it. This offended the Parrot so much that it would not come out of its cage for some weeks.—Sent by E. Schindler (age 15).

(Will Master Schindler kindly send us his address?—Editor.)

Nothing like "CAGE BIRDS" when you want to sell. I have had replies from England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, from an advert. in "C.B." I look out every Friday for the great 1d. worth. I think it grand.—W. H. WARREN (Penzance).

Cage Bird Union Annual Meeting.

Suspension of the "Hated" rule; Resignation of the Secretary and President; the position of the Union considered.

Seven delegates and the Secretary met at the annual meeting of the Cage Bird Union, held at the Crystal Palace on February 4th, presided over by Mr. Thos. Pope.

Nothing of dramatic moment occurred, but several important matters were decided upon, not the least being the deletion of the "hated" rule 22 "for the present.'

The feelings of the societies in England and Wales with reference to rule 22, and the support they are prepared to give, are to be obtained with a view to their consideration by the delegates.

The Union is now without either a secretary or a president; and in accordance with a resolution passed at the Leicester meeting and confirmed at this meeting, the election of a treasurer now becomes necessary.

The Frome representative resigns his position; and the Rochdale Good Intent O.S., the Liverpool O.S., the Doncaster C.B.S., and the Peterborough C.B.A. resign their membership with the Union.

Considerable feeling was displayed with regard to what was characterised as the "downright-cruel" charge, that the members of the Council received not only railway fare to and from the place of meeting, but ten shillings each besides.

The meeting lasted three hours, but the greater part of this time was devoted, not to the business of the agenda, but to a consideration of the present status of the Union.

Mr. Atkinson (Manchester) delivered quite a neatly-worded, almost impassioned speech, in which he championed the cause of the Union, and appealed for help from the Fancy who brought it into existence.

It was generally agreed that a governing body of some sort was necessary to the Fancy, and that if the Cage Bird Union were now to "go under," it will have done a good work in laying the foundation for any future Union that may arise.

The recommendations of the Leicester meeting to this, the annual meeting, were practically all agreed to.

Full Report.

The annual meeting of delegates of the Cage Bird Union was held in the Back Concert Room of the Crystal Palace on Feb. 4th, when Messrs. T. Atkinson (Manchester and Northern Counties O.S.), A. N. Innes (Torbay O.S.), D. R. Jones (Llanelly C.B.S.), Thos. Pope (Western Counties O.S., Plymouth), J. A. Tyler (Leicester C.B.S.), J. B. Wood (Leicester and Leicestershire Hand-in-Hand C.B.S.), H. Yeoman (Clapham C.B.S.), and Geo. W. F. Lythgoe (the hon. sec.)—eight gentlemen in all—attended.

At the request of the meeting Mr. Thos. Pope consented to preside, in the absence of Mr. W. A. Bladon (Manchester), who wrote saying it was impossible for him to attend. Mr. Bladon also wished it made quite clear that he could not see his way to stand as president for the ensuing year.

The secretary read the minutes of the last annual and the Leicester adjourned meetings, which were passed. The report of the executive council for 1910-11 (published in CAGE BIRDS of Feb. 4th issue) was taken as read.

Important Correspondence.

Correspondence was then read. Mr. J. H. de Mallet (Birmingham) wrote regretting he could not accept the position of secretary to the Union, though he appreciated the honour of being nominated to the post. Mr. Robt. Rhodes (Nottingham) desired it to be known that he was not prepared to accept office, either as president or in any other sense—not because he was not in sympathy with the objects of the Union, but because he felt he could not give the necessary time. He added that, in his opinion, without Rule 22 the Union would be of no use, and instead of growing stronger it would grow weaker. Mr. C. I. Young (Frome) wrote resigning his position as the Union's representative for the district, als reason being that he did not think it at all likely that any of the societies in his district would again join the Union. Everyone, he thought, would agree that Mr. Lythgoe had done his best in trying circumstances. Doncaster and Dis. C.B.S. wrote resigning membership, not being able to comply with the rules as at present. The Peterborough C.B.A., the Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S., and the Liverpool O.S. also wrote resigning membership.

The Status of the Union Considered.

Arising out of the balance-sheet—published in CAGE BIRDS of Feb. 4th issue—Mr. Lythgoe stated that since sending it out he had received an amount of 11s. 8d. and accounts to the extent of £3 19s. 4d. —rent of the present room, etc.—so that there was now a balance due to the secretary of £2 5s. Of course, he added, if it came to a question of selling the Union's effects, they had a duplicating machine and a typewriter in the way of assets.

In formally moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, Mr. Atkinson said they all regretted it did not show as satisfactorily as they could have wished. If the Union had as its object, or as one of its objects, the making of money then they would have to deplore a very unsatisfactory position of affairs; but the Union had a very different object, viz., to benefit the Fancy generally and those taking part in the hobby which they followed. It would, he thought, be accepted without question that one cause of the smallness of the balance was the want of support on the part of the affiliated societies, coupled with the fact that the number of the licences was far less than in previous years. This year they received in licences and affiliation fees a matter of £28, as compared with £50 in the previous year, which in itself accounted for the difference between the balance in hand at the beginning of the year and that at the finish. The delegates' railway expenses (a matter of £8) were made necessary by the many journeys to shows by representatives of the Union, and he thought that £8, in the course of a whole season, was not an extravagant sum. The item of £14 for "Council railway expenses for 1909 and 1910" was considerable. He understood there had been three council meetings during the year. The unwieldy nature of the work of the Union necessitated the meeting of the council at least three or four times in a season, if the work were to be done properly. And he did not think they could call the amount of £14 in any way exorbitant.

A "Downright Cruel Charge."

Continuing, the speaker said he wanted to state, and to state most emphatically, that the "Saturday afternoon excursions" which the council were charged with taking part in was a downright cruel charge to make against men who were prepared to, and actually did, give of their time and money in the furtherance of the work to which they had devoted themselves.

The question arose, he said, as to whether the Union considered it worth while to continue to carry on its work. Some eleven years ago a Union was formed with similar objects to the present Union's. That Union lasted for a matter of from twelve months to two years. Then some two or three years elapsed, and the Fancy generally showed a desire for a governing body of some kind; and the Cage Bird Union was formed. But I am, he continued, inclined to think the Fancy has not acted as virtuously as it thought itself capable of acting some five years ago, and it is the Fancy that will suffer if anything should happen to this Union. If this Union collapses to-day there will to-morrow be a demand for some other governing body, and the Cage Bird Union will not have lived in vain, for from the work done any new Union that may follow will reap special advantages. They knew that the borrowing and lending of birds for exhibition purposes were not unknown at the present day, but would anyone say they were practised as largely as was the case ten years ago? No; and the C.B.U. was responsible for the improvement. And were not the shows better conducted than formerly? This, too, was one of the effects of the action of the Union. He thought that the falling-away of the societies from the Union was due, not to the lack of energy or desire to improve the Fancy on the part of the delegates to the Union, but rather to the ungratefulness of the Fancy who put them there to do the work.

Mr. Yeoman, in seconding the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, said he wished to pay a passing compliment to the gentlemen who had given of their time and ability to the Fancy by means of their work on the council. Their work had paved the way for any future Union that might spring up; and a governing body for the Fancy he was certain there must be. He considered, therefore, that the Union had done a good work.

Continuing, Mr. Yeoman said: If the discussions in the Fancy Press are anything to go by, all point to one thing—viz., Rule 22. Some six months back I personally thought the rule the backbone of the Union. To-day I think differently. If the Fancy does not appreciate that rule, let the Union cater for the majority of the Fancy, and delete or alter it. It is my firm opinion that if you do not alter it in some way, the Union will have to go. If you don't have the support of the Fancy, you cannot go on. I have read of nothing—heard of nothing—that shows there is any opposition to the Union except in regard to Rule 22, and it is for you to-day to say whether you will delete the part of the rule that is objected to, or trust the Fancy to know its own needs best. You have tried the one way, and now I ask you to try the other.

Mr. Tyler pointed out that the first Union, referred to by Mr. Atkinson, lasted only twelve months or so, and had no rule similar to this Union's Rule 22; whereas the C.B.U. had lasted five years, and they had such a rule. So that he did not, he said, see why the rule should not remain. Rule 22 [which reads as follows:—"In like manner, affiliated societies shall be liable to suspension if they accept entries from such suspended individuals or engage suspended judges; and registered members of the Union shall be liable to suspension if found exhibiting at a suspended or non-affiliated or non-licensed club's show, other than first-feather shows, and shows or classes confined to members or limited to a county though given at an open show."—Editor] had, the speaker thought, been taken in a wrong light.

It Crops Up.

Mr. Atkinson objected that, as Rule 22 was down for discussion later on, it could be better discussed then.

The Chairman explained that he had purposely allowed a little latitude in the discussion, but perhaps it would be as well to pass the report and balance-sheet and proceed with the agenda; which was agreed to.

Mr. Yeoman: I believe that my society has a proposition on the agenda, and my idea was that we might proceed to an alteration of the rules for the benefit of the Union.

The Secretary explained that the Clapham Society's proposition should have been placed on the agenda. They proposed "That Rule 22 be removed from the rules or modified in some way until the Union is sufficiently strong to enforce it, and that a feeling of the members of the Union be taken on the matter."

Continuing, the Secretary said that he had put it very plainly in his report, that he did not think it was Rule 22 that was the cause of the falling off. His opinion was that this falling off was due to some other ulterior cause, which he could not get to know of. At the outset of the year he made every effort to get the seceding societies to re-join, or at least to give their views on the subject in order that the delegates might discuss them. The one real objection seemed to be the friction with the Yorkshire Union, but that obstruction had since been removed. Another reason, for the withdrawal of a London society, was the proposal to extend Rule 22 in certain directions, but though assurances had been given to the contrary, the society had not come back. In addition, he had asked the seceding societies to hold a meeting among themselves and formulate a scheme and submit same to the Union—but with no result. He had not been able to get to know what was at the bottom of the trouble. And unless the Union were to get promises of more support (like that it had three or four years back, when it had 135 members), he did not think it was worth while carrying on the work, because he was strongly of opinion that if they dropped Rule 22 they would not get the societies to re-join.

Mr. Atkinson suggested that all the societies in the country be invited to give their views in respect to the formation of a governing body independent altogether of any rules at present in existence in regard to the C.B.U.; the societies to say whether they would be inclined towards a governing body formed on some lines altogether different and separate from the Union's rules.

The Chairman said that if Mr. Lythgoo would consent to remain secretary for another year, they might perhaps do some good. He could then take the feeling of the Fancy generally, and get to know its views. We are, he added, in existence for the benefit of the Fancy, and not for ourselves. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Lythgoe said he had endeavoured to get to know what would meet the wishes of the societies, but without success. On the point of his continuance in office, he was not prepared to remain secretary. He resigned two years ago, as he felt the affairs of the Union would be better out of his hands. (Laughter.) That was his main reason. Another was, he felt that the centre of operations should be at some other town than Manchester, and if he knew the secretaryship would have remained there, he would, he thought, have preferred to stick to the job. (Laughter.) He still felt that the work would go on better if the secretarial reins were in other hands. As regarded Rule 22, if the delegates thought the Union would go on better without it, then it might as well be tried.

Mr. Jones said that personally he was in favour of Rule 22, but thought the minority ought to be prepared to fall in with the views of the majority. (Hear, hear.)

Rule 22 Amended.

Coming more immediately to the Clapham Society's proposition, the secretary stated that there was no need to deal with Rule 22 in its entirety; the objection was only in regard to the latter portion—the coercive portion, as it had been termed—of the rule.

Mr. Tyler thought that the Clapham proposition ought to be added to, to the effect that the Union could take no responsibility on itself to look after the interests of exhibitors at shows not held under C.B.U. rules.

Eventually, Mr. Yeoman moved, and the Chairman seconded, "That the latter part of Rule 22 be deleted for the present, but that words be added to the effect that the Union will not undertake to look after the interests of any exhibitors at shows not held under C.B.U. rules.

Mr. Wood and Mr. Atkinson opposed the proposition in accordance with instructions received from their respective societies. Mr. Tyler was, he said, personally in favour of the rule, but would, under the circumstances, vote in favour of the proposition. Mr. Wood was, personally, greatly in favour of the deletion of the rule, but was, he said, tied down by the instructions of his society. The amendment was carried.

On the motion of the Chairman, seconded by Mr. Yeoman, it was decided "that a feeling of the societies be obtained as to what support will be given to the Union with the rule altered."

The delegates now, at last, proceeded with the business of the day as drawn up on the agenda. The first part of the agenda consisted of the recommendations of the delegates who met at Leicester in August last—which came up for confirmation at this, the annual meeting.

The first proposition, "That all birds be the bona fide property and in the possession of exhibitors at least 14 days before the date of any show," was opposed, the secretary pointed out, by the Preston O.S. Mr. Lythgoe proposed the resolution on behalf of the mover, who was absent, but as there was no seconder the recommendation fell through.

"That the annual meetings shall be held alternately at a show in the South, Midlands, and North." This was thought by Mr. Yeoman not only a good idea, but a very advisable thing. Mr. Tyler was of opinion that the meeting should be held at a less busy time of the year. If it were held more in the "close season," as it were, there would be better facilities for getting about.

Mr. Yeoman proposed the resolution, but added the words: "and that the date be some time in July"; this amendment was seconded by Mr. Tyler, and carried unanimously. The orginal motion received no seconder.

On the motion of Mr. Atkinson, seconded by Mr. Jones, it was unanimously decided "that the associate's fee be reduced from 2s. 6d. to 1s."

Mr. Wood moved, and Mr. Tyler seconded, "That Rule 14 be altered to provide for the election of a treasurer," which becomes necessary now that Rule 12 reads, "That the officers of the Union shall be a president, secretary, and treasurer, and an executive council, and the funds of the Union shall be banked jointly in the names of the president, secretary and treasurer, any two signatures to cheque being sufficient."

No Show.

The proposal to hold a show for Union members only, it was thought best to let drop for the present pending the receipt of the views of the societies with regard to the Union.

On the proposition of Mr. Jones, seconded by Mr. Wood, it was decided to defer the consideration of the proposal to provide for the sub-division of District No. 7.

With regard to the council's proposed alteration to Rule 15—"to provide for the addition to this council of six members, being fanciers living within reasonable distances of wherever the secretary may reside, and for the council to hold frequent meetings during the show season"—the secretary stated that a great deal of time was lost, and a great deal of trouble arose through too much work being left to the secretary. At present the secretary did pretty well what he thought best, and then wrote the council asking them for their approval.

Mr. Yeoman proposed the adoption of the recommendation. He said he thought it would save considerable expense and time, and independently of that would lift a great responsibility from the shoulders of the secretary.

Mr. Tyler seconded the proposition, which, after some discussion, was carried unanimously.

In the absence of Mr. Hadwin (Liverpool), Mr. Atkinson proposed, and Mr. Jones seconded, the motion to add to Rule 4, "members of an affiliated society at September 1st will be considered members until the end of the society's year." This was agreed to.

The Secretary said that he had another proposition, from the Altrincham Society, viz., "That where more than one person shows birds from the same place of residence they all show in the same section, viz., champion, amateur, or novice."

Mr. Tyler proposed this, and Mr. Jones seconded, the motion being unanimously agreed to.

The Secretary was of the opinion that this would raise more riot than Rule 22. (Laughter.)

The question of the election of a secretary, it was pointed out, was one which devolved on the Council.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Pope for presiding, "under very trying circumstances," and an acknowledgment of the same by that gentleman, concluded the proceedings.

BIGGAR C.B.S.

Third annual club show held Feb. 1st, Wilson's Hall, West End, an ideal place for a cage bird show, being free from draughts, and well lighted. Entries turned out very well, there being 174 specimens on view, and competition was keen. Special for most points over show, Messrs. Brown and Simpson (with an outstanding team of Britishers); for best British, Master E. Campbell (a good Goldie); and for best Canary Mr. J. Dickson (Norwich Hen). Specials were presented by Mr. J. Shand, accompanied by many complimentary remarks. But the most surprising and pleasant item on the programme was the presentation of a purse, got up by voluntary subscriptions, to Mr. Ormiston, the secretary, before he leaves to go abroad. Mr. Shand, in a few well chosen remarks, presented the purse, and Mr. Ormiston suitably replied. "Willie" is very popular amongst the fanciers here, and we all wish him God-speed. Mr. Mason (Peebles) judged British, and Mr. McFadyen. (Lanark) Canaries.

BULLFINCH CK. (12): 1, Master E. Campbell, nice, high col., fine cap and bars, shown in the pink; 2, Forrest, another good one, chasing winner for col., but a wee shade smaller; 3, Shand, plenty of size, but a wee bit pale in front; 4, 5, Brown and Simpson; 6, Anderson. Lawson, another good one, rare head and neck, great depth of front and tail; 3, 4, 6, Dobbie, 3rd, another fine, stylish exhibit, the right type; 5, Dickson. NON-FED: 1, H. and W. Clark, almost green, nice cobby bird, good chest; 2, Aitken, nice exhibit, cobby and well put together, 3. Girwood, buff, of great size, good head and neck properties; 4, Marshall; 5, Lawson; 6, Bislop. BORD. YELL., ETC.: 1, Wilson, nice Border, some thought scarcely the winner; 2, Campbell, fine round head, nicely backed, fine wings and tail; 3, D. Lawson, nice exhibit, well rounded, good head, 4, Kerr, pressing winners for all it is worth; 5, Brown and Simpson; 6, Selkirk. BUFF: 1, Dickson, this decision could not be followed by all; 2, Kerr, hard lines here, taking little Border of good type and quality; 3, D. Lawson, another nice Border, fine type; 4, Brown and Simpson; 5, Dickson; 6, Aitken. GREEN, ETC.: 1, Aitken, nice yell. Green, well pencilled; 2, 3, 4, Kerr, three well known faces, all of exceptional merit, fine depth of ground col, rare pencilling, old bird, bit soft at time of judging; 5, Wilson; 6, Lawson.

PARTICK AND DISTRICT C.B.C.

Breeding pairs show, held Trades Hall, Anderson Street, 3rd Feb. There was a grand turn-out of exhibits, close on 50 pairs being staged. Crests and Norwich contained some grand pairs; Borders also were a grand class, some really fine wee gems being among them. Yorkshires came well up, some of the best in Scotland were staged. Mr. A. Walker judged, and had his work cut out, competition being very keen, but his awards were well received.

CRESTS (7): 1, 2, 3, McMillan; 4, 5, spl, Henry; 6, Anderson; 7, Smith. NOR. (9): 1, 4, Henry; 2, 3, spl, Smith; 5, McMillan; 6, Aitkenhead; 7, Anderson. BORD. (13): 1, spl, best pair in hall, 2, Appleyard; 3, 6, Fairweather; 4, 5, Henderson; 7, Aitkenhead. YORKS. (10): 1, 2, 4, Maccrobble; 3, 6, Sanderson; 5, 7, Anderson. A.O.V.: 1, Appleyard. A.O.V. HYB. PAIRS: 1, Fairweather; 2, Aitkenhead; 3, 4, Anderson; 5, Priest. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Walker brought a successful show to a close. Next meeting and mating pair show, March 3rd, 8 p.m. New members cordially invited. — William Priest, Sec.

WAKEFIELD ROLLER C.C.

Members' show held Elephant and Castle Hotel, January 25th, when 21 birds were judged by Mr F. Oldroyd, staged by Mr. Netherwood, the Hon. Sec. The show was open to the public by 5. There were some good birds, and most of the local members turned up at night.

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL FOR 1911.

The most marvellous Handbook ever issued to the Bird World for the popular price of SIXPENCE.

Many of the articles included therein are by themselves worth the price asked for the complete work and amongst those that stand out in this Year Book are:—

HOW TO BECOME A SUCCESSFUL BIRD BREEDER.

By Claude St. John.—This article represents the author at his best. The subject matter leads the would-be aspirant step by step from the rock-bed of his hobby to the very zenith of success. No bird breeder can afford to miss this highly instructive contribution, written as it is by such a popular and true hearted fancier as Mr. Claude St. John. Read it before embarking on the business of the 1911 breeding season, and it will both help you to cut down your expenses to the minimum (by avoiding waste) and to breed young birds with greater ease and certainty.

BRITISH BIRD-KEEPING FOR THE WORKING MAN.

By W. J. Pitcher.—The experiences of a Yorkshire working man. The author shows in a most interesting way that it is not always the one with the big aviaries that derives the most pleasure, but often the working-man, whose only hobby after a day's work is his birds. He advises the various kinds of birds that lend themselves to the requirements of the working-man hobbyist, and how they should be fed and cared for.

HOW I PRODUCED MY WINNING HYBRIDS.

By J. Ovenstone.—A very interesting and valuable article. Gives the author's own experiences extending over a period of about ten years, together with an account of his sytem of feeding, management, etc.

BUILDING AND FITTING AN OUTDOOR BIRD-ROOM.

By Henry Meeds.—Advising the cheapest and best methods to adopt in building and fitting up an outdoor bird-room or aviary. Giving full dimensions for same, and how the internal fittings should be put into place to the best advantage. The article is accompanied by a photograph of an ideal type of out-door bird-room, which enables the reader to more easily grasp the subject matter of the article.

THE TREATMENT OF, AND MEDICINES FOR, AILING CAGE BIRDS.

A feature which conveys information that is of vital importance to the would-be successful keeper of birds—information of a kind but seldom available through the usual channels—telling the properties, etc., of most bird medicines, and how the ailments common to birds may be cured by them.

A CHEAP METHOD OF CANARY BREEDING.

By T. F. Morgan.—Emphasises the point that even "cheap" canaries can be, and are, made to pay. The article explains in detail how a cheap breeding-cage can be made and fitted out, how the canaries should be fed and managed, and closes with a few "Don'ts" that are very timely hints.

FAMILIAR FOREIGN SEED EATERS AND THEIR MANAGEMENT.

A YEAR WITH THE WILD BIRDS.

By H. Norman.—The author gives it as his opinion that wild bird life flourishes in our fields and woods as it does in no other European country.

SOME DISEASES OF BIRDS, AND HOW TO RECOGNISE AND TREAT THEM.

By G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S.—An article from the able pen of Mr. Yates which is of permanent value for reference purposes. It describes in concise, and so far as possible, unconventional terms, the causes, symptoms, and diagnosis of the commoner departures from health affecting the inmates of our cages and aviaries, together with appropriate medicinal treatment. It is a real book in itself and well worthy of the price paid for the whole "Annual."

HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY MANAGE A CAGE BIRD SOCIETY.

By W. A. Dickins.—This article should be read by the secretaries, officials, and members of all cage bird societies, dealing out to them, as it does, many helpful hints on the management of a successful society.

The Most Reliable Authority on Bird Culture.

In addition there are numerous art and other illustrations of the peerage of 1910 in the Bird World. A lovely Coloured Plate of the sensation of the season, the Dartford Warbler, claimed at the Palace for 12 Guineas. Calendar, Postal, and other information, Standards and Descriptions, Lists of Judges of Cage Birds and their addresses, Officials, Cage Bird Societies, etc.

Price 6d. on order from all Newsagents; or 8d. post free.

Secretaries of Societies, Bird Dealers, and others engaged in communication with Birdkeepers, should take up an Agency for retailing our Publications. WRITE FOR DETAILS.

NANTWICH.

This old established society held their Jubilee show, Feb. 3rd and 4th, the Town Hall again being the venue. Our section was admirably staged in tiers along one end of the hall. We were pleased to see such a great increase in entries, compared with the rather meagre total of the last few years. An average of nearly twelve per class was distinctly good. The quality, too, was of the best, many noted winners putting in an appearance, and were well to the front in their respective classes. The Norwich class was headed by two of Mr. Victor Williams's well-known winners, the same exhibitor repeating the dose in both the Yorks. and A.O.V. British, in which classes they stood clear away from anything else. The A.O.V. Canary class was won by one of the best crestbreds we have seen for some time, belonging to Mr. Edwards, who also captured the Mule class with a Canary-Bullie, a grand specimen of its cross. The Linnet, or Goldfinch, class was a topper for numbers and quality. This class needs dividing another year. Mr. Purcell had charge of the cage birds, and right well did he attend to their wants. Mr. Powell again held the secretarial reins, and he discharged his onerous duties with tact and courtesy, getting now quite a veteran in this capacity. Mr. H. Tams judged, and we heard no adverse comments.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE 52nd SHOW

The L. & P.O.S. and Mr. Ramsden Achieve Another Great Success.

Fine Entry. Fine Weather. Fine Crowds. Fine Sales.

The 52nd Crystal Palace Show, held February 3, 4, 6, and 7, in the usual place at the historic Glass House, will surely go down in the history of the Fancy as one of the jolliest and most enjoyable in the long list of these annual carnivals.

The spirit of good fellowship was abroad; not one discordant note was heard; every member of the huge crowd of fanciers and visitors seemed bent on getting every possible ounce of pleasure out of the hours spent in the show-room and its vicinity. The attendance of fanciers from the provinces was exceptionally large—quite one of the best we have seen—the system of making up "visiting parties" in various districts no doubt being largely accountable for this. A fancier may feel "shy" at starting by himself on a trip to the metropolis, especially if it be his maiden visit, and he has yet to discover the whereabouts of the Palace. Why, we have known even seasoned fanciers get lost in the maze of London! To join a party of brother fanciers, however, some at least of whom "know their way about" and can point out the various "sights," must be a tempting proposition to everyone with a hankering after a peep at the best birds to be found in the Fancy; and tha "party system" (though much abused to-day in another connection) is a good one in this respect, at any rate, for it enables our country friends in many birdie centres to come up to town under the pleasantest possible conditions. And what a great gathering there was to be sure—Lancashire, Yorkshire, the Tyne-side, the West Country, the Eastern Counties, South Wales, the Midlands, and many other districts sent groups of fanciers to swell the huge concourse of metropolitan and South Country enthusiasts (to say nothing of the horde of interested visitors not strictly "fanciers") that crowded the aisles and overflowed into the—well, perhaps we'd better leave it unsaid—on the Saturday, the greatest day of all.

All Smiles.

The general gaiety was infectious, and even extended to that most sedate of persons, the ever-popular and ever-youthful show manager, Mr. J. W. Ramsden, who stepped it blithely round the aisles and positively refused to cease smiling even when one of his judges insisted on discussing with him that hoary-headed problem: "What is a tick?" And Mr. Ramsden had every cause to smile and feel pleased with himself and things in general, for had he not a highly-satisfactory entry of 2,600 birds; had not the nipping frost suddenly departed and left the weather open and genial; and had he not successfully circumvented the difficulty, owing to the printers' strike, of getting out the catalogue? The answer is a loud affirmative. We have said many nice things about the management of the Palace Show in the past, and they apply with full force to the present show. To say that nothing was lacking in any detail, and that not a hitch marred the proceedings, is trite and stale; yet what better testimony could any manager and his helpers desire? The whole proceedings formed a perfect object lesson in the art of successful show management. We take off our hat to you, Mr. Ramsden, once more.

"Behind the Guns."

The members of the committee of the London and Provincial O.S. (under whose auspices this show is held) supported Mr Ramsden admirably and laboured very hard for many long hours in the good of the cause. The genial Mr. G. Crabb (the president) made visitors and pressmen allke feel very much at home; he is good nature personified. The case of stuffed show specimens which he is getting together in the name of the society, was one of the attractions of the showroom. Mr. C. W. Law (the society's hon. secretary) also "took his corner" with conspicuous ability. Other good workers were Mrs. Ramsden and Mr. Ramsden Junr. (George, of that ilk), and of the assistance they cheerfully lent, the show manager bears eloquent testimony. Messrs. J. Oldaker, F. S. Matthies, G. Mortlock, G. H. Couzens, J. Hodder, W. Hodson, E. J. Pretty, L. J. Richardson, G. H. Boaler, F. J. Day, G. H. Dring, J. E. Graves, J. Hazell, F. Lathleiff, and G. Thurling, with Mr. R. A. Newley and Mr. W. Laskey were the "men behind the guns," and they stewarded the judges and unpacked and repacked the exhibits with the skill one associates with old, seasoned fanciers.

The birds were once again fed on seeds supplied by Messrs. J. Carter and Co. ("good old Carter"), of Raynes Park, London, and on insectivorous food and yolk of egg supplied by Messrs. Trower and Co., of Caledonian Road, London. The grand condition of the birds after 5 days' sojourn at the Palace spoke volumes for the excellence of the wares of these firms. In the feeding department honorable mention must be made of those tried and trusty friends of exhibitors and their birds, Messrs. Small and Grutchfield. For close on fifty years they have fed, watered, and looked after the exhibits at Palace Shows; what a record! And their work is always thoroughly and admirably done. May they long survive, is the wish of all.

The Men Who Did.

The following gentlemen undertook the onerous task of judging:—Messrs. H. W. Battye (Nor.), H. Broadley (Novice Yorks.), H. T. Camps (Parrots), J. F. Dewar (Bord. and Brit.), F. Finn (For.), G. Gardner (A.O.V., Limit, and Novice Nor.), T. Heath (Crests and Cages), C. A. House (Yorks; and Cinns.), H. Norman (Novice Hyb. and Brit., For. Gold and Bullies), W. Mundell (Yorks.), J. Robson (Lancs., Liz., Green Bord., Frills, and Novice Nor.), A. Silver (Brit. Hard), W. Swaysland (Brit. Insectiv., etc.), and G. E. Weston (Mules and Hybrids). The light was quite good, the morning being bright and cheerful, and on the whole we think the exhibits had full justice done to their merits. In a few sections there were found birds somewhat "down in condition," but this seems inevitable at any show, the railway journey and the change of scene no doubt being responsible. Later on most of these birds recovered their heat form, and then some of them looked to have had "hard lines" in not getting placed in the prize list—and hard lines it is, of course. The absence of our old friend, Mr. J. Dobson, one of the veterans of the Fancy, who had not recovered sufficiently from his recent severe illness to take his place as judge, necessitated the engagement of Mr. C. A. House to fill the vacancy, and also the re-arrangement of some of the classes originally allotted Messrs. Heath and Mundell.

The entry was extremely satisfactory, the 2,600 birds gathered together being the third highest total in the history of the Palace fixture. In properly appreciating these figures it must be remembered that there was no Roller section at the show under notice, and this alone meant a shortage of close on 100 birds compared with the show of 1910. Then there is the disturbed state of the Fancy to take into consideration in-so-far as the operation of Rule 22 of the Cage Bird Union affects non-Union shows, and its members sending their birds thereto.

The Bank.

The sales were great, the total running up to £340, a splendid increase of £70 on last year's amount. The huge crowd on the Saturday was a sporting one, and bought just what they fancied. The sales on the other days were also well up to the average. The stock and limit classes, as was to be expected, had in them the greatest number of claimed birds, but here and there a bird changed hands at a good figure. Two of Messrs. Ogden Bros.' Yorkshires found new homes, a buff and a yellow cock. Both stood first in their respective classes, the buff being claimed at £12 10s. and the other at £10. Many fanciers were in search o' Crest and Crestbred hens; one of Evins Bros. was snapped up at £12 10s., and one of Mr. Ley's (an unnoticed bird) at £10 10s. Several Hybrids were bought at prices ranging from 30s. to £4 10s.; and Mr. Frostick's well-known Dartford Warbler will warble elsewhere to give his new owner value in pleasure and song to the extent of £12 10s. Mr. Longden's second prize Linnet went cheap at two guineas, and all the following first prize British went home by a fresh route: Redpoll, three guineas; Siskin, £4 10s.; and Song Thrush, £2 5s. 0d. A few of the lovely Foreigners appealed to the lady visitors, and many of them were taken off to West End drawing-rooms. The winning Great Grey Shrike, which was claimed at £6, unfortunately died during the show, although Mr. Ramsden was most assiduous in his effort to pull it round.

Round the Stalls.

The stalls are almost as necessary to make a good Palace Show as the birds. If there were none, visitors would miss them terribly. "Good old Carter's," as usual, had the centre of the show. Here they had on view a fine assortment of seeds of all kinds, clean, and of high quality, as is usual with this firm.

Up near the secretary's office Mr. C. Roehl, of Edgware Road, was in his usual position. There was no official show of Roller Canaries this year, but at this stall there was always a respectable crowd listening to the sweet notes of some birds of this breed, here on sale. Mr. R. had also a nice lot of piping Bullfinches, which sold readily. Here could be found all the necessary fittings for stocking the Roller fancier's birdroom, or a tasteful cage for the lady's drawing-room. A new bark nest brought out by Mr. Roehl is selling well. The nest is so natural in appearance that birds take to it at once. All the odds and ends of the birdroom, as used on the Continent, including open all-wire breeding cages, could be found here, and we were told a good trade was being done.

Mr. Joe Thomas, from Ambler Thorn, Halifax, was located at the opposite side of the office. He had a fine show of cages of all kinds, including an all-metal breeder, which sells well. Mr. T. had quite a show of birds, including specimens of most of the varieties of Canaries, as well as a few good Hybrids. To judge by the "sold" cards displayed, not many feathered ones would see Halifax again. Mr. Thomas is to be congratulated on his enterprise in coming down from Yorkshire with his specialities and his birds, and that these latter were appreciated is evidenced by the speedy manner in which sales were made by this astute and business-like dealer. Mr. Thomas' goods are all of excellent quality, and his birds come from good-class strains, while it is his proud boast that he will supply winners at fair prices. One of his Norwich Plainheads shown in the open classes found a purchaser for £13.

Outside, Messrs. Trower's stall was in its usual position, and we were told that trade was brisk, and so well does this firm cater for the Fancy that each succeeding year sees an advance in the business done. "Egbisco" is taking on well, but the firm has lately introduced a cheaper addition containing only twenty-five per cent. of egg, instead of fifty. To fanciers who make their own egg-food, the ground white biscuit put up by this firm will appeal. A new seed is being put on the market by Mr. T.; it is called "Nuseed," and is likely to share first place with Canary seed, as birds eat it greedily. During the show a good business was done in ants' eggs, "Softhilo," and "Cecto," for the Softbills. Nice, clean samples of various seeds were being packed for fanciers who take this opportunity of getting a few tit-bits for the pets.

Messrs. Spiller and Baker's wild seed mixture is well known throughout the Fancy, and a good display of the various sized packets was made. One could also obtain Cod-liver Oil Cage Bird Food, Granulated Biscuit, Red Mite Exterminator, and a host of other things, including a particularly clean Parrot Food of which this firm makes a speciality. The stall was tastefully arranged, and made a fine show.

At Messrs. Fox and Lewis's stall we were told that their Roller seed mixture for Canaries is taking exceptionally well. The well-known "Eganbisket" can now be had in two grades, and their Egg and Biscuit Colour-food is now used by many fanciers, being a handy form in which to administer the colouring agent. The usual seeds in packets made quite an imposing show

Hyde's "Aesthetic" Bird Seeds are well known, and the Hartz Mountain Bread which we remember many years ago, is still selling well. We were informed by the attendant that the Talking Canary had been fed exclusively upon Hyde's Seeds.

Messrs. Edwards and Co. had a good display, and among their wares we noticed the "New Niagara Grit," which is medically treated and is claimed to be very beneficial to all birds. Their speciality is "Parrot Food" (a form of egg and biscuit) and the well known "Norwich Syrup" for asthma in cage birds.

CAGE BIRDS stall was in its usual position, where coloured plates, books, etc., etc., were displayed to the crowd of fanciers always to be found round it.

THE "ANNUAL,"

The Fanciers' Best Friend,

WILL BE ON SALE NEXT MONDAY.

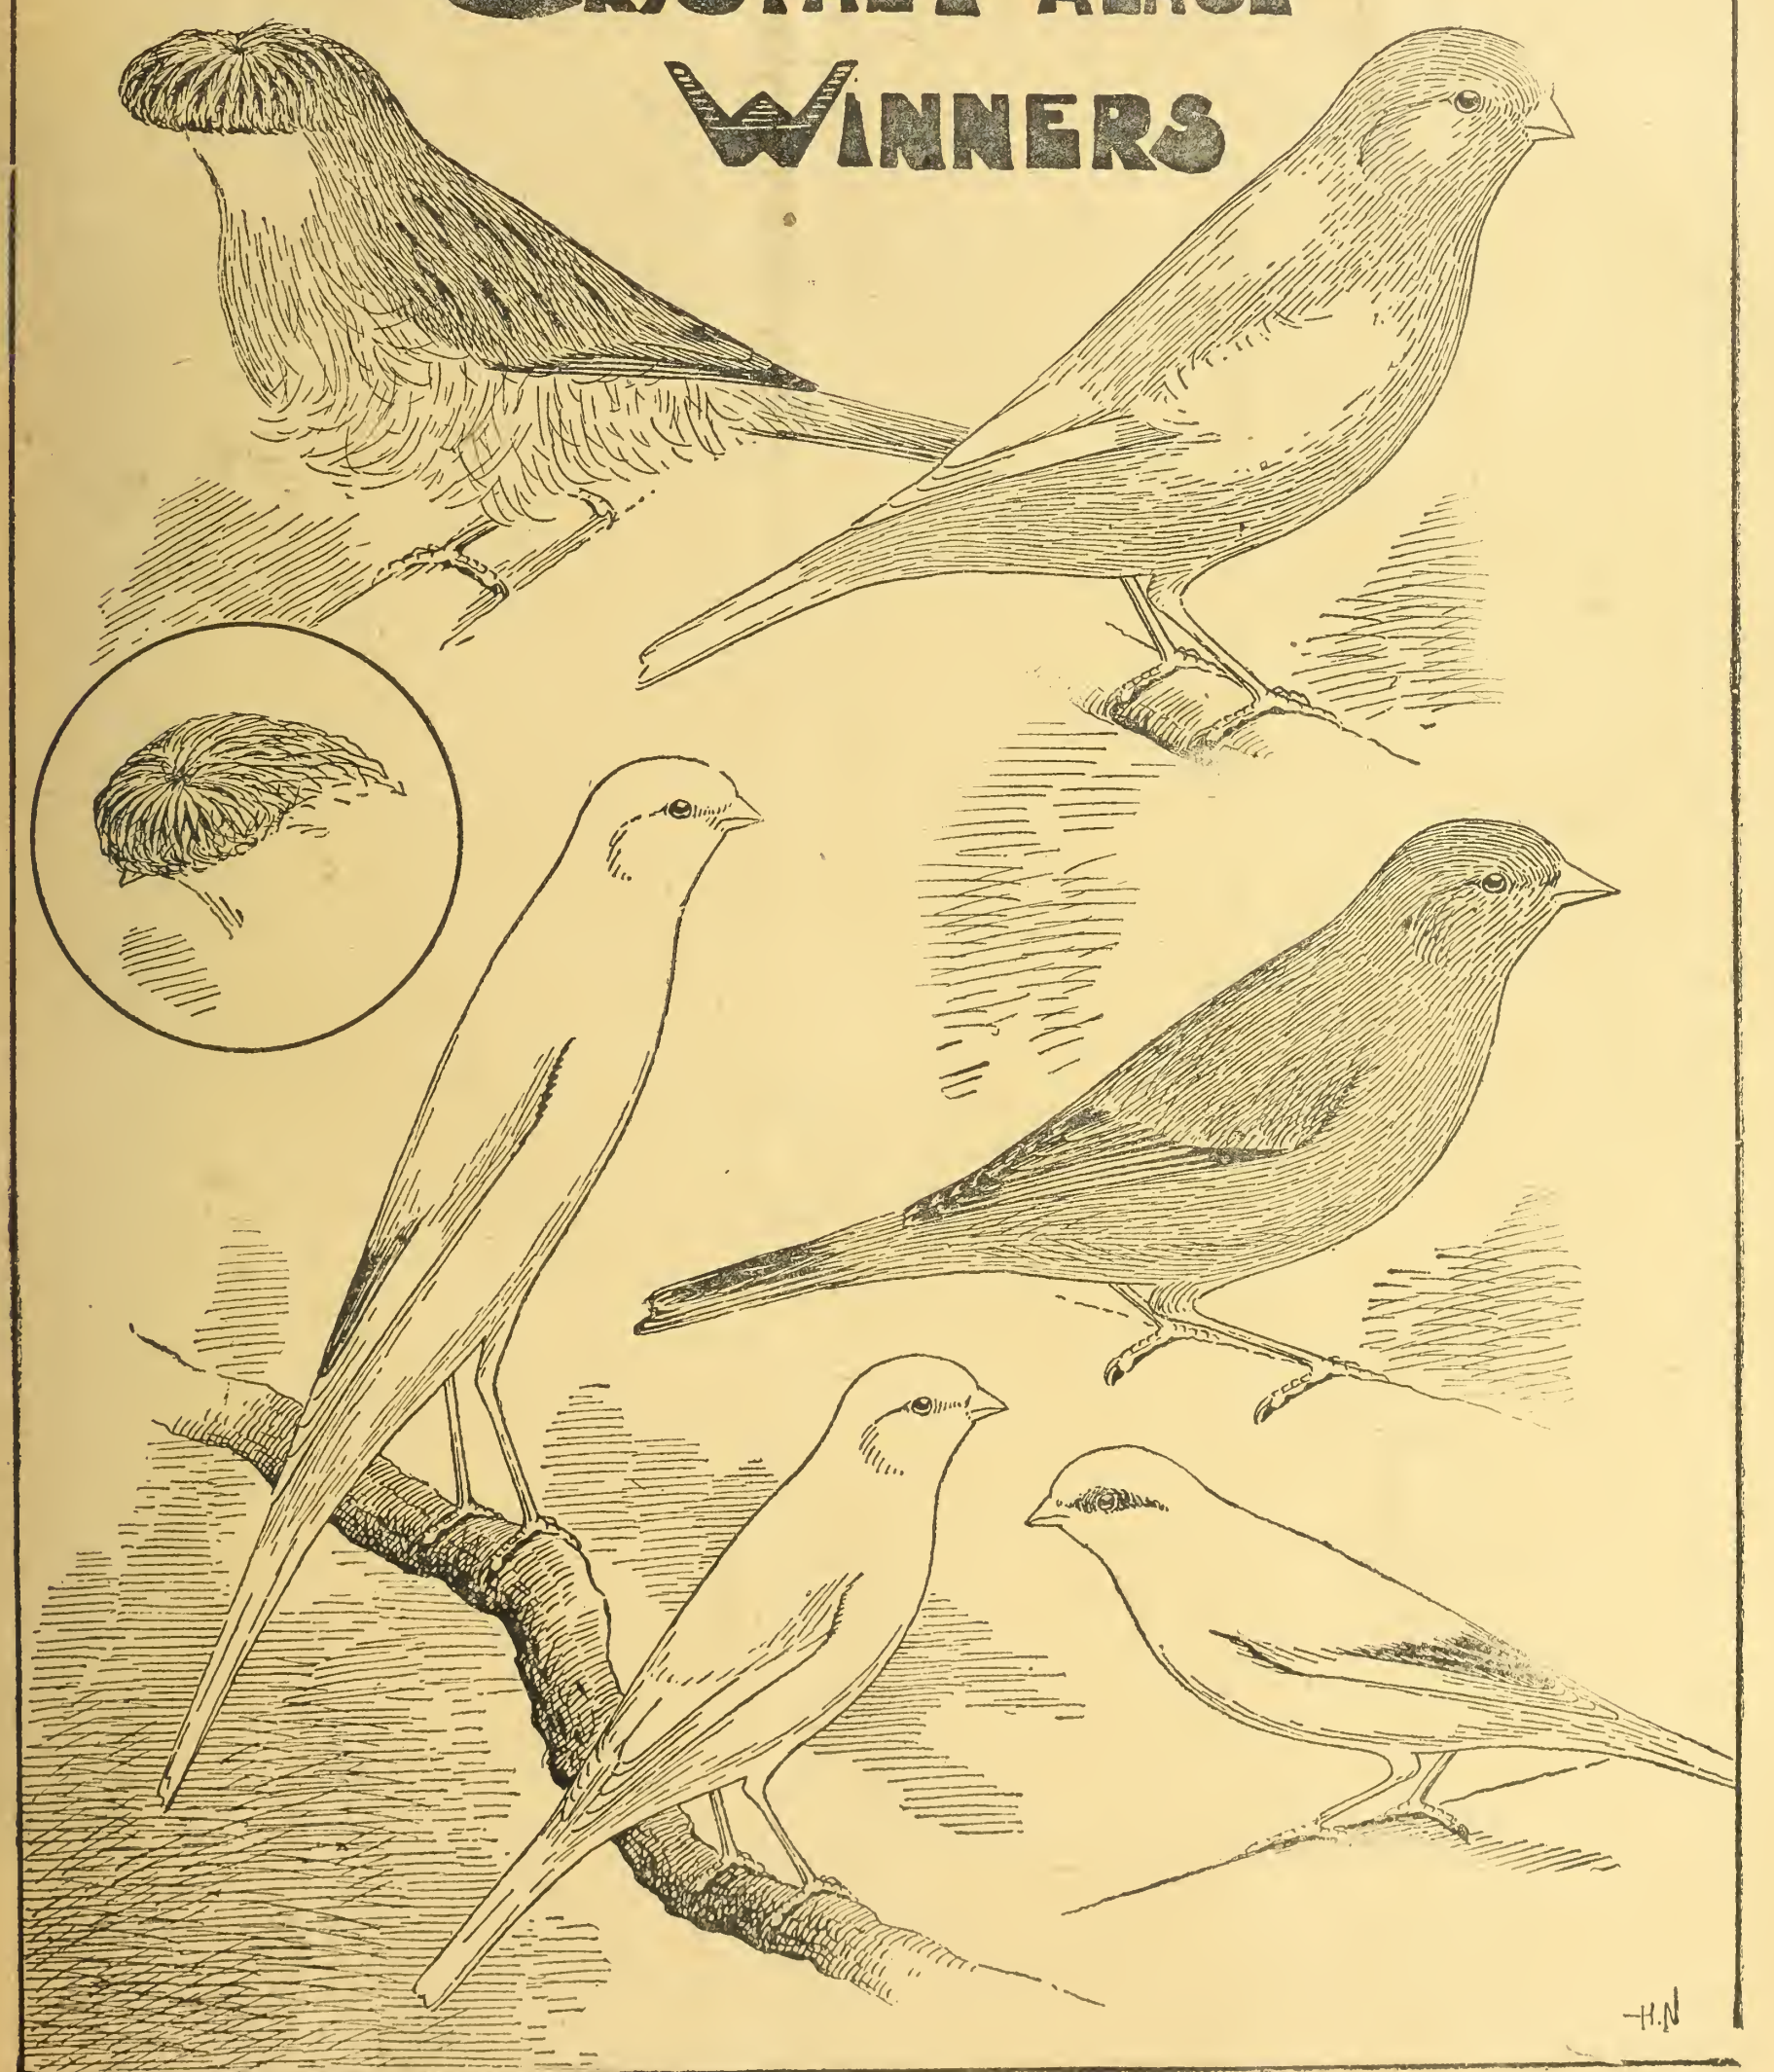
Norwich Plainheads.

Judge H. W. Battye.

With an aggregate of 164, giving the splendid average of twenty-three per class, Norwich breeders gave Mr. Battye, a good morning's work, and he came through with flying colours, especially considering how thick and lumpy most of the exhibits were owing to the cold, dark morning. The quality, too, was good, many noted Northern and Southern winners entering the lists. Yellows were a capital lot for shape and size, but a number of them looked as though it was a good thing the end of the season had been reached. The winner of the section special, Mr. Davies's, is really a wonderful bird for colour, type, and feather, but it has a nasty trick of slipping its perch, which does not add to its carriage. Its stable companion which led the way in the Buffs, was quite the opposite in this respect, for it was one of the smartest and best positioned birds in the section. The second best to Mr. Davies's crack was found in Mr. Midgley's lovely ticked yellow, a bird that has done a lot of winning at Southern shows, and is really a most typical high quality exhibit. One of the North country veterans scored in ticked buffs with a bird of rare type, and one which proved that Mr. Battye is not like some judges—colour mad. Two splendid classes were the unflighted birds, especially the yellows, in which an extra fourth was awarded. Grand, indeed, were the yellow hens, and had Mr. Battye given the special for the best Norwich to Mr. Strout's exhibit, no one could have grumbled; she was indeed a picture, but the Plymouth lassie ran her very close. Two grand hens, indeed, and both from the West Countrie. The buff hens were not so good as usual, most of the exhibits being minus that beautiful soft sheeny appearance which gives such a charming finish to a good buff hen. This, however, may have been due to the adverse climatic and atmospheric conditions which prevailed.

YELL. (22): 1, diploma and sp best Norwich, J. E. Davies, very stout, chubby head and neck, nicely rounded top, deep wide chest, grand shoulders, very neat wings and tail, rich level colour, capital feather, does not grip perch tightly; 2, hc, Hodder, very stout head and neck, grand body, which is carried well across the perch by a pair of nicely set legs, sound even col., not quite so rich, lovely feather and finish; 3, Irons, lovely quality and col., rare shape, as tight as wax, built on a smaller scale; 4, Greenwood and Pickles, splendid col. and feather, rare shape and carriage of body, lovely wings and tail, hardly so stout in head; 4, Harland, very shapely and smart, capital feather, nice even col., also one of the smaller school; vhc, sp, Thomas, rare shape, feather, and carriage, not quite so level in col.; vhc, Gill and Pethick, a bird we admired much, rare shape, full of quality, not so hot as some, perhaps, but a Norwich all over, and beautifully staged; hc, Baker, good col., nice quality of feather, not so tight and compact in feather; c, Ball. BUFF (25): 1, J. E. Davies, good Bullfinch, chest and shoulders, nice short wings and tail, full of quality, plenty of col., and nicely mealed, stands well across perch, head hardly in keeping with its magnificent body; 2, Hodder, noted Southern winner, beautiful rich even col., grandly mealed, plenty of chest, stouter head than winner, carries a nice silky compact coat; 3, Humphries, rare body for shape, col., meal, and feather, but like the winner is a trifle weak in skull; 4, Sheldon, big bouncing bird of good depth of col., capital chest and back, hardly so smart; 4, Irons, on the small side, but teeming with col. and quality; vhc, Adnitt and Driver, grand shape, lovely shade of col., very nice silky feather, a bird we liked well; Harland, a rare good bodied bird, let down by his slackness of wing; hc, Strout, a gem for col., and feather, but needs a bit more substance; Freeman, grand stamp of bird, evidently spoilt in the washing; c, sp, Holden. TKD. YELL. (19): 1, sp, second best Norwich, Midgley, nice bold fronted bird, well cut away behind, very sound, level, and rich in col., close in feather, nicely braced wings and tail, a most typical, well finished, nicely shown specimen, thigh tkd.; 2, Hodder, cap and wing tkd., a hot 'un, and no mistake, grand quality feather, capital shape and style, in nice form; 3, Ellis, heavily mkd., very typical indeed, full of col. and quality, put down in good form and well merited its position; 4, J. E. Davies, rare shape and style, as hot as they make 'em, capital feather, nice head; vhc, Gill and Pethick, real Devonshire cream, rich in hue, lovely quality, style, and shape; hc, Neal; c, Bloor. TKD. BUFF (20): 1, Harland, nice, round, chubby head, rare chest and back, well over perch, good quality, not overdone with col.; 2, Humphries, eye, neck, and wing mkd., rare shape, size, and col., plenty of the latter, full of quality, and but for one thing a gem, he shows lashing; 3, George, wing and tail mkd., as pretty as paint, a most charming exhibit, simply brimful of quality, very nice tone of col., rare shape and carriage, quite filled our eye; 4, Adnitt and Driver, rare shaped, eye tkd., just the sort to breed from, one of the old Nottingham sort such as we used to see in days of yore, lovely col. and feather; vhc, Hodder, eye tkd., grand all-round specimen, but seemed to be feeling the cold very much indeed when we made our notes; vhc, c, W. Davies, cap, eye, and wing mkd., capital col., and feather, longer behind; hc, Baker, cap and wing mkd., really good type, plenty of col., nicely mealed, grand silky feather, we liked very much indeed; hc, Smith. UNFLI. (29): 1, Gill and Pethick, a gem, and hard to find fault with, rare head, neck, and shoulders, capital chest, neat, well braced wings and tail, nicely cut up behind, rare carriage, smart and slick throughout; 2, W. Davies, plenty of col., sound and level, nice quality of feather, good head and chest, carries more rudder; 3, vhc, hc, Irons, a capital team for col., quality, and shape, beautifully shown, but hardly stout enough in build, not much between them; 4, Baker, lovely body shape, fine silky sheeny coat, rich level col., capital wings and tail, given a trifle more substance of skull and he would be a top-notcher indeed, still, with a moult should beat more than beat him; 4, Lingard, rare little swell, as spick and span as a Piccadilly masher, but hardly enough of him; vhc, Mrs. Collings, rare, short, cobby body, neat, well proportioned head, capital col. and feather, but drops his right wing; hc, sp, Taylor, very neat and compact, full of quality, sound, even col., nicely staged; c, Kilby. UNFLI. BUFF (21): 1, Thomas, good, stout, chubby body, neat head, full neck, well set shoulders, capital back and front, neat, well carried wings, nice tone of col., well mealed; 2, vhc, Pickering and Wright, 2nd lovely cl., rare shape and style, charming col., grandly feathered, smart in carriage, a real good sort, vhc wing and chest mkd., very shapely and nice col., not so tight in feather or so smart in carriage; 3, Johnson, very neat and compact, but could do with a little more substance, very nice tone of col., grandly feathered; 4, Kilby, good head and front, nice level col., good quality, not so short and compact; vhc, Smith, not so warm in col. as some, but equal to the best in type and silkiness of feather; hc, Irons, rare col. and feather, but not enough of him; hc, c, Hodder, cheek and wing mkd., and a cl., two grand shaped birds, full of col. and quality, we liked well; c, Harding. HENS, YELL. (25): 1, Strout, almost perfection, we think she is one of the best we have ever seen; she possesses all the properties that a typical Norwich hen should claim, a beauty indeed; 2, Gill and Pethick, not quite so large as winner, but loses in no other point, whilst in that little extra bit of top sheen which denotes super-excellency of feather she is just the better of the two, just a question of "How happy could I be with either, if t'other dear charmer were away"; 3, Dorner, eye, wing, and tail mkd., a real bonny Lancashire lass, not quite so chubby, perhaps, as the leaders, but for col., silkiness of feather, carriage, and general finish, one of the best; 4, Humphries, capital head and chest, nice tone of col., very shapely, neatly feathered, trifle longer; 4, Lingard, rare shape, col., and style, not so well finished in feather; vhc, Ellis, rare shape, lovely col., nice quality, but like many others was feeling the cold and dropped her clothes a bit, Greenwood and Pickles, very handsomely built young lady, clothed in a dress of the finest silky feather, but not so rich in col.; hc, Adamson, very neat and shapely, compact in feather, nice even col., Baker, charming little lady, full of quality and col., very stylish and smart; c, Sheldon. BUFF (19): 1, Hodder, raro shaped body, capital carriage, very close silky jacket, level, but not over rich in col.; 2, Thomas, good typical body, could do with a bit more rise of skull, grandly feathered and nice style; 3, Ellis, grand shape, nice rich col., well frosted, grand silky feather; 4, Harland, rare good stamp of hen, but seemed done up with the cold; vhc, Bevan, Baker; hc, Gill and Pethick, very nice shape, nice tone of col., beautifully frosted, capital wings and tail, a good sort; c, George.



The Yorkshires.

Judge, W. Mundell.

CL. YELL. (19): The winners in this class were a fine lot of birds, being full of quality, keeping true to type, and showing plenty of nerve, and daylight under them: 1, 2, Ambler, 1st the old champion, looking in the pink of condition, this makes his third success at the Palace, winning in 1908 and '10, grand position, lovely quality, rich col., nice position, A1 pair of grand legs, neat tail, 2nd long flights, well braced to side, very stylish, full of nerve, good head, clean on breast, teeming with quality, rich col.; 3, 4, Shackleton, 3rd rich col., lovely feather, good head, well braced wings, piped tail, very stylish, rare length, standing on pair of good legs, 4th well up on leg, good head, rare length, well braced wings, very typical, rich col., clean on breast, lovely quality; vhc, Millincamp, very slim, boxy feather, stylish, nice wings and tail, fails just a little in length to winner; hc, Dykes, rich col., boxy feather, good head, nice wings, piped tail, very stylish; c, Stubhings, position and quality, rich col., neat head, good legs, very nervy. BUFF (18): In this class the quality of the Yorkshire was brought out to perfection, from the 1st to the commended cards quality reigned supreme, and the type of the birds was much admired: 1, 2, Ogden Bros., 1st grand head and neck, clean on breast feather, like wax, lovely rich even col. throughout, nice position, A1, stands on a pair of good legs, 2nd boxy feather, neat round head, clean on breast, very typical, full of nerve, piped tail, close up to winner; 3, c, Shackleton, 3rd long and stylish, good wing carriage, neat head, lovely quality, piped tail, very showy, much admired; c, rich col., grand wings and tail, neat head, very typical; 4, Amblers, good round head, clean on breast, well placed wings, piped tail, stands well up, boxey feather, lovely rich col.; vhc, Thornton and Bower, good head, nice wing carriage, piped tail, very typical, full of quality; hc, Helliwell, position A1, boxey feather, rich col., long flights, piped tail, stands well, very steady, shown in the pink of condition. TKD. YELL. (15): In this class the birds were a blaze of col., lovely quality, but we think they were on the small side; we should strongly advise Yorkshire breeders to pay more attention to length; a good long upstanding bird is what is wanted: 1, 3, Bailey, 1st thigh tkd., regular blaze of col., teeming with quality, grand wing carriage, piped tail, good legs, 3rd thigh ticked, pale col., magnificent quality, grand wings and piped tail, neat head, position A1; 2, Cruise, cheek marked, rich col., boxey feather, grand wing and piped tail, good head, clean on breast, position A1; 4, Douglas, blaze of col., brimful of quality, tkd. on head, grand position, well placed wings, piped tail, stands well; vhc, Ogden Bros., wing marked, grand position, lovely quality feather, good length of wings and tail, round head, rich col.; hc, Casey, cheek mkd., rich col., full of quality, position A1, neat head, clean on breast, piped tail, not so long as winners; c, Cooper, thigh tkd., rich col., boxey feather, well up on leg, very stylish, good stock bird. BUFF (18): In this class the birds were full of quality, but on the small side, position was good throughout, although col. failed a little, the winners all being pale a trifle in col.: 1, vhc, Bailey, 1st noted cheek tkd., this is the third time this bird has captured 1st at the Palace, looking in the pink of condition, full of quality, grand wings and tail, position A1, fails just a litt'e in head and length; vhc, tkd. on head, boxey feather, good wing carriage, piped tail, round head, very clean on breast, nice position; 2, Peel, a gem, but will not stand handling, grand head, neck, and breast, teeming with quality, stands well, good wings, piped tail; 3, Binns, lovely position, well placed wings, piped tail, good head, full of quality, bit down to-day; 4, Chew and Stokoe, thigh tkd., grand wings and tail, lovely quality, neat head, pale col., position A1; hc, Price, neat head, lovely quality feather, stands well, good wings, piped tail, not well shown; c, Stewart, thigh tick, boxey feather, well placed wings, piped tail, position A1, shade on the small side. CL. ETC., YELL. HEN (29): This was one of the best classes of yellow hens we have ever seen; the quality was good throughout, and colour was rich. Slimness and type were the striking features. The winners all showed great length and nice position and quality: 1, Bailey, a gem, rare length and position, long flights, well braced to side, good round head, well up on leg, teeming with quality, rich col.; 2, Whittaker, very stylish, neat head, plenty of nerve, lovely quality feather, stands well, long flights and tail; 3, Robertshaw, long drawn out, straight as a rush, feather like marble, pale col., very good head, clean on breast, nicely upstanding; 4, Cooper, good head, nice clean breast, well placed wings, piped tail, magnificent quality, even col., grand position; ex. 4, Allen, boxey feather, neat head, good wings and tail, very stylish, rich col., not so long as winners; vhc, Shackleton, rich col., grand quality, well braced wings, piped tail, very typical, well put down; vhc, Amblers, very stylish, plenty of leg, long flights, piped tail, full of quality, rich col., neat round head, good one; hc, Ogden Bros., nice quality and position, neat head, long flights, piped tail, well shown; hc, Thomas, very slim good quality, neat head, clean on breast, grand position, very steady; c, Casey, nice position, boxey feather, good head, piped tail. Top (left to right), Buff Crested Hen "Empress," 1st for Mr. G. C. Ley (Nottingham); Ticked Yellow Norwich, 1st for Mr. W. N. Midgley (Winslow); Head of Crested Cock, 1st in the Novice Class for Mr. W. Mellor (Derby); Dark Greenfinch-Canary Mule, 1st for Mr. A. Somerfield (Sheffield); Buff Border Fancy Hen, 1st for Mr. H. Bennet (Kelso); Even-marked Border Fancy, 1st for Messrs. Duncan and Logan (Coldstream).

CRYSTAL PALACE REPORT:

The quality and richness of colour in this class were amazing; the birds were well feathered, looking like wax; the birds showed to great advantage, and were very much admired. Many of the cardless birds were winners and will be heard of in the future. The winner was a real topper, being benched to perfectiou; she stood out a queen amongst queens: 1, 3, vhc, Amblers, 1st a gem, feather like wax, blaze of col., grand position, neat round head, lovely wings and tail, 3rd full of nerve, typical, neat head, grand wings and tail, boxey feather, rich col.; vhc, quality, A1 position, stands well, good wing carriage, not so long as winners, nicely benched; 2, Towers, rich sound col., neat head, well braced wings, piped tail, lovely quality, grand position, very steady; 4, Shackleton, grand breed hen, lovely quality, positlon A1, grand wings and tail, good head, rich col., very steady, just a shade strong; vhc, Ogden Bros., full of nerve, graud wiugs and tail, quality of feather A1, very typical, long and slim; hc, Thomas, rich col., boxey feather, stands well, neat head, grand type; c, Chittenden, stylish, boxey feather, good head and breast, well braced wings, piped tail, very sound, rich col. UNFLIG. YELL. (11): This was the largest class in the Yorkshire section, but we were disappointed in the exhibits; very few came up to exhibitiou form; colour and feather were all right, but character and style were at a discount: 1, Smith, good round head, very clean on breast, well up on leg, long flights and tail, full of quality, rich even col., fails just a little in position, rather wild at times; 2, Bailey, long, straight bird, lovely flights, piped tail, rich col., good leg, stands to perfection, very steady, fails a little in head or would have won; 3, Crawhall, grand positlon, feather like wax, good wlng and tail, well up on leg, but not long enough; ex. 3, Robertshaw, rich col., nice head and breast, good wing and tail, full of quality, somewhat poorly put down; 4, Allen, pale col., nice quality, fine feather, neat head, just lacks position, not steady; ex. 4, Walker, full of quality, well up on leg, piped tail, nice head, fails in position a bit; vhc, Thomas, cap and wing mkd., rich col., boxey feather, good head, fails only in lengtb; vhc, Owen, wing mkd., pale col., boxey feather, wants more handling, too wild; vhc, Biuns, lovely quality, nice type, rich col., ou the small side; hc, Chew and Stokoe, rich col., splendid quality; hc, Binns, cap mkd., boxey feather, blaze of col.; hc, Cruise, pale col., nice quality, would do better a bit louger; c, Bentley, cheek tkd., boxey feather, good wings and tail; c, Dix, unevenly marked, full of quality. BUFF (28): In this class somo fine specimens were benched. Quality was a great feature; the winners were as tight as wax—a great contrast with the previous class. The winner took special for best Yorkshire iu show, also diploma: 1, spl. best bird, vbc, Ogden Bros., a gem, good head, beautiful wings and tail, grand legs, position A1, lovely quality feather, rich level col.; hc, nice quality, good position, wings, and tail; 2, Amblers, boxey feather, well braced wings, piped tail, rich col., grand position, runs close to winner; 3, Hall, boxey feather, good head, grand wings and tail, position A1, fails just a little on breast; ex. 3, Bentley, long flights and tail, lovely quality feather, good head, rich col.; 4, Stewart, feather like wax, position A1, rich col., on the small side; ex 4, Wright and Son, very stylish, magnificent quality; vhc, Lockett, wing ticked, boxey feather, nice position, good head and wings; vhc, Helliwell, nice type, lovely quality, rich col.; hc, Rennie, well up on leg, splendid quality, piped tail; hc, Hears, lovely quality, grand position, on the small side.

Green-Marked Yorkshires.

Judge, C. A. House.

Never in the history of the Fancy were a finer lot of Green marks got together than those staged at Sydenham on Friday last; the classes from end to end simply teemed with quality, and there were few Yorkshires in the clears and ticks which could beat the Halifax champion of Messrs. Blackburn and Mitchell's, which secured the championship diploma. This is most encouraging, and is a splendid example of what can he done in a short time by a vigorous, enterprisiug specialist club. If those who are interested in some of the breeds which are languishing would only bestir themselves and boldly tackle tho problem before them in the same earnest spirit as the National Green-marked Yorkshire Canary Club has tackled the uplifting of the Green marks, we should soon see a mighty revival in some of our oldest and most fascinating varieties. The Yellows were the strongest in numbers, whilst the quality right tbrough the class was good, and competition very keen. One well-kuown fancier, one of Yorkshire's veterans, said either of the three leaders could have won, and that he thought them the three best he bad ever seen. The Buffs were a very level lot, and type was well to the front right through the class. When one considers that only two or three years back that all the best Buff Green marks were short in body and leg, it is really wonderful what has been accomplished. The hens were just lovely, and one could hardly wish for two finer, smarter birds than the leaders of Messrs. Shackleton and Sutcliffe. Mr. House went in strongly for type and shape, slimness, style, and quallty of feather received far more consideration than markings.

YELL. (19): 1, spl, and diploma, Blackburn and Mitchell, eye and wing marked, very slim and neat throughout, fine head, lovely shoulders and back, smart, well braced wings and tail, very tight and silky in feather, full of style and rare position; 2, Douglas, head, cheek, and wing mkd., full of col. and quality, grand sheen, more length, tapers well from shoulder to tail, rare back, plenty of nerve, a grand handler, not quite so sweet in head, a near thing; 3, vhc, Dykes, cheek and wing mkd., wonderful quality and style, neat shapely body, full of nerve, grand wings and tail, not quite so much col. and a shade shorter; vhc, head, neck, and wing mkd., feathered to perfectiou, stands well up, grand shoulders, back and wings, nice col., rare shape and style, only needs a trifle more length to be slap in the front rank; 4, Ogden Bros., head, wing and tail mkd., rare length, stands well up on a good pair of legs, lovely silky feather, good head, shoulders, wings and tail, plenty of nerve, looked well in the hand when roused, but was a bit puffy on bench, and seemed to feel the cold; hc, Townsend; c, Towers. BUFF (12): 1, spl best hc, Ogden Bros., head, eye, and wing mkd., long, straight, well tapered body, grand legs, beautifully feathered right through, nice head, capital back, shoulders and tail, full of style, a beauty; 2, Dykes, eye breast, and wing mkd., capital col. and feather grand style and nerve, rare wings and tail, longer but hardly so erect in carriage; 3, Robertshaw, eye and wing mkd., rather stouter, lovely feather and style, grand head, back, wings and tail, very smart; 4, Towers, eye, cheek, and wing mkd., a real gem plenty of col. and brimful of quality, lovely shape and style, but not so much length; vhc, Clegg, head, eye, and wing mkd., superb feather, rare back, wings, and tail, splendid carriage, needs just a wee bit more leg; c, Sutcliffe and Son. HEN, YELL. (13): 1, Shackleton, cheek, neck, and wing mkd., a real beauty, full of quality, lovely tone of col., sweet head, grand shoulders, back, wings, and tail, well cleaned out in front, and tapered nicely right through, grand carriage and nerve; 2, Thornton and Bower, cheek and wiug mkd., long slashing hen of grand shape, plenty of nerve, got well up on leg, lovely top and neat front, rare quality and col., not quite so tightly braced in wing; 3, Sutcliffe and Son, cheek and wing mkd., full of quality, nice even col., neat head, nice back, smart wings and tail, hardly so much length, but very showy and nervy; 4, Dykes, eye and wing mkd., grandly balanced hen right through, neat head, grand shoulders, back and tail, full of quality, not quite so erect in carriage; vhc, spl, Thomas, eye and wing mkd., a really topping hen, grandly drawn out, capital legs, plenty of style, not quite so well finished in feather; hc, Chittenden; c, Ogden Bros. BUFF (10): 1, Sutcliffe and Son, eye and wing mkd., wonderfully feathered, neat head, well poised on shapely neck, rare shoulders, wings, and tail, capital col., very smart and stylish, a real picture; 2, Ogden Bros., very faintly mkd. on eye and wing, some thought not eligible for the class, but she was rightly entered, pale in col., but a rare picture of a Yorkshire ben, not a feather out of place, sweet head, grandly cut away from shoulders downwards, and stands as erect as a soldier; 3, Hall, eye and wing, a slashing hen for shape and style, rare wings and tail, but gone in neck, and thus had to pay the penalty of past greatness; 4, Towers, cap and wing mkd., lovely feather and style, neat head, well braced wings and tail, just a shade stouter; vbc, Townsend, eye, neck, and wing mkd., long, slim, well drawn stylish hen, a grand bird, but was not shown in the best of form, and went down in cousequence; hc, Rennie; c, Dykes; wrong class, 661, Wilson, a yell.

Cinnamon-Marked Yorkshires.

Judge, C. A. House.

We have seen larger numbers of Cinnamon marks, but never have we seen a better quality lot than at the Palace on this occasion, and this seemed to be the general opinion. Right through the section the competition was of the keenest character possible, aud very little indeed divided the exhibits one from the other. Mr. Jas. Bailey won in each of the cock classes, and secured the championship with his wonderful young yell., whilst Mr. Towers annexed both the leading position in hens with a brace of the choicest.

YELL. (12): 1, spl, diploma, and Ramsden's spl, Bailey, eye aud wing mkd., wonderful length and shape, with any amount of nerve and swagger, beautifully feathered, if just a trifle neater in head he would be close to perfection; 2, 4, Towers, eye, chest, and wing mkd., not so long, sweet head, grand back, wings, and tail, full of style and quality; 4th, eye, head, and wing mkd., nice head, back, and wings, not so smart in tail, very nice col. and feather, and full of style; 3, Ogden Bros., eye, cheek, and wing mkd., fine long shapely bird of most excellent quality, but would not get up to his work so well as the leaders; vhc, Smith, very hot coloured, eye, neck, and wing mkd., rare shape and style, uot quite so tight in feather; hc, spl, Sutcliffe and Son, a grand stamp of bird, also a bit open in feather; c, Mallinson and Son. BUFF (12): 1, Bailey, eye, neck, and wing mkd., a gem right through, a fitting companion to the championship wiuuer, two grand birds for one man to breed in a season, in the opinion of some the buff is the better bird of the two, Lucky Jim! 2, Towers, eye, neck, and wing mkd., lovely col. and feather, rare wings and tail, very stylish, but not quite so slim; 3, vhc, spl, Ogden Bros., eye, neck, and wing mkd., plenty of length, grandly moulded, lovely feather, does not get up to his work quite so niccly; vhc, eye, shoulder, and wing mkd., a rare shaped bird of most excellent feather, lovely col., neat head, nice back, but would not stand handling, if he steadies down should make a smart bird; 4, Dykes, eye and wing mkd., very shapely and stylish, nice back, wings, and tail, needs just a little more silkiness of feather; hc, Richmond; c, Mallinson and Son. HEN, YELL. (14): 1, Towers, eye, head, and wing, lovely quallty and col., neat head, grand back, wings, and tail, rare shape and nerve, a grand Yorkshire; 2, Mallinson and Son, eye aud wing mkd., very slim and nicely drawn, rare style, gets well up to her work, lovely feather; 3, Dykes, head, neck, and wing mkd., very shapely and stylish, nice col., capital wings and tail, not quite so silky and tight in body feather; 4, Thomas, eye and wing mkd., rare quality and col., nice style, good back wings and tail, hardly so slim; vhc, Mason, very smart racy wing mkd., full of style, rare wings and tail, should make a beauty next time; hc, Chittenden; c, Rennie. BUFF (14): 1, Towers, head, check, and wing mkd., very finely drawn, wonderful quality and compactness of feathering, lovely head, rare back, wings and tail, plenty of nerve, in rare form; 2, Cooper, cheek and wing mkd., very slim, grandly braced wings and tail, neat head and shoulders, rare nerve and carriage, hardly so well finished in feather; 3, Hirst, head, neck, and wings, very slim and stylish, capital wings and tail, gets well hold of perch and stands liko a soldier; 4, Allen, head, cheek, and wing mkd., rare feather and style, nice level back, wings and tail tightly braced, a trifle stouter in build; vhc, hc, Ogden Bros., head, eye, and wing mkd., level, feather, plenty of nerve, nice back, but does not get up to her work like she should; c, Clegg.

The Cinnamons.

Judge, C. A. House.

As one looked at these classes the question arose in one's mind—where is the Cinnamon Club, and what is it doing? Only twenty-eight entries at the Palace Show; in the days that are gone we have seeu as many in one class. Unless something is done by the club the breed stands a chance of being left out of the schedule, and this would be a calamity indeed. There have been signs of a revived interest in the breed during the past season, and if the leaders of Cinnamon Club would only bestir themselves, get together a few specials, and institute a competition somewhat on the lines of some of the Yorkshire Canary Clubs, this grand old breed would come again.

YELL. (8): 1, vhc, spl, hc, spl, Mrs. Deacon, capital shape and size, very neat feather and rich col.; 2, 4, Dormer, very warm in col., deep chest, capital feather; 4th, the largest and best shaped, but slack in body feather, and short of tail feather; 3, c, Nason, far and away the soundest in cinnamon col., nice feather, but not so large or shapely. BUFF (7): 1, Dormer, splendid col. sound and rich, very shapely body, covered with nice silky feather; 2, 4, vhc, Mrs. Deacon, better type and size, but not so sound or rich in col., and lacks the sheen which makes the winner's coat so lovely; 3, Godley, larger, grand shape and feather, not so cl. in col., shade smoky on chest; hc, Wilson; c, Medlin. UNFLIG. (6): 1, diploma, spl, Dormer, fine big, rare shaped buff, lovely col., sound and rich right through, splendid feather; 2, Godley, big bouncing yell., grand head and chest, nice col., not so compact in feather; 3, 4, vhc, hc, Mrs. Deacon, lovely yell., small, but rare shape, col., and feather; 4, buff, long in wings and tail, nice col., well feathered. HEN (8): 1, 4, Godley, two grand coloured buffs, splendid feather, nice shape, winner the largest, and has the best head; 2, 3, vhc, Mrs. Deacon, nice team of yells., sound, rich col., capital shape, beautifully feathered and nicely shown; hs, Dormer; c, Wilson.

Crests and Crestbreds.

Judge, T. Heath.

For many years now one has bad to deplore the fact that the Crests at Sydenham were not representative of this most fascinating branch of the Fancy, but on this occasion the men of the South and the Midlands arose in their might, and wiped away the reproach, and much credit is due to them for their gallant effort to place this noble breed in a position worthy of its character. In the years that are gone, we have seen some remarkably fine displays of Crests and Crest-breds at the Palace. In those days the Crests out-numbered the Norwich and Yorkshires, and were quite the feature of the show. Is it too much to hope that it may be so again? It is said that Crests cannot stand such a long show. If it is so, then it proves that the Crests and Crest-breds of to-day are not as robust as those of twenty years ago, because in those days the show lasted until the Thursday, whilst now it closes on the Tuesday. However, 1911 has shown us that if a few enthusiasts make up their mind to do a thing, it can be done, and we hope that next year their praiseworthy example will be followed by many others, and that we shall find Crests and Crest-breds sent by fanciers from the North, South, East, and West, and in large numbers, too. Crest fanciers who visited the show under notice must have been highly pleased, not only with the numerical display of tbeir favourites, but also with the wonderful quality of the birds shown by Messrs. Ley, Bewick, Franz, Evins Bros., Bale Lazurus, Linder, Oldaker, Smith, Davey, Harrison, and others, not forgetting the ladies—Mrs. Crow, and Mrs. Thynne.

CRESTS, BUFF (16): 1, diploma, and spl best Crest, vhc, c, Ley, the noted grey "King George V.," wonderful droop, great width of front, heavy sides, well defined centre, twists just a bit behind, rare body, and looked as fit as a Border, vhc wing mkd., very nicely arranged head gear, but lacks the size and length of crest feather; 2, hc, Evins Bros., green body, with light patches, which are also seen in the crest, grand centre, with heavy, long feather radiating well all round, very densely feathered, and rare droop, but is not so cobby in body as the leader, and has not so much width of front, but a rare stamp for all that; 3, Smith, even marked, capital front and droop, not quite so neat in centre, good body and plenty of feather; 4, Mrs. Thynne, lovely quality right through, neat round crest, well defined centre from which the feather radiates uniformly alround, rare shaped body, needs length and density of feather, beautifully shown. HEN: 13, 1, 3, Ley, "Empress," an empress indeed, magnificent pied green, lovely expanse of head feather, centre clear and well defined, and from it radiates uniformly allround one of the most perfect and beautiful veining feathered crests one could wish to see, the droop and arrangement are almost perfect, shown in splendid form; 3, variegs., very heavily feathered body, good length and density of crest feather, nice front and sides, lacks finish of centre and back, a rare useful stock bird; 2, 4, Evins Bros., saddle mkd., a remarkably fine hen too, not quite so massive as the wiuner, but most lovely quality and formation of crest feather, grand centre, lovely droop and radiation; in the opinion of some this hen might have won, and Mr. Franz backed his opinion by claiming her at catalogue price, £15; 4, green, again beautiful type, rare quality, very shapely head gear, lacking in the all-essential length; vhc, Lazarus, very heavily feathered variegated, nice front and droop; hc, Oldaker, smart green, neat front and droop; c, Franz. C.-B. BUFF (12): 1, diploma and sp. best C.B., Franz, wing mkd., most wonderful bird, immense width of substance and skull, which is of the approved dome or cushion shape, stout cobby body, most profusely feathered body, and grandly lashed skull; 2, Ley, another clinker, "Dreadnought," but conquered here, cap and saddle mkd., rare frontal and brow, heavily feathered body, good quality throughout; 3, Harrison, heavily feathered green with pied tail, nice quality of feather, wide skull, but not so much rise, tremendous brows; 4, Radley and Son, very nice skulled clr., good top and brow, nice width, plenty of feather, not so stout or massive in body, more Coppy type; vhc, Evins Bros., green with pied tail, heavily feathered, good brows, not so wide in frontal; hc, McLaughlan, nice shape, good brows, good quality, hardly so dense in feather; c, Barker. HEN (12): 1, Bewick, clinking green, rare width, nice top, plenty of brow and good "lay back," nice shaped body, covered with an abundance of beautiful quality feather of great length and width; 2, special, 3, Lazarus, variegated, and a ticked headed bird, both very profusely feathered with long, wide feather, grand fronts and brows, not quite so cobby in body, nor so compact in feather; 4, Hesketh, grand shaped green with pied tail, good front, nice substance of skull, not such great length of feather; vhc, Evins Bros., very shapely, nicely feathered cap and wing mkd.; hc, Radley and Son; c, Ley. CRESTS, YELL. (10): 1, 4, Evins Bros., cap, wing and tail mkd., grand shaped crest, neat centre, capital droop, rare quality of feather, splendid front, good body feather, shape and size; 4, even-mkd., nice shaped front, good droop, loses at back; 2, Mrs. Crow, grand shaped green, very nicely radiated from a well-defined centre, capital quality, hardly so massive; 3, vhc, hc, c, Ley, capital team, 3, grey, nice length and droop, plenty of feather; vhc, green with pied tail, nice shaped headpiece, needs length. C.-B. (14): 1, hc, Ley, variegs., rare shaped skull with plenty of substance, covered with a heavy thatch, good brows, splendid body feather, a hen and a topper, too; 2, Linder, variegs., hardly so wide in frontal, nice top and brows, good body feather; 3, Franz, another hen, rare shaped green, nice wide front with good rise and capital length, width, and density of feather; 4, Brotherton, nice shaped variegs., plenty of feather, not so much substance of skull; vhc, Mrs. Crow, green with pied tail, good shaped, wide fronted skull, carries a lot of feather, but is more Coppy shaped in body; c, Evins Bros. BRED 1910 CREST (10): 1, hc, Ley, green with pied tail, very nice formation of crest, rare quality, length, and width of feather which radiates in nice uniform manner from a clearly-defined small centre and droops neatly, nice finish and quality generally; 2, 4, c, Evins Bros., very charming even-mkd., not quite so much feather, but grandly arranged and well drooped; 4, a topping grey, we liked well, capital centre, front and droop, and well made, heavily feathered body; 3, Oldaker, saddle mkd., beautiful veiny crest, nice droop and radiation, needs a bit more length; vhc, Smith, heavily feathered green, nice front and side, open in centre somewhat. C.-B. (17): 1, Bale, variegs., a wonderful bird, carries a skull which could hold its own in many an adult class, magnificent frontal and top, good shaped body, and both very closely covered with great length and width of feather; 2, Davey, cap, eye, and wing mkd., not quite so massive, but grandly made skull and body, capital quality of feather; 3, Smith, smart green, very shapely skull and body, rare quality of feather, not quite so much length; 4, Bewick, very heavily feathered varieg., good shape, not quite so much width of skull, nice quality and good brow; vhc, Ley, head and eye mkd., a real topping yellow, grand shaped skull with plenty of feather of nice quality; hc, Radley and Son, heavily feathered, good headed varieg., longer in body; c, Brotherton.

Lancashires and Lizards.

Judge, J. Robson.

Only two classes each provided for these varieties at the leading exhibition of the world. Is it not possible for the lovers of these old-established breeds to organise their forces and secure a proper representation at the Palace Show? Neither ought to have less than half-a-dozen classes. If they were guaranteed by the Lancashire and Lizard F.A., and the Lancashire C.A., and a real live effort made to keep the classes going for a few years, they would soon become self-supporting, but, more important still, they would have great influence in creating an interest in the two breeds outside of the county which is their home, and breeders in the Palatinate would benefit hy the demand for stock. A leader is wanted for such a movement. Such a man as our old friend, Barker Clegg, when he and Jimmy Winskill were in partnership. Where is the man? Considering the classification, the entry was decidedly good, and some very nice birds put iu an appearance, especially so in the Lizards.

LANCS. COPPY (9): 1, 2, 4, sp, Green, 1 adult buff tkd., nice length and substance of body, good carriage, large, well spread, heavily feathered coppy, 2nd very grand headed young yell. tkd., neat centre, coppy, is thick and well spread, capital body, not quite so smart in wings as the old bird, 4th another tkd buff, very heavily feathered, good shaped body, not so massive in skull; 3, Boxall, very nice headed cl. buff, plenty of feather, nicely put on, shorter in body and tail; vhc, hc, Hordern, very smart tkd., not so heavily feathered: c, Swalwell. P.-H. (13): 1, c, Collinge, buff, capital length, shape, and carriage of body, carries plenty of feather, but skull rises rather too much; 2, 3, Fitton, rattling good yell. and buff, more of the scowling expression in head, capital length, shape, and style, not quite so heavily feathered; 4, vhc, Hordern, two very shapely, well feathered yells., nice carriage, not so much substance; hc, Green.

LIZARDS, GOLD (12): 1, 3, sp, Rukin, cl. cap and broken cap, two grand shaped, stylish birds of lovely quality, winner has the soundest col., and carries more work in shoulders, both very nicely rowed with clear distinct spangles; 2, vhc, hc, J. Dewsnap, a gem of a cl. cap, we liked very much indeed, fine, bold, clear spangling and plenty of it, well cut cap, good wings and tail, vhc splendid body and back, loses in finish of cap; 4, Barnes, very nice stamp of broken cap, well rowed, rich col, good shape and quality; c, Oliver. SILVER (13): 1, vhc, Rukin, clinking broken cap and a cl., full of large, clear, distinct spangling, splendid shape and size, rare feather and style, a bonny bird right through; vhc carries a lot of work, and is of good colour, but hardly so well burnished; 2, 3, Barnes, two nice shaped birds, with plenty of work, but hardly so sharp and distinct in spangle as the leader, very neat in cap, good col. and show well; 4, c, Oliver, very bold in spangle, capital shape and style, nice col., rather long in cap; hc, J. Dewsnap.

The Border Fancies.

Judge, J. F. Dewar.

It is doubtful if visitors to the Palace have ever seen such a fine collection of "wee gems" as was gathered together from all parts of the Kingdom. Many exhibitors from the North who have not sent birds for several years once more joined in the fray, but did not have matters quite their own way as formerly, for gallant little Wales had something to say respecting the distribution of the spoil. Mr. D. Jenkins, of Swansea, sent a good team which were much admired; as usual with this enthusiast, they were staged for all they were worth. The yellow hen class was wonderfully level, and Mr. Dewar must have had a hard job to separate the first three, Mr. Jenkins' hen getting the verdict; she should make a stormer another year, when she gets just a wee bit more on the end of the tail, to improve the proportions. Perhaps the class that came in for most attention was that provided for buff hens. There were thirty of these charmers, and as one went down the row and handled bird after bird, one realised how great was the task of separating such a level lot. Mr. H. Bennet, of Kelso, staged the winner, and perhaps this beauty came in for more notice than any other exhibit in the section. She improves upon acquaintance, and one has to handle her to find out all her good points. The class for evens drew an entry of fifteen—quite a respectable number, and as regards markings, there was not a lot between them, but type and condition turned the scale, and so one or two well-known winners were left out in the cold. The Palace may possibly in the future see a bigger entry in this section, but it is very doubtful if ever a better lot will be gathered together in the South. Mr. Dewar's awards gave entire satisfaction, and pleased the Southern admirers of the little ones immensely.

BORD. YELL. CK. (25): 1, Mossie, a little gem, nice sweet head, free neck, very gaunty carriage, beautifully packed wings and tail, nicely rounded, tight as wax; 2, Robinson, lovely little grizzle capped bird, beautifully proportioned, moves well, capital style, nice clean sweep from chin to tail, A1 quality; 3, Jenkins, typical spec., good clean front and run, sweet head and free neck, good col. and quality, well put down; 4, G. Bennet, grand style, very typical, perfect head, wings beautifully packed, sound col. throughout; ex. 4, Roberts, exceptionally smart, nicely rounded, in grand order; vhc, Bennet, grand bird for type, quality, and condition, some thought hardly so good in head as winner; vhc, Smart; hc, Patterson (2); c, Gilchrist. YELL. HEN (17): 1, Jenkins, little gem for style and quality of feather, full of "swagger," best of backs and wings, sweet tail, good 1st; 2, Patterson, grand position, very free neck, nice front, clean sweep, perfection of col., and quality; 3, Smart, another of perfect type, hard to find fault with, A1 wings, neat tail and good head; 4, Mossie, full size, lovely quality, good head and neck, neat wings; vhc, Hudson, smart, typical, good quality; hc, Roberts; c, Beunet. BUFF (23): 1, Jenkins, grand type, nice size, very clean cut, beautifully moulded front, well packed wings and tail, shown to perfection; 2, hc, Patterson, another beauty of lovely type, perfect quality, grand head, free neck, smooth front, A1 condition; 3, Mossie, lovely position and style, handles beautifully, perfect head, nice free neck, well packed wings and tail; 4, Hutchinson, very smart exhibit, good typical spec., beautifully braced wings, feather like wax; ex. 4, Smart, another beauty, hard to find fault with, very typical and free; vhc, Gilchrist, good, very close up, lovely quality; vbc, Dr. Bowes; hc, McGuffie; c, Bennet. BUFF HEN (30): 1, H. Bennet, should be named "perfection," absolutely perfect in type, sweet head and neck, beautifully moulded throughout, clean run, fine quality, well put down; 2, Patterson, nice size, good type, A1 position, moves well with plenty of nerve, grand back, well packed wings, very close up; 3, Dr. Bowes, another beauty, hard to separate, lovely type, well moulded, good head, nice free neck, very nervy for a hen; 4, G. Bennet, smart bird, good head, well moulded, fine back, tips wings at times, which no doubt put it back; ex. 4, Pearson, another typical spec., good head and neck, and close tail; hc, Robinson; vhc, Gilchrist; bc, Clark, Smart; c, Simpson, Ellwood. EVENLY MKD. (15): 1, Duncan and Logan, lovely typical spec., of neat type, good round head and nice neck, clean run, in lovely condition, perfectly balanced eye marks, wings scarcely so even; 2, Arnot and Jamieson, real smart yell., typical shape, good, sound col., well balanced marking, hardly in same order of winner; 3, Patterson, cinn. mkd., very dainty and nice, lovely quality feather, good even marks; 4, Duncan and Logan, another good one, very typical and neat in markings, capital wings and tail; vhc, Patterson, another good even, but beaten to-day; hc, Gentleman; c, Owen. UNEVENS (24): 1, Pearson, four-pointed, nice type, good, rich col. throughout, well braced wings, lovely quality of feather, well shown; 2, Wilson, full size, wing and head mkd., neat head and neck, nicely rounded body, lovely quality; 3, 4, Duncan and Logan, 3rd smart three-pointed buff, nice free neck, good back, well braced wings, in grand order, 4th neat four-pointed, slim type, lovely wings, nice position, grand quality, moves well; ex. 4, Bennet, real good one, lovely type and position; vhc, Wilson, Patterson; hc, Gilchrist, Blackie; c, Robinson. CINNAMON (13): 1, Roberts, well staged, a really bonny bird of lovely type, neat head and neck, nicely moulded body, capital sound col., carried right through, a beauty; 2, 3, Wilson, another good one, slim type, neat head, sound col. of nice rich shade, real topper, 3rd full size bird, lovely type, beautifully moulded, A1 wings, very level in col. of nice shade, free from black marks; 4, Mrs. Barry, another good typical species, neat head and neck, good wings, hardly so rich in col. as winners, still good; vhc, Patterson; hc, Woodman; c, Arnot and Jamieson.

The Greens.

This variety did not come up to the standard of type and colour that has been seen at the Palace this last four or five years. We spoke of the advance the Greens had made in type, whereby they had slightly sacrificed colour, that at one time was the main characteristic of the Green Canary. We think now, that colour has been lost sight of altogether, some of the exhibits showing very black backs, others exhibiting that bronziness which blurs the rich ground colour we were wont to see years ago. We are sure this can be remedied through judicious mating, else some of them will run the white Canary close for Ramsden's medal. The Yorkshires came up fairly strong, a pleasing feature being the new aspirants in this variety, which speaks well for the way the Green Canary Association are catering for the novices. The older hands can take care of themselves. Year after year we seem only to get the cocks at the Palace. Cannot an alteration be made, and get the hens down here? There must be plenty of fanciers who would like to see what kind of hens the Green men use; we await this opportunity.

Norwich Greens were a dismal failure as regards numbers, but what were put down were eye-openers. Surely, 26 entries does not represent the whole of the Norwich exhibitors! This is not doing full justice to the variety, or to the Palace Executive. Where are the Mid-Lancashire and Cheshire men? They put down good teams earlier in the season.

We anxiously awaited the march of the wee gems in the Green Border section, and think after seeing them at the Glass-house the Green Canary Association will not regret taking them up. They averaged twelve a class; which is not bad for a first attempt. We trust the secretary of the G.C.A. (Mr. G. Green) will not be out of pocket by pluckily guaranteeing these classes himself. Colour in this variety is really marvellous, some birds showing a wondrous flat sage green, others a bright grass green. Of the two we prefer the latter. The pencilling also was in advance of the Yorkshire or Norwich type.

Judge, W. Mundell.

YORKS., SELF YELL. (17): 1, Wardle, long racy and close feathered, good ground col., even pencilling, plenty of leg, but shows a bit of daylight under wings; 2, McNulty, straight as an arrow, rich even col. down to vent, splendid working on back and waist, some preferred; 3, hc, Nimmo, close up, hardly as even in col., but a Yorks. all through; 4, vhc, McDermott, long-sided, nice pencilling and col., a bit open in front, when we were taking notes; c, Robinson. BUFF (19): 1, 2, Nimmo, two stormers, as round as a bottle, rich grass green, pencilled to perfection, well away; 3, Le Rossignol, nice type, very fair quality, shows plenty of lacing, will improve in col., nicely staged; 4, hc, Gore, stands like a guardsman, full of swank, splendid col. and pencilling, opened tall a little when we were reporting; vhc, Walker, good bird, but beaten to-day; c, McDermott. FOUL YELL. (13): 1, 4, Hellewell, shows just a little too much of the Belgian in the neck for the liking of some, and would not get up, some thought might easily have changed places with 4th, nice type and col., well staged; 2, hc, Nimmo, very decent col. and pencilling, plenty of top end, wedge shape; 3, Pilling, not a big one, but good even pencilling and col. to make up for it, laced well down; vhc, McNulty; c, Wardle. BUFF (6): 1, Gore, foul in wing and tail, straight as a rush, good shoulders, well drawn, staged in rattling fine form; 2, Metcalfe, rare col. and exquisite pencilling, a Yorks. throughout, but on the small side; 3, McNulty, foul tail, stormer for type, col. and lacing, compact feather, but unsteady, or would have gone up; 4, Benson, long, racy bird, nice col. and pencilling, useful stock bird; vhc, Robinson; hc, Nimmo.

Judge, H. W. Battye.

NOR., SELF YELL. (5): 1, Deacon, out and out Nor., rare head and checks, topping condition, "the" bird we want; 2, 4, Hales, best col. bird seen for some time, wants a little more napper though, 4th good Nor. properties, nice even col. and lacing; 3, Walker, sound as an apple, correct col. and shape, loses in size; vhc, Lawson. BUFF (8): 1, Deacon, all front of perch, topper for type, again good worker, not slovenly; 2, Walker, good head and neck, sound col., loses behind, nicely laced; 3, Peake, nice round body, splendid pencilling and col., shows slight break in neck; 4, Lawson, round as a drum, plenty of size, grand quality, not the col. of above; vhc, Hales. FOUL YELL. (7): 1, Deacon, foul check and cap, again of wonderful substance, type and quality, graud shade of col., bit blurred in markings; 2, Lawson, foul cap slightly, topping size and col., glorious pencilliug, well cut away, nicely staged; 3, Hales, foul throat and head, well across perch, short and compact, again well staged; 4, Bloor, foul cheek, good size, exquisite feather, col. and pencilling, clean behind; vhc, Cagnall; hc, Walker. BUFF (8): 1, 3, Deacon, wonderful size, type and quality, good broad chest, well filled in neck, as good a Nor. as is benched, fails only in col., 3rd foul tail, storming head properties and col., clean cut, takes perches well; 2, Walker, foul tail, shows a wealth of col. and pencilling, put down in good order; 4, Peake, really fine, all there for col., but again broken in neck, hard lines to run up against above; vhc, hc, Hales; c, Jenkius.

Judge, J. Robson.

BORD., SELF, ETC., YELL. (19): Charming lot: 1, Richards, sweet head and neck, jaunty and free, good ground col., blurred just a little in pencilling, but wins; 2, 3, Johuson, both stronger, marble heads, close carried wings and tail, marvellous col. and lacing, little to choose; 4, Ford, neat little chap, well balanced all through, again of nice grass green col.; vhc, Storie; hc, Green; c, Arnot and Jamieson. BUFF (10): 1, Green, neat marble head, well cut chest and clean away to tail, takes perches well, wonderful lacing down to waist; 2, Walker, grand col. and markings, nicely filled in, boxy feather, closely carried wins and tail; 3, Johnson, topper for type and quality, fails just slightly in col. to above; 4, Ford, pretty head for a buff, beautiful feather, but shows too much bronziness; vhc, Wilson; hc, Bennett; c, Richards. YELL. HEN (6): 1, 2, Johnson, 1st a wonder on her own, the essence of sweetness, carries col. which a cock might be proud of, 2nd not disgraced, again magnificent type and quality; 3, hc, Green, another good one, plenty of pencilling and col., sweet contour, well staged; 4, Walker, topping col., and will improve, correct type; vhc, Yonng. BUFF (11): 1, 2, Johnson, again a wondrous brace of the right type and col.; 3, hc, Green, carries beautiful shade of green, well balanced wings, neat head and neck; 4, Simpson, topping shape, feathered like a Java, carries wonderful col. for a hen; vhc, Johnson; c, Elwood.

The Dutch Frills.

Judge, J. Robson.

Fourteen birds in the Frill class was quite a good entry, and a new (we believe) competitor in Mr. Maisey secured the chief prize. We were struck with the wide differences in substanec and feather properties to be noted in the birds on view. Some were quite slim compared with their competitors. Mr. Robson judged.

DUTCH FRILLS (14): 1, 4, Maisey, leader, cl., grand size and position, has a wealth of feather in nice, even frills, fine mantle, 4th another cl., of grand length, hardly the substance of winner, but splendidly frilled throughout; 3, hc, Minty, wing and eye-mkd. bird, of grand size, beautiful flowing back and body curl, stands well; 2, vhc, Brooks, head and wing-mkd., capital size, good head, stands well, rare length of feather, nicely curled, good mantle.

The A.O.V. Class.

Judge, Geo. Gardner.

ANY OTHER VARIETY CAN. (10): 1, Kiesel, tho much talked of white Canary, staged in tip-top fettle, stood up well consideriug it was not shown in a proper Yorkshire cage, and won its second Crystal Palace bracket easily; 2, Gibbs, bonny buff, 4-pointed Nor., grand shape, head, and chest, rich under-col., and bloomy feather; 3, Dormer, foul-tailed Cinn., grand depth of col., very glossy, rare size, nice head; 4, Kiesel, another white Can., much smaller than leader, trifle weedy, but stood well in its position; vhc, Bexsou, pied Cinn., very nice col., plenty of size, hardly so tight as the old hand liked to see them when he dealt out the cards; vhc, Mr. J. Ives, we were told was the Can. that says "Dear Boy," "Josie, you are a dear beauty," "Kiss your Missus, pretty boy," etc., and so forth, the wonder is that it did not talk a first prize out of the judge, but he tells us it never uttered a word to him; who knows? But, there! Mere man, again, with no idea of how to detect a linguist! hc, Adnitt and Driver, another 4-pointed buff Nor., not quite the substance of 2nd prize, and wing marks right on to the shoulder; c, Ramsden, pied Cinn., nice col. and size.

The Novice Canary Section.

The 6 novice Norwich classes contained 96 birds in all. The largest entry was in the unflighted class. Clears did not come up particularly well, 26 being found in the two classes. The quality generally was very good, but there seemed to be a remarkable predilection shown for what are generally known as birds with "fat chests." In our opinion there is a vast distinction between the chest produced by a plentiful supply of hemp and other oily seeds and the normal bold chest which should be looked for in an all-round well-proportioned Norwich. It is one thing to feed for a chest and call that stoutness, and another thing to breed a robust, bonny-chested Norwich. The natural chest gives full expression to a normal neck and head; the artificial chest makes the neck look thin and the head puny.

Judge J. Robson.

NOR. CL. YELL. (18): 1, Goodman, good body, fairly nice head col., feather, and carriage, stands well across; 2, Steed, level bodied bird of quality, but has a habit of "hingeing" its tail, might be a trifle more level in col.; 3, Little, nice size, possesses quality and col., but crosses flights at tips occasionally, which probably told against it; 4, Mrs. R. Fuller, good body, deep chest col. and fair quality, carries wings somewhat loosely; vhc, Walmsley, neat, nice quality; hc, Scott, good feather, but cut square behind; c, Ebbage, loses in head. BUFF (9): 1, Isom, very deep bodied, short and thick all through, a good stamp of bird, but mams several feathers, leaving quite a bare patch at point of chest, where the hemp seed tells, ought not to have been in tickets in its present condition; 2, Rayner, very silky feather, just a sweet little fellow, nice back, neck, and wing carriage, may be a little weak on head, but full of quality; 3, Handley and Sons, hit long in barrel and flights, lovely col., quality, and bloom; 4, Scott, slack in wings, but good texture of feather, nice under-col., neat head; vhc, Steed, full chest, good quality; hc, Mitchell, smaller and scarcely so stout, but good quality; c, Jones, fine head, nice body, not so short in tail as we like them. TKD., ETC., YELL. (15): 1, Galsworthy, shapely body, neat head, good quality and col., cut a bit square at rump; 2, Handley and Sons, typical bird, good head, lovely quality and col., sitting a bit thick when we saw it; 3, Jones, variegs., deep—very deep—chest, good quality, short tail and wings, nice feather, but bit loosely carried; 4, Tripe, grand quality, deep front, head and neck scarcely in keeping, but a good one; vhc, Guest, lovely bird, 3-pointed, full of deep rich col. carried even down to tail tip, nice wings, soft silky feather, good one; hc, Jones, saddle mkd., grand quality and col., nice body and head; c, Kenyon, also saddle mkd., lovely quality shape and col.; these are the birds in the breeding cage. BUFF (7): 1, Powell, very fine quality feather, short in body, neat in head, well carried wings and tail, deep chest; 2, Walmsley, silky feather, shines well, rather thin and spare, but a nice bird; 3, Mitchell, variegs., similar to 1st in shape, scarcely so close and compact in feather; 4, Steed, thick set, good body, fine quality, neat head, short legs and tail, carries one wing a bit awry; vhc, Burgess, neat, good feather; hc, Schofield, varieg., good body, trifle flat in col. and loose in wing carriage; c, Law, needs a little more substance, nice quality. HEN (20): 1, Isom, varieg. buff, very fine quality of feather, chubby, short flights and tail, rare chesty bird; 2, Rayner, yell., brimful of quality, rattling fine shape, nice col., head, beak and neck, good one; 3, Lohr, buff, beautiful soft silky feather, one of the old Athersuch build in body and general outline, truly grand for quality; 4, Schofield, yell., nice quality, hardly so good in shape as some above; vhc, Goodman, buff, very shapely, thick set, wee bit flat on head and square behind; vhc, Handley and Son, large, but fails a little in depth of col. to others; hc, Heap, yell., very sweet and shapely, teeming with quality that seemed to deserve higher recognition; hc, Handley and Son, variegs. yell., grand type of hen; c, Heap, buff, open in feather. UNFLIG. (30): 1, Guest, tkd. wing yell., bonny bird, rich in col., fine quality feather, good size, promising; 2, Isom, buff, deep in chest, plenty of flesh, good quality, extremely stout, which takes off the consistency of head and neck, short wings and tail; 3, 4, Lohr, both very sweet for undercol. and quality, should do well next season; ex 4, Heap, yell., good col. and quality, neat in body and head, short flights and tail, very sweet; vhc, Heap, buff, grand quality; vhc, Schofield, yell., trifle slack in feather, but good shape; hc, Law, fine buff, rich undercol., good head and neck, close fitting feather, some thought might have gone up higher; he, Little, neat and shapely; c, Hills, yell., full of quality, good col.; c, Ebbage, sweet buff, rich quality.

Judge, T. Heath.

The Crest and Crestbred classes contained some really nice birds, but it cannot be said that an entry of 17, all told, is satisfactory. We should have thought more support would have been forthcoming from amateur lovers of this grand breed. They have here at least a chance of showing their birds against others of similar merit, and of avoiding the sensational birds owned by breeders at the top of the ladder. Mr. Heath judged, in the unavoidable absence of Mr. Dobson.

CRESTS (8): 1, 2, Mellor, leader largest in body, fine headpiece, nice and dense, good droop, 2nd not quite so massive, but neat and good; 3, Braund, neat and nice, but short in frontal Crest, and some of it in pipe; 4, Slade, neat again, but not the length of crest feather; vhc, Picard, mkd. one wing, fails in shapeliness of crest and length of crest feather; hc, Burgess, neat, but rather small crest; c, Turner, same remark applies. C.-B. (9): 1, spl, 2, Slade, both good birds, fine skull properties, deuse and long in head feather, the one excelling in body, the other in head size, that is, in comparison, but both good generally; 3, 4, Lieut.-Col. Gabriel, variegs. and green respectively, leader having the pull in head properties; vhc, spl, Picard, varieg. buff, nice head, lashing, length of turn back, and good body; hc, Turner, varieg., yell., nice length of head feather and dense to boot; c, Fuller; this was a very good class.

Judge, H. Broadley.

In point of numbers there was a distinct advance in this section. This was the more uoticeablo in the unflighted bird classes, which totalled fifty-nine against thirty-three last year. For some reason or other the class for buff cocks does not appear to be popular. Is it that fanciers think a buff must be exceptionally good to get to the front? This year sixteen only faced the judge, but they were a nice level lot, and among them some real good ones. The birds struck one as being better on leg than in the past. The winner in the young yellow class is owned by Mr. F. Allen, of Bradford; it was not over large, but of wonderful type and quality, and should do well in the future. Head properties appear to be receiving more attention among the novices, for on this point there is very little to find fault with, although, perhaps, in striving for heads they have lost something in the carriage of the wings, but this no doubt will right itself in time. The buff hen class was a good one, the two leaders being shown by Mr. Whitwham, of Bradford. The first was not so large as her aviary companion, but was of real Yorkie type and position, and was exceptionally tight in feather. Mr. W. is fortunate in owning two such charmers, and many Southern fanciers cast envious eyes at them.

NOVICE YORKSHIRE YELL. CK. (24): 1, Farnish, fine length, with nice neat head, and free neck, good, well-filled back and wings, beautifully rounded, takes grand position; 2, Rigg, very smart, upstanding bird, good head, grand shoulders and back, nice clean run, shows well, lovely quality feather; 3, Morrison, nice, slim type, good contour, capital grizzle head, stands very straight, showing plenty of daylight, good tail; 4, Norfolk, fine, long, raking bird, good length of wing, takes perfect position, well up on good legs, grand order; ex. 4, Harney, lovely typical spec., takes good position, capital wings, good quality; vhc, Rhodes, another good one, capital shoulders, tips wings at times, which no doubt put it back; hc, Vincss, Simonett; c, Barton. BUFF (16): 1, Bigg, grand length, neat head and neck, clean cut, perfectly straight, well braced wings, neat tail, stands well; 2, Fowle, smart bird, well up on leg, good shoulders, nice back and wings, neat tail; 3, Hillman, long bird, nice quality, splendid position, good shoulder, grand quality; 4, Le Rossignol, smart upstanding bird, very straight, well up on leg, fine feather; vhc, Barton; hc, James. MKD. (19): 1, vhc, Burdekin, fine, long, cinn.-mkd. yell., good shoulders and back, well braced wings, neat tail, well up on leg, lovely col. and quality; 2, 3, Brown and Son, 2nd lovely quality head and wing-mkd. cinn., stands well, good straight back, neat wings and tail, in grand order, 3rd eyes and wing-mkd. yell., rare length and carriage, nice head, good wings and tail, lovely col.; 4, Mitchell, grand length, good position, capital shoulders, col., and quality; vhc, Kirkbright; hc, Richards; c, Walker.

UNFLIG. YELL. (34): 1, Allen, grand, lengthy bird, neat head and nice, free neck, good shoulders, full back, well braced wings, of good length, neat tail, A1 quality, and col.; 2, Bush, grand, typical spec., nice length of wing, beautifully moulded, capital wings and tail, good quality feather; 3, Auton Bros., straight as a gem, grand position, real Yorkie type, with a bit of "swagger," well braced wings of good length, shown in grand order; ex. 3, Skinner, another good one of the right kind, takes good position, capital back and wings, good quality, not quite so rich in col., Stratford cup winner; 4, Atkinson, smart, typical bird, nice clean front and run, neat wings and tail, sound col.; ex. 4, Morrison, another good one, close up, very typical and free; vhc, Foxen, grand length, good col. and quality; vhc, Holroyd; hc, Montgomery, Harney; c, Sutcliffe, Mitchell. BUFF (25): 1, Whitwham, rare lengthy bird, nice head and neck, grand shoulders, well filled back, neat, closely braced wings, good tail; 2, Atkinson, a beauty, takes lovely position, neat head, beautifully rounded front, well up on legs, lovely quality, must have pressed; 3, Allen, very smart, typical spec., neat head and free neck, stands very straight, well braced wings of good length, capital feather; 4, Auton Bros., wing and head mkd., rare length, takes good position, capital wings, neat whip tail; ex. 4, Foxen, smart, upstanding bird of lovely quality, nice long wings in grand order; vhc, Brooks, another good one, not far behind, capital condition; hc, Patterson, Winterburn; c, Salter, Knight.. YELL HEN (22), 1, Walker, grand, typical spec., nice head and neck, good shoulders and back, well braced wings, lovely quality; 2, Whitwham, nice slim type, grand shoulders, smart wings and tail, stands well; 3, Craven, grand position, good length of wing, nice head, capital col. and quality; 4, Ireland, very smart bird of lovely type, stands well, neat wings, must have pressed; ex. 4, Montgomery, another good one of rare length, grand col. and quality; vhc, Allen, Hillman; he, Brooks, Stone Bros.; c, Slade. BUFF (29): 1, 2, Whitwham, grand position, nice, typical bird, neat head, good neck and shoulders, well braced wings, neat tail, shade small, but of lovely quality, 2nd bigger bird, of grand length, neat head, A1 position, good back, neat tail; 3, Brown and Son, smart, upstanding spec., of lovely quality of feather, beautifully rounded front, good long wiugs, well put down; 4, Morrison, grand, typical bird, well up on leg, takes good position, nicely moulded, long, well braced wings, real good one; ex. 4, Patterson, grizzled bird, of good length, fine, long wings, neat whip tail, grand quality and condition; vhc, Ayres, another smart lady, very neat any stylish, stands well, lovely quality; vhc, Knight; hc, Holroyd, Matthews; c, Lampard, Allen.

Judge, Geo. Gardner.

A.O.V. CAN. OR MULE (12): 1, Lohr, really smart yell. Belg., in beautiful feather and apparently sound, healthy, well filled in shoulder, grips perches firmly, and sends down its head grandly, full of substance, might have just a trifle more length of neck; 2, 3, vhc, c, Bevan, team of Cinnies, that would do credit to any breeder, leader lovely pure col. buff, tight, grandly mealed feather, good size, very chubby, well shown, 3rd also buff, but not the compactness of 2nd, nice rich colour, vhc buff, trifle weak in head and pale at throat, c, yell.,, rich col., but a trifle thin, and moderate wing carriage; 4, hc, Turner, both Bord. Fancies, former buff, very pertly, uniformly built, graceful, close as wax in feather, neat head, he yell. of same variety, not so regular in outline or so compact in feather, but very sweet for all that.

The Limit Classes.

Judge, Geo. Gardner.

The limit classes again brought out a storming entry—200 in seven classes. Quality in Yorkshires and Plainhead pairs was particularly good, and sales plentiful. Norwich were not quite so good as we have seen them at the Palace in this section, but there were some exceedingly cheap Crests and Crest-breds, also some good Cinnamons. Sales in the Norwich hen class were brisk, and many prided themselves on the bargains they had made. We hope winners from them may be plentiful.

NOR. CK., 30/- (45): Quite enough for any judge to go on with in one class, and took some sorting: 1, spl, Martiu, very shapely buff, good head, not a prevalent quality in present-day Norwich, full neck, short in flights and tail, smart Nor., quickly found a buyer, and could easily have commanded half a dozen; 2, Hodder, tkd. yell., not as big perhaps as some of the other yells. in class, but magnificent feather, possessing requisite col. pigment that makes a bird easy to colour-feed well, lovely bloom, promptly claimed; 3, Adnitt and Driver, well formed buff, grand close feather, rare under-col. and meal, good head and neck, short wings and tail; 4, Stephenson, another buff, hardly so high in col., but rare body, head, and neck, stands well across perch, silky in feather and clean at thighs, an advantage not possessed by square-rumped, ragged thighed birds; vhc, Kilby, very neat and silky in feather; vhc, Williams, nice stamp, scarcely so finished as leaders; vhc, Ebbage, good feather, but needed finish; vhc, Harland, cheap at catalogue price; he, Richardson, Taylor, Payne and Son, Midgley, most of them from the best blood and possessing characteristics of quality valuable in the breediug; c, Barratt. HENS, 20/- (26): A class which proved that in 1911 the price of good Nor. hens is far in advance of a sovereign. Many birds in this class were sold, something of a proof that the demand exceeds the supply, or they would not have changed hands: 1, Axe, yell., good in shape, nice size, silky feather, neat head, good col. properties, very useful hen; 2, Pickering and Wright, buff of rare silky close feather, nice head and neck, good body shape, short wings and tail; 3, Neame, nat. col. yell., fine head and neck, glossy feather, short body, flights, and tail, just a trifle free in feather, promptly claimed, and might have had two or three new owners, a capital youngster; 4, Hodder, varieg. buff, waxy bloomy feather, rattling fine shape, teeming with quality, just a bit small in head, but good body, short in wings and tail, sold just before a very old hand reached the secretary's box, in fact, all the winners, and many more were sold; vhc, Hodder, Harland, Bellinger, Freestone; he, Barratt, Mrs. Collings, Parr, Beardall and Walker; c, Law. CRESTS, £3 (14): 1, 2 spls., Mills, wing mkd. D.C., big body, nice quality feather, rare good head, dense in col. of crest feather, crest of good length of frontal, neat centre, but just a little thin in layer and hairy, but what can you expect for £3, in the face of the thirty-fives that are being shelled out! a very "old hand" at the game had his eye on with the remark: "if that had been a hen, I would have taken it home." Ah! "if"; 3, Howard and Son, another wing mkd. bird, with dense col. D.C., not quite so large in dimensions of crest, and also thin, good bodied; 4, Horton, very neat centred, shapely grizzle crest, rich col. body feather, not usual in buff crests; vhc, Jones and Crest, very taking, rich in crest col.; he, Mrs. Haysom, neat dense col.

crest, a hen; c, Marshall, neat, but falls in formation. C.B., 30/- (15): Several cheap birds here: 1, Bewick, large bodied tkd. buff, wide head, nicely cushioned, good lashing, turns back long and dense, very cheap; 2, Horton, nearly green, with rare body, good entrance and lashing, nice length of head feather, but thin in centre of head, alas! 3, Marshall, cl., very attractive until handled, and not a bad one then, dense in head feather, but needs more length; 4, Hadley and Son, smaller in body, grizzled on head, nice style of C.B., not so long in head feather, or so dense, catalogued, singular to say, at £25, some mistake here; vhc, Dainton, nice length of head feather, trifle narrow skull; hc, Mrs. Haysom, hardly the width of skull, length, or density of head feather of those above it; c, Payne and Son. YORKS. 30/- (39): And a grand class for quality. Some rattling cheap birds here, full of style and quality: 1, Whittaker, buff ck., beautiful feather, neatest of heads, straight back, good wing carriage, stands well, but with a little more of William's beloved swagger and a trifle more leg work, would be worth twice 30/-; 2, Stewart, another very attractive bird, beautiful feather, neat head and neck, gets quick into position and shows well; 3, Wood and Stirk, rich col. bird of the right build, grand feather, nice pose, cheap 30/- worth; 4, Bottomley, yell., moves freely, nice length of back and wing, good behind, a trifle strong; all four from the County of Broad Acres. What ho! vhc, Smith, Matthews, Amblers, Patterson, all bonny birds, and everyone worth catalogue price; hc, Douglas, Fawcett, Mason, Mallinson and Son; c, Murgatroyd. A.O. CAN. OR MULE 30/- (18): 1, Bairstow, broken buff cinn., lovely feather, stout body, rich bloom, good sound col.; 2, McVittie, very nice quality, broken cinn., good shape head and col., cheap; 3, Gunmell, 4-pointed Goldie-Can. Mule, an old friend that will persist in quarrelling either with your pencil or your finger; 4, Cundy, still another cinn., hardly so rich in quality or compact in feather, good size; vhc, Patterson, Bevan; hc, Lamb; c, Cundy. PAIRS. CAN. (matched for Plainhead breeding) 35/- (40): 1, Law, buff ck. and varieg. yell. hen, both full of quality, col., and rare shape, good match, sold like winking; 2, 3, Hodder, buff ck. and yell. hen in each pair, all full of quality, nice type, sensibly matched, a great deal in such a class; 4, Dormer, spanking varieg. buff ck. and yell. hen, possessing quality and col., with shape, all four pairs Norwich; vhc, Kilby, Johnson, Belcher, Mrs. W. Collings, all very acceptable pairs, useful in breeding room; hc, Howard and Son, Bellinger, Thomas, Freastone; c, Mitchell.

Judge, H. Norman.

LIMIT FINCH (14): 1, vbc, Francis, 1st fine bold Bullfinch, good Bullie shape, capital head and neck, rich col., vhc good Grosbeak, nice size and col.; 2, Miller and Eadle, good Bramble, very sound col., nicely spangled, in excellent condition; 3, Axe, capital Goldie, well tanned, nice clean cut blaze; 4, Marley, another good Bullie, capital size and col., grand cap; hc, Greenway; c, Prior.

The Mules and Hybrids.

Judge, G. E. Weston.

The entry in the Hybrid section was a very good one and the quality representative of the best that is to be found in the Fancy at the present day. One notable absentee (entered, but not staged) was the clear yellow Siskin Mule belonging to Dr. Galloway, of Aberdeen, which has a great winning record. We understand that it was not looking quite up to the mark, so that its owner decided not to risk the long journey from the North. The championship diploma for best bird in the section was awarded the celebrated clear yellow Linnet Mule owned by Messrs. Duncan and Logan (Coldstream); it was in glorious fettle, and greatly admired. The special for best fed bird (Ramsdeu's pepper) fell to Mr. G. Lawrence's winning Canary-Bullie, a wonderful example of the cross, and the richest-coloured ever seen, without any question. The class for dark Linnet-Canary Hybrids was just about the bottest in the section—it is rare that so many absolutely first-class specimens of the same cross meet in competition, and the judge had a puzzling time sortiug them into position. The dark Greenfinch Mules were also a grand collection; likewise the class for marked Goldfinch-Canary Mules; and many high-class birds had to be content with lowly positions in the award list. The weakest class we thought the darR buff Goldies. No absolute novelties put in an appearance, though one bird was entered as a "Chaffinch-Bullfinch" Hybrid. This the judge marked "wrong class," and stated that he had no hesitation in saying it was merely a freak-feathered cock Bullfinch, presumably a young bird. It had but a trace of the usual black cap, showed breaks of white on the wing-butts, and its breast colour was poor and faded-looking. This exhiblt proved of great interest to the fanciers present. It was generally conceded that there was no evidence whatever of the Chaffinch cross in the shape and carriage of the bird, while the beak is purely Bullfinch in character. A regrettable incident was tho disqualification of a dark Goldfinch-Canary Mule, exhibited by Messrs. Adnitt and Driver, alleged artificial colouring matter being removed from its "blaze" by the judge. The cards were placed by Mr. G. E. Weston, and he had a hard morning's work.

CLEAR, LIGHTLY-TICKED, OR EVEN-MKD. (9): 1, two spls, Duncan and Logan, the noted cl. yell. Linnet "Perfection," and truly rightly named, a grander Mule it would be hard to imagine, put down in perfect condition; 2, Longden, eye tkd. Goldie, also well-known, and a champion of its kind, lovely size, shape and col., staged in the pink of condition; 3, Shellam, cl. yell. Greenfinch, a gem for col. and shape, big and stylish, but not in the condition of leaders, and has its tail feathers frayed; 4, Coffey, 6-pointed Goldie, real fine example, very nicely mkd., well built, lovely quality; vhc, Tams, clear Goldie hen, bonny bird for shape and condition; hc, Scribbins; wrong class, 1557, Bagnall, which we made to be a hen Canary, and 1561, Lawrence, a two-pointed bird, which, according to the N.B.B. and Mule Club rules should not have been entered as an even-mark. VARIEG., ETC., GOLDIE (19): 1, Archer, wing, eye and head mkd. buff, magnificent bird for size and shape, very silky in feather, and staged in rare bloom, rightly heads a strong class; 2, Pearce, wonderfully big, almost 6-pointed jonque, "Prince Charlie" (in new hands), a splendid Mule at all points, but down in condition to-day, needs a spring cleaning; 3, Bond, another grand jonque, not quite the build of 2nd, but better in col. and bloom, which almost turned the tables in its favour; 4, c, Harding, buff, 6-pointed and mkd. back of head, slashing big bird, grand build and quality, well staged, excellent colour; vhc, sp. hc, Callear, two lovely wing-mkd. buffs, not over big, but beautiful shape and style, in charming condition; vhc, Arnold, red-hot wing and tail mkd. jonque, blaze of col. and shines like silk, nice size and style; hc, sp, Collins, almost 6-pointed, trifle small, but equal to any for shape, quality and condition; a very fine class. VARIEG., ETC., LINNET OR GREENIE (9): 1, Duncan and Logan, Greenie, grizzled very faintly on breast and both cheeks, a wonderfully fine specimen at all points, in the pink of condition, a worthy companion to the clear Linnet; 2, 4, Galloway, very lightly mkd. (almost clear) buff Linnet, splendid size and shape, lovely quality plumage, close ou winner's heels, 4th splendid varieg. Greenie, exceptionally good in col. and quality; 3, Longden, the well-known even wing mkd. buff Linnet, grand one for build and shape, A1 condition; vhc, Lees, big, fine, lightly varieg. Linnet, but very unsteady; hc, Jamieson, slashing big heavily-varieg. Greenie; c, Bruce, another very good light Linnet. DK. YELL GOLDIE (11): 1, Duncan and Logan, magnificent all-round bird, very large, rare head and chest, tight and glossy in plumage, grand face, brimful of col.; 2, Gilchrist, another exceptionally fine bird, equal in condition to winner, a trifle hotter in colour, rare blaze, but not quite so bold in head or so close in feather; 3, R. W. Jones, another hot one for col., size and shape, grandly mkd., but carrying its feathers a wee bit open; 4, Coffey, very close up, beautiful bird for density of col., grand size and shape, lacks just a little in polish; vhc, Lamb, very good bird, well built and mkd., bit bronzy in col., should moult well; hc, Lawrence, fine, clear col. bird, close up; c, Jefferson, good, stylish Mule; disqualified for alleged staining, No. 1592 (Adnitt and Driver). DK. BUFF GOLDIE (11): 1, McVittie, a marvel for size and substance, nice sound col., very big blaze, grandly mkd. all over, hardly sleek enough in plumage; 2, Bald, similar failing to 1st, but also a wonder for size, huge blaze, excellent colour and markings, quickly claimed at catalogue price, 50s.; 3, Hingley, again a grand Mule for substance and shape, best col. in the class, but has a white break under the beak, which very nearly qualifies it for a "wrong class' ticket; 4, Duncan and Logan, exceptionally promising, big, stylish bird, very expansive blaze, very clear in markings, should make up into a good one, down in col. to-day; vhc, Smith, fine size, good blaze, needs well feeding; hc, Bowler grand quality; c, Bullen, also a nice Mule. DK GREENIE (13): 1, Somerfield, the noted winner, in grand fettle, polished like plate-glass, splendid size and shape, bold head and chest, wonderfully rich and solid in col.; 2, Coffey, another noted warrior, lighter tone of col. than leader, very bright and sound, grand massive hogy and head, fine Mule close up; 3, Bald, we liked well, grandly built, charming style, beautifully sleek and polished, loses a trifle in density of col., but presses leaders hard. we understand was claimed at 70s., catalogue price; 4, Jones, splendid thick-set bird, grand chest shade fine on head, again wonderful col. and condition; vhc, Longden, the well-known cinnamon-col. specimen, looking well; hc, Todd and Son, big, grand headed bird; c, Naylor, very hot col. jonque; a great class, several out of the cards fit to win at most shows. DK. LINNET (18): Another stinging class: 1, D. Brown, marvellously big jonque, a wonderful bodied bird, which makes his head appear somewhat fine, though not so in reallty, splendid style and carriage, remarkably rich, brilliant col., grand glossy feather, noted winner, and will take some beating; 2, 4, Shellam, former a real gem at all points, lovely condition, very sound, hot col., beautiful build and shape, loses only in substance, 4th very similar stamp of bird, A1 col. and shape; 3, vhc, Wilson, exceptionally fine, thick-set bird, bolder body and head than 2nd, but down in col. and sleekness of plumage to-day, the vhc bird is another splendid Mule; vbc, Taylor, trifle slimmer, grand size and quality, full of col.; hc, Longden. Harper, two bonny birds; c, Coffey. DK. SISKIN, ETC. (20): 1, Fraser, grandly built buff Siskin, bold head and chest, very cobby shape, exceptionally good in markings, even has a laced cap, very fine, sound col., catalogued as winner of 28 1sts; 2, Buckingham and Sear, good sized, very shapely Redpoll, rich level col., splendidly mkd., grand condition; 3, 4, Coffey, wonderfully rich coloured jonque Siskin, beautifully polished, grand size and shape, a trifle short of markings, 4th nice big Twite, sound col., fine shape; vhc, Somerfield, another splendid jonque Siskin; vhc, Lamb, very good, stylish Redpoll; vhc, Bond, one of the biggest buff Siskins we have seen, wonderfully mkd., unfortunately lacks a little in quality and tightness of feather; c, Edwards; No. 1650, MacDougall, easily the best Twite Mule, but had knocked out the flight feathers of one wing; No. 1656, Marsden, "wrong class," pretty Mule, between a foreign (American) Siskin and Canary, in fine condition. A.O.V. CAN. HYBRID (10):..1, and two spls., 4 and spl., Lawrence, leader absolutely the finest coloured Canary-Bullfinch we ever saw. "red hot" is the word, and a magnificent specimen at every point—size, shapo aud markings—one of tho attractions of the section, 4th another exceptionally good Canary-Bullie, grand substance and markings, a little "gay" in wing carriage, wins spl. for best 4th bird in the section; 2, hc, c, Mrs. Askham, lovely trio, all Can.-Bullies, the latter a charming hen, leader practically equal to 1st for size, shape and style, a grand specimen, but succumbs for col. and polish; 3, Bond, very nice, stylish, head and neck mkd. Siskin-Can. Mule, in grand condition; vhc, Shellam, another really first-class Can.-Bullie, lovely size and shape, inclined to be slack in feather. A.O.V. BULLIE HYB. (15): 1, Archer, the well-known Redpoll-Bullie, excellent col. and markings, very shapely and stylish, nice condition; 2, 3, Lamb, leader a rattling good Goldie-Bullie, grand size, very chubby, simply lovely col., plumage like silk, gave winner a close run, 3rd exceptionally promising young Linnet-Bullie, well above the average in size, beautifully built, very clean col., should make a gem; 4, Lawrence, another splendid Linnet-Bullie, slightly richer in col. and better mkd. than 3rd, an older bird, but not quite the size and style; vhc, Mrs. Winnard, rather small Goldie-Bullie compared to 2nd, but wonderful col. and polish, in lovely condition; hc, spl, Nicholl, another very smart Lin.-Bullie; wrong class, 1687, Mazzoni, an ordinary dark Linnet-Can. Mule, and 1679, Pringle, the "Chaffinch-Bullfinch." A.O.V. HYB., BETWEEN TWO BRITISH (17): 1, E. Collins, Goldie-Redpoll, little gem, grand blaze, beautiful condition, good size and shape, a splendid exhibit; 2, Longden, exceptionally good Goldie-Greenie, very massive body, grand head, carrying a very expensive blaze, in splendid bloom, brimful of col.; 3, Watson, big Siskin-Greenfinch, splendidly mkd. and rich in col., little down in condition, soon claimed at 25s.; 4, Coffey, very nice Bramble-Chaffinch, in excellent trim; vhc, Lawrence, big and good Redpoll-Greenie; vhc, spl, Jamieson, another really splendid Goldie-Greenie; hc, Lyle, nice Linnet-Greenie; c, Walsh.

The British Bird Section.

Judge, J. F. Dewar.

In Mr. Dewar's four classes the entry was a good one, excepting only in the case of the Linnets, which made the poorest class we ever remember seeing at the Palace. Why this should be so, in a season of record Linnet classes up and down the country, is unaccountable. Yet the fact remains that only 18 birds were entered. It was a great disappointment to the British bird men, for there are none of them but have a soft corner in their heart for a Linnet. The cock Bullfinches were a very fine lot, and the judge went for birds of unquestionable British type throughout, and several good big ones were left "out in the cold," notably the Scottish National second, No. 1,727 (Woods). In the hen Bullie class, one bird so transgressed the size limit as to earn a "wrong-class" ticket. The Goldfinches (the "pride of the Fancy") made a very nice class of 46 birds, and were well handled by Mr. Dewar. We must confess to a feeling of disappointment with the birds on the whole, however, for we are compelled to say that we do not nowadays seem to get the same number of high-class Finches competing together as we used to do from five to fifteen years ago. At least a dozen "toppers" would struggle for premier place then; now it is hard to discover even a single acknowledged "champion." Odd! considering how keen we all are on a good Goldie. The class this year was never without its enthusiasts carefully scanning the birds.

BULLFINCH, COCK (38): 1, Longden, good cobby type, medium size, fine bold front, wide, rounded cap, splendid back and wing bars, remarkably rich, bright breast col., free from any cloudiness, real bonny bird, yet, being in field-plumage, must be accounted somewhat lucky to beat; 2, Lawrence, another real gem, and house-moulted, slightly bigger in build, beautiful, even, rich breast col., well carried to sides and throat, lovely head and back, in magnificent form; 3, Dunsmuir, a well-known Scottish face, and a right good one, beautiful type, very thick-set and shapely, teeming with col. throughout, and carrying a bloom like a peach, house-moulted, well deserves its place; extra 3, Francis, h.m., lovely-headed bird, very fine shape and carriage, good, level breast col., hardly in first-class condition, claimed at £2; 4, Harris, also h.m., one of the best in the class for col., magnificent breast and back, and has a really wonderful cap, a champion Bullie all over, but seemed "touched in the wind" a little, and inclined to go "soft," we believe to be the Scottish National winner in new hands; extra 4, Prior, h.m., first-class bird for shape and carriage, grand head and wings, bold, wide, rich-coloured breast, tight as wax in plumage and beautifully polished, close up; vhc, Miss Bousfield, gem for col. and bloom, excellent type, trifle narrow in "bih"; vhc, Hogg, again the right chubby stamp, grand condition and col.; hc, Rouse, Wines and Co., smart birds; c, Nicholl, Andrews. HEN BULLIE (17): 1, Dunsmuir, well known face over the Border, and deserves her win here, beautiful thick-set type, grand neck and head, fine rich colour, in most charming condition; 2, Gentleman, unfortunately seemed a shade "soft," when we took our notes, but evidently a grand type of bird, chubby, and well-built, nice colour; 3, P. Walsh, very stylish lady, good crest, and head, dense, sound colour, nice cap and bars, little slacker in feather; 4, McLean, and Nichol, very good size and shape, excellent deep colour, nice bold cap, should make a fine bird; vhc, Frostick, good, cobby type, trifle light in colour; hc, Holborow; c Mays, both pretty hens. GOLDFINCH (46): 1, Murton Gill, a Finch with a really wonderful under-blaze, very deep, well cut and clean in colour, a little flat on top, a bad bird to beat however, very nicely marked, good tan and polish, was 2nd at the L.C.B.A. show, has improved since then, and deserved its position in this class; 2, Martin, much smaller in face than winner, but a wonderful bird for colour and bloom, rare deep, crimson blaze (reminded us of "Oxford Don," the late lamented), lovely chestnut back and breast, grand shape and carriage, beautifully mkd. all over, tho perfection of condition; 3, Mortlock, very shapely and stylish Finch) well tanned and buttoned, good, big, nice-coloured blaze, trifle ragged in outline underneath; extra 3, vhc (2), c, Richards, a spanking team from Wales, leader equal to any for alround blaze properties, very expansive and well cut, good, cobby bird, perhaps a trifle paler in colour all over, but must have gone close for higher honours, both of the vhc birds are also lovely Goldies; 4, Herbert, a bird we liked very much, rare big blaze, though a shade narrower than some above it, simply lovely colour and condition all over, grand tan and markings, a bonny Finch, pressed hard; vhc, McCourtie, very nice face, good shape and carriage, in A1 condition; hc, Watson, trifle smaller in blaze, but a clinking alround bird, soon claimed at 40/-; hc, Arnold, another Finch distinguished by magnificent condition and colour, fine stamp of bird; hc, Nicholson and Son, excellent stylish bird, very clean cut blaze, few pen feathers in underneath, which doubtless handicapped it; c, Carrier, very nice indeed, wide, well cut face, grand polish all over. LINNET (18): What a weak class: 1, 2, Longden, leader wins here in a canter, bonny, big, nutty coloured bird, sound all over and very nicely pencilled, grand head and chest, good whites, in full bloom; 2nd, is a nice Linnet, hot colour, fairly well marked, excellent size and shape, also in lovely condition; 3, Brade, quite a different type of bird, bold carriage, upstanding, good size and shape, very clean ground colour, well worked all over, "hard as nails," in condition, and well polished; 4, vhc, Marley, leader very nutty and sound in colour, tight and glossy in plumage, fairly well pencilled, but somewhat thin and on the small side, we preferred the vhc bird, better head and chest, well marked, very stylish; hc, Watson, looked like a field moulted bird, good cobby type, grand mkgs., bit unsteady; c, Bald, also field moulted, grand Norwich type, big, very fine chest and head, nice sound colour, full of work all over, we liked much, sald to be the Scottish National, Bathgate, etc., winner.

Judge, A. Silver.

Mr. Silver's classes secured a good average entry, the Redpolls leading the way with 30 birds. What a year this has been for Redpolls and Greenfinches! It seems ages since so many good ones "fought" at every show. The judge went strongly for condition, and this helped the winning Chaffinch and Twite to the "head of the poll." Mr. Brotherhood's Bramblefinch is not one of the largest, but for colour, markings, and bloom, be left his competitors simply "standing still." The first prize Siskin found a new owner at £4 10s. 6d., the catalogue price, as did the winning Redpoll (a marvellous coloured bird) at £3 3s. In Yellowhammers, a well known South-country face (late Prior) got the first prize ticket for Mr. Walsh. The third prize bird (Mr. Russell) was protested against for alleged trimmed head-markings, but after investigation by a number of judges, the protest was not upheld. We noticed several birds, either cardless, or very low in the awards, which have been doing a lot of wining during the past season, and some of them were looking decidedly "stale."

CHAFFINCH (23): 1, P. Walsh, grand Chaffie, well up in col., good bold chest, rich reddish back and green rump, clear whites, fine carriage, full of bloom; 2, Reid, another capital specimen, big and bold, colours well defined, nice slate-blue head, good whites, very shapely, perfect order; 3, Cadman, a beauty in very forward condition, blue head and beak, very hot col., fine chest, well mkd. wings, seemed a little "soft" when we saw him; 4, vhc, Hurst, former big shapely Chaffie, grand col., good whites, every col. well defined; latter, very nice Finch, hot col., but a little smaller; extra 4, Prior, another lovely Chaffinch at all points, staged in grand condition; vhc, Francis, real good one, fine carriage, very steady, grand rump, looks like L.C.B.A. 1st; hc, McVay, paler in col., but in very nice order, a trifle unsteady; hc, Mason, loses in size and shape only to leaders; c, Lawrance, good bird of medium size. REDPOLL (30): Very hot class, the winner a marvellous col., standing well out in this respect; 1, Bell and Fisher, medium sized Lesser Redpoll, capital bead, nice bib, very shapely, typical, a long way ahead of anything in the class for richness of col. throughout, claimed at catalogue price £3 3s.; 2, 4, c, Marley, another good Lesser, larger than winner, good bib, nice shape and markings, a shade paler in col., well put down; 4th, well pencilled Mealy, rather small bib, good poll, nice shape, very steady; c, another good Lesser, nice pencillings; 3, Bruce, one of the best in class, lovely col., very bold, dense bib, grandly laced, fine shape and style, pressed hard; ex. 3, Mrs. F. Clarke, typical Lesser, again well up, good bib, nice shape and size, well polished plumage, shown well; ex. 4, Keymer Bros., large Mealy, beautiful bright red cap, fine thigh marks, good wings and in capital condition; vhc, Mrs. F. Clarke, bonny Redpoll, rich col., good size, lacks pencilling, otherwise might have been higher up; vhc, Capt. Hamilton Jones, Lesser Redpoll, nice shape and condition; hc, Garland, shapely little Lesser, nice bib, good wing bars; hc, Rutherford and Bright, large Mealy, well mkd., rich cap. TWITE (14): 1, vhc, Coffey, looks like the old champion, nice size and shape, good whites in flights, capital pencillings, nice shaped head, in lovely order, might be just a little deeper in col., but wins well; vhc, fine shape and size, paler in col., rather deficient in pencillings; 2, Bancroft, fine shapely Twite, in lovely order, lengthy bird, shows whites well, very fair markings, well put down; 3, Wilson, very rich col., well mkd., steady as a rock, appears to be very fat, and was a trifle "soft" when we were taking notes; 4, Leach and Leckie, paler in col., but fine size and shape, good head, nicely pencilled, capital condition; hc, Harris, paler in col., tight as wax, nice bloom; c, Marley, rich col. and stands well, very shapely; No. 1890, Carr, very nice Twite, well staged. SISKIN (17): 1, McLean and Nicol, col., fed, very hot, capital cap and lacing, well marked wings, a shade dull perhaps in bars, small bib, nice shape and size, good thigh pencillings, well shown; 2, Hurst, nat. col., grand black cap and a good bib, clear wing bars, very rich nat. col., plenty of markings on flanks, fine size, shows well; 3, J. M. Walsh, col. fed, fine markings, nice size, very rich breast col., capital condition, very steady; 4, MacDougal, nice shapely specimen, rich nat. col., breast, wing bars shade dull, fine feather, good size; vhc, McGregor and Boyd, fine head but a small bib, very fair markings, perfect feather; hc, Francis, splendid condition, medium size, good markings, grand bib; c, Coffey, hot fed but small, tight as wax, in lovely condition. BRAMBLEFINCH (14): 1, Brotherhood, very hot col., beautifully spangled head and mantle, well mkd. wings, rich shoulders and breast col., extending well down flanks, nice thigh ticks, not one of the largest in class, but very shapely, and shows well; 2, Coffey, the old champion, beaten to-day in col., grand head, throws crest well up, very distinct spangling, trifle larger than winner, col. going well down the flanks, nicely mkd. wings, A1 condition, in spite of the hard work of the show season; 3, Inman, another hot col. Bramble, good size and shape, well up in col., nice head, fine spangling, shows well; 4, Bancroft, neat, grand col. one, shade on small side, well polished plumage, capital col. and markings; vhc, Hoyle, beautifully spangled, fine shape and col., nice size, close up; hc, Lane, showy bird, good col., nice wing markings; c, Marley, good col.; Nos. 1,915 and 1,917 (Beaty and Prior) both real good ones, in lovely order, hard lines to be cardless. GREENFINCH (24): Very fine class: 1, McVay, bonny Greenie, nicely fed, good bold head, rich wing butts and flights, beautiful silky plumage, good chest, fine carriage, shows well; 2, F. Howe, rare size and shape, splendid bit of green, massive head, good bold chest, cl. yellows in flight and tail, steady as a rock, in the pink of condition; 3, Andrews, capital Greenie, good chest, cl. flights and tail, nice tint of col. throughout, stands well; 4, J. M. Walsh, tight as could possibly be, and very shapely, good head and chest, fine body col., nice size, very steady; ex. 4, Gunnell, col. fed to perfection, narrower on head, good flights and tail, shows well; vhc, hc, Marley, both good specimens, but on the small side, good texture of feather; vhc, Coffey, nice size and shape, very fair col., but not in the best of condition to-day; hc, Inman, in capital order, nice col., capital flights, shade small; c, Brade, nicely col. fed, capital condition. HAWFINCH (17): The strongest class of this species we have seen for a considerable time, and contained some tip-top specimens; 1, Harris, a real topper, perfect col., rich on breast and head, good collar, lovely cl. wings with a beautiful metallic sheen, splendid shape, perfect bib, massive head, in rare condition; 2, Hurst, another real good one, shade narrower skull, rich cheeks and head, good neck and flights, stands well up, has good chest, shade paler in col., but in capital condition; 3, Maxwell, noted winner, very tame, well up in col., not the largest, hut has a fine clear cut bib, rich head and back, and in A1 condition; 4, Elliott, lighter huilt bird altogether, hut has a large hib, clear flights, and good greyish neck, stands well; vhc, Robertson, hot col., good size, very forward in condition, heak almost full col.; hc, spl, Burrows, paler in col., but large; c, spl, Marley, well up in col., nice shape and size. YELLOW BUNTING (18): 1, J. M. Walsh, rieh col. 'Hammer, nice cheek marks, good head, niee and clear on crown, good wing marks, nicely pencilled flanks, in perfect condition; 2, Harris, capital size and shape, rich col., good cheek marks, not quite so well mkd. on head, very steady, full of bloom; 3, Russell, fine bodied, in perfect condition, rich body col., nice cl. yell., very fair head marks; 4, Messer, not so well mkd. on head, but a capital rich yell., fine chest, nice even flank markings, very steady; vhc, Johnson, hot col. fed, well mkd., not quite so clear on bead; hc, Watson, beautiful cl. yell. throat in fine plumage, nice size; c, Edwards, another hot fed one, not clear enough yet on head and throat. A.O.S. BUNTING: Well mixed and interesting class; 1, Nicholson and Son, splendid Corn Buntiug, rich col. and markings, nice shaped head, rare size, tame as could be desired, in the finest possihle conditiou; 2, Nicholas, another Corn Bunting, very nice col., hut not qnite so distinctly mkd. as winner, good size, very steady, hnt some thought might well have given way to next; 3, Frostick, very fine Snow Bunting, very wbite for a twice cage-moulted bird, lovely bead and wings, as steady as a rock, shown for all it is worth; 4, Francis, the now well-known Lapland Bunting, nicely shown, good size and markings, very steady; vhc, Keymer Bros., bonny Reed Bunting, dense black head and throat, good collar and body markings; hc, Collins, Snow Bunting, nice steady bird, but hehind 3rd in col.; c, Henderson, sweet little Cirl, well mkd. head, in good condition. The class contained a good Meadow Bunting and a specimen of the Continertal Black-headed Bunting.

Judge, W. Swaysland.

The entries in the insectivorous classes compared very favourably with those of otber years, and in some cases the quality of the exhibits was higher than usual. The Blackbird and Starling classes were not very heavy, but the competition was keen, many good birds of about equal merit facing the judge. In these classes condition plays a most important part, and in one or two eases it was this that turned the scale. It was most interesting to note in the classes for larger birds, how the winners of former years failed to quite hold their premier positions. In the Song Thrush class the well-known "Border Queen," owned by Mr. J. W. Bruce, of Coldstream, a winner of tbree firsts at the Palace, just failed to repeat ber performance. Possibly the lady has been "going the pace" lately, and so did not look quite in ber usual bloom of health. The winner was also a sbade larger, and her equal in other points. The Albino class was unusually interesting, and numbered twenty-two exhibits. These attracted a good deal of attention. It is a section of the sbow tbat otbers than fanciers can be interested in. The white Tbrusb shown by Mr. R. Laidlow, and the Black Hawfinch (Mr. F. J. Evans's) were possihly the two most rare birds. Mr. Frostick's Dartford Warbler again stood at the top of its class, and was claimed at catalogue price. Magpies, Jays,, etc., were absent, the class failing to fill. There was a nice entry in the class for 'Gale, or Blackcap, and contrary to the usual custom the latter hirds were tbe most numerous, some fine birds being on view. Iu tbe class for A.O.S. migratory birds (Wheatears, etc.), a Crested Lark (Mr. Lott's) was exhihited, hut was left out of the tickets, possibly on account of its not being in the list of tbe N.B.B. and M.C. Mr. Walsh's Great Grey Shrike, first in its class, was claimed at catalogue price (£6).

BLACKBIRD (10): 1, Prior, grand bird, excels in polish and density of col., absolutely perfection in shape, lovely beak and eye, winner in a good class; 2, Mays, another of lovely shape and size, in very fine feather, but baidly so dense in col. as winner; 3, Ford, a bird that has done some winning, but beaten to-day on condition, a real topper for size and shape, largest in the class; 4, Blackett, good one of neat type, very sleek in feather aud rich in col., loses on size to winners; vbc, Beaty, last year's winner, very fine, cramped a hit in cage, possibly could not show himself; hc, Sketchley; c, Miller and Co. SONG THRUSH (23): 1, Fletcher, a marvel for size and perfection of shape, beautifully spotted throughout, rich col., nice gloss, claimed at catalogue price; 2, Bruce, last year's winner, in fine form, beaten only in size, spotting dense, and evenly distributed; 3, Mrs. Longden, very fine young bird, lovely contour, stands and sbows himself well, grandly marked, West Country winuer, should do even better another year; 4, Sketchley, fine hold bird, exceedingly steady, beautifully proportioned, markings even, and carried well down flanks; vhc, Hughes; hc, Mays; c, Hemmings. STARLING (9): 1, Alton and Thompson, fine bold bird, shows himself to perfection, with niee full front, beautifully marked, carried right through, splendid back work, full of polish; 2, Lott, another beauty, good size, very shapely and regular in markings, splendid col., in very fine condition; 3, Lean and Son, a stormer for size and shape, rather dark in col., but beautifully spangled, grandly marked wings, would do better in larger cage; 4, Martin and Haddon, good bird, nicely spangled, good snakey head, lovely condition, very close up; vhc, Francis, marvel for col. and sheen, rather small spang'ing, hardly the size of winner, still a lovely exhibit; hc, Telford; c, Miller and Eadie. ALBINOS (22): 1, Walsh, beautiful silver Starling, fine size, very shapely feathers, tipped with white, has a charming effect on the silver ground, good first; 2, Dohle Bros., lovely little Pied Goldfinch, clear bird, all hut two or three feathers in each wing, and yell. bar, not over large, but lovely exhihit; 3, Laidlow, White Thrush, possibly the rarest hird in the class, not over pure in col., hut very shapely bird and interesting; 4, Sayward, White Bullfinch, pure White, all but wings and tail, capital shape, very tame, make charming pet; ex. 4, Evans, Black Hawfinch, very interesting and rare exhibit, good sound col., would have done better if larger, in capital condition; vhc, Watson, good Linn. Greenie; vhc, Herbert; hc, Turton, Hodgkinson; c, Greenway. HEN (15): 1, Harris, fine large Hawfineh, grand size and shape, very rich col. for a lady, capital bih and wings; 2, Bancroft, good Bramble, almost as rich in col. as a cock, nice shape and size, a good second; 3, Longden, fine Corn Bunting, nice size, shows herself well, beautifully marked, of grand col. and quality of feather; 4, Leach and Leckie, beautiful Twite, capital size and shape, grandly laced throughout, very sound col.; vhc, Lowrie, nice Crossbill, capital size and shape; hc, Francis; c, Dawson. NIGHTINGALE OR BLACKCAP (13): 1, Hon. Mrs. Bourke, very fine 'Gale, nice shape, moves and shows himself well, lovely sound col., charming bird in very high condition; 2, 4, Otto Puck, grand Blackcap, nice silvery col., good dense cap of nice formation, perfect plumage, shown in very fine condition; 4, another splendid Blackcap, smart bird, good ground col., sound dense cap, in perfect health; 3, vbc, Jackson, another good 'Gale, capital size, rich colour, fine bold eye, exceedingly steady, in lovely condition; vhc, Blackcap, close up, good cap, in fine form; hc, Briscoe and Son; c, Martin. SKYLARK (8): 1, McVay, fine bold bird, sbows bimself splendidly, grand size and shape, very richly spangled; 2, Walsh, another good hird, hardly so large as winner, hut grand col., excels in spaugling, a beauty for condition; 3, hc, Paton, fine big bird, of nice shape, hardly tho depth of colour and markings of winner, still a good one; 4, vhc, Lott, big bird, lovely shape, good head, beaten in markings only; c, Baseley. A.O.S. RESIDENT (10): 1, Frostick, well-known Dartford Warbler, lookiug as well as ever, claimed at catalogue price, £12 10s.: 2, 3, Mays, 2nd lovely example of the Golden Crested Wren, capital size and shape, as tight as a Java, in perfect feather; 3rd fine Tree Creeper, very pure throat, contrasting well with the rich hrowu back, splendidly marked; 4, Collins, very fine Nuthatch, capital size and shape, very good eye marks, nice pure back col. and chestnut breast; vhc, Francis, good Grey Wagtail, in perfect feather; hc, Blackett, pretty Gold Crest; c, Walsb, nice Tree Creeper. WHEATEAR OR LARGER (10): 1, 2, Mays, 1st fine bold Wheatear leading, lovely size, extraordinary col. and feather, grand eye markings, good wings and tail, a real topper; 2nd very fine Yellow Wagtail, grand col., beautifully mkd., shows himself well, a lovely exhibit; 3, Beaty, magnificent little Lesser Whitethroat, in grand order, nice rich cap and hack, good pure throat; 4, Walsh, anotber good Yellow Wagtail, fine size, very shapely bird, good breast, but hardly so rich in col. as second; vhc, Tout, nice Wheatear; bc, Francis, pretty Lesser Whitethroat; c, Forster, good Wheatear. LARGE (10): 1, Walsh, Great Grey Shrike leading, well known bird, often described, looking well, claimed; 2, Forster, lovely Waxwing, fine size and shape, very clean cut hib, good crest, very fine wings, a real heauty; 3, Bisset, bold Missel Thrush, grand shape, extraordinary size, good col., splendidly marked with just a suspicion of breaking on the size, still a beauty; 4, Martin, another fine Waxwing, hardly the size of winner, but grand hib and cap, lovely wings, in very fine condition; vhc, Lawson and Burlinson, good Redwing, beautifully mkd., lovely col.; bc, Wilson, good Missel Thrush; c, Baseley, niec Redwing.

The Novice British Birds and Hybrids.

Judge, H. Norman.

This section of the show was a new venture, but results proved that the management were fully justified in providing a few classes for otber than champion exhibitors. Tbe four classes for Britisb birds drew a good entry, tbe one for Goldfinch and Bullfinch totalling thirty-nine—not bad for a beginning. And should novices patronize this section, no doubt the authorities will soon see their way to somewhat increase the classification. Tho poorest class of the lot was the one for insectivorous birds, and this certainly should have drawn a better entry than eigbt exhibits, considering the many insect-eating birds that are adaptahle to cage life. The quality of the birds sent in was certainly good, but tbe novice has still something to learn in tho matter of staging, some really good birds that should have been to the front baving to journey back bome cardless. Here and there among them one could see birds put down in fine style. In this respect tbe Hybrid exhibitors were certainly in front of the Britishers, the majority of the clears and some of the darks leaving nothing to he desired in the way of staging. The class for dark Hybrids was certainly a good one, hut Mr. Lang's fine Greenie Canary sailed home fairly easy, although there were other good ones of the same cross. Tbere was very little between tbe half-dozen Goldie-Bullies, Mr. Rees' bird winning as much on coudition as anything, although perhaps of the lot the only bird that might turn the tables would possihly bo Mr. Bell's fine hold bird, which stood second. The Hybrid class between two Britishers was certainly a most interesting one, and contained some good birds of up-to-date crosses.

GOLDFINCH OR BULLFINCH (39): 1, Brett, fino big Bullfinch, very thick-set, nice full bead and well-filled neck, good broad cap, sound rich col., in fino condition, although slightly coarse one side; 2, Kilby, very smart Goldie, showing plenty of chestnut and brown, square blaze of good rich col., nice wings, well buttoned and braced, very sbapely; 3, Dawson, another fine Bullie, hardly so thick-set and Bully-shape as winner, good cap and wings, plain bar, nice silvery back, quickly claimed; ex. 3, Wallman, perfect little gentleman, almost too nice and dainty for the bench, very fine quality hlaze, without a trace of black, grand condition, beaten only in tanning; 4, vhc, Hind, another good Bullie, very shapely, nice size, capital col., good wings and bars; ex. 4, Timberlake, fine bold bird, in lovely condition, sound rich col. throughout; vhc, Alexander, Cooper; hc, Raynor, Kitchener, Lewcock; c, Jones, Miller. LINNET, ETC. (25): 1, Miller, topping Linnet leading, nice size, very shapely, stands like a sentinel, well up in col., nice breast ticking, well laced and spangled throughout; 2, Cooper, lovely little Redpoll, smart, active bird of nice rich brown col., excels in lacing, most perfect hib, a little gentleman; 3, c, Kitchener, nice bold sbapely Siskin, big, cbesty bird, good cap and bib, capital wing, very dense in black all through; 4, Mrs. Clapham, fine bold Mealy Redpoll of wonderful size, good chubby sbape, grand cap and bib, lovely col., well laced, inclined to ho rough at times; ex. 4, Rees, another bonny bird of good size and col., very little behind; vhc, bc, Brighty, another big Mealy, very shapely, good feather, brilliant cap and breast; vbc, Burrows; hc, Bush; c, Johnson, Kitchener. A.O.S. FINCH, Etc. (17): 1, Hawkes, grand Yell. Bunting, good size and shape, almost perfect head, rich in yell. and brown, fine back and wings; 2, Mrs. Caunt, fine hold Corn, good size, very shapely, rich in marking, in A1 condition; 3, Benson, grand Greenie, very shapely, of good size, sound col., capital wings, showing a fino har; 4, vhc, Mrs. Cooper, bold Cbaffic, stands well, sound col., good cap and wings; vhc, another good Yell. Bunting, very little behind winner; hc, Miller; c, Miss Bellamy. INSECTIV. (8): 1, Miller, good Waxwing leading, rather slim tunic, but nicely proportioned, perfect, clean-cut hib, and a wealth of crest feathers, lovely wings of rich col., tight as wax; 2, Brightly, perfect little Pipit, just lacks the finish of the usual cage spec., very shapely, good sound col. throughout, beautifully mkd.; 3, Cbild, fine, big, bold Missel, shown in grand order, nicely proportioned, good touch of col., grandly marked, although hardly so even as some; 4, Miss Johnson, very good Song Thrush, in capital condition, rich col. well mkd. right through, steady; vhc, Mrs. Clapham, another good Waxwing, rather different type to winner, good bib, lovely wings, in very fine condition, might have done better if less fat, which spoilt his shape; hc, Mrs. Adams; c, Oliver. HYB., LIGHT OR VARIEG. (10): 1, Rees, very hot col. yell. leading, good size and shape, in perfect condition, well shown 2, Lang, bold buff, capital size, nicely proportioned, A1 feather and condition, smart exhibit; 3, Dawson, fine bold bird, wing and eye mkd., good shape, sound col. and condition; 4, Butler, smart buff, nice touch of blaze, in perfect feather; vhc, Parker; hc, Tanner; c, Tburling. DARK (22): 1, Lang, very bold Greenie, bardly the best in proportions, but of sound rich col. tbrougbout, moves and shows well, good wings, in perfect condition; 2, ex. 4, Houghtou, very smart Siskin, neat shape, very souud col., nicely laced, good cap, well braced wings of good col., very dense in black, ex. 4th another fine Greenie of good size, but bardly so large as winner, rich in col., graud quality; 3, Pope, big Linnet, good bold Nor. shape, sound in col., nice texture of feather, in fine condition, well shown; 4, Dawson, nice Goldie, good size, rich col. hlaze, well tanned, good wings and bars; vhc, Dewsnap, Kitchener; hc, Clipstone, Dawson; c, Hawkes. A.O.V. HYB (16): 1, Rees, grand Goldie-Bullie, A1 blaze of nice col., spreading well over frout, rieb in tanning aud in lovely feather; 2, Bell, another, very close up, hut hardly in sueb good condition, shade more shapely, grand expansive blaze, A1 wiugs and back; 3, Davis, nice Linnet-Bullie, good size, well proportioned, good touch of crimson, clean cap, in capital condition; 4, Welch, yet another Goldie-Bullie, but hardly the size, nor possessing the blaze of winners, capital shape, very tigbt in feather, well shown; vhc, Beard, nice little Siskin-Redpoll, very shapely, falls a wee bit in size, hut nicely laced; hc, Thurling; c, Hawkes.

The Cages.

Judge, T. Heath.

The cage section was cut down to one class this year, and drew 11 entries, and many of the exhibits, we note, were claimed by the visitors to the show. One remarkable piece of work was on view (shown by Mr. F. H. Stanton), a large aviary in the form of a church, with spire, porch, courtyard, etc., all complete.

CAGES (11): 1, 3, Mullins and Son, 1st good cage, suitahle for a Wagtail, about 20 inches long and 9 wide, the perches arranged rather different to the usual method, the centre one beiug slightly higher than the others, beautifully finished and enamelled, 3rd good douhle breeder, of nice length and height, food, water, and egg pans well placed, very light and serviceahle, reasonable in price, considering the finish and workmanship; 2, 4, Newley, 2nd big aviary cage, for large British, very strongly made, well finished, with good, stout perches, some thought there were rather too many of them, but the owner could easily alter them if required, well made zinc sand tray gives the cage a neat appearance, a strip of wood goes all round to prevent the sand getting behind, 4th very smart, softbill cage, witb inside feeding glasses, and a short centre perch, appeared useful without crowding; vhc, Stanton, big cage, built to represent a church, quite an attractive exhibit.

The Foreign Birds.

The ahow at the old, historic glass-house is always an eagerly anticipated event, aud these anticipations are mostly realised; for not only does tbis event mean a "gathering of the clans" unequalled at any similar function, but in a large measure also the feathered notabilities of the year are to he seen bere. Though in this sectiou this feature was not so strikiug as in past years, yet a goodly array of rare and uncommon birds were gathered here for hird-lovers and the public to feast their eyes upon. A wonderful sight it was! This section was certainly ushered in hy an unfortunate accident, which was literally a catastrophe, viz., tbe escape of the Pigmy Parrot while being unpacked, and thus neither judge nor public got a sight of this rare and unique atom of tbe Parrot tribe—an unrealised anticipation for many hird-lovers as well as the writer. I am sure I am not overstating the case when I say that Mons. Pauvvels has the sincere sympathy of all bird fanciers in his irreparable loss. Apart from tbe Pigmy Parrot the most enquired for "notabilities" were the Cock of tho Rock, Blue Budgerigars, and Purple Suubird, somewhat in the order given.

Other good and rare exhibits were: Mr. Townsend's Black-throated Hangnest, tbe Rev. Raynor's Everitt's Parrot, Mr. Watson's Black-billed Toucan, Mr. O'Neill's White-winged Hangnest, Mr. J. M. Walsb's Black-headed Sibias and Crested Mynahs, Mr. Maxwell's Great-billed Flycatcher, Blue-winged Siva, and Crested Wood Partridge, Mr. S. Beaty's Levailliant's Barbet. The management was, and always is, excellent at this show, and the officials are to ho congratulated on another well-deserved success—though perhaps tbe Parrots were not so numerous as in past years, but some beautiful birds were staged. Mr. H. T. T. Camps judged tho Parrot and Parrakeet classes, and Mr. Frank Finn the remainder. Their awards, witb one or two exceptions, were well received.

Judge, Mr. H. T. T. Camps.

BUDGERIGARS, LOVEBIRDS, ETC. (5): 1, Pauvels, true pair Sky Blue Budgerigars, unique and exquisitely beautiful; 2, Townsend, Blue-crowned Hanging Parrot, very rich in col., not a feather out of place; 3, Colville and Sons, good pair Yell. Budgerigars; 4, Watts, Red-faced Lovebird, very rich col.; vhc, Maxwell, Red-crowned Hanging Parrot, not yet in full col. PARRAKEETS, LORIES, ETC. (7): 1, 2, R. Pauvvels, exquisite Hooded Parrakeet, very tight and rich in col.; 2, beautiful pair of Bourke's Parrakeets; 3, vbc, Maxwell, good pair of Brown's Parrakeets and Queen Alexandra Parrakeet, tho latter a wee bit soft; 4, O'Neill, Ceram Lories, rich col. but not tight; hc, c, Cushney, good Red-rump Parrakeet; c, Clark, good Ring-necked Parrakeet in lovely bloom. The above classes do not call for special comment, as the Blue Budgerigars have been noted elsewhere, save perhaps to remark that Mr. Townsend's Blue-crowned Hanging Parrot and Mons. Pauvvels' Hooded Parrakeets are certainly the best specimens of their respective species that the writer has ever seen staged. PARROTS, COCKATOOS, ETC. (10): This class should have been notable by enabling many to see for the first time a living specimen of the Pigmy Parrot, a species no larger than a small Finch; unfortunately, as already noted, it escaped: one can only hope that this rara avis will be caught and restored to its enterprising owner. The other feature is the Rev. Raynor's Everett's Parrot, figured and noticed elsewhere. 1, R. Pauvvels, Hawk-headed Parrot, very uncommon, in perfect condition; 2, 3, Rev. Raynor, rare Everett's and Meyer's Parrots, tho latter (which must now be getting quite aged) was not so tight in plumage as we have seen it; 4, Mrs. Thorpe, Yellow-naped Amazon, uncommon, and in best of condition; vhc, J. Mackenzie, richly col. Senegal Parrot; hc, Leach and Leckie, good Lead-beater's Cockatoo; c, W. S. Smith, true pair grand Ecleetus Parrots; also exbibited, a very tame Sulphur-crested Cockatoo.

Judge, F. Finn.

AVADAVATS, ETC. (11): Always an interesting class, many of the so-called common species are very beautiful, and if they were only rare high prices would be readily paid for them. The 1st, 2nd, and 3rd prize winners were remarkable for richly col., tight, and silken plumage, and were all staged by Mr. F. Howe. 1, 2, 3, Howe, Gold-breasted Waxbills, Diamond Finch, and St. Helena Waxhills, all in exquisite condition; 4, A. C. Young, perfect pair of Ribbon Finches; vhc, R. J. Watts, good Diamond Finch; hc, Rev. J. M. Paterson, Java Sparrow, in perfect condition; c, Allum Bros., pair Ribbon Finches; also exhibited, Spice Finches and Silverbills. WAXBILLS, GREENFINCHES, ETC. (16): 1, Howe, Melba finch, in our opinion one of the best ever staged, well worth its position; 2, Pauvvels, Painted Finches, very rich col., perfect; 3, c, Maxwell, exquisite Red-headed Gouldian Finch, one of the best we have seen, and his rare Red-rumped Weaver, the latter rather loose in feather; 4, Botting, lovely pair of Rufous-backed Mannikins; vhc, hc, J. M. Walsh, Red-headed Finch, and another (we failed to note species). Other good specimens of Pintail Nonpareils, Chestnut Finch, Jamieson's Waxbills, Parrot, Red-headed, and Gouldian Finches. GROSBEAKS, TRUE FINCHES, ETC. (4): 1, Maxwell, Nonpareil Bunting, very tight in feather, but has the rich red plumage of undersurface replaced by pale yellow; 2, Mrs. E. Galloway, good pair of Blue Grosbeaks; 3, Pauvvels, true pair Nonpareil Buntings, rich in col., but a little rough in plumage. TANAGERS (11): Some beautiful species were staged here, but nothing really new, the most notahle bird in the class being Mr. Walsh's Black-throated Tanager, in faultless condition, and which certainly experienced hard luck in not being awarded premier honours; beautiful specimens of the Black-hacked and Petre's Tanagers in best condition were exhibited by Mr. C. T. Maxwell. Two good specimens of the Rufous-throated Blue Sugar Bird were passed by the judge as in their wrong class; the judge is certainly correct in doing so. Nevertheless, it is hard lines for the exhibitors in question, as this species has hitherto been accepted in the Tanager class; hence we give publicity to the fact that the proper class for the species may he generally recognised, viz., all species of Sugar Birds, etc. 1, Pitchford and Stocker, Necklace Tanager, beautiful col., not easy to keep in captivity, and showing signs of a heavy show season; 2, vhc, J. M. Walsh, Black-throated Tanager, very uncommon and in faultless condition, and a good Maroon Tanager; 3, 4, Maxwell, Black-hacked and Petre's Tanagers, good col. and very tight; hc, c, Beaty, Black-backed Tanager, not so pure in col. as the 3rd prize winner, and a grand Tri-colour Tanager. Several good Superb Tanagers were also shown. SUGAR BIRDS, SUN BIRDS, ETC. (10): An interesting and gorgeous class; apart from the Sun Bird, which is noted elsewhere, there were three Purple Sugar Birds, two Yellow-wings, and a Banana Quit. Mr. Townsend staged his Yellow-winged Sugar Bird for the sixth season at the Palace Show, and it is certainly now in richer col. and equally tight plumage as when it first appeared—it is one of the best specimens of this lovely species that has ever been staged. 1, vhc, c, Maxwell, 1st the Purple Sun Bird, exquisite, very tight, lovely, beyond description; vhc, Black-headed Sugar Bird, perfect; c, Purple Sugar Bird; 2, 4, Townsend, Banana Quit and Yellow-winged Sugar Bird in the order given, both in finest condition, and the beauty and condition of the latter beyond the power of pen to describe; 3, Morris, Purple Sugar Bird, rich col., very tight; hc, Pitchford and Stocker, Gold-fronted Green Bulhul, rich col., in best of condition. A.O.S. (smaller than the King Bird of Paradise) (11): All the exhibits here were of great interest, and mostly very uncommon, but all save the White-winged Hangnest have been previously noted in our pages. A fine specimen of Levalliant's Barbet was marked wrong class, as being larger than the King Bird of Paradise; one can sympathise with the owner in his hard luck, hut though it is drawing the line rather fine, it is just too large for this class. 1, vhc, C. T. Maxwell, Great-billed Flycatcher and Blue-winged Siva, both rare and beautiful exhibits and in exquisite condition; 2, 4, J. M. Walsh, White-browed Wood Swallow and Black-headed Sibias, beautiful and perfect; 3, O'Neill, White-winged Hangnest, rare and beautiful—a first appearance we think; hc, Townsend, Black-throated Hangnest, very uncommon, perfect condition; c, Otto Puck, good Shama. Also exhibited, Chinese Painted Quails, another Shama, and Levalliant's Barbet. A.O.S. (Larger) (5): Excepting the Cock of the Rock, which we have already noted, the others have all been previously reviewed in our pages; we were glad to see once more the beautiful Purple-headed Glossy Starling. The pair of Gold-crested Mynahs exhibited by Mr. Walsh are very uncommon, though we think they have been previously exhibited. 1, Pauvvels, Cock of the Rock, perfect condition, in full natural col., never before exhibited, the aisle being continually congested in its vicinity, a grand exhibit; 2, Watson, Black-billed Toucan, beautiful and rare exhibit, possibly a first appearance; 3, Maxwell, Crested Wood Partridge, rare, steady and beautiful; 4, vhc, Cushney, Purple-headed Glossy Starling, rich col., perfect; hc, J. M. Walsh, Gold-crested Mynahs, very rare, possihle first appearance.

Judge, H. Norman.

FOR. BULLFINCH AND GOLDFINCH (11): 1, Minnett, grand big Bullie, wonderful col., very even and pure, good broad cap, capital back and wing, in grand condition; 2, Howie, lovely Goldie, nice square-cut hlaze of rich col., excels in tanning, perfect wings and buttons; 3, Picard, another fine Bullie, grand size and shape, good col., nice wing hars, just heaten in condition; 4, c, Geddis, a beauty, little behind second, grand col. and quality; vhc, Lane; hc, McLennan.

Extra Stock Class.

The extra stock classes was a tremendous collection, about 120 of which consisted of Rollers at various prices, and other song birds were exhibited by Mr. Rochl. In addition there were 200 other birds of various breeds, from such rooms as those of Messrs. Senior, Horton, Axe, Silk, Thynne, Hodder, Steel, Turner, Ramsden, Green, Pope, Wilson, Patterson, Gibbs, Richardson, Bexson, Slade, Bellinger, Lawrence, Yates, Nason, Mrs. Litchfield, and others. Birds purchased from this class were allowed to be removed each evening at 9.30, a great convenience to purchasers. Many exhihits were very cheap, and purchasers were lucky in some of their deals.

Kindly thank all who sent applications for hen Bullfinches I advertised in "Cage Birds" of Feb. 4th. I had so many I could not answer them all—only those who enclosed a stamp. The birds were sold by first post Saturday, which speaks well for your paper, which I think gets better every week.—Jas. Wilson (Norton, Malton).

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS.

Owing to the number of announcements received we cannot guarantee to repeat advertisements unless the previous Issue, Page, and Column are stated by the advertiser.

EVERY EXPERIENCED BREEDER OUGHT TO KNOW that breeding cages, 8 in. or 9 in. through are not good for breeding. You want them eleven inches. That is what my double breeding cages are at 3/6 and 5/-, fitted complete; but, if you are satisfied with eight inches, then you can have for 2/6. However, if you want healthy and active stock, I have them at any price. See the

If you want the best ever brought before the Fancy,

SAVE Carriage, Postage, Letter Writing.

by getting your Cages, Aviaries, Fittings, Nesting Material, and everything you require from

ONE PLACE.

To do this, you have only to send for my

—— NEW ——

Illustrated Money-Saving Catalogue.

Everything is there that you may require, as it is not so much wasted paper, but literally filled with the best and cheapest goods on the market to-day. A postcard with address will at once bring it to you, and save all further trouble, and be money in your pocket as well.

The following proves what the opinion is of my cages:—

Sheffield, Feb. 13th, 1911.—Cages and birds safely received in good condition. The cages are the nicest I have ever seen.—H. Anson to W. Rudd.

Dunlanea, Co. Wicklow, Feb., 1911.—I want another box of birdlime, as it will hold a Hawk if required. I have had ten years experience of bird-catching, and never saw any as good in my life before. My brother has had twenty years' experience, and he never saw the like of it.—Patrick Corrigan to W. Rudd.

Feb. 7.—Sir,—Goldfinch to hand to-day, and was singing in less than two hours; he is a beauty and I am well satisfied.—Yours, S. Angus." "117, Hartshill Road, Stoke, Jan. 20. Sir,—Exhibition Goldfinch arrived safe, highly pleased with him. Record time, under 16 hours from time of posting order till he had a bath in my kitchen.—Yours, G. Couper." "42, Fuller Street, Kettering. Jan. 31. Sir,—Please send ¼ birdlime. The last from you was grand stuff, and very clean. I have never used better, and am a catcher with above 30 years' experience.—Yours, H. Panther." "128, Cormonloch, Auchinleck. Jan. 30. Sir,—Birds arrived safely and am well pleased with same. I have had three lots from you before, and thank you for promptness. I have had a number of Goldfinches, but one from you excels all I ever had of that species. I have shown him to fanciers here, and all are pleased with him. I also informed them how honest you had been in replacing Linnet for me which died. I can assure you that my stock obtained from you make a good advertisement for you.—Yours, E. Dunsmuir." Don't forget everything is guaranteed exactly as described, and sent on approval at my risk on rules of "Cage Birds," or on receipt of cash, and money promptly refunded if every satisfaction not given. COMPACT Norwich Plainheads; plenty with substance and size—the kind talked about, but not so easily obtained. I hold the largest and best collection of any person or firm in existence to select from. I positively assert the value I can give in these is the greatest obtainable.

I wish everyone could inspect this wonderful stock, as it would prove a hundred times more than I can possibly put into words.

Following only Samples:—

Godnor, Derby, Feb., 1911.—Received birds safely Saturday. Thanks for such a good pair. The hen struck me at once as a valuable stock bird.—H. Martin to W. Rudd.

Never Seen such Quality for Price.

32, Chester-street, C.-on-M., Manchester, Feb. 13th, 1911.—Birds arrived safe and well. Never seen such quality for the price before. —J. Brown to W. Rudd.

Wcbheath, Feb., 1911.—I duly received Norwich hen. The bird is entirely to my satisfaction.—G. C. Stratton to W. Rudd.

Splendid at Price.

Cricklewood, Feb., 1911.—The two hens arrived safely. Very pleased with them. They are good value for money.—B. Trimmis to W. Rudd.

Emburst, Sussex, Feb. 13th, 1911.—The yellow green hen arrived in good condition; well satisfied. Splendid bird at price.—Chas. Jempson to W. Rudd.

BIRDS THAT CAN WIN.—Cocks or Hens 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/- per pair. The same value cannot be purchased elsewhere. Prize bred Norwich, as follows:—Cocks. 5/-, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6. Some grand Buff cocks, big skulls, thick necks, well filled in checks, short tails, big chests, and right across the perch; these are stock birds that will do someone good. WOOLWICH CANARIES.

Grand showy birds of yellow and buff Norwich and Yorkshires, all cocks, warranted in full song, lovely pairs for breeding, at prices much below other advertisers. Call and select for yourselves, or write for list: J. Thorn, 37, Plumstead-rd., Woolwich.

J. TRISTEM,

Winner of over 600 prizes, four cups, including Bristol challenge cup, has 12 pairs of useful Norwich to clear, from 12/6 pair, upwards, own breeding, cold-room: 82, Winchester-rd., Brislington, Bristol.

SIZE SHAPE SUBSTANCE

with the best blood living, sum up my champion Norwich birds, with a genuine reputation. No idle paper boast, but honest facts. Pairs, 20/- to 60/-; single birds, 10/- to 40/-; approval.

JUDGE SILK, WHITSTABLE.

has for disposal a few grand Norwich show or stock birds, single or in pairs, yellows and buffs, cocks and hens; see show reports at all leading shows, including Crystal Palace, also winner of open Norwich Plainhead trophy champion classes; inspection invited, or on approval; stamp: The Lodge, Acomb-rd., York.

CRYSTAL Pedigree Norwich. PALACE

Grand lot of surplus stock for new beginners. This is a fact. One of my discarded birds, which I put out last year, through being too small, bred me 5 unflighted birds, which have all won this year. This proves what good results may come from getting the right strain, apart from appearances. If you do not keep Norwich, now is your chance to start; pairs 10/- to 15/-; odd cocks 7/6; send postal orders without delay: Jas. E. Davies, Winner of the Crystal Palace diploma 1911, and N.P.C. Cup 1909-10, and many other specials, 200, Higher Brinksway, Stockport.

SELLING OFF

Owing to change of residence, 100 birds for sale, bred from big winners, yellow cock and buff hen, unflighted, 15/-; buff cocks big heads, grand type and quality, bred from pairs costing £10, 20/6, 30/0, 40/6; buff hens, cobby, splendid heads, tight feathered, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-; approval, stamp, state price (about).

REV. B. NUME, Saltash, Cornwall

PURCHASED 80 NORWICH

AMATEURS

WILL FIND ANY OF THESE A GOOD INVESTMENT:

Special Matched Pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-. Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-. Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Border Fancies, 10/6, 12/6. These are the best values ever offered. Cages, 3d.

NOVICES

A pair of Crests, matched for breeding crests, one crested, the other crested-bred, at the astounding low prices of 10/6 and 12/6 per pair. A pair of Norwich Plainheads or Yorkshires, properly matched, and the cock on song, at 8/6 and 10/6. Cages 3d.

Remember that I personally match these up myself, and exercise the same care as if they cost pounds, and just as I would do if I were pairing for myself. In fact, I always make it a rule to thoroughly satisfy in selection—then I am sure I shall satisfy my customer—that is, if satisfaction is possible. Now, this may not sound like anything very particular to the same time it is of the utmost importance to the purchaser, as everything depends upon this matching as to what results are likely to be; hence, you want it done by someone who not only knows what is right and what is wrong, but also someone who takes an interest in doing so, to get the only best results possible from the class of birds purchased.

I also offer suitable for all above pairs a good, serviceable breeding cage, fitted complete, price 3/6 ditto, fitted with sand trays and sanitary utensils, 5s.

For every other variety send for the largest completest, and the First Illustrated Canary price list ever published, and do not be gulled with imitations, which will bring only disappointment and delay, for I Have the Birds I offer; that means a good deal more than some people recognise.

Unsolicited examples, just as further proof that all I offer gives the same unqualified satisfaction. (Call and see thousands of originals received during this short year, 1911.)

The Way You do Your Business.

Rathley, 9, Milton-street, Worthing, Feb., 1911. Many thanks for prompt way you do your business. Bird arrived quite safe this morning in splendid condition, and not any the worse for its journey. In fact, it seemed as if it was only taken from the cage to another. I am quite satisfied with same, and shall recommend you to anyone I know in want of a bird. Thanking you again for your promptness.—E. Scott to W. Rudd.

An Opinion of Breeding Cage and Birds Complete.

Drumrack, Anstruther, Feb. 13th, 1911.—Just a line to say birds arrived all safe, and I am highly pleased with them and also the cage. Everything was right.—T. Finlay to W. Rudd.

Splendid Value.

23, Drysdale Buildings, Corbiehall, Bo'ness, Feb., 1911.—I received the birds all safe, and I think them splendid value.—R. Liddle to W. Rudd.

Size and Stamp and Satisfaction for Their Money.

12, Trinity-street, Bishops Stortford.—Many thanks for bird to hand, Friday. Am very pleased with it, and well satisfied both in size and stamp. Anyone requiring one cannot do better than send to W. Rudd, who gives perfect satisfaction for their money.—W. Fordham to W. Rudd.

ARMED POLICE

Were the police armed it might be better for some things, but it would not get them any better birds than I will send you. I guarantee you the same high quality at the same moderate prices that has made the demand for my birds so great. I have rooms full of pure prize-bred birds of such high quality that is seldom seen in one building. It is a show worth seeing. Just call and inspect them for yourself: you will be delighted, and I am sure will see just the birds you require. I have publlshed thousands of testimonials, and still keep receiving them by every post from delighted customers. Here are one or two just received:— "Feb. 11, 1911.—Bessemer-st., Ferryhill.—Birds arrived all right, safe and sound. Am very pleased. He suits me, being such a nice bird and singing so well.—J. Roper." "11/2/11. 10, Mengates Buildings, Bath.—Received bird in good condition. Am quite satisfied with it.—W. Beakstone." "Woodend, Cleator, 11/2/11.—Bird arrived safe. I am highly satisfied.—T. Lowers." "97, Castle Hill, Reading, 11/2/11.—Bird arrived quite safe. Am well pleased with it. Thanks for your prompt attention.—O. Smith." "174, Worrington-st., North Kensington, 8/2/11.—Bird arrived, safe and sound, in the best condition. Thanking you for the businesslike manner in dealing with my order, which will make me recommend you to everyone requiring birds; wishing you every success.—F. Lee." "12, Midton-st., Glasgow, 11/2/11.—Received birds, and we are highly delighted with same; they are in splendid condition after journey.—J. Johnson." "Twyford, Molton, Mowbray, 9/2/11.—Birds arrived quite safe; they give great satisfaction. They are two very nice birds. I shall favour you with next order.—J. Burton." "Bunkers Hook, 11/2/11.—Received Roller quite safe; am very pleased; it is just the bird I wanted.—G. Chandler." I could fill this page with such letters as above received this month. Send a post card for my illustrated price list. My stock of Rollers is second to none. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Roller cocks, in full song by day and artificial light, with long waterbubble runs, hnrp, bell, and gong notes, deep rolls, bass rolls, etc., 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- each; pure Roller hens, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6. FOULD'S ROLLERS,

Brothers and sisters to my winner of the ten gulnea silver cup at the club show, January 14th, 1911, in the largest entry on record; cocks 20/-, 40/-, and 60/- each; hens 5/- and 10/- each; pairs scientifically mated; every bird guaranteed bred by myself, in cold rooms and wearing closed club ring: Arthur Foulds, 7, King's Parade, Fallowfield, Manchester.

SHAW'S ROLLERS.

Notice, if you want thorough good St. Andreasburg Rollers, with all the sweetest musical changes of song, write or call and hear them, they are day and gaslight songsters, they're sure to please you, all on 6 days' approval, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6; you can send the money to me, or deposit it with the Editor: Wm. Shaw, 97, Essex-rd., Islington, London.

YOU MUST ADMIT

that unless my Rollers were all that I claim for them publicity would do me harm instead of good. I have repeatedly said in this and other papers that my Leipzig Rollers are far better value than any other Rollers on the market, and I want every intending purchaser to test the truth of this by having one on a week's trial, and one from elsewhere on similar terms; test them side by side, and if mine is not better value at a lower price, return it and back comes all your money. I now have a tremendous stock of pure Leipzig Rollers, all in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, waterbubble runs, piccolo trill, bell, harp and gong notes, and jug-jug of Nightingale; price 7/6 and 8/6 each; special bandmasters, which excel in the hollow bell, hollow and bass rolls, 10/- and 12/6 each. Leipzig Roller hens, 2/6 each, 4/6 couple. I also have a limited quantity of genuine glucke bred contest Rollers in full song, and guaranteed fit for immediate contest singing, price 15/- and 20/- each; hens, guaranteed same strain, 3/6 each. These contest Rollers are of purest blood Germany can boast of, and are "the thing" for connoisseurs. Roller singing cabinet cages, with loose fronts and folding doors, 2/6 and 3/6 each; ordinary singing box cages, 1/6, 1/9, 2/- each. Following letters are entirely unsolicited, and never before been published: "2, Ivy Cottages, Horace-st., Boston, January 28th.—Sir,—It affords me genuine pleasure to give you another order for birds. The Roller you sent few weeks ago continues to give entire satisfaction. Please send on following birds.—Yours, Chas. Long." "Patrick-st., Kilkenny, Jan. 28th.—Sir,—Received Canary safe. He is a beauty, and sang same day. I am very thankful to you for sending such a nice bird.—Yours, M. Corish." "81, Devonshire-st., Sunderland, Jan. 29th.—Sir,—Birds safely to hand. Please accept many thanks for straightforwardness and promptness. If others leave selection to you the same as I did I am sure they will get every satisfaction. I am really disgusted with some I have got (from elsewhere).—Yours, J. Dodd." "39, Adam-st., Ahertillery, Jan. 27th.—Sir,—Received two Leipzig Rollers safe, and am quite satisfied with them.—Yours, A. Padfield." "489, Bolton-rd., Darwen, Jan. 27th.—Sir,—Roller arrived safe, and after week's trial I am quite satisfied with him. Thanking you for prompt attention, yours, R. Shillitoe." "Healey, Stocksfield, Jan. 26th.—Sir,—Received both birds all right, and am very pleased with them. This is second lot I have had from you, and you have given every satisfaction.—Yours, Alex. Findley." "66, Nevill-st., Llanelly., Jan. 26th.—Sir,—Please send following. The Roller you sent in November gives every satisfaction, and is equal to those in town at three times the price.—Yours, J. Moremon." "62, Walves, Totlington, near Bury, Jan. 24th.—Sir,—Bandmaster I received last week is doing nicely, and am thoroughly satisfied. Thanking you for fair transaction, yours, W. Chadwick." "Upper Princes-st., Ballymena, Jan. 24th.—Sir,—I must thank you for Canary; he is a stormer, and no mistake. I am more than pleased with him. He sang five minutes after being put in cage. He is best I ever had, and I have had some good ones in my time, but he beats them all.—Yours, A. McLean." "215, Monkswood, Newtongrange, Scotland, Jan. 23rd.—Sir,—Received birds safe. The cock is a lovely singer, and well worth money. I have two others I bought this year, but they are no class beside yours. —Yours, Jas. Hutchinson." "122, Church-st., Colbourne, Jan. 20th.—Sir,—Received Roller with thanks, and am very pleased with it. He was well packed. I have had a friend or two in to listen to him, and they say he is a storming singer.—Yours, David Hayes." "Hitchin, Jan. 20th.—Sir,—Received Roller safe, and am quite satisfied. He started singing soon as unpacked.—Yours, C. Common." Please note—Every Canary is safely and warmly packed (no matter how cold the weather) in special travelling cages, with food and water, and sent on full week's approval at my risk, either on receipt of cash or deposit system of "Cage Birds," and unless bird gives every satisfaction and realises your every expectation it has only to be returned and the whole of your money is promptly refunded. Every genuine Leipzig Roller is stamped on wing "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am the only importer of this strain, no other man can sell them, unless he first purchases from me. All are guaranteed to sing twenty hours in each twenty-four, day or gaslight, so send to the importer if you want best value obtainable.

W. GORE, GOOCH-ST., BIRMINGHAM.

BRISTOL CAGE BIRD SOCIETY.

Meeting held Feb. 1, headquarters, City Hotel, Wine Street, Mr. W. H. Manley presiding. Mr. F. G. Coleman (Bristol) elected a member. The balance sheet, postponed from the last meeting, was passed as read, showing a balance in hand of £3 19s. Decided, to hold a matched pair and British bird show second Saturday in March, headquarters; further particulars, re judge and classification, to be decided at next meeting. Messrs. Manley and Lovell will give a few notes on what they saw at the Palace show.—A. Carter, Hon. Sec.

BURY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held Textile Hall, Vice-President Mr. J. Brough in chair. Following officials elected:—Rev. R. P. Hudson, M.A., president; Mr. J. Brough, vice-president; Mr. H. Fortman, auditor; all members on committee. Balance sheet for past year submitted and passed as correct, showing a balance in hand of £1 5s. Decided, that headquarters be the Y.M.C.A., Rock Street, where all meetings will take place second Tuesday in each month. New members can be enrolled at any meeting on payment of 1s., and a subscription of 6d. per month after. Radius 5 miles from Bury Old Church.—H. Jameson, sec., 45, David Street, Elton, Bury.

WARRINGTON C.B.S.

Meeting and pair show held January 26th, Mr. Emmett in chair. There was a good muster of members and friends. Mr. Knowles judged, and no fault was found with his placings. Mr. Houghton won special for most points with 18, Dukes 14, Harper 13, Mort 13, Leech 11, Weston 10½, Walters 9½, Barnet 9, Hardy 7, Emmett 6, and Nelson 5. Upwards of 50 entries—very good for an evening show. Mr. Emmett won judging competition Next meeting British bird judging competition. Two new members, Messrs. West and Smith, proposed, so the Society seems to be making a little headway. A vote of thanks to Mr. Walters, as chairman, brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.—G. M. Nelson, Hon. Sec.

NORTH SHIELDS AND DIS. C.B.C

Meeting held Feb. 1st, before a crowded house. After the usual roll of business, the meeting was thrown open to allow members and visitors to look round, the programme being a table show for British birds. There was a record entry of nearly every local bird, with a fair mixture of foreign. Mr. Allaway, of Lark fame, and a noted fancier, ably judged. Competition in nearly every class was very keen. Messrs. King, McVay, Wilson, Hunter, Muckle, Udberg, Potts, took premier honours in their various classes, and after Mr. Allaway had complimented us on the very fine show and attendance, the meeting closed with the best thanks to Mr. Allaway. Nine new members were made, which clearly shows we are working earnestly for the great cause.—R. P. Fox, sec.

SOUTH SHIELDS C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held Lockhart's Cafe, King-st., Feb. 1st. Vote of sympathy passed to our chairman, Mr. W. Thompson, on his serious illness. The vice-chairman, Mr. W. L. Smith, occupied the chair. A good number of members turned up. After the usual preliminaries the secretary presented the balance sheet for the past year, which was passed as satisfactory, showing a balance in hand of £4 0s. 11d. Three new members, Messrs. Widdowfield, W. Priestley, and J. Mather, were added as members. Following officers elected:—President, Ald. Readhead (mayor); vice-presidents, Lord Robson, J. Kirkley, Esq., Right Hon. Russel Rea, M.P., J. Readhead, Esq.; chairman, W. Thompson; vice-chair, W. L. Smith; trustees, T. Baker, and C. W. Alty; treasurer, W. Duke; committee, T. Winter, B. Addison, W. Howden, G. R. Telford, J. Richardson, J. Hands, J. Potts, T. Baker, C. W. Alty, J. Mather, A. Widdowfield, and W. Priestley.—James Barrass, Sec., 50, Armstrong-terrace, South Shields.

BRISTOL F.A.

Established in 1886, the society is entering upon its 25th year with signs of enthusiasm which indicate a renewed lease of life. We are now away from licensed premises, Mr. E. T. Parker (treasurer) having kindly offered us use of his auction saleroom. Last meeting resolved upon a new departure, viz., table shows for all sections every month except August, instead of occasional shows for separate sections. Prize money to be on sliding scale, no deduction for penning. To prevent "deck-sweeping" no member is to take more than one prize in a class; there is no hardship in this, as extra entries in same class are accepted at half fees, and all awards will count full points for points specials. £2 was voted to be allotted as points specials over year—10/- in each section. Mr. Tottle, the new president, kindly gave 10/- to be divided similarly between certain sub-sections. Mr. A. C. Fish promised 2s. 6d. for every monthly show this year; Messrs. F. Cook and T. P. Fish each promised 2s. 6d. for every show; Mr. Tottle promised specials for March meeting. Specials promised up to now total nearly £6, more than half of which are for novices. Will members please show by their presence and entries that the kindness of the donors is appreciated? Instructions were given as to the purchase of new pens and vacancies on Executive Committee were filled. Eight new members proposed.—G. T. Maggs, Sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

The patronage shows having been completed, the following are the results in the different sections. Members will oblige by checking their points, and should there be anything wrong, a notification must be sent to the secretary on or before Feb. 23rd, after which no claims can be entertained. Champ. Yorks.:—Cup, H. A. Nimmo, 101; gold medal, R. Atherton, 79; 15/-, P. Clayton, 59; 12/-, T. Rowlands, 48; 8/-, T. Wardale, 42; 5/-, W. C. Robinson, 38. Champ. Nor.:—V. H. Deacon, 89, not competing for specials; cup, E. Lawson, 80; gold medal, W. Hales, 74; 15/-, J. Walker, 97; 12/-, T. Harrison, 50; 8/-, R. Jenkins, 32; 5/-, R. Barker, 26. Novice Yorks.: Cup, S. McNulty, 98; gold medal, J. McDermott, 69; 15/-, H. Cunningham, 55; 12/-, W. Simpson, 36; 8/-, W. Walker, 26; 5/-, J. Pilling, 7. Novice Nor.: Gold medal, J. Pyke, 60; 15/-, E. Peake, 42; 12/-, J. Pilling, 7; 8/-, J. Wagstaff, 4. Bord., Open: Cup, J. Johnston, 103; gold medal, Geo. Green, 97; 15/-, Mrs. E. Fildes, 82; 12/-, H. Amos, 65; 8/-, P. Clayton, 61; 5/-, J. Walker, 60. All points count for cash specials. Three highest birds count at each show in champ. sections for cups and medals, but all points scored by the novices count on the same scale as the cash specials. The novice cup was competed for by the Yorks. and Nor. novices, and went to the former on points. The champ. cups have to be won twice before they can be won outright, but the novice and Bord. cups are won outright first year. The distribution of cups and specials will take place at the annual dinner next week, date not yet fixed.—Geo. Green, Sec.

HEBDEN BRIDGE AND CALDER VALLEY O.S.

Meeting held Nutclough Tavern, Feb. 2nd. After the ordinary business we sat down to an excellent supper provided by our host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood, to which the members present did full justice. Those who were not present missed a real treat, and we felt quite sorry for them. After the removal of the cloth we had a show of British birds, when Mr. W. Spencer's Linnet won. The remainder of the evening was given up to singing and selections on the gramophone kindly lent by Mr. J. Greenwood. Votes of thanks to our host and hostess and all who had helped to entertain us, brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.—A. Pickles, Hon. Sec.

GRANTHAM C.B.S.

Meeting held headquarters, "Black Dog," Watergate, Feb. 6th. There was a splendid turn-up of members, over 20 being present. Business: Pair show, for which all arrangements were made; this will be held at the Co-op. Hall, Feb. 18th—tickets for same selling well. We hope to have over 70 cages on show. We had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Lockton lecture on breeding, after which questions were asked. The lecturer answered to the satisfaction of all. Next meeting first Monday in March, when Mr. Parsons has promised to give us a few notes on Catching and Bringing Birds on to Hard Seed. All fanciers should make an effort to attend as Mr. Parsons has been a catcher and fancier all his life and has had very great experience of all British birds.—W. Ratcliff, Chairman.

CHATHAM AND DISTRICT F.A.

General meeting, held January 31, Ropemaker's Arms. Mr. J. Smith presided over a very large number, supported by Mr. T. Clifford, vice-chairman, and Mr. W. Roberts, treasurer. Decided to hold annual show, Nov. 2nd and 3rd, Queen's Hall, and to open entries to all Kent fanciers. The chairman expressed the hope that all those fanciers who had not attended would make an effort to attend next meeting, and rally round the new sec. and committee. He spoke of the cups competed for annually. Several new members were proposed, and accepted, and several others promised to join at an early date. Special invitation is given to all cage bird and other fanciers of the district to join the society. After a lengthy discussion on the various sections, a very pleasant evening was brought to a close.—Hy. Wray, Sec.

DALKEITH AND DISTRICT C.C.

Meeting held in "Ship," Feb. 4th, when the question of whether club be dissolved was gone into. After a lengthy debate, it was resolved that club be carried on, but that various changes be enacted, viz., that Scotch Fancy classes be reduced to two, till increased membership and entries warrant an increase; that secretaryship be honorary, and ways and means of improving the finances be proposed. Election of office bearers:—Mr. J. Stirling, president; Ewing and Steel, joint hon. secretaries; J. Hamilton, T. Hamilton, J. Currie, and A. Rowe, members of committee. A programme of song was then gone through, and the meeting closed. Each member pledged to do his utmost to make the club a success under a more up-to-date regime than has previously obtained. Mr. Steel notified his intention of granting a trophy for best Border bred by a novice member.—Ewing and Steel, Hon. Secretaries.

PUDSEY, STANNINGLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual distribution of prizes, held Roundabout Inn, Feb. 4th, before a large number of members and friends, Mr. Kinder presiding. Secretary read report of past show season. Mr. Richmond wins the society's cup and medal with 128 points; Mr. Marsh second with 88 pts.; Butler Bros. third, 81 pts.; Mr. Pawson 4th, 63 pts. Mr. Richmond also wins sectional specials; firsts for Green and Cinnamon marks, first for most points in Yorkshire and Norwich, also special for best Norwich, 1910 bred. Mr. Jeffrey wins special for best Yorkshire 1910 bred, also consolation prize. Mr. Maltby wins Sandiford's medal. Mr. H. Hill, secretary of the Yorkshire Union, presented the prizes. The rest of the evening was spent in harmony, songs being rendered by Messrs. Noble, Holder, Casson, and Raper; pianist, Mr. Raper. An altogether enjoyable evening was spent.—H. Raistrick, Sec.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD & M.C.

Committee meeting held at headquarters, the "Feathers" Hotel, Gt. Chapel Street, Westminster, Jan. 27. Present: Messrs. J. Dewhurst (in the chair), C. Cooper, T. R. Trower, G. Crabb, J. Frostick, A. Silver, A. C. Askew, C. T. Maxwell, C. R. Tyson, A. Plumbridge, and J. P. Carr. Report of sub-committee was read and accepted, and a vote of thanks accorded the sub-committee. A letter was read from Mr. S. Beaty, and secretaries were instructed to answer same. Mr. Trower read the balance sheet and financial year's report, which was received with great satisfaction by the committee. Mr. Trower read the heading for the petition proposed to be sent to the Home Secretary as drawn up by the hon. solicitor, for which Mr. Trower was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. In view of the recent controversy in the Fancy Press re the Two-Barred Crossbill and the American White Crossbill, Mr. Frostick brought for the inspection of the committee the bird in dispute along with two drawings by two prominent bird artists of the Two-Barred Crossbill, which proved very interesting. As far as the committee could judge Mr. Frostick's bird was identical with the drawings of the Two-Barred Crossbill. Mr. Frostick also brought a fine specimen of the Common Crossbill of N. America, which is like our Crossbill but smaller. Mr. Frostick stated that these were the only two living specimens in England. Mr. Frostick was thanked by the committee for bringing two such rare specimens for the members to see, and it was hoped that others that had rare specimens would do likewise. A revision of the classification was discussed, but as there was no member present who thought an alteration was necessary, the matter was deferred until a later date. The following were elected members of the club:—Miss Bousfield, Bournemouth, Mr. Theodore Martin, Huddersfield (life member), Mr. F. Archer, Huddersfield. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.—Plumbridge and Carr, Hon. Sec.

LUTON C.B.S.

At a meeting held Feb. 7th, we arranged to hold our open show on Nov. 9th, with Mr. C. A. House as judge of Canaries, and Mr. R. J. Howe judge of Mules, British, and Foreign birds. Next meeting, Feb. 27th, to take form of a table show pairs of Canaries matched for breeding. Messrs. Bennett, and Martin are to be the judges. Will Watford and Bedford members please note open show date and the judges?—E. Bloomfield, Hon. Sec.

BARRINGTON AND CHOPPINGTON S.C. & C.B.S.

Meeting held Feb. 11, headquarters, for the election of sec. and officers. Mr. Thos. Griffiths takes over the secretaryship in place of Mr. W. Woollett, who has resigned. The other officers remain as at present, with the exception that Mr. Woollett's name has been added to the committee. Next meeting Feb. 25, when we intend holding a table show of pairs of Norwich for this year, bred birds to be on the table at 6 o'clock.—Thomas Griffiths, No. 5, South Row, Choppington Colliery.

CHESTER C.B.F.A.

Meeting held Nag's Head Cocoa House, Feb. 7th, Mr. J. Bracegirdle presiding over a good attendance. Auditors, Messrs. Parker and Richards, reported having examined the books and accounts for 1910, which were correct. On the proposition of Mr. Cave, seconded by T. Gardner, the accounts were passed. Letter read from R. A. Yerburgh, Esq., M.P., intimating his continuance of the presidency, which met with unanimous approval. Three new members were elected. The arrangements were then made for the pair show on Feb. 15th, Mr. T. Wright judge. Messrs. Parker and Gardner stewards. We look forward to a good show at the Boot Inn.—J. Swindley, Sec.

KILMARNOCK. C.B.S.

Fifth annual general meeting, held Jan. 20th, President J. Oram in the chair. Balance sheet for 1910 was submitted and unanimously agreed to. Following office bearers elected for ensuing year:—President, J. Oram; vice-presidents, W. Watson, W. G. Muir, and G. F. Adamson; treasurer, J. Latta; auditors, G. Blair and A. Watson; committee, J. Noble, J. Johnstone, R. McCaw, J. Jamieson, H. Train, J. Hutchison, W. Strathearn, G. Willison, J. Bonillie, and J. Calderwood. Agreed, to hold annual show same date as last year, 18th Nov. To the numerous fanciers in and around Kilmarnock we extend a hearty invitation to become members to strengthen our hands and assist to keep our society in its present position.—Wm. Guthrie.

HANLEY C.B.S.

Meeting held Albion Hotel, Jan. 20th, when a good number of members were in attendance. Mr. Cook voted to chair. A fair amount of business was discussed. A fair number of members and visitors were present to hear Mr. Cook lecture on "The Lizard Canary and its General Management." He began by saying he believed first in cleanliness in birds, cages, and utensils. In passing he gave us a recipe, viz., turpentine and limewash as a preventative of red mite. He next spoke of dieting the birds carefully as the safest way to maintain good health, medicines being very rarely used. We were taken through the whole management. Breeding, rearing, and moulting were touched upon. A few questions were also asked the lecturer, which he very ably answered. A vote of thanks was then given Mr. Cook for his lecture. We are to have a discussion very shortly on the subject, "Does like produce like?"—G. Lawton, Gen. Sec.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Meeting held Lockhart's Cafe, 4th Feb., Mr. F. Farrar in chair. Decided, to hold a pair show March 4th, Headquarters; 8 classes, including champion and novice Yorksbire, champion and novice Nor., 1 A.O.V. Can., and 1 class for Mule or Hyb. pairs. Several good specials were kindly given, viz., silver medal for best Yorks. (given by Mr. Farrar), 2/- best Nor. (Mr. Hall), 2/- best novice Nor. (a friend), 2/- best novice Yorks and 2/- best Mule or Hyb. pair (given by the society), which should secure for us a humping entry. Fee 3d. per cage, all returned in prize money. Carried, that points gained at June 3rd first feather show count for specials, which, apart from ordinary special list, will include 3 gold medals to be competed for at four members' shows and open show on Oct. 14th, with six highest birds for Yorks., Nor., and Brit., the member gaining most points in each section to be the winner. Mr. Chambers, late hon. sec., was presented by the society with £1 10s. He thanked the members in a well chosen sentence. Mr. Pawson was elected a member. This terminated the business.—W. A. Wilson, Hon. Sec.

STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A.

At meeting held Feb. 6th we had a very successful table show of matched pairs for breeding, Norwich, Yorks, and Mules or Hybrids. Some capital pairs were staged, which should produce something that will gladden the hearts of their owners when the show season comes round again. Mr. J. Rathbone judged to the general satisfaction, and afterwards gave a most interesting and instructive paper on "Breeding, Rearing, and General Management of Cage Birds." A good number of questions were afterwards asked, and were answered in a most able manner. The best thanks of the meeting were given to Mr. Rathbone. Mr. H. George presented a handsome jet cup and stand to the Society for competition, and Mr. W. H. Walton promised to decorate it as desired. Both the latter gentlemen are recruits, and it shows a good fancier spirit when new hands make gifts for the benefit of all members. We afterwards had the pleasure of electing Messrs. Bennison and Bridgwood to membership. At next meeting we intend making arrangements for a young bird show, and decide how cup shall be competed for.—J. Pitchford.

CHESTERFIELD (Combined Socs)

Members of the Chesterfield, Whittington, and Staveley Cage Bird Societies met at the Victoria Inn, Shaw-street, Whittington, to consider a suggestion of combining together to hold a series of nest feather shows during the coming season. The following gentlemen were present: Messrs. T. Kay (chairman), G. Dodd, Weeks, R. Wilson, Bramall, Lancaster, G. Wilson, Gill, Hunt, Naylor, Roe, Barber, Goucher, and Smith. After open discussion Mr. Dodd proposed, and G. Wilson seconded, "That we combine, and hold three first feather shows, one in each district." Carried unanimously. Lots were drawn, and it was decided that Whittington Show be July 1st, Staveley July 22nd, and Chesterfield August 12th. All entries paid in prize money, after last show, sliding scale, each class to stand on its own. Mr. G. Dodd will be secretary of the combination with the assistance of each respective secretary. Mr. Dodd also offered a medal for most points in all three shows. Mr. Hunt promised 2s. 6d. for best Norwich at Whittington; Mr. Smith also promised 2s. 6d. for best Yorks. at the same show. Next meeting to elect judges and draw up classification March 4th, at 7.20, Victoria Inn, Shaw-street, Whittington Moor.—C. H. Naylor.

LANCASTER & DISTRICT C.B.S.

Office bearers for 1911:—Chairman, R. Mason; vice-chairman, C. Cafferty; treasurer, T. Swainson; trustees, G. Winn, W. Gardner, and W. Pennington; committee, W. Fisher, J. Gradwell, T. Mercer, A. Parkinson, J. Hawthornthwaite, H. Jackson, W. Whalley, W. Saul, and T. Fisher; assist. sec., H. Hoyle; hon. auctioneer, J. P. Baines, Esq.; hon. auditors, Messrs. W. Frankland and J. G. Shand.—C. J. Cafferty, hon sec., 45, Primrose Street, Lancaster.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE & DIS. C.B.S

At adjourned annual meeting, held Feb. 4th, there was a large turn-out of members, when after the usual routine business, the balance sheet was read and adopted, same showing a substantial balance. Members are also going to consider at next meeting the idea of a social evening, the object being to try and get the members more together. Elections then took place, the principal being:—Major F. R. Simpson, Esq., J.P., hon. president; J. Hands, Esq., chairman; J. Davison, vice-chairman; J. W. Clark, treasurer; and secretary, G. Havver, with a large working committee. Following fanciers proposed and accepted members:—Messrs. C. Graham, J. Hillary, T. Harrison, T. Ridley, H. Dyer, R. S. Bewick, T. C. Crawhall, R. Havis, France, Crosby, Golden, and W. Butler. We are thus making a very good start this year. Any fancier who would like to join will be given a hearty welcome.—G. Havver, Sec.

NEW CROSS AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held 2nd Feb., headquarters, New Cross Road, when a good attendance was recorded. In addition to the ordinary business a washing competition was arranged for the benefit of novices. A special prize in the form of a silver medal was presented by Mr. G. Barton, and Mr. Geo. Hill was appointed to judge. Mr. Hill opened the competition by washing a Norwich, and showing the members the correct way in which to hold a bird. Everyone took a very keen interest in what Mr. Hill said and did. The result of the washing was astonishing, Mr. Cobden (the winner) handling and washing his bird like an expert. For a new society we are going along exceptionally well, and should be glad if fanciers will help to make the society a great success by forwarding their names to the joint secretaries, Messrs. Barton and Hearn, 8, Warwick Street, Deptford, S.E. Annual subs. 4s., or payable quarterly in advance. We are holding a British bird show, 2nd March, and all who join us now will be eligible to show.—Geo. Barton.

SOUTHERN NORWICH P.C

Annual general meeting held in the Press-room at the Crystal Palace, February 4th. The chair was taken by the president (Mr. E. Baker, of Cowes), and amongst those present were Messrs. G. Crabb, J. Hodder, A. J. Kilby, A. W. Curtis, Geo. Gardner, R. J. Pretty, S. Gill, W. Ellis, W. Collings, H. Schneider, and F. S. Matthes (hon. sec.).

The Secretary announced results of the voting for officers for the year as follows: President, Mr. E. Baker; treasurer, Mr. F. S. Matthes; auditors, Messrs. T. Heath and J. Robson; committee—for London area, Messrs. J. W. Ramsden, J. Hodder, Richardson, Robson, Gardner, Hazell; Provincial, Messrs. Midgley, Collings, Kilby, Ellis, Rippon, Godden. Mr. E. Baker returned thanks for the confidence reposed in him, but said he would much prefer someone else filled the position. Would Mr. Crabb accept it, as he (Mr. Baker) found it difficult to be present at the meetings of the committee. Mr. Crabb declined, pointing out that they had a chairman of committee, who would at any time relieve Mr. Baker. Besides, he thought Mr. Baker was the right man in the right place. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Baker said, that being the case, he would accept the position, but he still thought another could be found better able to attend the meetings.

The Hon. Secretary then made his annual statement of the position of the club. They had, he said, a balance in hand of £13 8s. 7½d. in 1908, but in 1909 they had an adverse balance of £7 17s. 3d. The club, however, was in just as good a position to-day as it was when it had £13 8s. 7½d. cash in hand. In 1908 their assets on account of specials were about £10, but at the end of 1909 they reached to the value of £23 or £24. A little difference had been made in the arranging of the accounts, as Mr. Heath thought the financial year should end on December 31st, instead of at the general meeting. Taken all together, and seeing that he had paid all debts to December 31st, and had a balance of about £3 in hand, he hoped the club would be, financially, in a better position than ever before, if he was able by special prize fund to clear the £7 17s. 3d. There were 118 members on the books, and he had received about 97 payments. The club shows had shown the novices to have come up better. He thanked the members one and all for the kind assistance given him, and he left it to them to say whether they wished him to continue in the position or not. The report was adopted, on the motion of Mr. Ellis, seconded by Mr. Schneider.

The results of the cup competition were announced as follows:—£10 10s. cup, Messrs. Gill and Pethick, with 136 points; Mr. E. Baker being the runner-up with 97 points; £3 3s. cup, Mr. Midgley, with 70 points; £1 1s. cup, Messrs. Gill and Pethick, with 100 points; 15s., Mr. Baker, 67 points; 10s., Mr. Ellis, 65 points; 5s., Mr. Hodder, 57 points. Battersea Show, J. T. H. Roberts, teapot; Mr. J. S. H. Roberts, 2s. 6d.; Mr. P. Brooks, 2s. 6d. special. Hastings, Mr. H. Pennells, teapot; Mr. G. Brooks, 2s. 6d. special. Southend, Mr. Cooper, 5s. for specials L.C.B.A.; Mr. Steed, teapot; Mr. Ferris, 2s. 6d. special; Mr. Lack, 2s. 6d. special. L. and P.O.S., Mr Steed, novice cup for most points during the season, also 2s. 6d. special.

The President spoke in eulogistic terms of the services rendered by Mr. Matthes in the post of secretary, and said they would have to go a very long way to find a better official. Mr. Matthes had done the work well, and, personally, he hoped the committee would re-elect him to the position. There had been a discussion in committee on the previous day as to the duty of the club, under rule 8, to elect the secretary by a vote of the whole of the members, and the committee had decided that the rule made it necessary for such to be done. Some discussion took place upon the point, the prevailing opinion being that such a course would entail many difficulties. Mr. Gardner pointed out that as rule 8 now stood the committee had no power to elect the secretary, but as it was the definite wish of that meeting that the committee should retain the power he suggested that the general meeting, by resolution, should give the committee power to elect a secretary pro tem, until the next general meeting, and in the meantime, by motion duly given notice of, so alter rule 8 as to bring it within the scope of the committee to elect their secretary.

The proceedings, which had been characterised by much unanimity throughout, then terminated, votes of thanks to retiring officers and president being given.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, FLEET STREET, LONDON.

Judge, J. H. Roe. O. OWENS, 43, High Street.

The Manchester and Northern Counties O.S.'s programme for 1911 comprises three table shows, a "sharp practice" debate, a first feather show, a washing demonstration by Mr. A. G. Davis, and papers by Messrs. J. Raynes, W. Broughton, T. Harrison, F. Richards, and W. A. Bladon. The annual show is fixed for Oct. 27 and 28 at the Belle Vue. The Secretary (Mr. H. Boothman, 8, Kettering Road, Levenshulme, Manchester) will be glad to send particulars as to membership to any contemplating joining the society.

The Manchester and Northern Counties O.S. is to be congratulated upon being in a good financial position, the balance sheet for 1910 showing a balance in hand of £12 17s. 1d. This is £3 19s. 11d. better than the amount with which the Society commenced the year. And this has been achieved in spite of the fact that the members' show of January, 1910, and the First Feather show of July, 1910, resulted in combined financial loss to the society of £3 5s. 1d. Credit is due to the secretary, Mr. H. Boothman, and his fellow officials.

Exterminated by RATS "LIVERPOOL" VIRUS
without danger to other animals and without smell from dead bodies. In tins ready prepared with the bait. Virus for Rats, 2/6 and 6/-; for Mice, 1/6. Of all Chemists.

We are informed that Mr. J. Walsh, the Blackburn bird specialist, has been engaged to judge Mules, British and Foreign Birds at Darlington on November 11th.

The Doncaster and Dist. C.B.S. have fixed their open show for November 24 and 25, writes Mr. G. Bescoby, the hon. sec. Will secretaries please note, to avoid clashing?

Messrs. J. Wilcock and J. Walsh have been appointed to judge our sixth annual open show on Nov. 11, writes Mr. R. S. Black, hon. sec. of the Darlington C. and B.B.F.A.

Crystal Palace report gives Mr. Kilby as 4th in the Norwich Unflighted Buff Cock Class; this should have been Holden 4th and Kilby extra 4th.—A. HOLDEN (Gateshead-on-Tyne).

The winner of Miss Williams's Challenge Cup (open to Carmarthenshire) is Mr. R. H. Sampson (Pontardulais), writes Mr. Daniel John, secretary of the Llanelly and Dis. C.B.S.

Kindly note that I have removed from Moss Street, Grimesthorpe, Sheffield, to 148, Earsham Street, Sheffield, where I shall be pleased to meet old and new friends, writes Mr. Webster.

Mr. H. J. Chittenden (Bolton Woods) will judge our pair show, to be held this Saturday, February 18th, birds to be staged at 3 o'clock, writes Mr. J. Lewis, Hon. Sec., Spen Valley C.B.S.

We have fixed our show date for the 23rd and 25th Dec., 1911, and would be glad if other Associations will note, and so avoid clashing.—A. W. Douglas, Secretary and Treasurer of the Elgin C.B.S.

My successor in the position of secretary to the Newcastle C.B.S., is Mr. J. E. Atkinson, 10, Trewhitt road, Heaton, Newcastle-on-Tyne, writes Mr. T. C. Crawhall, late secretary of the society.

We learn that owing to removal, Mr. C. B. Whitelaw, of Blantyre, has sold at a good figure his well-known self-green Plainhead winner to Mr. Strachan, of Glasgow, a promising fancier of the chubby ones.

Mr. F. Hawkes, late secretary of the Liverpool B.B.A., has taken over the secretaryship of the Bootle and District C.B.A., where I hope he will meet with much success, writes Mr. J. Roberts (Liverpool).

Kindly correct a slight error of mine in report of annual meeting; the name of Mr. E. Stead was given as on the committee in place of Mr. H. Goodland.—W. O. Brooke, Hon. Sec. Bournemouth and Dist. C.B.A.

We have received from the Secretary of the Scottish National C.B.S. (Mr. A. W. Watson) a copy of the abstract of accounts to be submitted at the society's annual general meeting on Feb. [illegible] it we gather that the Society is in a flourishing financial position, there being a balance in hand of no less than £73 7s. 6d.

The 1910 balance sheet of the London Cage Bird Association reflects the greatest possible credit upon the Secretary (Mr. W. H. Mugford) and upon his fellow officials and the members generally. The balance in hand is no less than £74 3s. 1½d., and this shows the gratifying increase over the amount brought into the accounts from the previous year of £52 9s. 8d. The total income for the year was £639 8s., and the assets of the Association, apart from the balance in hand, are valued at £30 14s. 4d., with outstanding liabilities of only £3 3s. 11d.

The Crewe and Dis. O.S. have arranged a Members' Show for February 25th, in the Ante Room, Co-op. Hall, and Mr. A. C. Brotherhood has been engaged to judge, writes Mr. J. C. Heaton, the assistant secretary.

We have received an order for books to the value of 1s. 6d., together with cash for same; but the sender appears to have omitted his name and address, upon receipt of which we shall be pleased to execute the order.

Mr. Leonard Priest, of 28, Kyrle Road, Clapham Common, London, S.W., has, we hear, been elected secretary of the Clapham and Dist. C.B.A., with Mr. J. Gooch, of 18, Littleton Street, Earlsfield, as assistant secretary.

Will fanciers please note that I am now hon. sec. of the Southend and Southern Counties O.S., and that all communications for the Society should be addressed to me at 9, East Street, Leigh-on-Sea, writes Mr. Wm. C. Lockwood.

We hear from Mr. W. T. Mattinson, the secretary of the Great Harwood C.B.S., that his society's next annual open show is to be held on Nov. 24 and 25.

OBITUARY.

Mr. E. M. WRIGHT (Wibsey).

On behalf of the members of the Wibsey and District Cage Bird Society, allow me to express our sympathy with the widow and family of our late member, Mr. Ernest M. Wright, who passed away suddenly on February 8th, writes Mr. H. C. Crossley, Sec. of the Wibsey and Dist. C.B.S. He was a well respected and most unassuming fancier, always ready in times of need, to give help, which he always gave with a good heart. All fanciers who knew him will sympathise with his widow and four young children in their sad bereavement.

Fanciers in the Aylesbury District will, writes Mr. J. Stephens (Aylesbury) sympathise with Mr. Inch, of the High Street, in the loss he has sustained by the lamented death of his wife. Mr. Inch took no small part in the formation of the Aylesbury and District F.A., being one of the secretaries the first year. He is well known in the district as a keen fancier and sportsman. The interment took place at Aylesbury Cemetery.

Cage Bird fanciers in the Warrington District and the Fancy in general will be grieved to hear of the sad loss that has befallen Mr. E. Houghton, one of the oldest members of the Warrington C.B.S., through the death of his wife, on Feb. 10, writes Mr. J. D. Leigh (Warrington). During Mr. Houghton's long connection with the Fancy she was his main help in attending to the wants of his favourites, and it is sad to think that whilst his birds were gaining honours at the Crystal Palace, she, who took such an interest in them was passing away. She leaves behind a husband and six young children. I am sure all will join me in sympathy with them in their sad loss.

The Newcastle-on-Tyne C.B.S. are, writes Mr. J. E. Atkinson, the newly-appointed secretary, holding their annual social, whist drive and dance on March 9 at the Northumberland Hall, High Friar Street. Tickets are 1s. 6d. each, and it is hoped there will be a record attendance.

In my last letter which you published last week, writes Mr. J. Bunn, Sec. Nottingham Permanent O.S., I stated that Mr. W. Burrow was the judge appointed for the Canary classes in our show of February 11th. These classes were judged by Mr. L. Burrows (of Egypt Road, Basford).

The winners of the Victorian Canary Club specials at the Palace show were:—Best Norwich, Mr. J. E. Davies; do. Crest, Mr. G. C. Ley; do. Crest-bred, Mr. J. Franz; do. Cinnamon, Mrs. W. Dormer; do. Lizard, Mr. J. Rukin; do. Yorkshire, Messrs. Ogden Bros.—J. W. Ramsden, Show Manager.

The judges appointed for the Aberdeen Show on Dec. 15th and 16th, are:—Mr. James Sandison (Aberdeen) for Norwich; Mr. Allen Chalmers (Kirkintilloch), for Crests, Cinnamons, and all other varieties, and Mr. Alex. Cochrane (Edinburgh) for Hybrids, British and Foreign birds, writes Mr. J. Bryson, the secretary.

My best thanks are due to you for including my Toucan in the birds selected for illustration in CAGE BIRDS Crystal Palace Number; also to Mr. H. Goodchild for the very life-like portrait he gives of him, and of all the other birds. Fanciers have much to be grateful for in the way you cater for them.—S. Watson (Preston).

I must thank you for the valuable help your paper, CAGE BIRDS, gives me. It is brimful of information, and it is a paper that is good for the practical fancier as well as for the novice. Allow me to congratulate you upon the plate in the Crystal Palace number of CAGE BIRDS, with its grand report. It is fine.—T. W. HEMSLEY (Mexborough).

Respecting the Palace winning Necklace Tanager, your reporter says the bird was showing signs of a heavy show season. This is not so, for the bird has not had a heavy show season, and when despatched to the Palace show was in the best of feather and condition, as he was when received back, and he could not have been otherwise when judged, or Mr. Finn would not have awarded him premier honours. I may just mention that the first and second Palace Tanagers have previously met in competition this season, when they were placed in the same positions at Nottingham, by Mr. J. F. Dewar.—PITCHFORD & STOCKER (Stoke-on-Trent).

Your latest plate ("Gems of the Finch Family") given away with the splendid Crystal Palace number of CAGE BIRDS, is a beauty, and I have had it framed.—Wm. C. Lockwood (Leigh-on-Sea).

Allow me to give you and your valuable artist, Mr. Goodchild, my best thanks for the grand Crystal Palace issue and the accompanying coloured plate. They are really grand.—A. W. BACON (Redhill).

The Goldfinch-Greenfinch Hybrid pourtrayed in our last issue, the well-known winner belonging to Mr. R. Jamieson, junr., of Linlithgow, was 1st at the City of Glasgow, 1st at Lochgelly, and 2nd at the Scottish National shows, and has won many other prizes.

The coloured plate of Mr. H. Goodchild's ("Gems of the Finch Family") given away with the grand Crystal Palace number of CAGE BIRDS, is a marvel; and the accompanying article by Mr. C. Prior is indeed excellent. I have learned at least one fine tip from it.—A. H. C. LEGG (Porth).

Through unforeseen circumstances have given up the office of secretary to the Barrington and Choppington Social Club C.B.S., and am compelled to reduce my stock of Norwich and Cinnamon. Mr. Griffiths, of 3rd Row, Choppington, is my successor in the office. All further communications must be sent to him.—W. Woollett (Barrington).

The Crystal Palace number of CAGE BIRDS, with its capital report of the show, is excellent. Thanks to Mr. Goodchild for his delineations of "Foreign Notabilities," and lovely colouring of "Gems of the Finch Family." The information concerning same by Messrs. Prior and Page is just the thing to please "birdymen."—Alfred Jackson (St. Helens).

I have removed from Cerrig-y-Druidion, near Corwen, to 47, Victoria-road, Wrexham, writes Mr. J. Salisbury, having been promoted to the rank of Inspector of the "A" Division Police.

Your reporter at the Palace show states that the first four Yorkshires in the Limit class came from the county of Broad Acres; the second prize bird, however, came from "Canny Cumberland," writes Mr. J. Stewart (Whitehaven), being staged by me.

A STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT NEXT WEEK.

YOU MUST NOT MISS THIS Place your Order for our Next Issue at once and be on the safe side.

I have resigned the secretaryship of the Hamilton (Cadzow Oak) O.S. after three years' experience in the position, writes Mr. A. Cant. It is with great reluctance that I do so, more especially as the Society is in a sound position to-day. But business reasons compel me to take this step. The Society has found a worthy successor in Mr. George Marlin, and I hope fanciers will rally round and give him the same hearty support they accorded me. Although no longer secretary, I still remain a member.

Will fanciers and secretaries please note that I have been elected secretary of the City of Birmingham C.B.S., so that all communications regarding this society should be addressed to me at 87, Greenway Street, Small Heath, Birmingham, writes Mr. S. Mole. Mr. J. H. de Maillet resigned the secretaryship owing to business pressure, but will act as assistant. We are having a two-day show to be held at head-quarters, Crown Hotel, Station Street, on October 18 and 19, when we hope to have a good classification.

The Norwich Plainhead Club.

All Societies desiring the cup patronage of the Norwich Plainhead Club must send in applications to me at once with the judge's name (if judge appointed) and date of show.—JNO. HOPKINS, Hon. Sec.

"Our Free Trip" Winner.

The winner of our "free trip to the Palace Show," Mr. Jeacock, of Coventry, came up to London on the Saturday with a party of brother fanciers from the City of the Three Spires. In the course of conversation, Mr. Jeacock told us how delighted he was to learn of his success, which he did while out early on the Friday morning, before he had seen his own CAGE BIRDS, a townsman meeting him, fetching him a smack on the back and saying "You lucky man!" Mr. Jeacock said that but for his good fortune he should not have been able to visit the show, but in company with Mr. Tom Gilbert, and Mr. George Lawrence, two other good fanciers of Coventry, he was staying until the Monday to see the King and Queen en route for the State Opening of Parliament. He considered the exhibition a magnificent one, and had thoroughly enjoyed the trip. A pleasant incident was the presenting of a handsome silver medal to Mr. Jeacock by Mr. Ramsden (the show manager), on behalf of the London and Provincial O.S., to commemorate the occasion. The recipient was surprised at, and delighted with, this unexpected gift. Mr. Jeacock is an old bird-lover and breeder, taking up the hobby in the early eighties.

How to Make a Practical Breeding Cage.

By H. NORMAN.

Our Artist-in-Chief describes and illustrates simple methods of making and fitting up single and double breeders.

The front rail should now be fixed in position, the front of the sand tray being with it to give the correct height. The perches should be cut a full half-inch in width and twelve inches in length. The edges can be rounded somewhat with a plane or coarse file. Now file the head off a brad and fix it in one end of the perch, allowing about half of it to go into the wood; the other half will go into a hole at the back of the cage, Fig. 6.

It will be noticed that the perch is cut longer than the width of the cage; consequently, when it is in position it juts out beyond the wire front. It will keep rigid because it fits tightly between the wires. The object of this extra length is that it can be easily taken hold of to remove, and a clean one put in its place.

All we have to do now is to paint or enamel our cage, fit in the wire front, and we have finished our single breeder, Fig. 7.

Now, although the cage we have described is a most useful one, and many breeders use no other, still, there may be among our readers some who prefer, for obvious reasons, a double-breeder. One or two of these in a bird room are certainly very handy. They can be used singly, for, say, an exceptionally good pair, or where a cock bird is running with two hens; and later on as a flight for young ones. A very handy size is that which requires two sixteen-by-twelve wire fronts; this would measure, over all, thirty-six inches. In the actual making of this, there is very little difference between it and the single cage.

Two lengths of wood must be cut off for the top and bottom. Let these be three feet in length. The two side pieces will be the same as for the other cage, that is, fifteen and a half; the back, thirty-four and three-quarters.

Having cut the wood, and cleaned and rubbed it with sand-paper, take the two pieces intended for the back, and glue together as described previously. When it is thoroughly dry proceed to nail the box together. It will be noticed that the top and bottom boards are a shade longer than is actually necessary, but these should be allowed to jut over the sides, as it looks neat and smart, and also adds to the strength of the cage by giving a greater bulk of wood to hold the nails.

As this cage is intended to be a double one, we shall require a sliding partition in the centre. So turn the box upside down and get the exact centre by measurement from side to side. Take the square, and mark a line across the inside of the top. We now require two strips of wood half an inch square and long enough to go from back to front, as shown in Fig. 8. Nail one of these on first and then take an odd piece of wood the same thickness as the intended partition; hold it against the nailed piece, and mark where the other strip is to be placed. Do not mark too closely, or the partition will not run smoothly. Having fixed that, we proceed to cut a piece of wood for the partition to run on at the bottom; this must be of the same height as the front rail, and can be nailed in position from the bottom, back and front; and it will add greatly to the strength of the whole. The front rail can be cut as previously described, excepting that it will require a slot for the egg-pan at both ends; which will give one for each partition. In this cage we shall require two sand drawers, but if the fancier decides to dispense with these, one rail will be sufficient.

Having fixed these, we must cut our partitions. This can be a plain piece of wood, or it can have a wired opening, as shown in Fig. 9. This cutter is much to be preferred, as it will be found of great service during the breeding season. Be careful to cut the partition so that it slides easily without noise and fuss. Everything about breeding cages should work smoothly and quietly.

I make no mention of guides to be fixed each side of the bottom rail for the partition to run on, for the reason that I do not use them myself, as I find they get clogged with dirt, and harbour insects. The top guides I find quite sufficient; and when the partition is pushed home it fixes between two pieces of wire, which prevent it moving. To make this, bore a hole in the rail about an inch from the back, and insert a piece of short wire, and bend it up at right angles (see Fig. 8L).

Some idea of what the double-breeder will be like when finished is shown in Fig. 10.

If the fancier carefully follows out the above directions, he should have no difficulty in making serviceable cages. What he must be careful about is to make everything perfectly square, so that his cage shall stand firm and true. Be liberal in the use of the square: "try" everything before fixing, and if not true, work at it until it is. Remember the old saying, "If a thing's worth doing at all, it's worth doing well."

Hybrid Breeding: Its Pleasures and Difficulties.

By E. COLLINS (Barnstaple).

Colour plays an important part—shall I say the most important part?—in the exhibition world to-day, and it is useless in these days of keen competition to place a specimen on the show bench that is weak in this respect. I sometimes think there is too much sacrificed to colour by many of our judges to-day, not only in the judging of Mules and Hybrids, but also in regard to certain varieties of the Canary where colour is an important factor, and even among British birds. That judicious colour-feeding improves some of our Britishers I will not deny, but in the mad rush for colour some are fed out of all recognition, as if colour were the beginning and end of the show-bird. Perhaps some of my readers will say that it is colour which constitutes the beauty of a bird. My answer is, that there is beauty in shape and position—that beauty which the sculptor or carver can give—as well as in colour. I am quite prepared to admit that colour is a highly important matter; but it should not be allowed to outweigh all other qualities.

There are many who are not in a position to pay regular visits to the bird shops, or to catch or rear their Britishers. In this case, it is advisable to place yourself in the hands of some well-known and reliable dealer, explaining to him what you require. Here, again, caution is necessary. Do not be misled by glowing advertisements. Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and Linnets fit to win, or which will moult out into certain winners, are sometimes advertised at two or three shillings each; such specimens are worth just what they are advertised at, possibly even less, and certainly not more. Pay a fair price for a good bird, and always have your bird sent on approval. The average Englishman is somewhat sceptical by nature, and is not unwisely suspicious of these eulogistic advertisements; but the unwary are often trapped, and I strongly advise purchasers to adopt the deposit system of CAGE BIRDS when dealing with strangers.

Pairing and Feeding Finches.

Having secured your birds for the coming season, see that you get them thoroughly steady and accustomed to their new mode of life by the time the breeding season arrives. Provided your Finches are steady and have thoroughly adapted themselves to their changed conditions of living, it is not necessary that they shall be house-moulted before giving them a trial. It is absolutely useless, however, to attempt to breed with a bird which is continually endeavouring to obtain its freedom. Nothing is more annoying and disappointing to the keeper of birds than to have in his aviary or bird-room a bird which dashes wildly about its cage every time one approaches it, and which absolutely refuses to settle down to cage life. Such specimens should be set at liberty again without delay, for they will be of little use for either breeding or exhibition.

It is not advisable to have cocks or hens of the same species within call of each other when Hybrid breeding. Suppose, for instance, you have a Goldfinch-Bullfinch paired together for breeding. Do not have a cock Bullfinch within hearing, or the two Bullfinches will be continually calling to each other, and the Goldfinch will very likely get served badly whenever he approaches the hen Bullfinch. The same rule applies to the other crosses, though in a lesser degree, perhaps, for the Bullfinch is very spiteful and pugnacious. I have tried the experiment but it turned out a dismal failure, and I soon got rid of all my hen Greenfinches and Goldfinches and cock Bullfinches, including one fine exhibition specimen.

When pairing up your birds you will discover that while some pairs settle down on the most friendly terms almost at once, others behave in most unseemly fashion, quarrelling and fighting from morning till night, commencing with a tussle over the early morning meal, and ending with a fierce dispute and much bad language, as to who is to have the choice of roosting quarters. Do not let this worry you, however, for the course of true love never runs smoothly, and in most cases everything comes right in the end. If either becomes too aggressive, part them by putting in the wire slide until you see them feeding between the wires. It will then be safe to leave them together.

I have known cases in which the birds have absolutely refused to come to terms. When this occurs, you will find almost invariably that this condition of affairs is brought about by a previous attachment of either cock or hen to some other bird within sight or hearing. In such cases it would be wise to let the birds have their own way in the matter, and re-arrange the pairs.

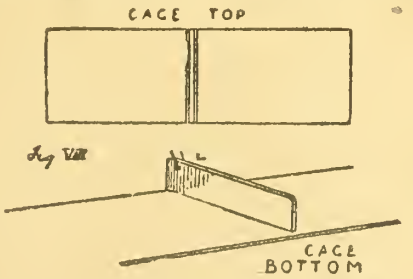

Fig VIII

As a general rule, the birds soon settle down to a quiet and peaceful life, and as the breeding season advances the breeder will begin to build his "castles in the air." Visions of rare and beautiful Hybrids will come before his eyes, as he watches the mating of his birds. And—oh, the joy at the finding of the first egg! But then "there's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip," and it is probable the breeder will see many such eggs before he sees his first Hybrid.

The feeding of your stock is a matter of supreme importance, for it is desirable to get your birds into breeding condition as early as possible. Let me state at once that I consider the moulting season the most important time for getting your birds into condition. Provided you bring your birds well through the moult you will get little trouble through the winter months. During the moult and early part of the winter keep your cocks and hens separate, or your birds will be striking friendships different to what you intended.

While the moult is in progress, give your birds a liberal supply of wild seeds in addition to the ordinary dried seeds. You will be able to get a plentiful supply of groundsel, plantain, shepherd's purse, chickweed, knapweed, charlock, and other ripe seeds at this season of the year. You need not be afraid of giving too much as long as the seeds are fairly ripe. My birds live practically on such seeds during the moult, and I find these seeds of great benefit, as the birds always come through the moult well, and are soon in first-rate condition. It will also effect a saving in your seed bill. In addition, my Bullfinches and Greenfinches get unlimited supplies of blackberries, privet berries, and other fruits as they come in season in the autumn. I also store a large quantity of plantain stalks and heads of knapweed for use during the winter. Not only do these afford a nice change from the ordinary winter diet, but they also give the birds a great deal of pleasure in breaking open the seed vessels in search of the coveted seeds.

When supplying green food, always clear out, every day, from the cages any that is left, for if it is allowed to remain and the birds eat it when it is in a partly decayed state, it is likely to set up inflammation. Also be very careful in the use of green food after the frosts have set in, or you will soon upset your birds. It is best to give sweet apple during the winter.

Throughout the year I give my birds equal parts of Canary, hemp, rape, and teazel seeds, all supplied separately, together with an occasional tit-bit consisting of a mixture of maw, charlock, thistle, dandelion and gold of pleasure seeds. In feeding Bullfinches, sunflower seed is substituted for the hemp. Linseed should be used freely during the moult. All food should be free from dirt and of the finest quality.

As the spring advances, and breeding time draws near, give your birds plenty of freshly-gathered dandelion seeds. You will find these in abundance during the latter part of March, April, and May. You cannot give your birds too many of these if the seeds are gathered in a fairly ripe state. Always clear out the cages before giving a fresh supply. When these seeds become plentiful they are supplied to my Finches at the rate of a hundred dandelion heads per day to each pair, and sometimes in even larger quantities. There is nothing to equal them for bringing the birds into breeding form, and I feel confident my success is in a great measure due to the free use of this and other wild seeds whenever obtainable.

Saving the Eggs.

One of the first difficulties which confront us when the breeding season arrives is the saving of the eggs laid by the Britishers, and the placing of these eggs under Canaries for testing purposes. There is, perhaps, no other part of this hobby which presents so many difficulties to the breeder, excepting, of course, the securing of fertility in the egg itself, which, I am afraid, is a matter over which we have no real control, though we can increase our chances by careful management and good feeding.

Numerous egg-saving devices have been tried by breeders; some successful and some otherwise. Indeed, one needs now to be of an inventive turn of mind, for unless great precautions are taken, all our hopes and ambitions will end in broken eggs. After three years' experience I have come to the conclusion that the best and only safe plan is to keep a strict watch for eggs, and remove them as soon as possible. Many breeders adopt the double nestbox plan. By this arrangement the egg passes through a hole in the bottom of the nest into a second nest-box fixed underneath, where it is safe from the attacks of the Finches. This is an excellent plan where the hen lays her eggs in the nest, but in the majority of cases the eggs are dropped from the perches, and here the nest-box arrangement is plainly of no use. We must, therefore, adopt some plan to prevent the breaking of the eggs so dropped. As I have already mentioned, when explaining the fitting-up of the cages, a good plan is to fill your cage bottoms to a depth of two or three inches of coarse pine sawdust, and arrange all your perches so that the eggs can drop only on the sawdust. Dried grass, moss, or bran may be substituted for the sawdust, but I find the latter the more convenient.

The trouble does not end here, for, as most of my readers are aware, Finches have an unhappy knack of putting their beaks through the egg if it is left within their reach. Thus there is a necessity for keeping a strict watch. The danger is minimised by shutting off the cock, but unfortunately the hen is almost as wicked an offender as her mate in this matter.

The Breeding and General Management of Canaries.

A Paper read by J. Rathbone on Feb. 6, before the Stoke-on-Trent C.B.A.

At the request of your secretary I have come to give you a few of my methods in the breeding and general management of Canaries for exhibition. As this is quite a new experience to me, I hope you will excuse me if I do not come quite up to your expectations. But I will endeavour to the best of my ability to give a few hints to the novice members assembled here as to breeding, rearing and washing the exhibition bird. As now we are close on the breeding season, I take it most of you will be looking your stock over, and others buying new stock for pairing up in hopes of breeding something good, if not a few champions for the forthcoming show season.

A Word of Advice.

I should like here to give a word of advice to the new beginner, and that is, do not go to Jack So-and so for a cock bird, and Tom So-and-so for a hen to pair up with it; but place yourself in a reliable breeder's hands—one who does breed his own winners—and tell him what you want, and what price you are prepared to go to. In doing this you will save yourself a lot of worry in selecting birds that may or may not "hit."

In selecting a pair to breed from, you must have size and colour on the cock's side, and type and quality on the hen's side. Of course, you get quality from both sides, but generally I find that the cock influences size and colour, while the hen governs type and quality. So see to it that you have the above-named properties well fixed up in your hens, as this is most important.

Methods of Feeding.

I will proceed to give you a few of my methods of feeding. I use the best Spanish canary seed for the staple diet, and about twice a week I give a few teaspoonfuls of German rape, which I put in separate pots; now and again I give them the rape scalded. When the weather is cold I also add a little hemp seed. This is my stock diet during the quiet season for the stock birds (which I might say are in the flights). Of course, you will have to feed your exhibition birds much more liberally to stand the strain of travelling to and from and during the shows, giving them a good diet of mixed seeds, and twice a week about a teaspoonful of egg and colour food.

In the month of February I add a few spoonfuls of inga seed for the hens, as I find this prevents egg-binding. The cocks I begin to feed a little more liberally, giving them a little egg food during this month and March, and for the hens I begin to look out for a few nice shoots of dandelion, supplying also just a little egg-food, but only a little, as I do not like my hens too fat when commencing to breed. I find that the dandelion brings my hens on quite early enough.

I generally pair up at the end of March or early on in April, putting a nest-cup in the cage at the same time; they seem to know what it means at the first glance, and settle down much quicker.

When you see the hen taking a survey of the nest cup and the cock feeding her, you will know that all matrimonial matters are settled. I give them then just a little nesting material, till such time as I see the hen has begun to line the nest cup with what she has and is looking about for more. Then I hang up a goodly bunch of builder's cow-hair well pulled to pieces; which I prefer for nesting material, as I think the lime and preparation in this help to keep down red mite. I also give the nest a good dusting with Keating's insect powder when finished, and by giving the cage fronts a wipe over with a duster slightly soaked with paraffin oil at least once a week you will be troubled very little with this pest of bird life.

When the Clutch is Laid.

After the hen has laid her full complement of eggs I take away the cock, and leave the hen by herself to sit; I find that some very vigorous cocks are most troublesome, giving the hen no peace while sitting, pulling and tugging at the nest. It is annoying when a hen has been sitting four or five days to come home from work and find the nest turned "inside out" as one might say, and the eggs cold at the bottom of the nest cup; you are then in a fix as to whether to let her sit the eggs out or not. I find that generally it is much better to take the cock away, as then the hen has to come off the nest to feed herself, which, in my opinion, is much better for either eggs or young, especially if the hen is at all inclined to "sweating."

If the hen does not feed up to my expectations, of course, I place the cock back as soon as possible. But my general rule is to take him away till the young are a fortnight old.

The night before the young are due to hatch I return the egg food, and on the fourth day I give a little green food, also a good pot of hemp seed. If the old birds should tire a bit in feeding I try them with a little soaked seed, which seems to give them a freshening-up, and starts them well off again. Keep a good look-out for young dying in the nest, as they very soon become offensive. When the young are getting well feathered be careful not to disturb them for once you frighten them out of the nest they never take to it again, and then comes your anxious time, for you will have to keep a sharp look-out for "plucking."

To prevent "plucking," I cage the youngsters off in a Yorkshire show-cage hung in front of the breeder; and to prevent the old ones from plucking the breast and tail feathers of the young, I place the perch about one and a half inches down the show-cage at the feeding end, I also place inside a pot of egg-food, and one of crushed hemp-seed, so that I can tell if the young are "plodding" for themselves; and as soon as I find the pots well cleaned out by them and the young looking generally fit, I place them in the flights, and gradually reduce the quantity of egg-food, giving them crushed hemp and Canary seed until they can crack seed, when I take away the egg-food altogether, as I like them to be on hard seed alone for a week or so before moulting. I find that by so doing they take to the colour-food much better, the egg-food coming then as a change to them.

When the young are eight to ten weeks old I commence to colour-feed. I mix my food very light, giving just a slight colour to the egg-food. I start with one teaspoonful of colour-food to one egg and five Osborne biscuits; each week I add another teaspoonful of colour-food until I get to the full strength, which I make up to the following: to one egg and five Osborne biscuits I add three teaspoonfuls of cold pepper and half a teaspoonful of hot; thoroughly mix the colour-feed with the egg and biscuit. I don't mean just simply add the colour-feed to the above and give what you would call a stirring-up; but grind the lot well together. I find that a table-knife shortened to half-length answers the purpose very well, as you can use more pressure in mixing.

When it is well mixed I add two teaspoonfuls of castor sugar, which helps to break it up again. Towards the finish of the moult I reduce the quantity of colour-feed, gradually bringing it back to the starting-point.

During their moult I feed on the best Spanish Canary seed and when they are about half-way through the moult, I give a plentiful supply of linseed in separate pots, as a tonic, and to fasten the colour, I give a few grains of sulphate of iron in the drinking water two or three times a week, also a little boiled carrot.

After the Breeding Season.

When the breeding season is over, which generally is, with me, about the middle of July, I pick out which old birds I wish to put on to colour-feed, and place the others in a flight by themselves.

Now by this time you will begin to pick out your most promising youngsters, and get them accustomed to the show-cage; which is most important if you wish to stand well in the judging. My cages and flights are so constructed that when my birds have done breeding I can draw the small slide in each cage and give the birds free access to the flights; which I find very useful in many ways; it helps to train them to run from cage to cage—by hanging the show cage on front of breeders; also getting the benefits of the flights at the same time. And, again, you can shut the birds off in the breeders while giving the flights a thorough cleaning-out, scrubbing the perches, etc., after which I throw on the bottom a layer of nice, clean, sharp sand, not forgetting a dish of clean water for the bath. How essential this latter is for a clean and quick moult is well known by the "old hands" here; and by giving the birds a free use of the bath you will be able to send out to two or three of the early shows before commencing to hand-wash.

Concerning Hand Washing.

About this I should like to say a word or two before concluding my paper. In the first place, I see to having a nice, clear fire and the room warm; also there must be a large kettleful of boiling water and a plentiful supply of clean, cold water close at hand. In addition to this there are the drying cages, for which I use the ordinary Yorkshire show cage thoroughly washed out and perches spotlessly clean; the bottoms I cover with a piece of clean mill flannel. These things I place in readiness on a stool about a yard from the fire to keep them nice and warm. For drying cloths I use white muslin, this being nice and soft, soaking the water well up. I generally have them about a yard square in size providing myself with two of them, so that I can go on with a dry cloth while the one used is drying; this latter I place over the cages so that it acts for two purposes—keeping the full heat of the fire from the birds and drying the cloths.

I always use three basins—a small one to mix up the soap lather in, and two small wash basins. The small enamel basins you can usually buy at sixpence are a useful size for the rinsing. I prefer Sandiford's "feather beautifier" to any soap, but Lever's glycerine and cucumber I have found to answer very well. If the birds are very dirty I add to the first water a few drops of Scrubb's cloudy ammonia, and always add a teaspoonful of glycerine to the finishing water.

Some fanciers prefer flannels and sponges instead of a brush, but for myself I prefer a good badger hair shaving brush, as you can get well into the neck and under the wings much better with the brush. For round the eyes and nostrils I use a small camel-hair brush cut to about three-eighths of an inch long, this being much handier than the shaving brush.

I do not propose to go into the method of handling a bird during the wash, as this comes natural to you with practice. But let me say this: do not be timid when handling your birds, for they seem to know when you are at all nervous with them. Always remember to have confidence in yourself. Do not be afraid of using the soap lather. Get well into the hollows and sides of the neck, but see to it that you swill it well out again. Be sure, too, to give the bird a good "sousing" with the clean water, as herein lies the secret of a good and clean wash. Be careful to avoid any undue pressure upon any part of the body, especially the neck, as the feathers here are apt to curl with it. If you feel the bird is getting out of your hand, let it go, for if you try to prevent it you will as likely as not break a wing or pull the tail out.

In conclusion, I beg to thank you for the patient hearing you have given me, and at some future time I shall be pleased to put a bird through the wash for the benefit of the novice members, which would be more instructive as to washing.

Problem of the Yorkshire Canary Exhibitor.

Easy of Solution, Yet Puzzling to many.

By. C. A. HOUSE.

Although nearly a couple of decades have passed since the Yorkshire Union of Ornithological Societies drew up its definition of what constitutes a "ticked" bird, the question does not seem to be universally understood, and there are to-day many fanciers who are not only hazy as to what particular markings constitute ticks, but cannot define a "ticked" bird, and do not know one when they see it. So widespread is the ignorance on this most important question that during the past season myself and other judges have had to pass otherwise splendid birds, because of the inability of their owners to differentiate between a "ticked" and a "marked" bird. The Editor of CAGE BIRDS, ever alive to the needs of the Fancy, has noticed this fact, and for the benefit of all those who doubt, and those who do not know, he has asked me to give a few notes on the subject in connection with the very lucid plate which Mr. Norman has so carefully portrayed (vide page 167).

The Yorkshire Union definition of a "ticked" bird, which definition, I may say, is adopted by the Yorkshire Canary Club, the Cinnamon and Marked Yorkshire Canary Clubs, and the Southern Yorkshire Canary Club, reads as follows: "A ticked bird is one with dark or cinnamon feathers on any part of an otherwise clear body; it may also have a mark on one eye, wing, or tail, but not more than one such technical mark, separately, or in addition to any other variegation on its body."

One would think this definition so simple and plain that he who runs may read, could not possibly be misunderstood, but yet it is. In the plate which accompanies these notes Mr. Norman has given us different phases of the "ticked" bird in the following order—an outside thigh tick, a saddle tick, an eye tick, eye and thigh ticks, wing and back ticks, a wing tick, and cheek and tail ticks. These are very plain, and easily distinguishable ticks, or marks.

The first three are single ticks, although one—the eye tick—is a technical mark, the fourth—eye and thigh—gives us a technical mark, and a body tick. Some fanciers seem to think that such markings constitutes an unevenly-marked specimen. Not at all. The Yorkshire Union says distinctly that a bird may have one technical mark in addition to any other variegation. The next illustration—wing and back—comes under the same category as the eye and thigh. The next which Mr. Norman has given us is a bird which is marked on one technical point only—the wing, and yet, although technically marked, this bird is a ticked bird, because the marking does not extend to any other technical point.

The last illustration we have is that of a bird with a technical mark and two body ticks, the ticks being on the cheek and head, and the technical mark on the tail. This last illustration carries the matter further than do the other illustrations given, and is one which gives rise to much misunderstanding. I will mention a few cases which have caused confusion amongst the novitiate. My first example is that of a bird marked on one eye, or wing, and ticked in two or more places on the body. Such a bird is a ticked bird within the meaning of the law, yet many argue that it cannot be, because it carries more than one body tick. They are wrong, because the Yorkshire Union definition clearly states that "a ticked bird may have one mark on a technical point, but not more than one such technical mark, separately, or in addition to any other variegation on its body."

Taking an opposite illustration of a bird marked on both eyes or wings, and carrying only one body tick or mark, such a bird is unevenly-marked, because it has two technical marks in addition to the one tick. This is the point so many seem unable to grasp. They cannot understand why a bird marked on one wing, one eye, or one side of the tail, should be ticked, and yet if it carries two of either of these markings it becomes unevenly-marked. Such, however, is the law.

Quite recently a discussion arose on this "ticked" question at a show at which it had been my duty to mark several birds "wrong class," owing to the owners not having correctly read the definition of "ticked" and "unevenly-marked," as given by the Yorkshire Union, and the other clubs mentioned above. During the discussion one fancier said to me, "What would you do, Mr. House, with a bird marked on one eye, ticked on the head and neck, splashed on the breast, and marked on the saddle?" I replied, such a bird would be a "ticked" bird, and should be entered in the "ticked" class; but I doubted if my heckler, or any other fancier, had ever seen such a bird, and I further said that, in my opinion, it would be impossible for such a bird to be produced, as, owing to the large amount of variegation about its body, it would be so full of green blood that all the parts mentioned by my interrogator could not be marked without two or more technical points also being marked.

In conclusion, I would direct my readers to the fact that, whilst a bird has only one technical mark, no matter how many body ticks it may have, it is a "ticked" bird; but immediately the marking spreads to a second technical point in addition to the body ticks, then the bird becomes unevenly-marked. There exists one strange paradox in relation to unevenly-marked birds. A two-pointed bird, that is, one marked either on both eyes, wings, or both sides of the tail, is, according to the Yorkshire Union law, an unevenly-marked bird. The reason why? Because such a bird would stand no chance in a class for evenly-marked birds, and therefore to avoid shutting out such birds from competition, the Yorkshire Union council some years ago decreed that they should be classed with the unevenly-marked. After careful study of Mr. Norman's plate, and these explanatory notes, it should not be difficult for the new hands to be able to decide what is, and what is not, a "ticked" bird.

Wild Bird-Life.

Notes on Starlings.

To the general observer of Wild Bird Life, Blackbirds and Thrushes appear to be the most numerous of our larger insect-eating birds, and so it may appear to those who confine their observations to gardens and the suburbs of large towns. But get away into the country across the fields and meadow lands, and there the flocks of Starlings to be seen on every side will cause one to think that these birds are much more numerous than is supposed. Plentiful as these handsome birds are during the summer months, they are much more so in the winter, when thousands from across the seas join our resident birds and jostle them for right of place, and the lion's share of food. As a rule, these migrants confine themselves to the lands bordering the sea coast, and the wild waste of marshes by tidal rivers and estuaries running in from the sea. Unless one has seen them, they can hardly imagine the huge flock that frequent these wastes. In open weather the soft, yielding grass-land supplies thousands of birds with insect food of all kinds, and in winter there is no more interesting spot for the naturalist to visit. The Plovers in large flocks are on the same quest as the Starlings, so are the Rooks, Jackdaws, Larks, and many shore and inland species. The Starling is a most voracious feeder, and is generally plump and in good condition; he is almost the last to feel the pinch in a time of stress. Although his main diet is insects, worms and grubs, he is a most general feeder, and does not disdain to take a meal of scraps, food from the poultry runs and cow sheds, and although the writer has seen it stated the Starling is not a grain eater, he has seen birds opened whose crops were crammed with wheat. But fortunately this is only at one particular season of the year, just when the young corn is beginning to sprout. In the autumn the Starling is a terror to the fruit grower, and where the fruit is unprotected will do no end of damage. Just now we are mostly interested in his effort to prove to us that he should be considered a musician of some note. For the last half-hour one has been sitting on the chimney stack in the bright sunlight, puffing out his feathers, and bubbling and gurgling in the most approved Starling manner. The sounds he emits at present are something between a toy steam whistle and a squeeky wheelbarrow, but he will improve immensely with practice, and presently his clear whistle will be quite musical.

The Nightingale at Home and in Captivity.

Most of our readers, however, will probably not have time to catch their own 'Gales, and all such I would most earnestly advise never to buy a fresh-caught bird except from an expert. I know a fancier who bought one of the unhappy birds one sees advertised every spring. It was sent down to him in a cigar-box, reeking of tobacco, with half a hard-boiled egg, and, as I need hardly say, it was dead—yes, dead as New Zealand mutton! I do not blame any man for trying to earn a few shillings by catching Nightingales, but, if we buy them, it is you and I, reader, who are to blame—we who are guilty of cruelty.

A Nightingale Cage.

I am a great believer in a large cage. I do my own carpentering, both as to aviaries and cages, and the cage illustrated in our photo I have found very useful. It is 3ft. long, 18ins. high, and 14ins. deep. The top is only canvas. The perches are forked twigs, and as far apart as possible (I think one might almost say it is impossible for a Nightingale to keep in health long unless it can use its wings). The use of spring perches gives the bird much more exercise. The framework is covered with narrow fillets of virgin cork. By using wire netting of small mesh (three eighths of an inch) one can keep out mice. There are two doors, each closed by a spring, the lower one only being used for feeding, because so many valuable birds are lost by slipping out of a large door. The trays are of zinc.

I will not venture to do more than make a few general suggestions with regard to foods. On this subject we are all of us just learners, and must find out by experiment what suits our own birds—and our own pockets—best. Speaking generally, I think the majority of softbills are far too liberally fed. The Nightingale in a state of liberty takes a huge amount of exercise and eats a huge amount of food. If we reduce the exercise to the vanishing point we must also reduce the bill of fare, or the result will inevitably be indigestion and fatty degeneration.

Feeding.

I am glad to say that the old regime of meat and egg is rapidly passing into disuse. This method of feeding is really a survival of the early days of aviculture. For instance, we as a matter of course find it recommended in the old book which we have already quoted from, but, from the author's own admissions, we can gauge the amount of success attained by these methods. For instance, he tells us, "I have seen very many that have been killed with some of the loose flesh or sinew hanging about the tongue or throat." Also we find the following advice: "As soon as taken, pull or cut off the feathers from the vent, otherwise they will be subject to clog and bake up the vent which is present" (immediate) "death." Now if his birds were so badly scoured as to require this treatment, the feeding must have been very wrong. Lastly he tells us: "Give them no duck eggs, for I had six Nightingales killed one night with a duck-egg." We shall have no difficulty in guessing that it was not a duck-egg, but a stale duck-egg which killed his birds.

They knew one thing in those days, however, which has since been to some extent forgotten: "to give them now and then a mealworm makes them familiar, but too many spoils them." Now, if this was known in the year 1711, I surely need not repeat it in the year 1911.

The stock-food of those days, we are told, was made of horse-beans and almonds ground fine, unsalted butter, yolks of eggs, saffron and honey, beaten up together and baked, and we have the curious piece of information that "this brave strengthening cleansing diet is the only meat used in Italy by all the country people for the preserving of Nightingails and is made by the Apothecaries and sold by the Penny-worth." I fear the modern Italian does not take so much trouble about his birds, for the owner of a very prosperous looking 'Gale which I once saw in that country told me he fed it on olives and crumbled stale bread.

Well, now, with all the experience of the past before us, how shall we feed a Nightingale to-day?

In the first place, let us agree to banish, once and for all, meat, eggs, and mealworms: I am prepared to guarantee that anyone who will do this, and will use natural perches (twigs of varying thickness), will never have any sore feet in his bird-room. For the larger Softbills I use as a stock food sponge-cake. Let us also agree that every insectivorous bird should have some sort of live insect food always before it. The only practicable one is gentles, which I use all the year round in quantities. They can be bought, and are only half the price of mealworms.

There is only one other point to be considered, and that is that in the crops of insectivorous birds a mucus is formed, which (amongst other uses) serves to bind together the indigestible portions of the insects consumed. If we can supply a few cockroaches daily we need not trouble about this; but, if not, we must absorb the mucus in some way. This is the real value of dried "ants' eggs," but please notice that they should be given dry. Those who recommend soaking them cannot have thought the matter out, because preserved "ants' eggs" are of no value as food, and, if soaked, they are useless for the purpose for which we really want them.

They are not, however, indispensable: the husk of spray-millet (after the seeds have been picked out), broken into small pieces, will do quite as well, or perhaps better.

Management.

Now we come to our first real difficulty, namely, how to make our Nightingale take exercise: if he sits motionless all day, we shall never do much with him. You will be surprised what an improvement in a bird's health will follow his removal from a small box-cage to a large airy cage (as illustrated), where he has to fly from perch to perch. Try also spring perches, and try moving into another room. Those who have a heated aviary have no difficulty in finding a change of quarters, but a cold aviary is altogether too risky. Let us agree as to the general principle that, if we want to keep a bird's body in good order, we must find some occupation for his mind.

We now come to our last—and greatest—difficulty, how to induce our Nightingale to sing; in this respect I fear we are little better off than the 17th century aviculturist. There is, however, just one modern invention which may perhaps be of use to us—the gramophone! A German firm has recently brought out some records of the Nightingale's song, and a correspondent of the well-known bird paper, "Die Gefiederte Welt," wrote recently that he had tried them for training young Rollers, and that they were a success. I have not tried them myself, but the idea seems a sound one.

Although we all know the Nightingale which sings too little, few of us have been troubled with one which sings too much. This, however, was the experience of Col. G. A. Momber, whose amusing narrative I quote from the "Avicultural Magazine":—"My last Nightingale recently hopped his last twig, but for long he so ruled me, one summer I took him with me on my travels. Although he had sung discreetly at home from January to mid-May, we had no sooner reached Aix than he allowed himself to be swept into enthusiastic rivalry with a wild Nightingale in the hotel garden. The two trilled at each other day and night without stopping until Phil drooped wings and eyelids with fatigue. I drooped too. But, though outclassed, he refused to be outsung. One tio, tio, tio, tix from the garden revived him to torrents of melody. The hotel visitors also grew heavy with watching, and complained of the loud songs before sunrise, though they knew not the cause. I tried quartering him at night in bath rooms and uninhabited places. I tried smothering his cage with rugs and whacking it with a stick. At length I grew desperate, and, taking him from his cage, I tied him up in a handkerchief." After this I can almost accept the statement of the author of my bird-book that "they strive among themselves in fervent contention, the vanquished not seldom ending her life with her song, through grief or over straining."

The Nightingale in an aviary is a delightful pet, most docile and full of quaint humour (a pair I once had used to amuse themselves for hours at a time playing hide and seek), but seldom sings freely. There are exceptions, however, to this rule also; some years since I saw an account of two Nightingales which sang at Christmas, with snow on the ground, in a wired-in garden. I must admit I was a little inclined to doubt this account, but a reader of "Cage Birds" who gave me a look up last summer told me that he had himself seen these birds and could vouch for the truth of the story.

My best wish for you, reader, is that, in 1911, your birds may all turn out as brilliant performers as those mentioned above, and that you may have no wasters!

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

Useful Fountain Holder.

Sent by A. Bailey, 14, West Street, Hucknall, Notts.

Enclosed is what will be called a useful fountain holder, especially by those who pack a lot of cages up, as one need not keep bending them up, which is liable to break them off. First get a piece of ordinary cage wire about seven inches long, and bend as shown at B. Then get two pieces an inch long, and make into small staples as shown at A. To complete, drive the staples into wood to hold B in its position, which acts as hinges.—A. Bailey.

No. 485.

A Mouse-proof Seed Box.

Sent by F. Golding, Cheltham Road, Soundwell, Staplehill, Bristol.

I send you a sketch of my mouse-proof seed-box for aviary. It is the shape of a flower pot made of tin. A post runs through the hole.

The seed box is on top and a board runs along bottom for it to stand on. The same will do in the garden for cats, only use an old bucket instead.—F. Golding.

Preparing for the Breeding Season.

A Lecture by Mr. LOCKTON before the Grantham C.B.S. on February 6th.

I have been asked to give you to-night a few words on the preparation of birds for breeding for the benefit of the new and younger members of the society. First of all, I expect you have selected your breeding stock by now. If not, do so at once, and if you intend purchasing fresh stock, don't delay in getting what you require, as by so doing you get them well used to your system of feeding before the time arrives for pairing-up. Turn all your hens into the flights and let them have all the exercise possible; by so doing you enable them to stand the strain of breeding much better. Hens that have been kept in small cages with little exercise are apt to become too fat and lazy, and you know what that means—generally bad sitters and feeders, and consequently a season of disappointments.

One of the greatest points to remember is not to be over anxious. Don't be in too great a hurry to put your birds together. There is no hard and fast rule to go by, but you must be guided by the weather and the condition your birds are in. It is a great mistake to force your birds into condition too quickly; sooner let them come on naturally, even if you think you are a little behindhand, and I am sure you will not regret it. Then, again, if you have a hen or two very keen, and your cocks are not quite ready, don't try to keep them back. Let them go to nest, even if you sacrifice empty eggs, as by so doing you are keeping your hens right; whereas, if you kept them back you would most likely upset them for the whole season.

I also advise you to examine the claws of all your birds before putting the pairs together; and cut those that require it, because if you let your hens sit with long claws, it often happens that they pierce through the eggs, thus spoiling otherwise good ones. It is all these little things that count so much in breeding.

A Time Table.

Some fanciers have a certain fixed date, and they put all their pairs together then, whether they are ready or not. Now, I think this is a great mistake. It is far better to put each pair up as they come in condition; and I am sure you will save a lot of trouble and disappointment. Don't start with any more birds than you can comfortably attend to, because as time goes on the attention required keeps increasing, and if your time is limited, you are apt to skip over them too quickly, and thereby miss giving them all a thorough examination each day.

Cages Considered.

I think a word or two on cages won't be out of the way. Now, everyone has his own ideas as to cages, regarding size etc. I will give you what I think to be the best and most useful. I have found the single breeder to be the most satisfactory, say, 24 inches long, 16 inches high, and 11 inches wide, with an earthenware nest-pan fixed in between, and a trifle higher than the perches. If you can arrange to have all your cages of one uniform size and colour, so much the better, as nothing looks nicer. In fact, I think if you take a customer into your bird-room, and a nice stack of cages catches the eye, it goes a long way towards selling your birds.

Feeding Matters.

As a staple food there is nothing to beat the best Spanish Canary seed, with a little German rape seed added. Also give a few hemp seeds now and again, especially if the weather is cold and damp. Always buy the best quality seeds; they will be found to be the cheapest in the long run.

Various opinions exist regarding egg-food. Some prefer to use stale bread with a little brown sugar added. Others pin their faith to Osborne biscuits. Both are very good. But whichever you commence with, keep to the one way. A little maw-seed added is also beneficial.

For green-food during spring and summer, nothing beats the young leaves of dandelion or watercress given fresh and dry—not too much at once, but "little and often" applies to both green-food and egg-food, especially when you have young ones in nest, as it often induces the hens to come off and feed, and so obviates sweating.

It is the best plan to discontinue egg-food as soon as your hens commence to sit. By so doing they do not want to nest again quite so quickly, and it gives the young ones a better chance to get out of the nest, and look after themselves.

The Egg-binding Trouble.

Now this is the most serious complaint a fancier has to contend with. Many valuable hens are lost yearly through egg-binding alone. A hen may appear to be in excellent health and condition one day, and the next she may be found all in a heap in the corner of the cage. There are several ways of treating egg-binding, but the one I think the best is to get a jug of hot water ready with a piece of thin muslin stretched over the top. Then catch your hen very carefully, and drop one drop of olive or castor oil into the vent, and hold her over the steaming water for a few minutes. Don't hurry things; and be very careful not to break the egg in her inside by careless handling. If the egg does not pass in a little time, you must repeat the operation in an hour.

I have explained what to do in cases of egg-binding. Now I will tell you how to prevent it. Many old breeders recommend a liberal supply of niger seed; but I found something better, and since using it myself I have never had a hen so troubled.

For a month or five weeks before pairing, I give mixed in the egg-food cod liver oil, about 5 drops for each bird is sufficient. You will find it a splendid "conditioner," and it supplies the oil to the system that is essential to the easy passing of eggs.

Taking Cocks Away.

You must here again be guided by your own judgment. If you have a young, vigorous cock bird, it is the best thing to take him away about the fourth day, and return him again when the youngsters are about three days old. Some hens won't sit without a cock is with them, and others won't settle down when the cock is left with them; so you must carefully study each pair, and act accordingly.

There are lots of other items connected with the breeding operations, which might be given with better advantage at a later date. I have just given you a brief outline for the time being, but if there is anything you do not understand, or I have not spoken concerning which you would like to know, just put the question, and I will answer it to the best of my ability. I thank you all for the kindness you have shown me in listening to me, and if it has been the means of furthering the interests of the society, I shall be amply repaid. I hope this is only a forerunner of many pleasant evenings together. I should like to suggest that someone else be asked to give a paper at the next meeting. Such gatherings as these help to stimulate the Fancy, and by hearing different opinions you can pick out the tit-bits and add them to your own system with great advantage. Before I close, I would like to wish you all a successful breeding season, both in quality and numbers. I think it is the ambition of all to have an open show, and I see no reason if we all work together like we did the last twelve months why we should not attempt one before long.

Astounding Robberies of Birds at Ayr.

Thief Breaks Open Several Aviaries.

I am very sorry to have to report (writes our local correspondent) a most despicable burglary on a working man's aviary, which took place in Ayr, early on Sunday morning, February 12th. Mr. Alex. McCord, a year or two ago took to keeping a few British birds as a hobby, and lately erected by his own hands a neat little aviary bordering on his bedroom window —a fact which he naturally thought would protect him against prowlers and thieves. But no, as he found to his cost on visiting his aviary on Sunday morning. Last year he was successful in breeding and rearing three Goldfinch-Greenfinch Hybrids, of which he kept two. These two birds, their parent (a foreign Goldie of very good quality), three British Goldfinches, and a variety of other Britishers (18 in all) were quite secure when he arrived home from work at 1 o'clock on Sunday morning, but on going out to feed them on daylight appearing, he was shocked to discover that the locks of the doors had been forcibly opened, and all but one hen Greenfinch and a hen Bullfinch had been stolen. Very hard lines on a working man, this. It is a very great pity that this unmitigated scoundrel should go so long undetected, for it is only three or four weeks ago since Mr. McQuiston had a similar experience, but the thief was apparently disturbed, as the total loss on that occasion amounted to three Twites, and fortunately none of very great value. The genial secretary of the Ayr and District C.B. Society (Mr. C. C. Irvine) has not been so fortunate, as on two occasions this winter, his aviaries have been broken into, and some valuable birds stolen. This prowling cur has a hot half-hour awaiting him should he be caught in the act.

A specially useful article to fanciers will be found in the February issue of the "Avicultural Magazine," by Mr. W. E. Teschemaker, B.A., on "Practical Bird-keeping." It is the writer's second instalment in the series, and deals with the British Warblers. Other features in the issue include articles on "The Breeding of the Crossbill," by Mr. J. Lewis Bonhote, M.A., and Mr. A. Silver (whose notes are written round a magnificent coloured plate of the species), "The Nesting of Spotted-backed Weavers," by Mr. G. E. Rattigan, and "The Common Quail," by Mr. D. Seth Smith, F.Z.S., etc.

A RECORD RUSH OF ORDERS

IS BEING EXPERIENCED FOR

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL FOR 1911.

The most marvellous Handbook ever issued to the Bird World for the popular price of SIXPENCE.

REMEMBER: Last year the whole large edition was sold clean out in less than a month. Many would-be readers suffered disappointment. The 1911 Annual is also selling like hot cakes. It cannot be reprinted. Be wise: order at once.

Many of the articles included therein are by themselves worth the price asked for the complete work, and amongst these that stand out in this Year-Book are:—

HOW TO BECOME A SUCCESSFUL BIRD BREEDER.
By Claude St. John.—This article represents the author at his best. The subject matter leads the would-be aspirant step by step from the rock-bed of his hobby to the very zenith of success. No bird breeder can afford to miss this highly instructive contribution, written as it is by such a popular and true-hearted fancier as Mr. Claude St. John. Read it before embarking on the business of the 1911 breeding season, and it will both help you to cut down your expenses to the minimum (by avoiding waste) and to breed young birds with greater ease and certainty.

BRITISH BIRD-KEEPING FOR THE WORKING MAN.
By W. J. Pitcher.—The experiences of a Yorkshire working man. The author shows in a most interesting way that it is not always the one with the big aviaries that derives the most pleasure, but often the working-man, whose only hobby after a day's work is his birds. He advises the various kinds of birds that lend themselves to the requirements of the working-man hobbyist, and how they should be fed and cared for.

HOW I PRODUCED MY WINNING HYBRIDS.
By J. Ovenstone.—A very interesting and valuable article. Gives the author's own experiences extending over a period of about ten years, together with an account of his sytem of feeding, management, etc.

BUILDING AND FITTING AN OUTDOOR BIRD-ROOM.
By Henry Meeds.—Advising the cheapest and best methods to adopt in building and fitting up an outdoor bird-room or aviary. Giving full dimensions for same, and how the internal fittings should be put into place to the best advantage. The article is accompanied by a photograph of an ideal type of out-door bird-room, which enables the reader to more easily grasp the subject matter of the article.

THE TREATMENT OF, AND MEDICINES FOR, AILING CAGE BIRDS.
A feature which conveys information that is of vital importance to the would-be successful keeper of birds—information of a kind but seldom available through the usual channels—telling the properties, etc., of most bird medicines, and how the ailments common to birds may be cured by them.

A CHEAP METHOD OF CANARY BREEDING.
By T. F. Morgan.—Emphasises the point that even "cheap" canaries can be, and are, made to pay. The article explains in detail how a cheap breeding-cage can be made and fitted out, how the canaries should be fed and managed, and closes with a few "Don'ts" that are very timely hints.

FAMILIAR FOREIGN SEED EATERS AND THEIR MANAGEMENT.

A YEAR WITH THE WILD BIRDS.
By H. Norman.—The author gives it as his opinion that wild bird life flourishes in our fields and woods as it does in no other European country.

SOME DISEASES OF BIRDS, AND HOW TO RECOGNISE AND TREAT THEM.
By G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S.—An article from the able pen of Mr. Yates which is of permanent value for reference purposes. It describes in concise, and so far as possible, unconventional terms, the causes, symptoms, and diagnosis of the commoner departures from health affecting the inmates of our cages and aviaries, together with appropriate medicinal treatment. It is a real book in itself and well worthy of the price paid for the whole "Annual."

HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY MANAGE A CAGE BIRD SOCIETY.
By W. A. Dickins.—This article should be read by the secretaries, officials, and members of all cage bird societies, dealing out to them, as it does, many helpful hints on the successful management of a society.

The Most Reliable Authority on Bird Culture.

In addition there are numerous art and other illustrations of the peerage of 1910 in the Bird World. A lovely Coloured Plate of the sensation of the season, the Dartford Warbler, claimed at the Palace for 12 Guineas. Calendar, Postal, and other information, Standards and Descriptions, Lists of Judges of Cage Birds and their addresses, Officials, Cage Bird Societies, etc.

WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

Everitt's Parrot ranges over the Phillipines, Celebes, Moluccas, Tenimber Islands, and N.W. New Guinea. In its cage it is quiet and undemonstrative, and does not scream; neither does it impress one as a talking species. Nevertheless, it is handsome, and as it should do well in the temperature of an ordinary living-room, it should make a good room-pet, especially for those with a penchant for rare species. Its requirements are few. The bird herein described does well on a mixture of hemp, sunflower, Canary and millet, a few nuts, dry biscuit and apple. That the above treatment meets its needs was amply demonstrated by the clean and tight condition of the exhibit.

The Rev. G. H. Raynor states that it takes life very quietly, is not excitable, will eat almost anything, but is especially keen on spray millet oats, sunflower and various nuts. Several species of this genus are on view in the Parrot House of the London Zoo.

The Black-throated Hangnest.

The Black-Throated Hangnest: This handsome species was exhibited by Mr. S. M. Townsend, and I rather incline to the opinion that it is a first appearance on the show bench. The Hangnests are famed far and wide for their fearless and confiding demeanour. They become finger tame very readily, and will indulge in all sorts of familiarities at their owner's expense. The genus Icterus, to which this species belongs, consists of birds mostly clad in yellow and black, or orange and black, with mostly one or more white wing bars. They are mostly tightly feathered birds, and when in condition, like the specimen we are noting, the whole of their plumage has a glistening satin-like surface. The arrangement of the colour areas of the Black-Throated is clearly indicated in the figure on our plate, a glance at which will be better than pages of text. The light areas are rich orange-yellow, and the dark portions shining black.

They are exceedingly handsome and showy birds, but are also pugnacious, and must not be associated with birds smaller or weaker than themselves; in fact, they will not hesitate to attack a bird three times their own size, and with their impetuous, fearless rushes usually come out "on top."

Like many other imported birds, they are not easy to establish, but once this is accomplished, they are not difficult to keep fit. A dietary of soft food, milk-sop, ripe fruit and live insects will keep them in excellent health, and their life in captivity is usually a fairly long one. A beautiful and rare exhibit.

The Black-Billed Toucan.

The Toucans are an interesting if somewhat grotesque group of birds; the colouration of many species being quite gorgeous, and the Black-billed is by no means the least beautiful of the group. Their note, however, is not musical, being a sort of discordant bray; nevertheless, their grotesque form, beautiful colouration, and the confidence they place in their owner, cause them to be great favourites with those who have once kept them.

Mr. Walter Goodfellow, writing of these birds, states (Avic. Mag., Vol. VI.): "In a cage one thinks of them as clumsy, but there was no clumsiness in that graceful flight across the valley—unlike the flight of any other birds. How I feasted my eyes as they gambolled among the branches, chasing each other from branch to branch. One would throw a fruit into the air—another would seize it without any intention of swallowing it, but pass it on like boys would a ball."

The Black-billed is a very handsome species, the upper surface and the bill being mainly black, with the under surface principally orange and red. The specimen figured on our plate was exhibited by Mr. S. Watson, and was a beautiful and striking bird in excellent condition, and was only ousted from the premier position by the Cock of the Rock.

Diet: Soft food mixture with a liberal admixture of grocers' currants, some live insects, mealworms, beetles, grasshoppers, cockroaches, etc., should also be given; also soaked currants, sultanas, and banana, apple, pear, etc., cut up into small squares. Many individuals are fond of a mixture of boiled rice and potato; in fact, they are almost omnivorous.

Most species of Toucans are light feathered birds, and should not be subjected to too low a temperature. They are a large group, and are not only very varied in colour, but also in size, ranging from the giant Sulphur-Crested Toucan to the Small Toucanettes and Aracaries.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Loss of Voice.

E. J. R.—You must first look after the cause and remove it before you can hope to do any good with treatment of any kind. See that this bird is in a bright airy position, but perfectly free from draughts, extremes of heat and cold, and fumes from burning lights or fires. A just comfortable temperature which is fairly equable and free from impure air is what you should aim at. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and on the alternate days a pinch of a mixture of equal parts maw and gold of pleasure, and a morsel of banana. Limit the diet to this for a fortnight at least. During the same time give the following decoction four times a week in place of pure water for drinking. Place a small teaspoonful of linseed, a piece of liquorice the size of a pea-nut, and one large or two small chlorate of potash lozenges, in a teacup. Pour boiling water over to about three-fourths of the cupful. Stir until all is dissolved, then cover and allow to stand until cold. Then pour off the clear liquor, stir in a small teaspoonful of glycerine, and give in the drinker instead of plain water.

More Haste, Less Speed.

F. H. H.—Mark the above sound proverb and digest it well. Although anxious to succeed, as you say, you are simply courting failure. You put the birds together at least six weeks too early. When you received them you should have caged them separately until the end of March or beginning of April. I also rather suspect you are not keeping them quite free from draughts or fluctuations of temperature. See to these points. If the hen has not yet begun to build, separate the birds and take away the nesting material and nest box. A piece of cuttlefish may be left in the hen's cage. Feed on a staple of plain canary with half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and give the hen a pinch of inga twice a week, and the cock a pinch of a mixture of inga, hemp, and teazle as often. A teaspoonful of egg food once a week will suffice, as the birds are quite forward enough already for the season. A young dandelion leaf three or four times a week may also be given. At the end of March they should be in fine condition, and if weather is favourable you may then begin to think of putting back the nest box and material, and putting birds together. To avoid further mistakes you should get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free, from our manager, or see the article in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL for 1911, ready immediately.

About the Greens.

N.K.J.—Sorry my last advice came too late to be of service. As regards the green colour, you are quite correct in wanting to keep a fair amount running amongst your stock, but I fancy you are not quite clear as to its purpose, or even, so to speak, about its appearance. The chief object of introducing green blood into clear or marked birds is to give depth and tone and brilliancy to the colour; the green, as you remark, being the real fount of colour. But if you have a good proportion of variegated, or more or less heavily marked birds in your stock, these being not far removed from the green, are evidence that you already possess plenty of green blood. It is when breeding for clear birds, and frequently mating two clear or nearly clear birds together, and the depth and brilliancy of the natural colour is failing and becoming pale and "washed-out" in consequence that green blood is specially required to give tone to the colour. Then you may either mate a pure green with a clear bird, from which you will get a good number of variegated young which you will mate up the following year with clears again, when you will produce a greater proportion of ticks and clears teeming with colour to continue to mate up in the ordiuary way, ticked, marked, or variegated, to a clear for the next few seasons following, and thereby keep up the natural colour of the stock as high as possible. Or you may save a year in the first place by using a variegated yellow bird bred from greens instead of a pure green, when you will not have so much variegation to breed out in the first year. In due course you will find the subject more fully dealt with in "Our Canaries."

Dregs of a Bad Moult.

"Laurie."—I suspect the bird got a bad chill during the removal, which, acting on an already debilitated system, is responsible for these bad after-effects. Keep the bird in a fairly warm and cosy place, not too overheated, but quite away from the cold or chilly side, and quite free from draughts and great fluctuations. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give separately a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar, and on the alternate days a pinch of a mixture of equal parts maw and gold of pleasure seed, and a morsel of banana. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, for two days, and afterwards give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week, and 20 drops of whisky on the alternate days. After this give 20 drops of chemical food in the water every second day for another fortnight. If not too far gone, this should pull him round and put him on the road to recovery.

Yorkshire Mopy (Waffy). — Am afraid you have been putting it to unnecessary pain and inconvenience; and you should not have used turpentine on it in any case. Feed as advised "T. Oates," and carry out same suggestions re geueral treatment. In the drinking water give the same salts and rhubarb mixture for a week, and the next week four drops each of tincture of geutian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. Then go back to the beginning and repeat two week's treatment in same order.

Canary Mixture (Constant Reader).—Elaborate seed mixtures as a general diet are not to be commended, neither from a dietetic nor ecouomic standpoint. The best mixture for a staple diet when a mixture is used at all in this way consists of three parts canary to one part summer rape, or two parts canary to one part rape for Rollers. All other seeds should be given separately in very small quantities as required, or for single caged specimens a mixture may be made for occasional use, such as is given in reply to "R. P".

Norwich Getting Fat (Greenfinch Mule).—Keep the flight quite clean and free from waste seed. See that the birds are free from draughts. Give plain canary only for staple diet, and limit the quantity given daily to a modcrate size teaspoonful per bird. Twice a week reduce the allowance by one-half, and make up to same quantity with summer rape seed. Allow a free supply of green food daily. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and in the following week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. If necessary repeat the two weeks' treatment in the same order.

Treatment for Roller (R. P.).—Keep it in a box cage in a comfortable, but not overheated, place, quite out of reach of cold draughts, extremes of heat and cold, and fumes from burning lights in the evenings. Give a staple of two parts canary to one part summer rape. Once a week give a teaspoonful of egg food, or an equlvalent quantity of crushed sponge cake, or bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar. On one other day each week give a teaspoonful of a mixture of two parts each hemp, inga, and millet, and one part each teazle, linseed, and maw. Four times a week give a scrap of any green food in season, or a morsel of fruit as a substitute. For more detailed items of general management, get the nutshell booklet on "The Roller Canary," 2½d., post free, from our Manager.

Four Various (H. R.).—(1) Yes, you can safely breed this season with birds hatched last June. You would do well not to mate them before first week in April. (2) If you mean will a Roller cock mated to a Norwich hen breed successful, the answer is, yes, certainly. For proper food for Roller, see reply to "R. P." (3) Put the cinnamon hen on a diet of plain canary for a fortnight. Give half a teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week, and once a week a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with maw and a supply of green food on each of the remaining days. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts every second day for a week. (4) Treat the Canary for hoarseness the same as advised to "E. J. R."

Worms in Canary (J. R. P.).—I presume you are satisfied that the worms are passed by the bird, and are not introduced into cage by some accidental means. Keep cage, perches, and seed and water vessels scrupulously clean. Use sawdust on cage floor, and remove and burn it daily until all trace of worms has disappeared. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give a pinch of teazle seed, and on the alternate days half a teaspoonful of the following soft food, viz.: Crush finely two teaspoonfuls of stale sponge cake, add half a teaspoonful of maw seed, and as much finely powdered areca nut as will cover a threepenny piece, and well mix together. The night before you give this soft food remove the seed, and give the soft food first thing next morning, keeping the seed away for an hour or two until the soft food is at least partly consumed. The next day give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of sulphuric acid in the drinking water. A week of this treatment should quite remove the trouble.

Irritable (A.E.C.).—Give the bird a staple diet of plain Canary seed only. Every second day for a fortnight give a morsel of bread soaked in cold milk, drained, and sprinkled with a quarter teaspoonful of maw seed. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and a morsel of banana, raw carrot, or watercress. Limit the diet solely to this for the time named. Allow the bird to bathe freely in mild weather, and all a few drops of Jeyes' Fluid to the bathing water. In the drinking water give six drops of dandelion juice and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea for two days. After this dissolve half a sodium salicylate and potass bicarb. tabloid in the water every second day for a week. Keep perches quite clean, and slightly smear the bare places around eyes with spermaceti ointment once or twice.

Not Singing, and Moulting (T. Oates).—The bird will not sing until the moulting is stopped. Do not keep it too warm, but in just a comfortable temperature, and quite free from draughts and extremes of heat and cold. See its cage is free from red mites, and do not hang it near or over burning lights in the evening. Feed on plain Canary only as staple. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cage with four drops sherry and two cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. Three times a week give a morsel of raw carrot or banana. Allow bird to bathe freely in mild weather. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts and six drops of syrup of rhubarb every second day for a week, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day until moulting is stopped. Continue this feeding and treatment for a month if necessary.

Norwich Breathing Heavily (Lillie).—Judging from your letter, I greatly fear that instead of being able to breed with this bird you will be lamenting his departure hence before this reply can appear. However, if this is not the case, try what the following treatment will do for him in a month. Give a diet of plain canary seed only as staple. Every second day for a fortnight give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts summer rape and maw seed, and a morsel of banana or spray of watercress. Limit the diet strictly to this. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and on the alternate days 20 drops of whisky. In the next week give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every seconu day. In the last two weeks give 20 drops of chemical food every second day.

Always Moulting (W. Kirby).—Keeping them in the kitchen is undoubtedly the key to the trouble. If you cannot keep them in another room where the fluctuations of heat are less violent than they probably are in the kitchen you must at least keep them as far away from the fire and burning lights as is possible consistent with perfect freedom from cold draughts. Try to keep them in a place where the warmth will be as equable as possible at all times. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed; and on alternate days a pinch of hemp and a morsel of banana. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for three days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day until the moulting ceases. The cocks should begin to sing without assistance when moulting is quite finished, but will not do so until that time. I cannot imagine what it is you call a "cooing" noise the hen makes. Better write again, and describe it more fully.

Moulting, etc. (E. J. C.).—(1) See reply to "W. Kirby," and treat the bird that is moulting the same. You might also examine cage closely, and to make matters sure, probe any open joints, holes, or crevices with a pin whilst holding a piece of white paper beneath to catch what is raked out for inspection. (2) Certainly, you can run two hens with one cock if you wish. Put up the hens in separate breeding cages, and at the proper time, when birds are ready, mate the cock with the hen that seems most forward. When she has laid the fourth egg, and commenced sitting, remove the cock and mate him with hen No. 2. When she has laid her complement of eggs and began to sit, remove the cock again, and cage him by himself until hen No. 1 is ready to begin nesting again, when you will repeat the procedure with the second and any subsequent broods. Of course, the hens are left to hatch and rear the broods alone, which they will do quite as well as when the cock remains with them permanently. (3) Sorry, but for obvious reasons we cannot single out any particular advertiser for mention. The one you name we have, personally, always found fair dealing.

In-breeding (Brasso).—You say the birds are brothers and sisters, but from different matchings. I am taking this to mean they are from different broods, but have the same parents on both sides, and are, consequently, full brothers and sisters, and not half-brothers and sisters. Such close in-breeding as this, and it is the closest possible to do, is only to be tolerated for some very special object, and in exceptional cases. As you only wish to avoid the expense of getting new birds, none of these considerations appear in your case, and you have absolutely no valid reason for the mating you propose. As a compromise which will not affect your outlay at all, I strongly advise you to get a fresh hen for one of the young cocks, and mate the old cock with one of the young hens—his daughters. Then you might dispose of the other young hen in exchange for an unrelated hen of the other young cock; or you might run the old cock alternately with both young hens, as advised in No. 2 to "E. J. C.," and keep one young cock separate for a songster. Young birds hatched last season are quite old enough for breeding in the coming season.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

What Bulbul?

Bulbul.—Your birds are Red-eared Bulbuls, and should do well in your aviary, though it is early to put newly imported birds out, but if they have taken no harm when you see this reply, you can leave them out; but if they look miserable you had better catch them and keep them indoors till May; they can then be put out again and then left out together. In addition to the seed diet, you are supplying, you must give soft food and ripe fruit, and two or three mealworms or other insects per bird daily. Yes, they breed in captivity, and if they go to nest will either build in a mass of branches or use some box. Supply hay and long grass for nesting material. If any young are hatched out they will need an unlimited supply of live insects—gentles, beetles, smooth caterpillars, spiders, wasp grub, live ants' cocoons, etc.—for the first seven to ten days, in addition to the dieting given above. Their value varies. They have been as low as 3s., but 7s. 6d. to 10s. is about their present value.

A Feather Puller.

Shaw Hill.—The habit of feather-pulling, once a bird becomes confirmed in it, is almost impossible of complete cure, the only remedy being patience and perseverance on given lines. Tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food, must not be given. I advise an entire change of dict, as follows:—Seed mixture: Three parts of Canary and white millet, and one part each of hemp, dari, paddy rice, oats, and sunflower seeds; well mix and supply continually in the cage. A pinch of grit may be added with advantage to the daily supply of seed. Also supply ripe fruit, few nuts, pieces of plain biscuit, and keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage. Spray the bird twice weekly with either a weak solution of fir tree oil or quassia, choosing a period when the room is warm, keeping it quite free from draught. Every fourth day, so long as the voidings are not watery loose, add one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia to the daily supply of drinking water, and on intermediate days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Persevere with the above and report progress about a month hence.

Parrot with Growth on Tongue.

Miss R. W.—This bird will need careful nursing for some time. I hope the bird is tame as this will greatly facilitate treatment. Put some honey and borax (ready mixed from any chemist) in the bird's mouth twice daily, either with a camel hair brush or quill feather, which must be well cleansed after use, preferably in boiling water, and only the clean brush or feather put into the mixture. Continue this while the trouble lasts. Every fourth day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into the drinking water, and on the intermediate days well colour same with Parrish's Chemical Food. Diet: Boil some maize till quite soft, and then drain away all the water you can and keep a supply in the cage. This only keeps fresh one day, so it must be prepared fresh daily; a little rice prepared the same way might be given as a change if the bird cares for it. As regards the bread sop, it must have enough to eat, and you can sop either bread or plain biscuit with tepid water and chemical food in equal parts. Supply as much banana as it will eat. As soon as the soreness begins to yield, you must reinstate the dry seed mixture again, and when you note the bird eating it heartily, you can then gradually discontinue the soft foods. You had better report progress a fortnight hence.

Parrot Descriptions (Constant Reader).—I regret owing to one of my books being out on loan I shall have to ask you to wait for the Parrot descriptions till next week.

Indoor Aviary (A. Steel).—You will have room for a couple of dozen birds. Put in pairs of Grey and Green Singing Finches, Cuban Finches, Silverbills, Common and Green Avadavats, St. Helena Waxbills, and for effect, if not for song, pairs of Long and Rufous-tailed Grassfinches. You ought to have an Alario Finch (one was advertised in our columns last week), and you could put in a Norwich or small Border Fancy to mate with it. A cock Pekin Robin could also be kept, but this would require fruit, soft food, and a few mealworms or other insects. English Goldfinches, Siskins, Redpolls, and Twites, would agree with the above. See our Nutshell Booklets referring to above species.

Bluewing Lovebirds (Unknown).—Both sexes are grass-green birds, but the male has lovely azure-blue flights, lower back and upper tail-coverts. A Canary breeding cage is not large enough for them; it should be about 2ft. long, 1ft. deep, and at least 1½ft. high. A cocoa-nut husk will suffice, but you must supply a few leaves and a few live sticks with bark on; this they will strip off and use for lining their nest respectably. They are not free breeders, but they have bred and reared young in captivity several times, and one at least of these occasions was in a cage. They will do well enough in a cold room, but must not be subjected to draught. Cannot give any definite time; you will have to exercise patience, and leave them to their own devices.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

Java Sparrows (J. R. Barnett).—(1): It is better for the hen to be of the White variety, though when the other is the case they should breed, but might take longer about making the start. (2) There are perhaps two solitary instances of odd young birds being reared of Red-billed Weavers, but though endless nests are built, eggs are very seldom laid, but in a roomy aviary there is always a probability of this taking place. (3) Yes, the Saffron Finch breeds fairly freely in an aviary. (4) No, you must not keep the two pairs together, put one pair in the aviary (white cock and gray hen), and the other pair would do well enough in a double canary breeder with the partitions removed, or in a cage as figured in our recent issue.

What Parrot (N. Bourne).—It is an Alexandrine Parrakeet, and is a native of India. Diet: Seed mixture, canary and white millet, two parts each; hemp, dari, paddy rice, oats and sunflower seeds one part each—well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, nuts, and plain biscuits, grit, cuttlebone, and water for drinking and bathing. If it will not bathe, it must be sprayed once weekly at this season, choose a genial day and keep strictly out of draught, but dry. Do not give tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever.

Indoor Aviary Flight (L. A. K.).—About 36 birds. Do not put in the Budgerigars with the Canaries; put up the enclosure 4ft. square for them, so long that it is not really dark, and the room is well ventilated, and without draught they will do well enough. If you mix the Budgies and Finch-like birds together, though they may agree at first, disaster is sure to follow sooner or later. You can put pairs of Grey and Green Singing Finches, Zebra Finches, Cutthroats, Long and Rufous-tailed Grassfinches, and Java Sparrows, in with your Canaries, and they will agree altogether well enough, but should not be admitted into the outer enclosure till May.

Indian Parrot and Cockatoo (Cycle).—(1) It is quite natural for many species of Parrots to regurgitate their food and then eat it again, often doing this when anyone they are fond of is caressing them. When kept in pairs this regurgitation takes place, and they then feed each other. But if you suspect indigestion or some kindred trouble, then give Dinneford's Magnesia and Chemical Food, at periods and quantity as advised in other Parrot replies in this issue. (2) Re the Cockatoo, give one or two doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, continue the Chemical Food and keep a piece of cuttlebone continually within its reach. Repeat this query next week, and tell me how you are feeding, and I will then see if I can help you further.

Ring-neck Parrakeet (Parrot).—Patience and gentleness will accomplish this; for the present, be quiet and steady when supplying its wants, and avoid sudden or rushy movements in its vicinity, and it will soon steady down and become used to you. When this takes place, keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, also talk to it and pet it, and train it by the constant repetition of any word or short sentence you wish it to repeat. Do not be discouraged, it may be a month or more before there is the least response. It is no use beginning training till the bird is fairly restful, and it will be more effective at such times as it is quiet and restful. Some respond quicker than others, but the bird should, at any rate, talk a little ultimately.

Food for Cockatoo (Cockie).—Seed mixture: Canary and white millet two parts each, hemp, paddy rice, maize, dari, oats and sunflower seeds one part each—well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit (such as it will take), nuts, plain biscuit, stale crusts, grit, cuttlebone and water for drinking and bathing. If the bird will not bathe, it must be sprayed, once a week at this season, twice weekly during the summer months; keep strictly out of draught till dry. It is a good plan to add a pinch of grit to the daily supply of seed. Feather pulling is almost incurable if the bird is confirmed in the practice. Anoint bare parts with Spratt's "Pennakura," and spray with a weak solution of fir tree oil. Also put the bird on a course of Dinneford's Magnesia and Parrish's Chemical Food. For quantity, etc., see replies to other Parrot queries. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps or any kind of animal food.

Dropping its Feathers (Amazon).—These are being bitten off, not shed in the ordinary way. Confine the diet to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, and plain biscuits, a little bread and butter will do no harm, but it should not be given in any quantity. Tea is altogether wrong, and must be stopped at once; replace it with tepid water and Parrish's Chemical Food in equal parts. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage, and put a pinch of grit with its daily supply of seed mixture. The seed mixed advised for an Alexandrine Parrakeet, in this issue, will suffice for your Amazon if you add a little maize. Every fourth day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water, and on the intermediate days well colour it with the Chemical Food. Spray once weekly at this season with either a weak solution of fir tree oil or a dilute solution of quassia, and well cleanse the perches and food utensils with boiling water. Do not give any tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps or any kind of animal food whatever. Report progress in three or four weeks.

Pekin Robins, etc. (Mrs. B.).—(1) In lieu of sand use either cocoanut fibre refuse or fine peat moss litter for cage bottom. But you must first catch the bird, soak its feet in tepid water, thoroughly cleanse and dry them before returning to its cage. You can put the bird out-of-doors in May. Diet: Soft food, ripe fruit, and say, three mealworms per bird daily, and any spiders, caterpillars, beetles, etc., you can capture for them. You can give a little minced kidney (not necessary though) occasionally as a change. The voidings of fruit-eaters and softbills generally are regularly more or less liquid. You can let them have a bath daily. Get our nutshell booklet on this species, 2½d. post free from our manager. (2) Seed mixture: Canary and white millet, two parts each; hemp, dari, maize, oats, and sunflower seed one part each. Well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage. If the bird persistently rejects any item of above, it can be left out, but it should not be permitted to diet itself exclusively on hemp and sunflower seeds. Also supply ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuits, grit, cuttlebone, and water. Re talking, see our reply to Parrot in this issue; it should certainly talk a little.

Answered by G. E. Weston.

A Trio (Perseverer).—(1) A Chaffinch-Greenfinch Hybrid has never, to my knowledge, been produced. (2) It makes a difference which way the birds are mated, inasmuch as the hen Chaffinch is less likely to nest in a cage than the hen Greenfinch. In a large outdoor aviary it would not matter quite so much; though even then my own choice would be the Greenfinch hen. (3) Follow the advice given in the "Nutshell" booklets on the Chaffinch and the Greenfinch; but the Hybrid would need to have little hemp seed, and not too much sunflower (an occasional feed).

Breeding with a Mealy Redpoll (John Bull).—I have several times stated recently that in my experience the Mealy Redpoll is not at all a good breeder (fertiliser of eggs) in a cage, whereas the Lesser Redpoll is just the opposite. Just think how very, very few Redpoll Mules we see on the show bench which bear any evidence of having been bred from the Mealy. However, Mealys have been exceptionally plentiful this season, and perhaps I may be able to take a more optimistic view of them as breeders when I visit next year's shows. I have never found it matter much whether Redpolls be house-moulted or in field plumage; in either case they are just as ready to breed. But the Lesser fertilises his eggs; Mr. Mealy does'n't.

The Chaffinch (Reader of "C.B.").—The Chaffinch is most certainly a true Finch. By many scientists it is held to be the typical representative. The Buntings are related to the Finches, inasmuch as they are members of the same Family, but are grouped in a sub-division, in the same manner as the Greenfinch and Hawfinch (which are in the Grosbeak sub-division). Thus the Buntings have as much claim to be considered Finches (for the purposes of competition at our shows) as have the Greenfinch and the Hawfinch. It is not easy to make these matters quite clear in a few words; but I hope I have succeeded.

Losses in an Aviary (Chingford).—I can find nothing in your letter to give a clue to the reason of the loss of birds you are suffering. The aviary seems a nice, suitable place, well sheltered, and, as far as I can judge, well lighted. Your feeding I don't quite approve of. I should give less "wild seed," which is more of a tit-bit, and the usual seeds freely, with plenty of hemp and sunflower during the colder weather. But this would hardly account for the birds dying, and I am forced to the conclusion that you have been unlucky enough to get some contagious disease amongst your stock. Send a body to our Mr. Yates, and have a post-mortem examination made; he will decide the matter for you.

How Many Linnets? (T. H.).—There is only one bird entitled to be called the Linnet, and that is our old, well-known, brown-coated friend. Some fanciers will tell you there are the Stone, Grey, Gorse, Rose, Brown, and goodness only knows how many other Linnets. But they are all one and the same bird in different stages of plumage. For instance, the Grey, or Stone, is the buff, and the Brown the jonque, form of Linnet; while the Rose is the cock in breeding plumage with his red breast. Of course, other birds are sometimes called "Linnets." Thus we have the Green Linnet (Greenfinch), Mountain Linnet (Twite), and Pea Linnet (Lesser Redpoll); but these are only local, so familiar names, and do not make the birds into a "Linnet."

A Half-Moult (J. J.).—The roughness of the plumage is owing, of course, to the bird going through only a half-moult. This may be due to no fault of yours; a bird is likely to get "stuck in the moult" (or go into a "soft" moult) with the best of treatment. A sudden, severe change in the weather (either a big drop or rise in the temperature) can bring about both troubles. As your bird is singing now, and seems healthy, I should not worry over the roughness of plumage, but trust to the next moult putting matters to rights.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Swerdua.—There was nothing contagious; death was accidental, due to hemorrhage of the lungs.

L. Steinhardt.—Apoplexy, from rupture of a blood vessel on the brain. Any sudden fright is sufficient to throw these birds into fits, particularly if enclosed in a small space. Again, it may result from constipation, due to indiscreet dieting. Discretion should be used in the giving of green food; apple, though often given, is not good. If kept in an aviary part may be laid down with grass, or introduce a sod of grass. If in cages, a little canary seed may be grown in shallow pans. These birds are much better kept in an aviary, particularly for breeding purposes. I could not determine the presence of red mites. Irritation often arises from other causes. I would suggest spraying with a warm solution of sulphurreted potash, using 30 grains to 8 ounces of warm water.

Brinis.—Death arose from broncho-pneumonia, from extension of the catarrhal process into the smaller bronchial tubes, later involving the lung tissue. The trouble, no doubt, originated in a cold, and when such is allowed to continue, fatal consequences are bound to arise. Glycerine, and even honey, are almost inert—one might almost as well give nothing at all in such a case. For all catarrhal affections the preparations of ammonia are the most reliable, such as Aromatic Spirits of Ammonia, or Liquor Ammonia Acetatis. No doubt many appear to get well on the former treatmeot; possibly they would if nothing were attempted. Whenever catarrh exists there is inovitably a rise in temperature. If this is allowed to continue for any length of time, the organs must suffer. The temperature must be reduced, and the heart's action maintained. For such purpose I find the above mentioned drugs invaluable.

R. B.—Both birds died of acute pneumonia, probably from chill during transit, and the damage was done before arrival; you do not state the distance they travelled, but with long distance journeys birds are often in a very puggy condition, rallying after a few hours, on the other hand if exposed to draughts, during transit, or if the journey is unduly prolonged such accidents are bound to occur. There was no evidence of existing disease, and I have no doubt same were in a healthy condition prior to leaving vendors' hands.

S. A. Hearn.—Congestion of the lungs, with subsequent hemorrhage from rupture of a blood vessel in the lungs. There was a quantity of coagulated blood surrounding the lungs and heart. With congestion there is always an overfulness of the blood-vessels; if the tension be too great, and the bird handled or frightened in any way there is a tendency to rupture of any one of these, which, when it occurs is soon followed by death. Your theory as to stunning I do not think tenable.

A. H. C.—Fatty infiltration of the liver as existing disease, and inflammation of the bowels as a result of same. The former had existed some time. Its substance had become disorganised, its biliary secretions lessened and altered in character; consequently, as a result the intestines suffer adversely from loss of same. The symptoms displayed were due to the change taking place in the liver substance. The treatment advised was very good, but unfortunately this disease is seldom amenable to treatment. Use less rape, allow plenty of green food, and give occasionally a little glauber salts in the drinking water with the remainder, if any.

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

A Water Fountain (E. Clarke).—We have given this quite a number of times.

The Packing of Birds (E. Ellis, or Elliott).—We will deal with this matter next week.

Cuttings (E. Harris, E. James, and others).—Many thanks for your kindness. We will utilise as space permits.

Distributing Calendars (H. Law).—We are exceedingly obliged to you, and hope to always deserve your good opinion.

Two Addresses (L. Pyman).—The two addresses are: Mons. Pauwels, Everberg, Belgium, and Mr. T. W. Richards, High-street, Narberth, Pemb.

Suggestions (J. Kay).—Rest assured that your suggestions have received every consideration, and will be adopted if we can see our way to carry them into effect.

Two Points (Rev. B. Nume).—With regard to No. 2, it is not always possible to avoid this, when two extra pages are needed in a hurry. We at one time issued an index, but we found practically no demand for it.

Criticism of Show Reports (Jas. Stewart).—It has always been our rule not to allow criticism of show reports, and we cannot depart from this when there is no evidence that our reporter's comments were made, otherwise than in good faith. There will always be differences of opinion; no two fanciers, we imagine, look at the same bird with quite the same pair of eyes.

Belgian Canaries (T. Shelton).—Belgian Canaries are to be bought through our columns, all the year round, though, of course, the autumn and winter are the likeliest seasons to secure stock. This bird of position is not so popular as it used to be many years ago, but several of the large firms using our advertisement columns still import some of the best from the Continent.

PRESTON O.S.

General meeting held Tokio Cafe, Feb. 2nd, Mr. Dent in chair. Balance sheet for 1910:—Owing to a heavy loss on the November show, this was not very satisfactory, but the balance in hand was considered quite sufficient for the society's working, and to enable us to "come up smiling" with another big show in November next. Decided, to hold table show for breeding pairs at meeting March 2nd.—Mr. Dent kindly promised to judge. There will also be a judging competition. Special of 2/6 were promised by Messrs. Pyke, Harwood, and Mapp. I would urge all members to make a few entries, and so give those who have the work to do, and those who so generously give specials, a little encouragement, and show them that their efforts are appreciated.—J. P. Leeming, Hon. Secretary and Treasurer.

FORRES AND NORTHERN O.A.

Annual general meeting held Jan. 30, Mechanics' Hall, a good number of members and friends being present. Mr. J. Robertson (president) in chair. Treasurer (Mr. W. Cumming) submitted financial statement for year showing a slight debit balance. Office bearers appointed:—Hon. pres., Mr. W. Forrest; hon. vice-pres., Mr. J. Maclean; pres., Mr. J. Robertson; vice-pres., Mr. J. Russell; treasurer, Mr. W. Cumming; sec pro tem, Mr. G. T. Russell; committee, Messrs. K. Maclean, J. Yonnie, T. Angus, W. Dingwall, W. Clarke, W. Macpherson, D. Macdonald, R. Black, A. Ross, D. Mathieson, D. Smith, D. Campbell, S. Maclean, and P. Maclean. Annual show fixed for December 2, and it was proposed to hold a members' young bird show in the autumn. I will be glad to hear from any fancier wishing to join (sub. 2s. 6d.).—G. T. Russell, Sec., 16, Urquhart Street, Forres.

Hints Wanted on the Making of Birdlime.

SIR,—Will some one of the many kind readers of CAGE BIRDS give me a hint how to make holly-bark lime that will stand frost or rough weather?

YOUNG BIRD-LOVER.

A Twirling Goldfinch.

SIR,—Would any of your readers who may be kindly disposed towards an amateur, tell me how I could cure a Goldfinch which has developed a habit of looking up, and sometimes almost falling off the perch backwards? He is a very good bird, and I am desirous of curing him. He is in a large cage with wooden top, with 30 others. I shall be obliged for any information. "YOUNG 'UN."

Proposed New Cage Bird Society for Bedlington.

SIR,—A number of fanciers in this large and rapidly growing district have decided to start a cage bird society, seeing that a large number of young men are taking up the Fancy. We have decided to hold a meeting in the Turk's Head Hotel, Bedlington, on Saturday, February 18th, at 7 p.m. Will those fanciers wishing to join kindly attend? If unable to do so, if they will send their names to me, we will be pleased to enrol them.

"Horned" Parrakeets; and Others.

SIR,—I have more than once tried to point out to bird dealers that the Uvœan Parrakeet is not the Horned Parrakeet, but when they receive the former they invariably advertise them as the latter. The Horned Parrakeet is even rarer as an imported bird than the Uvœan. They are the two representatives of the family of "Nymphicus." The Uvœan Parrakeet has the crest curved forwards towards the forehead; the Horned Parrakeet has two crest feathers which grow over towards the back of the head, and are longer than those of the Uvœan's which latter's are composed of several feathers. If bird dealers (in some cases) do not know what species a bird is, they are apt to invent a name, and also to sometimes spell a right name wrongly. Let them also beware of confusing the commoner Ring-necked Alexandra Parrakeet with the extremely rare "Queen Alexandra," which is a Polytelis.

Recollections of a Trip to the Palace Show

SIR,—We were a merry party as we left Bradford Midland Station on Friday night, Feb. 3, at 10.45, and made even merrier by being joined at Shipley by a contingent of "all nighters" en route for London and the "Great Glass House." The journey to Town was a good one; some had a nap in between the pranks that were played, whilst others engaged in "nap" of another colour, which, needless to say, left some pockets lighter. London was reached about 5.40, and refreshment was sought for and obtained, consisting of tea and coffee in pots that would hold a quart! After this the party broke up, and now I shall relate the doings of four of the party, which I think, Mr. Editor, cannot well be beaten. We took the Underground from King's Cross to Covent Garden Market, and were rewarded with the sights we saw there; afterwards we journeyed on to the Thames Embankment and walked gaily along to Westminster and the Houses of Parliament, feeding the gulls on the way. Afterwards we toddled along through the great Whitehall and Downing Street, to Trafalgar Square, where we spent some time. Then one of the party said he felt "faint," and vowed he would not go another inch without a "good feed." We found I may say, a grand shop, and "did ourselves well." Leaving there, we moved along the Strand, and, needless to say, were the "star artistes" for a good few Cockneys, who listened to our "twang" with much merriment. On we went down the great newspaper street (Fleet Street) and were minded to call in and see you, Mr. Editor, but, alas! time was short. We made a call at the Hotel under the Bridge at Ludgate Hill (the King Lud Hotel, I believe) and there we sampled their "fare," including "Sardines on Toast," and "Welsh Rarebit," and you have our word for it, Sir, emerged like giants refreshed. Next we visited the Monument and one of our party would not be satisfied until we had planked down our 3d. and climbed the 211 steps to the top, which we did without a halt. Leaving, we visited the great Billingsgate, thence on to the Tower, seeing on our way the raising of the Tower Bridge. At the Tower we inspected the Regalia, and the Beefeaters were a source of attraction. One of the party, whose first visit it was, could not keep his eyes off them. We were, however, a little disappointed at not seeing the great diamond which has been so much talked about, but we saw many other priceless gems. Time was getting on now, so we thought it best to be getting to the Palace, and after what we thought a dreary ride, we arrived at the scene of so many triumphs and defeats in the cage bird fancy. The space allotted to the exhibits was a large one, and an animated scene met the eye as one walked in. My word, Sir, what an array of "stuff"! The British and Foreign birds were magnificent, and we shall not forget them in a hurry. Lucky are the exhibitors to possess such birds as these. We left the Palace about 6 o'clock and away we went to the Tivoli Music Hall, where we stayed until about 10 o'clock. We wound up by catching the train home, which we reached at 7.30 a.m or so, after having spent a very enjoyable time.

The Scotch Fancy Canary National Derby O.A.

SIR,—The executive issued in the beginning of this week membership tickets to fanciers with an appeal to last year's members to secure another fancier for the membership, besides joining themselves. We hope this will be responded to heartily. The executive also wish to point out that there is a heavy expenditure through the secretary having to remind those to whom tickets have been sent to account for the tickets; this expense would be considerably curtailed were accounting done earlier than formerly.

R. WRIGHT, president; J. HOGG, vice-president; THOMAS SMITH, secretary, 10, Lochside-Street, Crossmyloof, Glasgow.

Climbing the Yorkshire Exhibition Ladder.

SIR,—We may now say that we have attained the object we have been striving after for years; that is to breed a bird and to exhibit it, and win at the Crystal Palace. This is not the first winner we have bred, however. In the seasons of 1904 and 1905 we bred the bird which won us our novice gold medal, and was claimed and then successfully shown by a Mr. Taylor, of Halifax. It won at the Crystal Palace in 1905, in the Cinnamon-marked Yorkshire hen class after it had changed hands from Mr. Taylor. Also, this year's winner in novice marked Yorkshire cock class at the Palace only left our stable in December, 1910, and is own brother to our champion marked, the winner in open section. We attribute our success to years of careful study and judicious pairing and inbreeding, also to valuable information received from CAGE BIRDS. We wish your paper every success.

BLACKBURN AND MITCHELL.

How to Solder with Resin

SIR,—In answer to your correspondent "Linnet," re soldering with resin, I may say that I have found the following method very successful and far preferable to using the ordinary copper-bit which, at best, is a clumsy tool for the work. Get (from the ironmonger's) a small blow-pipe, costing about fivepence, and a small soldering lamp to burn methylated spirit, or a small gas bunsen. Then powder the resin (if it is lump, which is cleanest), and reduce the soft, "tinner's" solder to a coarse powder with a very coarse file or rasp. Then, with a penknife blade, put a little of the resin and solder on the desired joint, and with the blow-pipe direct a flame immediately below, when the solder will be found to run round the wire forming a neat, strong joint. With regard to "Fluxite," it should be applied first, as then the solder will adhere to it before using the blow-pipe. But if a lot of work is to be done, I should prefer the resin, as the "Fluxite" will be found to be rather expensive.

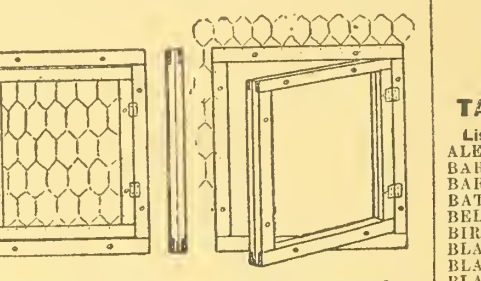
"HARDBILL."

Alleged Unfair Treatment at Guisborough Show.

SIR,—You say that this matter is not of sufficient interest to your readers to take up further space in your valuable paper. That may be true, but there has gone out to the thousands of its readers a base charge against me of being a traitor to my society. It is only just that you should allow me to reply in order to clear myself. Mr. Cuthbertson wrote to me, as Chairman of the society, after he had written our secretary. I replied saying I was very sorry that there was any unpleasantness, and asked him not to publish it until after our meeting. I also promised to bring the matter before our society. I hid nothing from any of the members. I consider it very cowardly of Mr. Mays to make such a charge against a fellow-member, without the slightest cause. He also says I went very strongly for Mr. Cuthbertson having his money back, but said nothing about the others. Now, Robert, there is not a word of truth in that statement. The question before the members was: "Should these men have their money back or not." The meeting was unanimous with the exception of yourself. Now, my boy, I am old enough to be your father. Take a bit of fatherly advice: Be prepared to do what is right, show a better spirit, don't be so vindictive. Remember, as far as the work of a society is concerned, every man should have just consideration. Treat your fellow-fanciers as men. Remember every man has as much right to his opinion as you have to yours; and because he does not fall in with your views, you need not jump on him and call him a traitor, etc. A traitor is one who has betrayed, or been false to an office of trust. This, your chairman has never been. He has had the interest of the society too much at heart to lend himself to such work. I have never thought anything too much trouble that would help the society in any way. In conclusion, please call a meeting and get matters settled up; as for anything you have to say to me, or any other member, the meeting is the proper place to settle these matters—not the Press.

J. G. COOK,
Chairman.

[So far as our columns are concerned, this matter must now close.—EDITOR.]



The Black-throated Hang-nest at the Crystal Palace Show.

SIR,—Reading of Mr. Townsend's prize winner described by the broad title of "Black-throated Hang-nest,' permit me to say, whilst appreciating his difficulty in giving its proper designation, that it is the "Icterus croconatus," as I with great difficulty discovered through the South Kensington Museum. I have one I bought in Paris by a fluke six months ago, and may add that very few specimens have hitherto reached Europe—the merit being their yellow head instead of the black of the commoner species. In justice to Mr. Wesley Page, he also defined it correctly, but a dozen other "naturalists" I could quote selected roomier and vaguer names.

FOLKESTONE.

To Make a Door in a Wire Netting Front.

SIR,—Herewith I send you an idea for making a small door in a wire netting front. I find that this door is very useful when feeding birds in an outdoor aviary. It can be made small enough to admit your hand only, and you are not, therefore, likely to lose any bird when feeding them. The idea is two (or, rather, four) square frames screwed firmly together, and holding the netting between them. Of course, the netting will require cutting all round inside the larger frame, and the smaller frame works on hinges. I think the sketch will explain itself. This idea, I hope, will answer one of your correspondents, and also prove as useful to many others, as it has to me.

H. LEWIS.

Rare British Birds at the Palace Show.

SIR,— May I be permitted to ask the judge, Mr. Silver, why he left un-noticed in the A.O.S. Bunting class some of the rarest birds there? It cannot have been because they were not good ones, because one Black-headed Bunting has had many prizes given it, and the Meadow Bunting was second in a fine class at the Scottish National show at the New Year. The answer, I expect, will be that they are not on the National British Bird and Mule Club's list. But why don't Mr. Ramsden, or the show officials, say that only birds on this list will be allowed?—not take our money, put us to the heavy railway expense, only to get our birds shelved on one side. I don't call this fair play—to take our money and not even give us a run for it. I am the more disgusted because at one Palace show these rare Buntings will be given prizes, then they won't be looked at the next year.

THISTLE-TOP.

A New Cage Bird Society for Smallbridge and District.

SIR,—I would like to tell "Well Wisher" that the majority of the Smallbridge members are members of one society in Rochdale, and that this society in Smallbridge has been formed in order to keep the fanciers more in touch one with another; they don't wish to rob another society. I think "Well Wisher" makes a mistake in saying there are too many societies. I should think the more societies there are the better it is for the Fancy—if they are carried on in a proper way. Now he talks about one society having a cup to compete for. Well, it is not the only society with a cup, and I don't see why this new society, when it has been going a bit, and gets some money on hand, can't have a cup, too, for they all seem keenly interested in the Fancy. Will "Well Wisher" tell me why this society with a cup that he talks about is being reconstructed? Be careful "Well Wisher," how you throw stones, or else you will break some of your own windows.

A REAL FANCIER.

SIR,—"Well-wisher"(or, rather, "Jealous") is quite right in saying there are already two societies in Rochdale, and one in Littleborough, and that we are only 1½ miles from Rochdale. But this is a long way to go to a meeting that is supposed to start at 8 o'clock, and when you get there at that time to find that you have to wait until 8.45 or 9 o'clock for the meeting to commence. Then the business takes till 10.30, and you get home about 11 o'clock, and you are no better off in knowledge regarding birds. I might say we are novices, and the society is on purpose to keep these together, by holding members' shows and encouraging young fanciers. Further, we have one or two gentlemen at our head whose business will not let them go so far as 1½ miles from home, and we have also got about 16 fanciers (nine, I might say, belong to one of the societies mentioned). We have a good prospect of more. I think myself a society at Smallbridge is wanted.

Dandelion from Seed.

SIR,—Mr. Downing objects to the statement in my last letter on the above subject, "that he said it was impossible to grow dandelion from seed which had been gathered the previous season," I have tried to find Mr. Downing's and also "Straight 'Un's" letters, which somehow have been mislaid, but I have a hazy idea that both he and "Straight 'Un" used words to the effect that they had sown seeds which had been gathered the previous season, and the seeds had absolutely refused to come up. I won't be emphatic on the point, however, and if Mr. Downing says he didn't, well then, he didn't. I have made a note of his address, and will, in the course of a few weeks forward him some young plants which, I would inform him, are now past the prospective stage.

T. JOHNSON.

Wood Pigeon Said to Have Killed and Eaten a Thrush.

SIR,—It may be of interest to some of your readers to know that while taking an observation of nature a few days ago, in the White Bridge Glen (Onchan, Isle of Man), I came across a Wood Pigeon killing a Thrush, and afterwards eating it in the same fashion as would a Hawk. As for Magpies, it is quite a common thing for them to devour small birds when food is scarce. There is only one bird, according to my idea which seems to be on friendly terms with all. It often arrives here about the middle of March, providing the weather be fine, but rarely utters its call note "Cuckoo," before the first of May.

PAT. MCCLUSKY.

[We cannot refrain from expressing our surprise at hearing of a Wood Pigeon killing and eating a Thrush. Apart from other considerations, we should have felt inclined to back any healthy, stout-hearted Thrush to defeat a Wood Pigeon in single combat—unless the latter managed to fall on him and suffocate him by sheer bulk and weight. With regard to the Cuckoo, we have frequently seen it being mobbed and ill-treated by other birds, which apparently entertained any but friendly feelings towards it.—ED.]

Another Talking Canary.

Authentic Record of a Bird Which Spoke Away Back in 1858.

SIR,—Noticing the remarks in your last issue concerning talking Canaries, permit me to submit an extract from the proceedings of the Zoological Society relating to a Canary which lived about the year 1858, and which could talk.

SIDNEY L. PAIN.

[We are much obliged to Mr. Pain for his kindness, and have pleasure in publishing the account in question.—ED.]

Extract from the "Proceedings of the Zoological Society," No. CCCLXI., 1858.

"Note on a Talking Canary, addressed to Dr. Gray. V.P.Z.S.—By S. Leigh Sotheby.

"The Woodlands," Norwood,
March 26th, 1858.

DEAR SIR,—Touching that marvellous little specimen of the feathered tribe, a talking Canary, of which I had the pleasure a few days since of telling you, I now send you all the information I can obtain respecting it from the lady by whom it was brought up and educated at this our homestead. Its parents had previously and successfully reared many young ones; but three years ago they hatched only one out of four eggs, the which they immediately neglected by commencing the rebuilding of a nest on the top of it. Upon this discovery, the unfledged and forsaken bird, all but dead, was taken away and placed in flannel by the fire, when, after much attention, it was restored and then brought up by hand. Thus treated, and away from all other birds, it became familiarised with those only who fed it; consequently its first singing notes were of a character totally different to those usual with the Canary. Constantly being talked to, the bird, when about three months old, astonished its mistress by repeating the endearing terms used in talking to it, such as "Kissie, kissie," with its significant sounds. This went on, and from time to time the little bird repeated other words, and now for hours together, except during the moulting season, astonishes us by ringing the changes, according to its own fancy, and as plain as any human voice can articulate them, on the several words: "Dear sweet Titchie" (its name), "Kiss Minnie," "Kiss me then, dear Minnie," "Sweet pretty little Titchie," "Kissie, kissie, kissie," "Dear Titchie," "Titchee wee, gee, gee, gee, Titchie, Titchie." The usual singing notes of the bird are more of the character of the Nightingale, mingled occasionally with the dog-whistle used about the house. It sometimes whistles very clearly the first bar of "God Save the Queen." It is hardly necessary to add that the bird is, of course, by nature remarkably tame; so much so that, during its season, it will perch down from its cage on my finger, shouting and talking in the most excited state. Our friend, Mr. B. Waterhouse Hawkins, who has heard the bird, tells me that about twenty years ago a Canary that spoke a few words was exhibited in Regent Street, the only other instance, I believe, publicly known. I have now only to apologise for having trespassed upon your patience to read all this long story about the accomplishments of a little bird; though at the same time I feel, that in acquainting you, as vice-president of the Zoological Society, with the facts stated, I am not only giving you the means of placing upon record the same, but affording you the opportunity of witnessing the truth thereof as being, in the event of any accident happening to the bird, a more satisfactory evidence than the mere assertion of Dear Sir, yours most faithfully,

S. LEIGH SOTHEBY.

Alleged Borrowing of Show Birds at Chester.

SIR,—At the monthly meeting held at the club room "Nag's Head" Cocoa House, February 7th, no communication (either written or verbal) was received from the writer of the letter over the signature of "Subscriber," which appeared in CAGE BIRDS of January 21st, although I asked for particulars in your issue of January 28th.

Bird Life in the Winter Near Preston.

SIR,—I have to-day (February 13th) been visiting friends in a village a few miles from Preston. I was shown a beautiful Starling which had been shot and stuffed by them, and which was of a beautiful silver colour. It was like an ordinary Starling in every other feature, possessing the beautiful spangling and sheen peculiar to the Starling family, but was about the largest Starling I ever saw. I think it was a hen bird. Another feature of wild bird life about there (four miles from Preston) is the quantity of Gold-crested Wrens which abound in the winter time. They do an enormous amount of good to the fruit trees in the winter, living on the eggs of moths which do great damage to the trees in summer, if allowed to hatch.

The Crystal Palace Show.

A Question of Rules.

SIR,—In your very excellent report of the above show, I find two references to N.B.B. and M.C. rules—one stating that a Mule was wrong classed for not conforming to these rules, and the other stating that a Crested Lark was left out, possibly on account of its not being in the N.B.B. and M. Club's list of birds. In justice to the judges, I must state that the show was not held under N.B.B. and M.C. rules, but under the classification as printed in the schedule, to which the judges have assured me they strictly adhered, every bird being judged upon its merits, without consideration of any rule or bye-law of any club. I might add that there were 225 exhibitors in the Mule and British Champion Sections, and only 15 of these exhibitors indicated on their entry forms that they were members of the N.B.B. and M.C. Had it been intended for these sections to be judged under this club's rules, I should have had to print a copy of the club's rules and lists in the schedule for the information of non-members.

J. W. RAMSDEN, Show Manager.

A Question of Markings.

SIR,—At the Palace Show I saw a Mule marked in both wings was disqualified for being a two-pointed bird. Will the judge kindly say why the second prize bird, marked in both eyes, was not disqualified also? Many other novices, like myself, would like to know.

SIMPLE SIMON.

SIR,—How "Simple Simon," and the "many other novices" he mentions come to consider the second prize Goldfinch Mule (Mr. Longden's) as being marked on both eyes, I am puzzled to understand. It has a light tick near the left eye; otherwise the bird is clear. I see that one reporter actually took it to be a "clear." Further, such a mark as is found near the eye of Mr. Longden's bird is not recognised as a technical mark, so that even were there two of them (one near each eye) this bird would not be a two-pointed Mule. "Simple Simon," and his fellow novices, will find the difference 'twixt eye-marks proper and a foul-mark, or tick, fully explained by both letterpress and illustration in Mr. Houlton's work, "Cage Bird Hybrids," published at the office of CAGE BIRDS.

G. E. WESTON.

A Curious Sparrow.

SIR,—Can any of the numerous readers of CAGE BIRDS kindly tell me if my bird is of any value. It is a light cinnamon colour all over, with yellow legs and beak, and is a proper House Sparrow. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success, as it is such a valuable paper for information.—JAMES BROWN.

[Mr. Brown's bird has some value to collectors of rare-feathered specimens. He should invite offers for it through our advertising columns. White, cinnamon and silver coloured House Sparrows have often been exhibited at the Crystal Palace and other Shows.—EDITOR.]

The Experiences of a Canary Enthusiast.

SIR,—Like many others, from my earliest childhood I have possessed a devouring love and interest for anything living. Like others also, this love has been more especially centred on the winged creation. So, when but thirteen years of age, I must needs convert an old shed into a bird room, and start breeding on my own. Feverish with enthusiasm, I bought an old orango box and converted it into a most atrocious cage. There was a sliding partition in the middle (this, by the way, sometimes slid, but more often collapsed in the process); and the door was conspicuous by its absence, and so I had to undo the wire netting every morning to feed the unfortunate inhabitants. I paid a visit to a grown-up cousin who kept a great number of Canaries in aviaries. I possessed unbounded cheek, and I returned home the proud possessor of a hen Canary. I put this in one division of the cage, and kept it there (or, at least, tried to, for as often as not it appeared in the other). And there I stuck—I had no cock bird. However, I had a faint idea that a Linnet cock would breed with a Canary hen. So I saved a little money, and poring over the advertisements in CAGE BIRDS, decided to purchase a "cock Linnet, housemoulted, Mule breeder, on full song," etc., which I did for a few pence. The bird arrived, and I, knowing nothing about Linnets, was delighted. The fact that it never sang a note did not trouble me; I thought it due to the new surroundings, or else to the great attraction presented by the Canary. I need not dwell upon the proceedings that season. A fresh-caught Linnet hen (even if advertised as housemoulted cock) paired to a Canary hen never give great results. But nothing daunted I set to again the following season. I bought a Norwich hen, having previously made a new and a better cage. I also managed (with my usual cheek) to borrow a cock bird for a week. I put him with the hen, gave them a nest, and in four days she laid. All four eggs were fertile, but only one youngster hatched out. If the hen fed her young one twenty times a day, I fed it eighty. She was a priceless, patient mother, and I still regret her death the following winter. After this I confined myself to the Norwich—a variety I had always fancied. I had one hen who was a most perfect nest maker. I provided her with moss, and white and red cow hair. She never confused the two colours. She first made an outer lining of moss alone; next she covered this with white cow hair, very neatly and cleverly interwoven, finishing the nest with a lining of red cow hair. My first pair of Norwich were rather unfortunate. The hen was very masterful, and would always have her own way. It was certainly very amusing, but all the same, annoying, to watch the two "'arring and garring." But they never fought, for the simple reason that the cock believed discretion to be the better part of valour. She had that dog-in-the-manger disposition so common in Canaries. If the cock was eating, she must be eating, and she must be eating out of the same seed hole also, which led to much annoyance on the husband's part. If the cock was nibbling at the wires, she must nibble at the wires also. She laid four eggs at last, sat them out, but made very sure that her husband fed her continually. Only one egg was fertile; all the rest were clear. The hen refused to feed the nestling, although she sat on him at nights. However, the cock proved an ideal father, and reared him by himself. Next time they went one higher, and had two young birds. Since then I have had very fair success, but whether a fancier is successful or not on the show bench, I am certain he will find Canary keeping to be the most perfect and the most delightful hobby he ever took up.

Feeding the Sparrows.

Once when at my grandma's house I saw a lot of Sparrows. I asked her what this meant, and she told me that those birds came at that time every morning for their morning's meal. I was told to watch what they did. Following grandma into the garden, the birds flew to her and quickly took the soaked bread. They then flew into a tree close by. Grannie said the birds can hear her speak, for as soon as the plate is empty she says, "It is all gone," and the birds fly away and do not come again until the next morning.—Alfred Haskins, 3, Seneca Street, St. George's, Bristol.

*Defending the Weak.

A lad robbed a nest fifty yards from our house. My father took the two young Sparrows from him and put them in a box on the room window, where the old birds came and fed them until they were old enough to fly. We used to sit in the room and watch for the old birds to come to feed them.—James Shannon, No. 3, Percival Street, Old Swan, Liverpool.

*A Knowing Chaffinch.

One Sunday we let a Chaffinch away. It flew round the garden, as if to say, "I want to come back." The bird flew round the garden for a few days. One day my father left the aviary door open. The bird was just going to fly in the aviary, when it was frightened away, but I left the washhouse door open, and it flew in there, and I caught it. It must have been content with its home.—Sent by Joe Nicholson (age 13), 6, Weardale Place, Grange Estate, Stockton-on-Tees.

Singing Contests.

ERITH.

Royal Alfred Bird Club open race, held Feb. 12th, when 6 pairs were hung (10 minutes singing):—1, G. Roper, 4 score 8; 2, J. Baker, 2 score 17; 3, D. Wilders, 2 score 15; 4, C. Cunnew, 2 score 11; 5, F. Pope, 2 score 6. G. Roper winner of Mr. D. Jones's special prize (set of jugs). Open race Feb. 19th.—J. Baker, Hon. Sec.

DURHAM.

Linnet contest held Feb. 4th, "Black Horse," Elvet, when 16 birds entered. Result:—1, 2, 3, G. Showler; judge, Mr. T. Gibbons. Sec., Mr. D. Trotter. Same day, contest held at "Travellers' Rest," Gilesgate Moor. 36 birds sang. Result:—1, silver cup, R. Boyde; 2, A. Bailes, hard lines for a novice; 3, Page. Judge, Mr. J. Stout; timekeeper, T. Cammeron. Next contest Feb. 18, Mrs. Burrell's, Colliery Inn, Brandon. 10s. given to all entrance, meet 2 p.m.—Geo. Reed, Sec.

GLASSHOUGHTON.

Glasshoughton and Dis. Linnet Club held open sing Feb. 12th, Rock Inn, when 30 birds sang for three good prizes. Result:—1, Dobson; 2, Sweeting; 3, Potter. Open sing, Feb. 19th, Rock Inn, first bird hung 1 p.m. prompt.—R. Longfield, Sec.

CASTLEFORD.

Weekly Linnet contest, held George and Dragon, Bridge Street, 41 birds turning up to sing for three of the best prizes this year. After a very close match, result:—1, A. Fowler; 2, O. Potter; 3, B. Nelson. We should be pleased to have all Linnet fanciers from the surrounding districts present and make them members. Entrance fee 1/1, 2d per week.—Walter Dobson, Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD.

Feb. 12th, 16 birds entered (2 minutes time singing) for 3 specials:—Thompson, 1st and 2nd, 79 secs. each; Williamson, 3rd, 68 secs.; Williamson, 61 secs. Thompson, 53 secs.—A. Brown, Secretary.

Weekly Linnet singing contest, held Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford-st., Attercliffe Common, Feb. 5th, when there was a match between Mr. Brown and Mr. J. Rodgers, £1 a side, time singing, 3 minutes sing:—Brown won with 69 secs., Rodgers 62 secs. After the match, usual contest held, when 18 birds entered (3 minutes time singing):—Thompson took 1st and 3rd prizes, with 105 secs. and 78 secs; Brown, 2nd, with 95 secs.; Shimwell, 70; Baker, 61 secs.; Thompson, 60; Rodgers, 52 secs.; Williamson, 52.—A. Brown, Secretary.

WHITEHAVEN.

Whitehaven and Dis. Linnet S.A. indoor singing contest held headquarters, Harmless Hill, Feb. 4, when same was well patronised by fanciers. Seeing this was the first contest under Association rules, some excellent singing was witnessed, and resulted in Mr. Finnigan being first and second. At the close it was decided to hold the following contests on Saturday at Mr. Cunningham Ginns, Feb. 18, at Tooles, Arrowthwaite. The secretary of this new Cumberland Association is Mr. J. Parrish, King's Arms Hotel, Harmless Hill, Whitehaven.

BRANDON LINNET CLUB.

Meeting held Feb. 4th, Mrs. Burrell's Colliery Inn, when a large number of fanciers were present. Twenty-two were made members, and the following were elected officers:—President, Mr. J. Gilchrist; treasurer, C. Christon; sec., Geo. Reid. Next meeting Feb. 18th, when first payment is due, 1/3 per month. All fanciers who wrote sec. are accepted, and we are still open for any others.—Geo. Reid, Sec.

GLASGOW.

City of Glasgow Linnet S.C. usual weekly contest held Mr. Muir's, Saltmarket, Feb. 11th. Result: Nelson 1, McMillan 2, Pullan 3; judge, Mr. Moulden; timekeeper, Mr. McKay. Contest, Feb. 18th, 4 p.m. The club will hold a show of house and field moulted Linnets and field-moulted Goldfinches, March 2nd, the two first prize birds of previous show debarred.—W. Ross.

BLACKBURN

Blackburn quality Linnet S.A., Old Red Lion, Snig Brook. Linnet singing contest for quality held Feb. 11th, when 12 birds competed for three good prizes given by Mrs. Morris. 1, W. H. Topping; 2, A. Catterall; 3, H. Dugdale. Judge, Mr. Catterall; timekeeper, Mr. Topping; Vice-President, E. Christopherson.

LEEDS.

Leeds Linnet F.A., King's Head. Usual quality singing contest held February 11th, when 13 birds entered for 3 good prizes. 1, 2, Stead; 3, Prince. Judges, Messrs. W. Naylor and J. Mealla. Also February 12th, when 20 birds sang to a large company from all parts of Yorkshire. Winner turned out to be Mr. J. Varley's dark one that there has been a lot of talk about, but this was the first time we have had the pleasure of hearing it. 1, J. Varley; 2, Sissons; 3, Hayes; 4, shared by H. Wigfield and W. Sissons. Judges, Messrs. W. Naylor, J. Melia, and C. Cooper. Next Saturday's match, first bird up 2.30, when we have our Lancashire members coming.—W. Sissons, Hon. Sec.

Skinner Arms Linnet F.A., Buslingthorpe Lane. Usual quality singing contest held Feb. 12, when 13 birds competed, and some good singing was heard. Result: 1, Green; 2, Ward; 3, Hutchinson. Judges, Messrs. Grainger and Read. Also on above date Canary contest, 7 birds competed. Result: 1, Green; 2, Noble. Judges, Messrs. Lunn and Kibler.—Wm. Lunn, Hon. Sec.

Usual quality singing contest held Prince Albert Hotel, Newtown, Feb. 12, when some of the best birds in England competed. Result: 1, 2, shared by Butler and Brophy; 3, Chip. Judges, Messrs. A. Binns and J. Clarke.—J. Smith, Hon. Sec.

First Saturday quality singing Linnet contest this year, held Plasterer's Arms, Skinner Lane, Feb. 11th, when 20 birds faced the judges, P. Soloman and P. Madden. 1, J. Green; 2, J. Hargreaves; 3, F. Dean. A dispute arose, 'twixt Farrer and Dean re 3rd prize, so a match was sung and Tommy Johnson was called in as a neutral judge. Dean was again winner. Match, Feb. 18th, commence 3 o'clock, also Feb. 19th, 1 p.m. Will fanciers from away please note, a big match will be held at above house, Feb. 25th; so if they like to enter will they let me have their names previous to the contest.—Joe Hargreaves.

A LONDON FANCIER FIGHTING THE FLAMES.

Is Presented with a Gold Watch for his Pluck.

Mr. H. E. Tringham (of Rotherhithe), well-known in the London Cage Bird Fancy, recently had his plucky action and presence of mind at a big London fire fittingly rewarded by being presented with a gold English lever watch, inscribed with his initials and the date of the fire. We heard of the incident quite by accident, at the recent Crystal Palace Show. On October 7th last, Mr. Tringham was rudely awakened at about 3.30 a.m. by the violent ringing of the bells. His bedroom was brilliantly lighted by the glare of the flames, which he found issued from his firm's refining house, a three-storey building, 70 feet by 40 feet. It did not take him long to "sprint" up the street (very lightly and "airily" clad) to the fire alarm, and before long several contingents of the Fire Brigade arrived in force, including the chief officer, and also that of the Salvage Corps. The articles handled in the business, though not volatile, are, we were informed, very inflammable, and the firemen's task was, therefore, not an easy one. It was due mostly to the efforts of the river floats "Alpha" and "Beta" that the fire was eventually subdued, after doing damage to the extent of £15,000. The streets thereabouts are very narrow, and the salvage men had the unique experience of having to wade knee-deep through linseed oil. Amid the excitement, Mr. Tringham was not slow to determine how best to act in the interests of "the kindest and most indulgent of masters" (to quote Mr. Tringham himself). He at once directed the attention of the Brigade chiefs to the most vulnerable spots of the manufactory; with the result that the spread of the fire to the storage tanks was effectually prevented. Had the tanks been overtaken by the fire, it would have been a calamity indeed for the neighbourhood. The authorities were quick to recognise the value of Mr. Tringham's pluck and presence of mind, and the inscribed watch which they presented to our friend has given him considerable pleasure to accept, although he tells us that his surprise was not less considerable.

In the Courts.

PARROT DEALERS IN TROUBLE.

Curious Case at Sheffield.

A dozen or so Parrot-lovers assembled in the Sheffield Stipendiary's Court on January 23rd, watched with amused interest the hopeful but futile efforts of their former owner to extract from alleged Parrots an acknowledgement of his entreating overtures. "Pretty Polly" returned only an unsympathising stare. "They're shy and sulky in strange surroundings, your Worship," was the explanation vouchsafed by the baffled bird fancier, James Marshall, of Fisher-gate, Nottingham. He was charged with obtaining money by false pretences by selling birds falsely described as "talking parrots."

Mr. P. Blyth Richardson, who prosecuted, said that since 1892 the prisoner had been "living as a vulture on the public, and has been exceedingly fortunate in having so far escaped the clutches of the law." He and his father had been advertising "talking Parrots" for sale. Mr. Richardson read the advertisements inserted by the defendant, who, he said, enlisted the sympathy of his prospective customers with a story of the loss of a pony, and the consequent economy he was reluctantly compelled to practice by the sale of his "pet Parrot." Since the first hearing of the case last week, a large number of people had communicated with the police and himself complaining that they had been similarly swindled. It had been the practice, pursued Mr. Richardson, of prisoner to sell to these people Cockatoos worth approximately 2s. 6d. each, which could not, and never would, talk.

Prisoner interposed the objection that the birds were not Cockatoos, and could talk if people gave them time enough.—The Stipendiary: Never mind, don't talk so much, you can sell them cock-a-doodle-doos if you like (laughter).

Detective-Officer Plant proved arresting prisoner at Nottingham. He expressed his willingness to return the money.—Mr. Richardson: I believe you have been getting a nice collection of Cockatoos at the police station?—Detective Plant: Some people have brought the birds, but a lot of them have left them at home. One has since died.—Mr. Richardson: Died in a vain effort to talk. (Laughter.)

Mrs. Bridgford, Chippingham-street, Attercliffe, proved giving £1 5s. for the bird, with the promise of another 5s. if it proved able to talk at the end of the week. The bird never spoke. Some days later she happened to be coming to Sheffield Police-station to tell all about her transaction when she saw the prisoner coming down the station steps with another two "pet Parrots." She went with him to the police-station. He had assured her that the bird could talk, quoting such remarks as "Kiss Polly," "Fetch Polly's breakfast," "watercress," "cats," "dogs," "good morning," etc.

Mr. J. Holland, and Mr. T. Harding Jarvis gave similar evidence of having bought birds that had shown no signs of talking.—Mr. Richardson mentioned the particulars of numerous other cases. In some of these prisoner had adopted other names—"Eaton," "William Baxter," etc.

At the Stipendiary's suggestion the prisoner went into the box and exercised all his powers to induce the birds to speak, but without effect. Later in the hearing, however, the birds emitted shrill screeches, to the great amusement of the court, and provoking the Sitpendiary's comment: "They're finding their voices now."

Stephen Marshall, of the same address, was then put into the box and charged with obtaining by similar false pretences the sum of 25s. from J. M. Benson, Broad-street, Sheffield.

Mr. Richardson said that at the last hearing this man came forward as "the poor old father whose son had the misfortune to land himself in the clutches of the law"; he told his Worship what a good boy his son had been, and, added Mr. Richardson, "I believe his Worship was rather impressed by this patriarch. Since then further inquiries were made, with the result that he appears to have been running the whole show, and his two sons have sold the birds, and when they have got into trouble this old hypocrite has come forward as the distressed parent pleading for leniency." It had also become necessary for the mother to come forward and speak of her son's innocence.

In the case of the father, the Stipendiary held that it was more a case of breach of guarantee than of false pretences, and dismissed the case with the remark: "You had better make the birds talk as well as you do yourselves, and you will then get on all right."

The son asked for an adjournment to enable him to show that the birds could talk, as he was confident he could do this.—The Stipendiary acceded to this request, and granted an adjournment till Monday next.

Mr. Richardson: Well, it is causing endless trouble. We shall have some more fun out of this. If the case is adjourned I shall lay a lot more information in respect to these other cases.

The adjournment was, however, granted, bail being allowed.—"Nottingham Guardian."

We understand that at the adjourned hearing the case was sent to the assizes for trial.

I think the coloured pictures in your birthday number most beautiful and interesting, and especially the "Wild Plants and Seeds." I wish I had known of all those seeds before; I should have laid in a good supply for winter use.—Mrs. E. M. Sargeant (Worcester).

The Shows.

ATTERCLIFFE AND DIST. C.B.S.

Successful combined show of matched pairs for breeding held recently. Our club-room is an ideal one for a small show, and is also very well lighted. A most enjoyable time was spent by members and their friends. Mr. J. Perry placed the cards, and Mr. W. Walker made a very efficient steward.

LEADGATE AND DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting and table show held Feb. 4th, Church Square Hall, Mr. E. Westthorp presiding. There was a good turn-up of members. The secretary's duties were carried out by Mr. J. Dickenson, in place of Mr. J. A. Turnhull, who acted as judge, his awards giving entire satisfaction. During judging the members held their meeting, when it was decided to pay 10s. per class for annual show. Some good exhibits were shown in British and pair classes, which formed a special feature.

LOWESTOFT AND DIST. C.B.S.

Show of pairs of Norwich and Crests matched for breeding held at meeting-house, February 6th, when the grand total of 41 pairs faced the judge, Mr. A. Parke, who kindly officiated in place of Mr. Bedwell, who was unable to judge as announced. Amongst the 29 pairs of Plainheads were some real good pairs which required some sorting out. Mr. Hart eventually secured premier honours in both classes. We hope to see as good an entry next meeting night, March 6th, at a table show of 2 classes—yellow cock and buff cock. Mr. Howard Bunn kindly promised a silver medal for best yell. cock, and Mr. Kirk silver medal for best buff cock. Mr. Hart has kindly consented to judge, and will not exhibit.

CODNOR PK. & EASTWOOD C.B.S.

Stock pair show held Club Room, Portland Arms, Jacksdale, Feb. 11. The number of birds fell below last year's pair show, but what was lacking in quantity was made up for in quality. It is not encouraging for the committee to arrange shows if members are not going to patronise them, as it means unnecessary expense. Mr. B. Simpson placed the awards.

ARDWICK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held February 7th, Onward Hall, Mr. W. Rohinson presided over a good muster of members and friends. After usual business the first of the series of table shows for Yorkshire pairs was held. Mr. Slater (Wilmslow) judged, and his awards gave general satisfactiou. Before announcing the awards ten members took part in an amateur judging competition, and Mr. Gowenlock was declared winner, with Mr. Yeates second. Next meeting Feb. 21st, table show of Nor. stock pairs, judge Mr. J. Rayues (Manchester). Birds staged 8 p.m. Two sections (open and amateur) and (novice). Some good specials in store. Fanciers and friends invited. Result of table show:

VALE OF LEVEN C.B.C.

This recently formed C.B.C. held its first exhibition of matched pairs, February 7th, Village School Room, Alexandria; and it was a decided success. There was a large attendance of members and friends to see an excellent collection of pairs. Mr. J. Hannah (President) occupied the chair, being supported by Mr. A. Lees (Hon. Vice-President) and Mr. J. W. Bell (Vice-President). The criticism, being keen and enthusiastic, proved the educational value of such discussions. Hybrids set the hall a-rolling, and it was eventually agreed that Mr. J. M. Kirdy's pair Greenfinch-Bullfinch was the most likely to produce the most popular Hybrids. The Finch and Canary class proved the tit-bit of the evening, a very animated discussion taking place as to whether Mr, A. Thom's Linnet-Canary or Mr. J. Lile's Goldfinch-Canary pair were the best. Mr. M'Lean's pair were the admired Norwich, and in Scots Fancies a good general discussion took place, Messrs. Thom and M'Lean being the favourites. Borders found Mr. J. Campbell leading with his yell. cock, 1st Uddingston, etc., and buff variegd. hen, Mr. J. Crow's pair running them close. Eight new members were admitted, viz., Messrs. A. Campbell, H. Hannah, D. Steven, J. Stevenson, J. Proctor, H. Irwin, J. Linton, and P. Campbell. Next meeting same place, March when Mr. J. Hannah will give a lecture on "British birds (hardbills) and their Management." Visitors invited.—A. H. McLean.

YARM, EAGLESCLIFFE AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Second table show held February 3rd. There were some capital entries, and local rivalry very keen. Chief prize winners were: Messrs. J. Henderson, F. Danby, H. Garhutt, A. Clement, C. Willis, C. Johnson, W. Harwood, W. Smith, and E. Wilson. Judge, Mr. F. Marwood (Thornaby). Next meeting February 24th.—Thos. Wilson, Sec.

NORTHERN B.B.M. AND F.B.C.

Meeting held Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger Street, Newcastle, on Jan. 25th. Report of show season was gone through. Medal winners resulted as follows: Messrs. J. Forster and R. GLASGOW (West End) C.B.A.

Meeting and table show of matched pairs held Clarendon Hall, Feb. 10th. There was a splendid turn-out, no less than 62 pairs facing the judges. This is really grand, considering this is the first pairs show the club has had. The quality was excellent. Judges: For Canary pairs, Mr. J. Young, and for Muling and Hybrid Pairs, Mr. R. V. Raine. Their awards were well received. While the judging was in progress, the meeting was held in the side room, Mr. H. Jamieson presiding over a large attendance. Twelve new members were enrolled. viz.: Messrs. J. Phillips, W. McManus, T. Baird, J. Rogers, A. Thomson, J. Bannerman, W. Armstrong, A. Kinneburgh, J. Houstou, G. Corner, R. Brown, and W. Davidson.

HULL CAGE BIRD SOCIETY.

First members' show of the year held Feb. 6, Oddfellows' Hall. 83 pairs were staged, and some grand pairs were on view. Messrs. Geo. Brumby and J. Calam were the elected judges, but Mr. Calam declined the honour, and Mr. R. Barwick officiated in his place. Mr. Brumby judged the Norwich classes and the Champion A.O.V., Mr. Barwick taking the Yorks and the Novice A.O.V. Mr. Thirsk offered a cash special for best pair, and this was won by Mr. Stamford.

NOTTINGHAM (Permanent) C.S.

Table show held Feb. 11, it being a thorough success, no less than 62 birds being staged in the classes, making a grand show. The judges—Messrs. W. H. Raven (British) and L. Burrows (Canaries)—placed the awards to everyone's satisfaction, and the society are grateful to them. Owing to the excellent manner in which members and friends pushed the sale of admission tickets, about 500 were disposed of, the society benefiting considerably thereby. A good singing Canary was kindly presented by Mr. J. Alsebrooke, to be given to a ticket holder, the lucky drawer being Mr. Winfield; 3 specials (one in each section) value 7s. 6d. each, and consisting of a beautiful gilt picture, a set of vases, and clock, and a copper kettle, were won by Messrs. J. Smedley (Norwich), J. Goode (British), and H. Cowpertwait (Crest). The society's thanks are due to Messrs. T. H. V. Hayter, and J. Bowers for their generosity in giving two of the specials, also to Mr. J. Bunn for the efficient manner in which he performed his secretarial duties.

NOR. CK. (8): 1, 3, Smedley, 1st buff tkd., well-known winner, needs no comment; 2, Hill, grand yell. tkd., close runner-up. HEN (5): 1, 2, Smedley, both cl. buffs, exceptional quality and col.; 3, Hill, cl. yell., nice tight specimen. CREST (8): 1, 3, J. Cowpertwait, both showing exceptionally good head feather of nice radiation; 2, H. Cowpertwait, varieg., very little to choose between this and first; 4, Bowers, nice grizzle Crest. C.B. (11): 1, H. Cowpertwait, large varieg., regular "beak-ender," one of the best in show; 2, Barker, similar to winner, not quite so good in head; 3, Davis, varieg., smaller in skull; 4, Bowers; 5, Davis. LINNET, ETC. (12): Owing to the variety, the British classes were extremely hard to judge, but the general opinion was that Mr. Raven did remarkably well: 1, Wood, Linnet, recently-caught, and as this astute fancier showed it in preference to his others, no further comment is necessary; 2, Bunn, Greenfinch, one of the finest coloured specimens we have met, would make a regular stormer if a bit larger; 3, 4, Goode, 3rd Linnet, exceptionally well marked specimen; 4, Twite, grand bird; 5, Hayter. GOLDFINCH, ETC. (13): 1, Goode, Goldfinch, cl. cut cap, good col., nice buttons; 2, Hayter, Bramblefinch, typical specimen, nicely spangled, exceptional col.; 3, Smedley, Bullfinch, field-moulted, like wax, perfect cap, very rich breast; 4, Saywell, Goldfinch, good specimen; 5, Bunn. A.O.S. BRIT. (6): 1, Goode,, Yellowhammer, undoubtedly grand specimen, col., and markings perfect; 2, Harrison, Wheatear, large specimen, beautiful condition and col.; 3, Handley, Hawfinch, extra large specimen, good show points: 4, Hayter.

CLYDEBANK & DISTRICT C.B C.

Pair show, held usual meeting place, Feb. 9th. Great credit was due to Mr. Miller (Annesland) for the satisfactory way in which he judged. Being a newly-formed club the classes were exceedingly well filled, especially the Plainhead and Muling classes. The enthusiasm displayed by the members present shows every one has the welfare of the club at heart. At meeting held during judging, Mr. Tawse presided, owing to the indisposition of our worthy chairman, Mr. Sheridan. Mr. C. Hamilton was proposed a new member.

BANBURY (Oxon).

Twenty-second annual show of the Banbury C.B., etc., Society held Cadbury Memorial Hall, Feb. 7th and 8th. The entry was the best for some years past. The veteran, Mr. H. Dale, as usual, was very busy in our section. We trust this Society will see their way to make a better classification next year. Mr. G. A. Townsend (Leeds) judged.

NOR.: 1, 2, sp, Hall, leader good unflig. cl. yell., grand shape and quality, short wings and tail, grand condition, 2nd buff tkd. on head, very typical, short, thick set, good Nor. throughout; 3, hc, Butler, another fine specimen; res, Lovegrove; c, Grant. QUEEN'S PARK AND DIST. C.B.A.

Matched pairs show held Feb. 11th, Mr. H. Peverall officiating as judge. The exhibits numbered 84—76 pairs and 8 singles being staged, which was 7 less than last year. The awards were well received. A good muster of visitors attended during the evening, among them being several prominent London fanciers. A very pleasant feature was some good records on a gramaphone. The show should prove a financial success from the number of tickets sold.

SHEFFIELD O.S.

Meeting held Feb. 7th, headquarters, Rose and Crown Hotel, Waingate, where a large and enthusiastic number of members turned up, the Chairman (Mr. T. Down) presiding. Confirmation of Secretary's report of work done, also some business, etc., transacted, the chief of which was the election of 18 new members. We are anticipating another 18 or 20 new members next meeting night. The event of the evening was a table show of matched pairs Canaries for breeding, prizes 5/-, 2/6, and 1/6, with no entry fee. This is where the members get "something for nothing." There was an exceptionally good show of birds. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) placed the cards. Mr. Barnes afterwards made some interesting remarks as to how the birds had fared. The merits of each particular variety were considered, and what were the chief faults to watch and guard against, both in buying stock and matching birds. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Barnes. Don't forget our next meeting, March 7th, when a lecture on the Yorkshire Canary will be given by Mr. W. Mundell (Bradford). The Committee will have a pleasant surprise for members (see CAGE BIRDS during the next few weeks), something that will no doubt be appreciated by both old and new fanciers. Membership now totals 50 paying members, and we are only two months old! 1, Crookes, pair of Crests; 2, Bishop, 2 pairs Yorks; 3, Woodall, 2 pairs Nor.; 4, Hadkin, Crests; res, Moor, Crests; c, Elshaw.—John A. T. Woodall, Correspondent.

SANDY.

Second quarterly meeting and show of the Sandy and District F. and F.S. held Town Hall, Feb. 9th, and proved a great success. The Secretary, Mr. J. Kent, ably assisted by Mr. F. W. Western, together with an enthusiastic committee, carried out their duties in a businesslike manner, and everything went off with a swing. There was a good attendance, and the balance at the finish was on the right side. Mr. Palmer (Glamlingay) judged the cage birds, and gave general satisfaction. The quality of the birds was really very excellent for a local show, and augurs well for the future.

NOR. CK.: 1, spl, 2, res, hc, Thompson, 1st very fine typical buff, rare sweep of chest, grand quality, 2nd lovely mkd. buff, excelling in quality; 3, Wilmot, another very fine big buff with rare body, good head; vhc, Kingston; hc, Thurley. LEICESTER (Combined).

Members of the Leicester Hand-in-Hand and Leicester C.B. Societies held a most successful joint show Jan. 28, White Swan Hotel, Market Place. Classes were well filled, and the competition was keen, the Goldfinch class being one of the best got together in Leicester, 20 facing the judge, some well-known winners having to stand down. Needless to say, the winner changed hands at a good figure, and it has gone into a sportsman's hands; with a good moult, more will be heard of it. The judges finished in good time, and everything was ready nearly an hour before stated time for opening show. Judges: Open Section, Mr. G. W. Wheatley; Novice Section, Mr. F. Harrison; and British, Yorkshires, and Borders, Mr. W. Judd.

MILLOM.

Millom and Dist. C.B.A., 7th annual show held in the spacious Drill Hall, on Feb. 11th. The hall is a well lighted and most suitable rendezvous for a show. The entry totalled about 80 birds (confined to a radius of a few miles). Owing to some slight misunderstanding, some 50 or 60 entries failed to be made from one or two large fanciers, and enthusiasts in the district. We trust matters will be put in order and that another year all the available show birds will be present. All the leading lights of the district lent their patronage, and the committee is composed of the following: Chairman, Mr. S. Withington, and Messrs. P. Davies, F. Coulson, W. J. Park, W. R. Watson, H. Baines, J. Bertram, H. Bell, J. Evans, A. Wood, W. Denny, T. Vernon; Hon. Treas., W. Park; Hon. Sec., F. W. Bradley. Three money prizes and specials for each class were offered for a 1s. entry fee. Some very nice Yorkshires and Borders were shown, a team of the latter being the successful winners of the champion cup belonging to Mr. W. Park. The winning yellow ben is a gem, and we were told she was the runner-up last year for cup. Taken all through, it made a very nice show of good birds, some very pretty Mules and British and Foreign birds being staged. Mr. Chas. Houlton judged, and his work was well received.

The Critique.

Who is the Champion IN YORKSHIRES, 1910-11?

Read below, and judge for yourself. With 153 entries I have won 61 1sts, 23 2nds, 20 3rds, 15 4ths, 24 spls., making a grand total of 143 prizes. I have also won in the very keenest competition shows; have won Yorkshire Union 30-guinea challenge trophy, which makes it twice in succession, also Naylor Challenge Trophy, also twice in succession, and Ramsden 6-guinea cup, which makes this twice in succession, and now becomes my own property; also Y.C.C. 7-guinea challenge trophy, and the cinnamon marked competition prize for the man who has bred his own winners. Have also won three gold medals, few cage birds prizes, and colour food prizes too numerous to mention, and last, but not least, with 8 entries at 1911 Palace Show, capturing 5 1sts, 1 2nd, 1 3rd, 1 vhc, and championship diploma best cinnamon marked birds. I think this will convince you that I hold the plums in the Yorkshire Fancy. Have still a few 20/- pairs and some pairs extra good at very reasonable prices; stamp particulars: Bailey, South View-te., Sandy-lane, Allerton, Bradford.

A MARVEL FOR THE MONEY

Mr. J. Thomson, of 29, Naburn-st., Glasgow, writes, Feb. 3, '11:—I must certainly congratulate you on the bird you sent me last week. It is really a marvel for the money. I shall recommend you to all my friends. Never saw anything to equal them. Thanks for birds; I am highly delighted with them; they are a splendid pair. I never saw anything to equal them yet, and I have seen a great many.—J. J. Connelly to G. Taylor. Arrived in good condition and well pleased.

From 16, Cambridge-rd., Kingswilliamstown, South Africa, received Feb. 4, '11:—Birds arrived quite safely and in good condition, per S.S. Kenilworth Castle, and am well pleased with all of them.—S. L. Domoney to G. Taylor.

I have thousands of flattering letters like above, all filed for inspection.

for Yorkshires, Canaries, to breed own winners; having bred and sold winners to leading exhibitors in Yorkshire, we are prepared to offer 50 pairs of Yorkshires, own breeding, from 10/6 to 30/- per pair; odd cocks or hens from 5/- to 30/-; on approval, cash or deposit; stamp particulars: Granville Aviaries, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

On account of continued illness, am reluctantly compelled to sell practically my whole stock of Yorkshires (about 300), inluding past season's breeders, in all varieties excepting whole Greens; to induce early sales, will allow all purchasers a reduction of 20 per cent. from current list prices, which will be forwarded free on receipt of postcard addressed to Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire. See breeder's card.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

Continued ill-health compels me to sell present stock of Yorkshires (about 200) including breeders and youngsters in all varieties, except whole greens; to effect early sales have reduced current price list 20 per cent.; amateurs and novices requiring birds of best type and quality at fully half prices charged by professional exhibitors and dealers, should before purchasing elsewhere forward postcard for season's list: Particulars to the old 30 years' recognised Yorkshire breeder, Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

CHITTENDEN'S YORKSHIRES

have a wide world's reputation; nothing but the best kept, and bred by me; this stud has achieved more successes at home and abroad than any other in existence. See our wins in Australia last show season, as well as at home at all shows of note, as Halliday and Chittenden. I have some splendid pairs for disposal at 15/- to 50/-; single cocks or hens, 6/-, 10/-, 15/-, to 50/- each, in clears, ticks, or varicgated, yellows or buffa, all on approval: 108, Bolton Hall-rd., Bolton Woods, Bradford.

SUCH VALUE IS EXCEPTIONAL.

Mr. Hawkes is offering the remainder of his typical stock of exhibition Yorkshires at a great sacrifice, on account of pressure of business and having no time for exhibiting, offers buffs and yellowa, cocks or hens, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; every bird fit for immediate showing at classical shows, and are sent out on seven days' approval, no matter whether cash is sent direct or deposited with Editor; inspection invited; the better the fanciers the more they are appreciated.
390, GROVE GREEN ROAD, LEYTONSTONE

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, 'Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

"WHY BE HUMBUGGED?"

"3, York Road, Newport, Mon., Feb. 18, 1911.—Dear Sir,—Permit me to express myself highly pleased at the excellent manner in which you have dealt with my small order. I at first wondered whether your very low prices would be indicative of poor quality, but I am pleased to say that I have agreeably found that you give the best quality at the lowest prices, and this being so, I cannot refrain from acknowledging your good terms. I myself have only just entered into the Fancy in a small way, and therefore will be unable to have the pleasure of forwarding you any further orders just at present, but I will not fail to bring your name before any friends who may have orders to pass along. Again thanking you for your kind attention, and also for the excellent way in which my small order was packed.—I am, Faithfully yours, Wm. E. Sturley.—Mr. Wm. Pimm, Birmingham." THE BEST ADVT.

is the continuous recommendation of an ever-increasing circle of satisfied customers. Whenever birds are talked of the word passes on from friend to friend that the man who can always be relied upon to supply highest quality stock at rock-bottom price is Gore, of Birmingham, and to prove this, all are sent on approval on the distinct understanding that unless perfectly satisfactory birds have only to be returned, as per rules of "Cage Birds," and back comes the whole of your money. I have a splendid lot of genuine Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, all well caged, steady, and in perfect condition, at 2/- each; specially selected large cocks, in free song, been caged months, 3/-, and 4/- each; cage-moulted cocks, in full song and finger-tame, 5/- each; few splendid Siberian cock Goldfinches, exceptionally strong and vigorous, been flying in aviary since November, and just the thing for muling, 6/- each; genuine hand-reared German hen Bullfinches, guaranteed feed from hand, ideal birds for hybridising, 5/- each; cock Linnets, in song, 1/- each, three 2/-; selected larger cocks, very steady, for exhibition, muling, or contest singing, 1/6, 2/-, and 2/6 each; cock or hen Mealy Redpolls, 1/- each, three 2/-; few extra large red-breasted cocks, 1/6 each; cock Greenfinches, 6d. each, three 1/-; selected yellow cocks, 1/- each; cock Chaffinches, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6; selected cocks, in song, 1/6 each; cock Goldfinch Mules, in full free song day and gaslight, 6/- each; hand-reared finger-tame Jay and Magpie, guaranteed both talking, 5/- each; Linnets, Goldfinch, or Bullfinch cages, 6d. each, six 2/6, twelve 4/6. CLOSING STAGE of C. Prior's dispersal sale of high-class British Finches. Below is a complete list of bargains still on hand. In perusing same, kindly bear in mind these facts. Firstly, that unless each of these birds were of more than average merit, they would not be admitted to my collection. Secondly, that they are now well domesticated, none of them having been in captivity for less than 4 months, and most of them considerably longer. Being also in tip-top health they are real treasures for the coming breeding season, as well as probable winners after the moult. Thirdly, the prices asked are ridiculously below their actual value. Ten Lesser Redpolls, marvels of colour, quality, and markings, 2/6 each; 6 Siskins, large, well laced, and brightly coloured, 5/- each; 8 hen Siskins, sweetly laced, very docile, sure breeders, 2/6 each; 20 Linnets, full sized birds, colour, shape, markings, etc., all A1, 3/6 and 5/- each; 8 Chaffinches, the right sort, marvellous quality, fascinating colour contrasts, 3/6 each; 12 Bramblefinches, fine size and colour, grand beads, perfect spangling, 3/- each; 5 Greenfinches, good yellows, suitable for breeding purposes, 2/6 each; 10 Goldfinches, large size, rich colour, grand feather, full song, 7/6 each; 6 house-moulted Linnets, for breeding or local shows, 6/- each, all singing; house-moulted Yellowhammer, winner, 6/-; 2 others, good ones, 3/6 each: C. Prior, 50, Kew Bridge-rd., Brentford.

CRYSTAL Pedigree Norwich. PALACE

Grand lot of surplus stock for new beginners. This is a fact. One of my discarded birds, which I put out last year, through being too small, bred me 5 unflighted birds, which have all won this year. This proves what good results may come from getting the right strain, apart from appearances. If you do not keep Norwich, now is your chance to start; pairs 10/- to 15/-; odd cocks 7/6; send postal orders without delay: Jas. E. Davies, Winner of the Crystal Palace diploma 1911, and N.P.C. Cup 1909-10, and many other specials, 200, Higher Brinksway, Stockport.

E. BAKER,

Breeder and exhibitor of high-class champion Norwich. Can spare a few more good birds from his noted Crystal Palace strain. Pairs from 20/- upwards, single birds, cocks from 15/-, hens from 10/-. If you want to win, this is the strain to breed with. Winner of 10 cups, also 25 guinea challenge bowl and other prizes too numerous to mention: Victoria Aviaries, 14, High-st., Cowes, I.O.W.

W. N. TURNER,

Winner of 600 Honours at Principal Shows

having added to his valuable stock of Norwich the contents of W. E. Espley's room, comprising his winners and stock birds, is now prepared to offer at reasonable prices champion show or grand stock birds; see show reports of Manchester, Bolton, Wellingboro', Crew, Eccles, Sale, Altrincham, and Pendleton, etc. Inspection invited; approval.

3a, PERCIVAL-ST., HIGHTOWN, MANCHESTER.

ARMED POLICE

Were the police armed it might be better for some things, but it would not get them any better birds than I will send you. I guarantee you the same high quality at the same moderate prices that has made the demand for my birds so great. I have rooms full of pure prize bred birds of such high quality that is seldom seen in one building. It is a show worth seeing. Just call and inspect them for yourself: you will be delighted, and I am sure will see just the birds you require. I have published thousands of testimonials, and still keep receiving them by every post from delighted customers. Here are one or two just received:—"Feb. 11, 1911.—Bessemer-st., Ferryhill.—Birds arrived all right, safe and sound. Am very pleased. He suits me, being such a nice bird and singing so well.—J. Roper." "11/2/11. 10, Mengates Buildings, Bath.—Received bird in good condition. Am quite satisfied with it.—W. Beakstone." "Woodend, Cleator, 11/2/11.—Bird arrived safe. I am highly satisfied.—T. Lowens." "97, Castle Hill, Reading, 11/2/11.—Bird arrived quite safe. Am well pleased with it. Thanks for your prompt attention.—O. Smith." "174, Worrington-st., North Kensington, 8/2/11.—Bird arrived, safe and sound, in the best condition. Thanking you for the businesslike manner in dealing with my order, which will make me recommend you to everyone requiring birds; wishing you every success.—F. Lee." "12, Midton-st., Glasgow, 11/2/11.—Received birds, and we are highly delighted with same; they are in splendid condition after journey.—J. Johnson." "Twyford, Molton, Mowbray, 9/2/11.—Birds arrived quite safe; they give great satisfaction. They are two very nice birds. I shall favour you with next order.—J. Burton." "Bunkers Hook, 11/2/11.—Received Roller quite safe; am very pleased; it is just the bird I wanted.—G. Chandler." I could fill this page with such letters as above received this month. Send a post card for my illustrated price list. My stock of Rollers is second to none. YOU'LL NEVER LIVE to regret having bought the best, and the best Rollers on the market are those imported by me from Leipzig, as the continuous stream of unsolicited testimonials I have published week by week for years past testify. I have a very select stock of these Leipzig Rollers, all in full song, day and gaslight with long rolls, sweet silvery trills, water bubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, bell, harp, and gong notes, and jug-jug of Nightingale and guaranteed entirely free from harsh or objectionable notes, price 8/6 and 10/- each; special bandmasters, which excel in the deep hollow rolls, etc., 12/6 each; Leipzig Roller hens, guaranteed same strain, 2/6 each, 4/6 couple; I also have a few genuine Glucke bred contest Rollers, in magnificent song and condition, price 15/- and 20/- each; Glucke hens, guaranteed genuine, 3/6 each, 6/- couple. These contest birds are from Germany's most eminent breeders and bluest blood extant. Hartz hens (oftimes sold as Roller hens), 2/- each; special Roller singing cabinet cages, with loose fronts and folding doors, 2/6 and 8/6 each; I also have a grand collection of prize-bred Yorkshire cocks and hens, long leggy cocks, in full song and feathered like wax, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, and 10/- each; hens 3/-, 3/6, and 4/- each; large chubby Norwich cocks, in full song, 6/- and 7/6 each; Norwich hens, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6 each; all properly packed free of charge and sent on full week's trial at my risk on receipt of cash or deposit system, and unless fullest satisfaction is given bird has only to be returned and the whole of your money is promptly and cheerfully refunded. Note:- Full name and address with each of following letters:—"554, Liverpool Road, Platt Bridge, nr. Wigan. Feb. 20. Sir,—Please send three Rollers as follows. This is sixth time I have dealt with you and keep being pleased each time.—Yours, J. Meek." "19, Inglestone Street, Greenock. Feb. 20. Sir,—Received Roller safe. Many thanks for straightforwardness and promptness. He is best bird I ever had from England, so please send two more. My friends who have heard this one are so delighted that they all want one.—Yours, Hugh Ogg." "Coventry, Feb. 19. Sir,—Bird arrived safe and soon gave satisfaction, as he commenced singing almost directly. Thanks for promptness.—Yours, A. Borton." "Newland Street, Sandal, nr. Wakefield, Feb. 19. Sir,—Received bird safe and am quite satisfied, as he sung day of arrival.—Yours, J. Hammoud." "Fore Street, Copperhouse. Feb. 18. Sir,—Received bird and am well satisfied. I advise all my friends to give you a trial. I have dealt with a good many dealers, but I find you are the most straightforward in sending what you advertise.—Yours, J. Farrell." "282, Whalley Range, Blackburn. Feb 15. Sir,—Please send Bandmaster Roller. All that you have sent me have been in fine condition and song.—Yours, J. Fisher." "3, Mount, Stalybridge. Feb. 13. Sir,—Received Roller in splendid condition and sang immediately on being unpacked, and is a gem. This being third bargain from you.—Yours, E. Ollerenshaw." "2, Loanpit Vale, Lewisham, London, Feb. 13. Sir,—Please send following. The five cocks I had from you have all turned out beauties they sing incessantly. I was at Palace Show and heard a certain gentleman's Rollers, but I don't consider them anything compared with the birds I had from you for quality of song.—Yours, W. Humphrey." Don't forget, I am the only importer of Weber's Leipzig Rollers, and all are sent on week's trial at my risk. One trial solicited.

YORKSHIRES, NORWICH, CRESTS & CRESTBREDS, SCOTCH FANCIES, BORDER FANCIES.

For value in any of the above varieties I defy all competition. I have some clinking stock birds that are bred from winners, and also a few actual winners for sale. But see what others say. These are specimens of hundreds recently received, and filed for the inspection of my visitors:—"4, Pott Street, Pendlebury, Manchester, Feb. 16, 1911.—Bird safely to hand, and for which I thank you. She is just the hen I wanted. I could not have picked a better one myself, and I must truly thank you for your straightforward dealing.—Wm. Lloyd to J. Thomas." "86, Jameson St., Glasgow, Feb. 16, 1911.—Birds arrived all right, and in grand condition. I am very well pleased with them.—A Steel to Joe Thomas." "12, Crewer Terrace, Ryhope Village, Sunderland, Feb. 20, 1911.—I am very proud of the bird you sent me. I could not have picked a better one myself.—J. McGrevey to J. Thomas." "3, Pennywern St., Dowlais, Feb. 16, 1911.—Please send me ———. I saw a Norwich hen last week that was sent from you 2 years ago. She is a gem and in lively condition.—John Bowen to Joe Thomas." I could print hundreds similar did space permit.

Remember, I do not stand in the dark. I offer an open invitation to any fancier to come at any time but Sunday and inspect my stock. My birds will speak for themselves. I send every bird on seven or ten days' approval, and guarantee all pairs unrelated.

Morley, 63, St. Margarets-rd., Legrams-lane, Bradford.

SUTCLIFFE & SON.

We have bred and sold more winners in marked birds than any other fancier, also won the 10 guinea cup for Green marked Yorkshires this season, and winning the Cinnamon marked championship for 9 years, also special for best bird in show, with clear birds. This is sure proof of the quality of our stock, including highest honours at the Crystal Palace; we have a few extra good show and stock birds for sale, price from 15/- to 60/- a pair; state wants; three days' approval; inspection invited: 1, Kitson Street, and 1, Back Kitson-st., Cragg-rd., Windhill, Shipley, Yorkshire.

THE BLOOD THAT TELLS

Having won the Amalgamation 25 guinea challenge trophy, the Yorkshire Union 30 guinea challenge trophy, the Yorkshire 20 guinea challenge cup four times out of five, the Naylor challenge cup twice in succession, the Cinnamon Marked trophy, I have also won in two successive years at the Palace 13 1sts and 16 specials; also 3 championships for best Yorkshire, and 2 championships for best Cin. marked bird, and have concluded the season by winning at London C.B.A. and Palace Shows, 5 1sts, 3 2nds, 3 3rds, 2 4ths, and championship for best yellow-marked bird; also 1st in "Cage Birds'" competition. Can spare a few pairs at 20/-, 30/-, 40/-; also a few clinking pairs at reasonable prices; stamped address for reply: Shackleton, Melrose House, Lytton-rd., Girlington, Bradford.

OGDEN BROS.

Who is the champion breeder? We never miss a summer breeding several of the best living. We have won more prizes at Crystal Palace, 1911, with birds bred by exhibitor than any other exhibitor, 2 1sts, 2 2nds, 1 3rd; all these we have bred ourselves. Our trio of buff cocks have won 26 1sts this season, all 3 standing 1st on the same day, at classical shows, where the keenest competition were—Leices- [illegible] bred. Thirteen times this season we have won [illegible] at the biggest shows in England, Gateshead, L.C.B.A., and Crystal Palace, also winner of the £10 Yorkshire Union trophy, the Y.C.C. Sandiford cup, valued 5 guineas, Carl's competition for most points, 589, gained at Yorkshire Union's shows, winner of Cinnamon-marked trophy with unflighted birds, must be bred by exhibitor. We have won more firsts than any other exhibitor in this variety this season, and the last ten years we have won competitions, cups, trophies, medals, etc., that will stand a record for some years. We don't buy 3 or 4 of the best living and trade on their reputation, and them 3 or 4 not for sale; we have 30 all 1st prize winners, practically any of them for sale; one of our winning buffs, matched to a clinking hen, £7 pair; properly matched pairs from 15/6 to 60/; certain to breed winners; buy the blood from the fountain-head; all those wanting honest dealings come and select for yourself or send cash to editor, and we will send you on approval the best value it is possible to get in England; stamp reply: Ashwood, Tong-st., Bradford.

Who is the Champion IN YORKSHIRES, 1910-11?

Read below, and judge for yourself. With 153 entries I have won 61 1sts, 23 2nds, 20 3rds, 15 4ths, 24 spls., making a grand total of 143 prizes. I have also won in the very keenest competition shows; have won Yorkshire Union 30-guinea challenge trophy, which makes it twice in succession, also Naylor Challenge Trophy, also twice in succession, and Ramsden 6-guinea cup, which makes this twice in succession, and now becomes my own property; also Y.C.C. 7-guinea challenge trophy, and the cinnamon marked competition prize for the man who has bred his own winners. Have also won three gold medals, few cage birds prizes, and colour food prizes too numerous to mention, and last, but not least, with 8 entries at 1911 Palace Show, capturing 5 1sts, 1 2nd, 1 3rd, 1 vhc, and championship diploma best cinnamon marked birds. I think this will convince you that I hold the plums in the Yorkshire Fancy. Have still a few 20/- pairs and some pairs extra good at very reasonable prices; stamp particulars: Bailey, South View-te. , Sandy-lane, Allerton, Bradford.

Remember that I personally match these up myself, and exercise the same care as if they cost pounds, and just as I would do if I were pairing for myself. In fact, I always make it a rule to thoroughly satisfy in selection—then I am sure I shall satisfy my customer—that is, if satisfaction is possible. Now, this may not sound like anything very particular to the same time it is of the utmost importance to the purchaser, as everything depends upon this matching as to what results are likely to be; hence, you want it done by someone who not only knows what is right and what is wrong, but also someone who takes an interest in doing so, to get the only best results possible from the class of birds purchased.

I also offer suitable for all above pairs a good, serviceable breeding cage, fitted complete, price 3/6 ditto, fitted with sand trays and sanitary utensils, 5s.

For every other variety send for the largest completest, and the First Illustrated Canary price list ever published, and do not be gulled with imitations, which will bring only disappointment and delay, for I Have the Birds I offer; that means a good deal more than some people recognise.

CONSETT & DIST. P.P.R. & C.B.S.

General meeting, held Feb. 11th, when the balance sheet was adopted, and the following officers appointed: J. Barrow, treasurer; E. Carlill and J. Tweddall auditors; J. Moss, chairman; and R. R. Walker secretary. The meeting was adjourned to Feb. 25th in the Co-op. Room, at 7.30 p.m. prompt.—R. Walker, Sec.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

As the result of last Friday's sub-committee meeting, many startling innovations are in contemplation, the preamble of which will in due course be published in these columns. Meanwhile I would advise all societies desiring to participate in the guarantee scheme of Messrs. Rhodes and Ley to make application forthwith. Instead of the scheme going begging, it would appear the greater difficulty will be for the committee to determine at which eight shows the support shall be given, as I have already several in hand from societies who did not participate last year. Moreover, the club show cannot this year be held in London, and applications from provincial societies prepared to give the necessary classes should be made at once. All interested in the crested and crestbred Canary should apply to me for particulars of membership, etc., and all subscriptions and donations must be paid to me. I have four nominations since the general meeting, and these will shortly be submitted to the committee for election, and I solicit early intimation from others intending to join.—John Tyson, Sec., 169, Sloane Street, London.

NATIONAL GREEN MARKED Y.C.C.

Committee meeting held Feb. 18th, 6.30 p.m., Market Tavern, Bradford, Mr. W. H. Shackleton (president) presiding over a well attended meeting. "That the secretary be empowered to write all those in arrears with subscriptions reminding them of the same." Unanimously decided, that all specials presented by the club be of nett value, and that so far as possible winner to have his own choice, but the same must be there for presentation at the annual prize distribution on March 11th, Market Tavern, Bradford. The secretary submitted the following revised list of winners of the various competitions for the previous show season:—Open or Professional Section: 1st prize, Shackleton trophy and £1 1s medal, Messrs. Sutcliffe and Son, 125 points; 2nd, spl. cabinet, value £2 2s., W. H. Shackleton, 116 points; 3rd, £1 1s. special, L. Dykes, 107 points; 4th, 10/6 special, J. Thomas, 88 points; 5th, Broxup cigars, Messrs. Ogden Bros., 78 points; 6th, 5/- special, H. H. Towers, 61 points; runner-up, E. Smith, 46 points; special pair of pictures, to be won outright at Palace show, presented by R. B. Wright, Esq., Messrs. Ogden Bros., 17 points. Ramsden's special: 1st prize, silver-plated teapot, Messrs. R. Sutcliffe and Son, 125 points; 2nd prize, silver medal, L. Dykes, 107 points. Open novice competition: 1st prize, Sandiford's cup, E. Clegg, 48 points; 2nd, L. C. Casey, 6 points; other not won, as they have not complied with rules. For CAGE BIRDS' prizes, see Mr. F. Hammond's list. Junior novice competition for Y.U. novices only: Results will be published next week.—F. Armstrong, Hon. Sec.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD & DISTRICT C.B.S.

PAIR SHOW, to-morrow 25th inst., at Spencer Hall Dartmouth Park Hill. 3 Minutes Tufnell Park Tube and Highgate cars from Euston Road. Open 2 to 9.30 p.m. 130 entries and 250 birds. Admission 3d. only.

The Royal Cornwall Show is this year to be held at St. Austell on June 14th and 15th. Mr. Northey, of Clifton Villas, St. Austell, is the hon. sec. of the cage bird section, which will be judged by Mr. C. A. House.

I must thank CAGE BIRDS for my great success last year. I reared 35 young Canaries with one Norwich cock and two hens. That, all will admit, is jolly good for a beginner. Your CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL I would not be without.—Frank Strong (Clapham, S.W.).

A Parrot Tragedy.

A Parrot called Plato, remarkable for its ability as a linguist, was the principal character in a tragedy on February 10th, in Paris, according to the "Daily Express" correspondent. Plato was a remarkable Parrot. He could utter many military commands in Spanish, make charming little speeches in English, demand sauerkraut, beer, and the Kaiser in German, also talk French with uncanny fluency. M. Carvallo was very proud of his pet, and when he returned from his lectures he spent hours teaching the bird new phrases. It appears, however, that Mme. Machunel, his landlady, disliked the Parrot, and she frequently urged M. Carvallo to get rid of it. Yesterday morning, while at breakfast, M. Carvallo noticed a "murderous" look in the landlady's eye when Plato amicably invited her to come out and pick violets with him. M. Carvallo left to attend a lecture, but became uneasy, and returned an hour later, just in time to find his landlady wringing the Parrot's neck. Maddened with grief, the student threw his landlady downstairs. She was taken to the hospital, and he was taken to prison.

Banbury Show report reads Viggars, where it should read Viggers.—B. Viggers (Banbury).

At Wellingborough Show on August 9th, the cage bird classes will be judged by Mr. C. A. House.

Kindly note my new address, writes Mr. Frank Strong; I have removed from Wandsworth, S.W., to 117, The Chase, Clapham, London, S.W.

Our next annual show is fixed for Nov. 7th and 8th, and Mr. J. Robson will judge, writes Mr. W. O. Brooke, hon. sec. of the Bournemouth and Dis. C.B.A.

Peterborough C.B.A. have fixed November 9th for their open show, with Mr. J. Robson to judge, writes Mr. H. Popple, the Hon. Sec.

October 18th and 19th are the days fixed for the holding of its annual show by the Bromley (Kent) society. Cage birds will be judged by Mr. C. A. House.

Mr. A. Hirst, of Accrington, has been engaged to judge our annual autumn show to take place on Nov. 25th, writes Mr. H. Jameson, sec. of the Bury C.B.S.

I received the copies of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL from you, and they are selling well.—J. Baker, Sec. of the Royal Alfred (Manor Road) Singing Club, Erith, Kent.

The King has, we hear, been pleased to grant a special warrant of appointment to R. B. Tope and Co., the marquee, tent and flag manufacturers, of Plymouth.

The Long Eaton C.B.S. have elected me to the secretaryship, and have thrown the radius open, writes Mr. G. T. Wall, Cleveland Avenue, Draycott, Long Eaton.

Allow me to thank you and your artist for the excellent drawing of my Goldie-Greenie Hybrid, reproduced in your issue of Feb. 11.—Robt. Jamieson, jun. (Linlithgow).

We have decided to enrol Roller fanciers as members of our Society, also to hold a show for the benefit of the same, writes Mr. J. Cope, Sec. of the Oldham and Dis. C.B.S.

We have engaged Messrs. W. E. Greeves, H. W. Battye, and J. Frostick to judge at our next annual show on Nov. 1st, writes Mr. A. S. Treasure, joint sec. of the Cheltenham C.B.S.

Kindly note that I have removed from Campbell-street, Oldham, o 4, Ormerod-street, off Marton-street, Oldham, where I shall be pleased to meet old and new friends, writes Mr. J. W. Dalzell.

The splendid report you gave in CAGE BIRDS of the recent Crystal Palace Show was a treat to northern fanciers, and they all speak of it in the most complimentary terms.—W. Reid (Sunderland).

I received your CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL all right, and I find it worthy of the weekly CAGE BIRDS. I must say that your weekly paper is one of much interest. I make sure to get it every week.—J. N. Vysick (Colne).

I received the two dozen CAGE BIRDS ANNUALS I ordered all right, and was well pleased with them. I think they are good value for the money.—F. Barron, sec. of the Ashington and Dist. C.B.S.

The West Bromwich C.B.S. are holding a pair show at Dartmouth Hotel on March 4th. Mr. W. C. Wells (Erdington), has kindly promised to judge. Fanciers and friends are invited, admission being free to all.—W. G. Andrews, Hon. Sec.

One of our members (Mr. Strathearn, of South Alloa) has, I am sorry to inform you, writes Mr. W. Niven, Sec. of the Falkirk O.S., met with a serious loss through a stove in his bird room smoking. All his Scotch Fancies and feeders have been suffocated—over 50 in all.

We have decided to hold a table show of cage birds on March 4 at the Vine Hotel, Cross Street, writes Mr. F. Price, the Hon. Sec. of the Walsall and District C.B.S. There will be 11 classes, and Mr. J. A. Tonks (Wednesbury) will judge. We should be pleased to see the fanciers of the district present.

I have resigned the hon. secretaryship of the Yorkshire Canary Club of Scotland, and all communications in future should be sent to the new secretary, Mr. R. B. Gibb, 96, Middleton-street, Ibrose, Glasgow, writes Mr. Fred. Bowman.

The Sec. of the Bristol F.A. (Mr. G. T. H. Maggs), and his fellow officials are deserving of great credit for the taste displayed in the Association's calendar for 1911. It is strung so that it can be hung in the birdroom, and on it will be found the dates and character of the meetings to be held during the season now started. The table show regulations and a list of the specials offered are also printed on the calendar.

Our annual show has been fixed for Nov. 15 and 16, with Messrs. J. H. Payne and J. Robson as judges, writes Mr. J. Dunnett, Hon. Sec. of the Cardiff and District C.B.S. I may add that our Society has withdrawn from the Cage Bird Union.

Mr. J. P. Sampson has resigned the hon. secretaryship of the Penzance F.A., to the regret of the Fancy in the West. I have been appointed in his stead, with Mr. W. H. Batten as assist. sec. All communications should, therefore, be made to me at 18, Leskinnick-terrace, Penzance, writes Mr. William C. Bodinnar. Annual show at the Corn Exchange, Nov. 16th and 17th.

Will exhibitors please note, writes Mr. Geo. Jeffery, that, although I managed the cage bird section of Southall Fanciers' Society Show in January, I have had nothing to do with paying out prize-money. I understand from our Secretary, Mr. A. E. Argyle, that all prize-money has been paid out. So anyone overlooked should write to him at 2, Victor Terrace, Lea Road, Southall.

In our issue of Jan. 14, Mr. Wesley T. Page answered a foreign bird query under the heading of "A Lost Parrakeet." Mr. F. Clegg, of 7, Limefield Terrace, Littleborough, near Manchester, has written us to say that he has found one, and that if the querist referred to will communicate with him, giving full particulars of the lost bird, it may lead to its restoration to the proper owner.

OBITUARY.

It is with the greatest regret that we hear of the loss sustained on Saturday last (Feb. 18) by the popular manager of the Crystal Palace Show, Mr. J. W. Ramsden, in the demise of his father, who passed away somewhat suddenly. The deceased gentleman was 72 years of ago. The sympathy of the Fancy will be extended to Mr. Ramsden and other relatives in their bereavement.

I regret to inform you, writes Mr. George Green, the secretary of the Green Canary Association, of the death of Mrs. Hales, mother of that well-known fancier, Mr. W. Hales. Mrs. Hales passed away on February 15th, in her 81st year. The sympathy of a large circle of friends in the Fancy will go out to him in his sad bereavement. The interment took place at Annfield, on February 19th. The Liverpool societies were represented by Mr. and Mrs. Deacon, Messrs. Benson, Green, Metcalfe, and Rowlands.

I am sorry to inform you, writes Mr. W. Downing (Manchester), that the old man with the reaping hook appears to be very busy among us at present. Two of the oldest Norwich fanciers in the Manchester district have in the last few days had to submit to their wives being called away. Mr. W. Pollard's wife passed away after long suffering, patiently borne, and the wife of Mr. J. D. Steele, at the early age of 35 years, after a very short illness. A chum of her husband, a good mother to her children, and a friend to all, the latter especially will be much missed, both in the bird-room and out of it, by her many friends.

There will be a meeting of the society in the Riego Street Hall on 2nd March, when Mr. J. F. Dewar will give an interesting and instructive address on our hobby, writes Mr. R. Lile, sec. of the Edinburgh Western O.S. It is expected that a large number of the members will be present to give Mr. Dewar a cordial welcome. All intending members should endeavour to be present at this meeting.

For the last few weeks I have been unable to deal with my correspondence promptly, writes Mr. H. H. Towers, owing to the very serious illness of my youngest child. I am pleased to say, however, that she is now improving, and I hope soon to be able to get matters up to date. Will you kindly mention this, so that my friends may know that the apparent neglect has not been intentional.

Many thanks for CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL; it is simply splendid. I had no idea it contained what it does, being, as it is, brimful of instructive information. No bird-keeper should be without it, considering too that the cost is so trivial. Shall have my copy hanging up in our Highgate Show next Saturday, and trust our members will avail themselves of the opportunity of possessing a copy.—C. W. Law, Hon. Sec. of the Highgate, Hampstead and District C.B.S.

The attention of fanciers, especially in and around the Hamilton District (Lanarkshire) is drawn to the fact that the Hamilton (Cadzow Oak) Society's Show of cage birds will be held on November 11th, 1911, writes Mr. G. Marlin, the Sec. The following well-known specialist judges have consented to place the awards: Messrs. Watson (Kilmarnock), Norwich section; A. Walker (Lesmahagow), Border section; P. Pettigrew (Glasgow), Mules, British and foreign bird section. It is hoped there will be a liberal response in the matter of entries. Let Nov. 11th be a red-letter day in the history of the Society.

The Early Sparrow.

A remarkable discovery was recently made at Pound Batch Farm, Abbots Leigh, according to the "Standard" of February 8th. A workman had for some days fancied that he heard the chirping of young birds in a barn where he was employed, and on entering the building a morning or two since he saw a House Sparrow feeding her two young, fully fledged birds, which were perched on a beam. On examination of the building the nest was found in a corner beneath the roof.

I have purchased all Mr. Coyne's (Ireland) winning Britishers at a fair price, writes Mr. Thomas Kemp (Barnsley). They are all splendid birds, and I hope they will do as well for me as they have done on the Irish show bench for Mr. Coyne.

A Lesson from the C.P.

In speaking of the recent Crystal Palace Show, the "Crystal Palace District Advertiser" says: "Coming to the British birds one was struck with the general excellence of all the classes. The beautiful condition of the birds, their fearlessness and perkiness in their show cages, was a strong refutation of the statements made by those faddists who are meddling with cage bird fanciers' rights and talking about the "cruelty" of caging British birds. When one considers the joy it is to thousands of working men and to hundreds of ladies in the country to have these pets under their care, and when one sees the fine condition in which these "natives" were shown—a condition which must have meant many months of loving care and correct feeding—it is surely only mistaken zeal which can regard their being kept as an act of cruelty."

Kindly thank all who replied to my small advert. in your ever progressing journal of "CAGE BIRDS," of Feb. 11th, re Wanted Canaries. I find I could not possibly reply to all who wrote me, but those who enclosed a stamp I wrote to, stating I had bought three gentlemen's stocks. I had about 50 replies in all.—Vincent Hankey (Liverpool).

My last advertisement in "CAGE BIRDS," offering my pair of Stanley Parrakeets (own breeding), far exceeded my expectations in its results. I could have sold half-a-dozen pairs or more. I hope to have more young ones this season.—J. Smith (Kendal).

Allow me to thank you for my advertisement in "CAGE BIRDS" of Feb. 11th, re lady's cycle for exchange. I found it impossible to reply to them all, as they were so numerous. I think "CAGE BIRDS" is a safe place to put any advertisement in. A. Sherbrooke (Whitchurch).

We are simply swarmed with orders through our advertisement in "CAGE BIRDS." I received a large order from Canada on Feb. 18th, for nest pans, wire fronts, wire and punched bars.—W. Pimm (Birmingham).

Some Gems of the Finch Family.

By CHAS. PRIOR (Brentford).

One of our oldest and foremost exhibitors contributes most helpful notes on Mr. Goodchild's coloured plate, which was given with our recent Birthday Number.

Sexing Redpolls.

Ordinarily, the "sexing" of Redpolls is looked at somewhat askance. As an old bird dealer once remarked to me, "There ain't no cock or hen Redpolls; they're all cocks." Of course, this sweeping declaration is probably inaccurate, and while there are some individuals which perplex even the cutest, most Redpolls can be "sexed" with the same certainty as other birds. For instance, any Redpoll with red on the breast is a certain cock. Many Redpolls have a very slight pinkish flush on the rump. These also are certain cocks. Even warmth of colouring in this region is strong evidence presumptive of the male, for the hens run greyish there. Other differences are comparative. There is the red on the crown. In the cock this is bright scarlet, and much more conspicuous than in the hen. Taken in conjunction with other "henny" appearances, an excessive amount of heavy pencilling may dispose of a doubt. The lustier voice of the cock, too must not be overlooked. Of course, the various colour differences here noted apply to field-moulted Redpolls. They are greatly modified after house-moulting, and the difficulty of deciding sex considerably increased.

From the exhibition standpoint, the illustration presents all that is required so faithfully that words are not needed. Just one point may be noted, and that is size. Size is of rare occurrence in Lesser Redpolls, thus it naturally lifts its happy possessor out of the rut. (There is a larger species of Redpoll, the Mealy; but he is not in the picture this time.)

Home-bred Siskins.

We have already bracketted the Siskin with the Redpoll as one of the most easily tamed of birds, and of a truth, a wild Siskin in captivity is as much of a novelty as a tame suffragette at liberty. He is a most confiding pet, with a very lively manner, a brisk and cheerful song, and a hunger out of all proportion to his small size. A bird-loving lady acquaintance of mine (Mrs. Clark, of Sidcup) has successfully negotiated the experiment of breeding her own Siskins, and has exhibited some excellent specimens of both cocks and hens, bred in captivity and reared by their own parents. This is indeed a commendable achievement; one which suggests a whole catalogue of ideas, all pregnant with possibilities, and leading on finally to captive-bred winners of all species of wild birds.

But to the Siskin. Our portrait is itself a study in all that is excellent in the show bird. A sweetly modelled Siskin this, a yellow (as distinct from buff), hence not over large in size; and the most careful scrutiny reveals little else in his disfavour. We can well imagine his Buff nest-mate as being much bulkier in build, and if the two should meet on the show bench, they may well bring a pucker to the brow of the worthy judge. On the one hand the yellow, pure, rich colour, which throws into bold relief every feather which is not yellow or green. A well-formed cap, which is dense and black, but not entirely without lacing. Wing-bars and flight markings show up well on a bright yellow rump; ticking on back and thighs, regular and sharply defined. Finally, though it is not quite an indispensable point of merit, even the bib is in evidence.

Yellow and Buff.

On the other hand, the Buff. As perfect technically as his yellow brother, his perfections are presented in a less attractive form. His colours are as rich and his markings as regular and probably more profuse, but they are less striking, because they are enveloped in his natural mealiness. His cap, even if better in lacing, is less dense in colour. His bib, if he has one, is fainter. But, compensating for his one defect, cloudiness, he has the advantage of size, and a robustness of outline which is invariably denied to the Yellow. It is a hard galloping race for premier position between the two, and as we cannot have dead heats, there is bound to be a neck and neck finish.

It may be as well to note hereabouts that the colour difference, yellow and buff (otherwise, and perhaps more correctly in speaking of British birds, jonque and mealy), already mentioned in connection with the Siskin, are common to all birds. They are well established in the Canary world, separate classification for Yellow and Buff being provided at our big shows. This may not be practicable in the case of British birds, but the same dominating qualities are to be found in the Yellows and Buffs of other species as we have traced in the Siskin. The Buffs are excellent in all characteristic markings; bold in type and generous in contour; but cloudy in colour. The Yellows, pure and bright in colour, brimful of quality and polish, but, saving the rare exceptions, rather narrow at head and scanty in bulk. (By the way, of the seven species in our coloured plate, all are Yellows, excepting the Redpoll, which is a Buff).

Hen Siskins are easily recognised by the total absence of both cap and bib, the profusion of their markings on breast, flank, back and head, and their decidedly greyish colouration. They are attractive little birds, and enjoy quite a vogue in the hen classes which are now provided in yearly increasing numbers; besides which they are very useful in the pursuit of breeding experiments.

Sans Everything.

Our attention is next directed to the foot of the picture, where we encounter two of the handsomest of our native birds. Here, on the left, is a delineation of the Chaffinch, which, without as much as a thought derogatory to the excellence of the others, pleases me best of all in the picture. And why? Simply because he represents my ideal of the exhibition Chaffinch par excellence.

In the Linnet, the Greenfinch, the Twite, and the Redpoll, we love to study the beauty of subdued colours harmoniously blended. In the Goldfinch, the Bullfinch, the Chaffinch, and the Bramblefinch we expect the gayest of colours in the most striking of contrasts. Thus we have no place on the show-bench for the Chaffinch which is merely a self-coloured production of the colour-food artist. Let us have a chocolate-coloured back, by all means, but let the breast be many shades lighter—something approaching a tan. Let there be a nice display of pure white at the shoulder, habitually and naturally exhibited by the bird at every movement. Give us a steel-blue head and a grassy-green rump, enough size, and a "boxwood model" sleekness, and that will do.

Away with the one-colour-all-over monstrosity, sans head colour, sans rump colour, sans everything except that rich chocolate hue, who never shows his white shoulders, probably because he hasn't got one, and who simply travesties his nick-name of "Piefinch." We will have none of him. Incidentally, away also with the judgo who will not do justice to the attractive bird of contrasts when he meets him.
